A boom for former State Senator Joseph Frelinghuysen for United States Senator was definitely launched at the banquet tendered ex-mayors of the borough of North Plainfield by the Republican Club there, last night, and the movement to incorporate Plainfield, North Plainfield and Dunellen into a new county was given added impetus.

Senator Frelinghuysen was present and made an eloquent plea for a stronger Americanism, a greater patriotism and a more strongly developed civic pride. His address was an old-time appeal to rally around the American flag, and he admitted that many people feel that the flag had been used too often in political addresses, but he believed strongly that Americans could not be too often impressed with the symbolic beauty of the Red, White and Blue, with its history of courage and sacrifice for liberty and justice. Senator Frelinghuysen's address made a tremendous hit with the crowd and he was boisterously applauded.

More than 359 men attended the dinner of last night, which was served in Debele's Auditorium. H. C. Krebs acted as toastmaster and there were five former mayors of the borough present when the meeting was called to order. Four were unable to attend, and one out of a total of ten is dead. Those present were Justus H. Cooley, Charles Place, Benjamin A. Hegeman, Jr., Newton B. Smalley and Robert Clark, Jr.

WILL HONOR MEMORY OF FIRST PRESIDENT

Monday Afternoon Club Considers Plans for Memorial for Miss E. E. Kenyon.

An informal meeting of the Monday Afternoon Club was held yesterday and various suggestions were made concerning a fitting memorial for Miss Elizabeth Elvira Kenyon, the first president of the club. Several plans were discussed at length, but it was decided to postpone definite action until a later meeting. Among the other and less important matters brought up for discussion were the active interest taken by many associations in civic affairs and the advisability of keeping members posted by the sending of monthly notice concerning the movements of the club.

After the discussion Miss Mary Runkle sang a number of Russian songs. Tea was served by some of the members who appeared in Russian costumes and an interesting collection of Russian embroideries, painting, enamels and brasses were exhibited.

On March 6, the club will give in the Plainfield High School Auditorium an entertainment which will be open to the public. The stringed quartet of the Russian Symphony Orchestra and Madam Nina Dinitrieff have been engaged for the occasion. On April 3, General Leonard Wood will speak instead of Professor McClellan. The lecture will also be open to the public and will be given in the High School.

REED NAMED FOR STATE TREASURER

Caucus Gives Dalrymple and Others a Severe Jolt, However.

Trenton, Feb. 1.—Although Senate President William T. Read, of Camden county, was nominated for State treasurer by the joint Republican legislative caucus late yesterday afternoon, as everybody expected, the Republicans who made the nomination possible through the combination of Alfred N. Dalrymple, of Essex, as the representative of former Governor Murphy and other "Old Guardsmen," and David Baird, of Camden, were handed a stiff polt that served as an ominous warning to the combine leaders to be careful how they resort to ring tactics. The chief jolt came from red hot anti-combine speeches by Senator Thomas F. McCran, of Passaic, who won his spurs as a fighter in the Assembly, and Assemblyman James Hammond, of Mercer, who as a local optionist, defied the Mercer regular Republican leaders last November and won his reelection.

Furthermore, these speeches and others were backed up by a total of 15 votes against Senator Read, and this may be taken as a test vote on the question of the strength of the independents among the Republicans in the two Houses.

The candidates placed in nomination for State treasurer were Senator Read; State Chairman Newton A. K. Burgbee, of Trenton; former Water Supply Commissioner George F. Wright, of Paterson, and Edmund B. Osborne, of South Orange, a Progressive.

The vote was as follows: Read, 33; Bugbee, 6; Wright, 5, and Osborne, 4.

The joint caucus contains 53 members, thirteen Senators and forty Assemblymen, but Assemblymen Pilgrim and Titus, of Essex; Mutchler, of Morris, and Greenwood, of Salem, were absent. This gave an attendance of 49, making 25 votes necessary to a choice. Here is the vote in detail:

Read—Senator Colgate and Assemblymen Barradale, Berry, Buehler, Crosby, DeCamp, Gilbert, Johnson, Schoen, Scudder and Silberman, of Essex; Edge, Godfrey and Whitman, of Atlantic; Wells and Roberts, of Burlington; Kates, Pancoast and Wolverton, of Camden; Stevens and Lake, of Cape May; Sheppard, of Cumberland; Gaunt and West, of Gloucester; Downs, of Morris; Senator Mathis, of Ocean; Senator Allen, of Salem; Senator Rathbun, of Morris; Smalley and O. H. Hammond, of Somerset, and Senator Pierce and Assemblymen Morgan and Pierson, of Union.

Bugbee—Senator Hutchinson and Assemblymen Hammond, Oliphant and Allinson, of Mercer; Conrad, of Ocean, and Runyon, of Union.

Wright—Senator McCran and Assemblymen Dalrymple, Hunter and Randall, of Passaic, and Assemblyman Winne, of Bergen.

Osborne—Ackerman and Bailey, of Bergen, and Adamson and Dadley, of Passaic.

CAUGHT AFTER EXCITING CHASE

Dunellen Youth Had Eluded Officers for Six Full Weeks.

ADMITS HE IS GUILTY

Many Robberies Have Occurred Since Romp Left Reformatory and He is Accused of Taking Part in all of Them.

Fred Romp, aged twenty, son of Charles Romp, of New Market, who has been wanted by the county and Piscataway township authorities and in addition by the officials of the Rahway Reformatory for the past six weeks, is lodged behind the bars in the Dunellen jail. He was arrested Sunday evening by Marshals Mohan, Tarpey and Snyder, who went to the home of James Carroll, on the McKinnon farm in New Market, Sunday night, disguised as tramps, and nailed their man, who had gone to the place to visit his brother, Harry, who boards there.

Young Romp is wanted by the officials of Rahway Reformatory, from which institution he was released on parole last November, for having broken that parole when he left at job at Oxford, which the Rahway officials had obtained for him, after holding it for three days. He came back to New Market and secured a job at Gabriel & Schall's chemical works. He held it until the Rahway Reformatory officials got on his trail two weeks later and since then he has been busily engaged in eluding the officials of that institution in a typical game of fox and hare.

Since Romp returned to New Market there have been numerous robberies in the vicinity. On December 26 a house at Lincoln, tenanted by New York people during the winter, was cleaned out. Another theft at Lincoln during the same month was the stealing of two automobile tires from a machine standing in front of the Lincoln fire house one evening. Several weeks ago a clothes line loaded with clothing at Eisemann's Inn, New Market, was stripped and a week or two before that the residence of H. L. Pierce in the same village was broken into and ransacked. In addition over $600 in tools have been taken from the factory of Gabriel & Schall's during the past month.

Since the first robbery the county and Piscataway township authorities have been trying to lay hands on Romp, but he has continually succeeded in eluding them. Officers have gone to his home time and time again and while their man would be

T. A. B. BANQUET ENJOYED BY MANY

Pleasing Social Function Given to Those Who Made Recent Bazaar a Success.

MUSIC IS A FEATURE

Fathers Bogan, McDonald, Sciolla and Others Make Interesting Addresses—M. D. O'Keefe, Chairman of Bazaar Committee, Toastmaster.

One of the most successful social affairs conducted by St. Mary's T. A. B Society in recent years took place in the organization's home, on West Fourth street, last night, when the general committee in charge of the recent bazaar gave a dinner and entertainment to all those who had assisted in making the affair a success. The invitations were extended to the T. A. B.'s as a whole, the young women of St. Mary's Club and others. A total of 237 sat down to dinner, while in addition to this number many came later to enjoy the varied program.

The dinner was prepared in the society's new kitchen by Mrs. Catherine Quinn, of East Second street, an expert in this particular line. Eleven of the younger members of the organization made efficient waiters. These were: Thomas Hines, James P. O'Keefe, William Mahoney, James Force, Joseph Carroll, Frank Donnolly, John Nolan, Joseph Smith, James Monahan, John Snyder and Thomas F. O'Keefe. The dinner was served in courses, every one of which was pronounced better than its predecessor, and produced showers of congratulations for the "chefess."

When the appetities of the 237 diners had been appeased, Michael D. O'Keefe, chairman of the bazaar committee, assumed the position of toastmaster, and conducted a session of speechmaking. The principal address was made by Father B. M. Bogan, who took occasion to congratulate the society on its recent affair, and informed the young men that their efforts to better themselves and the community in general was meeting with the approbation of all their well-wishers. Other speeches were made by Father McDonald, Father Sciolla, Joseph T. McCue, president of the T. A. B. Society; John Walsh, one of its two oldest members; John J. Hines, Miss Emma Sullivan, president of St. Maryy's Social Club, and Miss Katherine McCauley, chairman of the women's committee of the bazaar. Numerous vocal solos were also among the features of the program. These were rendered by Joseph Sullivan and Miss Helen Sullivan, of Elizabeth; Miss Mary Donnolly, Joseph Carroll and Louis Montferrante. Miss May Maher acted as accompanist. Joseph Carroll's selection, "My Mother's Rosary," made an especial hit, and the conclusion was reached amid prolonged applause. Later in the evening many of the young people enjoyed dancing music being furnished by Squier's orchestra, while others busied themselves in the bowling alleys and pool room.

The main hall was tastefully decorated with flags and bunting in honor of the occasion.

The bazaar which preceded last night's entertainment was given last month and was one of the most successful in forty-four years of the T. A. B. S. history. The net receipts were about $1,500, a most gratifying sum to all concerned. It was because of this surprising figure that the general committee decided to show its appreciation. This committee was composed of Michael D. O'Keefe, chairman; John J. Hines, treasurer, and John Force, secretary.

MANY RESPOND TO BELGIANS' NEEDS

Local Society Reports That $3,305.83 Has Been Subscribed to Fund.

OTHER CONTRIBUTIONS

Mme. de Rancogne, of Paris, Will Give Illustrated Lecture on War at Hartridge Auditorium Monday, February 14.

At a special meeting of the Belgian Relief Society held yesterday at Mrs. Wallace's great enthusiasm was expressed over the chairman's account of the portable house, and a resolutian was passed thanking E. F. Hodgson for adding the woven fibre lining and the window shades, neither of which were included in his estimate. Mrs. Wallace explained that she had ordered the builders to make three outlets for stove pipes and to send carefully fitted pipe lengths in order that the danger of fire or draught when the stoves are put in might be lessened. Thanks were also expressed to the Belgian Relief Society of Dorn, Massachusetts, which has added 300 sheets to the equipment of the orphanage; to Mayberry Mellor through whose kindness and interest blankets have been bought at an exceptionally low price, and to H. R. Phillips, who has made it possible for the society to ship everything to Belguim free of cost and also to send the house and its furnishings ahead of other freight.

The treasurer reported a balance of $3,305.83 and it was decided that after the bills for the building, for the panels, for freightage to the docks and for insurance have been paid the society will consider the pressing need of the Belgians for warm clothing. It has been reported that the suffering is intense because it is almost impossible to obtain material in Belgium for clothing of any kind, and that thousands of people are wearing only cotton garments. The people are grateful for even the bags in which flour is sent, as they can be used as a covering for the children even thought they afford no warmth

Mme. de Rancogne, who was warmly applauded when she spoke before the society at a former meeting and who has been speaking to enthusiastic audiences in New York, will give an illustrated talk the evening of February 14 at the Hartridge Auditorium. The tickets will be a dollar and the proceeds of the talk will be given to the Viscountess for her work in Belgium. All who wish to contribute clothing or other articles will send them in packages clearly

WILL FIGHT WAR TO A CONCLUSION

Englishman Writing to J. W. Harrison, Says Great Britain is Confident.

An interesting sidelight of the European war has just been received by J. W. Harrison, of this city, from his old friend, H. L. Wrathall, of "Frenchwood," Huyton, England. Among other things, Mr. Wrathall says:

"The year just passed has, indeed, been a very sad one, and enough to depress the most hopeful amogst us, but there is no wavering whatever in the determination of the country to fight this war to a victorius conclusion. We feel absolutely confident, without any shadow of a doubt, that we are fighting the cause of humanity and right.

"I have always been a pronounced advocate for peace all my life, and whilst these underlying principles are still all right and will one day prevail, they might, in the present instance, had led to disaster. Believe me there was not one man in a thousand here who contemplated for one moment war with Germany. We kept our fleet ready for defense and never though evil of anyone. War came to us like a bolt from the blue. Lee has attested for the navy and Reginald, my second son, is in the O. T. C., in London. To all of us war is absolutely hateful, but it is all we can do under the present circumstances. There are not many of the old church members left, indeed very few, and the war has affected us like the rest."

The commissioner of banking and insurance shall immediately notify all insurers affected by any such order as aforesaid, and all such insurers shall forthwith comply with such order. The commissioner of banking and insurance may revoke the license of any insurer failing to comply with such order."

marked to Mrs. F. W. Wallace on Hillside avenue. The Viscountess de Rancogne has been conducting a wonderful work. She is the daughter of the editor of Le Matin and her husband has been a prisoner of war for fourteen months. Together with two friends she has formed an association the purpose of which is to help the Belgian soldiers, chiefly by giving them physical and moral encouragement and by trying to find out and satisfy their individual needs. This association, which has its headquarters in Paris, is called the Appui Belge. It renders assistance to the wounded and sick civilians, combats infant mortality and gives every aid possible to the Belgian civil population remaining in the non-invaded part of Belgium. Mme. de Rancogne looks little more than a girl but she must have lived many years in the past eighteen months. She drives her car through bombarded localities into the army zone, fulfilling to the day every obligation that she has assumed, regardless of physical danger or of moral strain. Her work is recognized and valued by the French and Belgian ministers, by the Central Franco-Belgian Committee and by the American War Relief and the American Clearing House.

Those who have contributed to the Plainfield Belgian Relief in the past week are: Miss Dorothy Burke, Miss Maria L. Finch, Miss Charlotte Finch, Miss Crane, Mrs. F. O. Herring, Mrs. Jameson, Mrs. Bolton, Mrs. M. O. Baker, Miss Rebecca Matthews, Mrs. C. F. Dunwell, and Mrs. C. L. Smith, of Boston.

He Could Wield an Ax.

The skill of the old Maine shipbuilders in the use of the adz and broadax was wonderful. One old time yarn is of a carpenter who applied very drunk at a shipyard for employment. In order to have a little fun with him the foreman set him to give a proof of his skill by hewing out a wooden bolt with no chopping block but a stone. The carpenter accomplished his difficult task without marring the keen edge of the broadax and showed the foreman a neatly made bolt. Then he brought the ax down with a terrific blow that shattered its edge upon the stone. "I can hew fust rate on your chopping block," he hiccoughed, "but I'll be blamed if I can make the ax stick in it when I git through." The story runs that the foreman lost no time in employing such a workman.

NATIONAL LEAGUE WILL BE 41 YEARS OLD TOMORROW

New York, Feb. 1.—The National League enters upon its forty-first year tomorrow, its organization having been founded at Louisville on February 2, 1870. It is the oldest baseball league in existence, and may rightfully be termed the "granddaddy" of all the leagues and associations that flourish the country over.

The original circuit of the league comprised the Mutuals, of New York; the Athletics, of Philadelphia, and teams in St. Louis, Hartford, Boston, Louisville and Cincinnati. There have been many changes in the combination, and the circuit has been shifted from time to time until the various clubs nestled where the fans were the thickest.

In 1892 the National League was a twelve-club circuit, and this was retained until 1900, when it was reduced to eight. The coming season will therefore be the sixteenth in which Pittsburgh, St. Louis, Cincinnati, Boston, Philadelphia, Brooklyn, New York and Chicago have had clubs.

Since the organization of the National League forty years ago it has had only eight presidents, and one of them, Nick Young, was at the head of the league during half of that period. The present big chief is Hon. John K. Tener, former Governor of Pennsylvania.

The history of the National League is virtually a history of professional baseball. When it began its career it had a monopoly of the field, the old National Association, which had existed for several years previously, giving way to the new organization. With the increase in the public interest in the pastime and the growth of many big cities, new leagues grew up. The first big rival was the American League. Instead of fighting it out for the leadership, the magnates of both circuits saw the advantage of mutual understanding, and the two leagues have prospered. More recently came the Federal League, which had harder sledding against two big leagues firmly established.

And the old National League is still on deck, with prospects more rosy than ever for the coming season, its forty-first.

BIG BOOST FOR NEW COUNTY

and the Rev. P. J. Hart were also guests of honor at the banquet.

After an excellent dinner had been served Toastmaster Krebs called on the ex-mayors in the order in which they served the borough. The first, John H. VanWinkle, was not present.

Former Mayor Justus H. Cooley was the first to speak. He was introduced as the Benjamin Franklin of North Plainfield and made a very happy address in which he related interesting history of the borough since he first became a resident in 1879, when it was merely a place in which to live with plenty of mud to walk in. Mr. Cooley also said that the borough at that time was the greatest political center of its size in all the country. He recited events showing the growth of the borough to the present time and paid a compliment to the officials now serving and those who had preceded them, following after him.

Charles Place, the third mayor of the borough, was next introduced. He said that when he first became mayor, North Plainfield was the muddiest place in all the world, and admitted that there was still room for improvement along this line. He gave John Van Winkle, first mayor of the borough, credit for many of its present improvements, but said that he had laid the first fifty feet of flagging and that it was still in use. He also turned on the first electric lights used in the borough.

Former Mayor Hegeman said that there were too many ex-mayors of North Plainfield for all to make lengthy addresses and he limited his remarks to a brief recital of his thanks to those who had accomplished things of note for the borough.

In introducing ex-Mayor Newton B. Smalley, Toastmaster Krebs referred to him as the Andrew Jackson of North Plainfield. Mr. Smalley was five times mayor of the borough. He told of the many reasons why Plainfield, North Plainfield and Dunellen, the tail ends of Union, Somerset and Middlesex counties, should be merged into a new county and from the manner in which his address was received the idea is extremely popular in the borough. He spoke of Senator Frelinghuysen for United States Senator and this suggestion also received applause.

Mayor Robert Clark, Jr., was introduced as the most eloquent mayor and he lived up to the advance notice by saying that he was disappointed in the dinner because he believed that it would be a meeting place for citizens who were to extol the virtues of the ex-mayors that they might be set out in gold and silver by scribes for the people to see. Instead he found that each man was expected to enumerate his own virtues. Mayor Clark also boosted the consolidation of Plainfield and North Plainfield. He said that the borough spent more than $200,000 a year in Plainfield for which it received absolutely nothing and expressed surprise that the idea had not been suggested before. He declared that there were 1,200 homes in North Plainfield and that a greater part of the necessities used in each one came from Plainfield and urged consolidation in some manner at an early time. Mayor Clark also expressed approval of the candidacy of Senator Frelinghuysen for the United States Senate.

A greater part of the address of Congressman Hutchinson was devoted to an attack on the Democratic administration, in which he said:

"The conditions of the country today demand a policy of conservatism more than in the past decade and the question which the voters of this country will soon have to decide is. Which of the great political parties is the party best able to handle the interests of the entire people of this great country of ours? The Democratic party has tried to rule this great land of ours by concentrating the power of legislation to one section of the country, namely, the South, and in the present House of Representatives and Senate, the South, though representing only a small part of our population, is practically in control of the important committees. With a result that our great country has been governed by the very large minority of its population and it is not hard to see why the present administration has been such a failure, when one is familiar with the methods employed by it. History tells us that the Republican party has always been the party of conservatism, the party that considered whether a law would be beneficial to the great mass of the American people and not whether a small minority of the people would be benefitted by the enactment of a law; and I am proud to stand here tonight as a representative of the great Republican party, a party that has always been able to successfully cope with the great problems that a great country like ours continually present to its legislators and executives."

Officers of the Republican Club are: Mayor William L. Smalley, president; vice president, first district, Alexander Milne; vice president, second district, J. A. Wilson; vice president, third district, W. J. Trembath; vice president, fourth district, J. J. Stahl; vice president, fifth district, H. Woolston; Horace Conover, secretary; Allen Cowperthwait, treasurer.

Members of the committee in charge of last night's banquet were: Howard Woolston, chairman; James K. Arnold, W. J. Trembath, William Debele, William Campbell, Horace Conover, Grover Kipsey, Edward Mundy, Grover Schuck.

With a saw made from a knife blade twenty-four prisoners in Little Rock, Ark., cut through eight inch walls and escaped.

PETROGRAD PRINCESS HELD FOR TRYING TO FORCE PEACE

Married to Austrian Diplomat, She Sought to Influence Russia.

Princess Marie Vassiltchikoff, a member of a well known aristocratic family of Russia, whose name is also borne by a member of the present Russian ministry, is under arrest, charged with trying to induce Russia to stop fighting.

The princess herself formerly was a lady in waiting and is a relative of M Rodzianko, president of the duma, who himself is a chamberlain at court. For the last ten years she has lived abroad being, it is said, the morganatic wife of Prince Liechtenstein, the former Austro-Hungarian ambassador to Russia. These connections explain her conduct.

A little while ago M. Rodzianko received from her a letter offering her services in opening negotiations for peace between Russia and the central empires. M. Rodzianko immediately handed over the letter to M. Sazonoff the foreign minister, who in turn communicated its contents to M. Khvostoff the minister of the interior. The latter himself told the budget committee of the duma what followed.

Princess Vassiltchikoff, being apparently impatient at the delay, went herself to Petrograd and took up her abode in one of the best hotels in the city. The police at once received instructions to watch her movements, and in due course she was arrested and sent to one of her estates in the south of Russia, where she is still living under arrest.

Until M. Khvostoff divulged the exact particulars gossip in Petrograd had gone to the length of circulating a story of a court intrigue to force a separate peace on Russia.

CAUGHT IN CHICKEN HOUSE.

Off Went Burglar Alarm and Thief Found Himself Locked In.

When his chicken burglar alarm went off William Britton of Corona, N. Y., dressed leisurely and went out into the yard to find that William Littler had got into the chicken coop and was much excited because he couldn't get out.

"I fixed that for you fellows," said the owner to the prisoner. "I guess there will be no more chicken grabbers around here with my new alarm and lock system. Just make yourself comfortable. I will be back with a policeman presently."

And Mr. Britton kept his word. Littler was arrested. When arraigned in court he was held in $2,000 bail for the grand jury.

Some time ago Mr. Britton had all his poultry stolen and devised the burglar alarm prison coop.

OPEN OLD TURKISH MINES.

Coal Fields Not Used For 1,000 Years Are Operated by Germans.

Germany's campaign against Egypt has met with an unexpected obstacle. This is lack of coal to operate the railroad constructed southward through Syria to the edge of the desert approaching the Suez canal.

This has led the Germans to reopen the old Turkish mines in Syria used by the Romans, but abandoned by them a thousand years ago. Their capacity is 500,000 tons annually.

A large [illegible] Turkish laborers are engaged in developing the mines, which are now the chief reliance in getting the railroad to Egypt in operation.

HOW TAFT KEEPS THIN.

Tells Vassar Girls That a Long Walk Is as Good as Golf.

Former President William H. Taft in an address the other day told Vassar girls his winter rule for keeping himself thin. He said:

"Although there is no golf in winter, I manage to keep my weight down. I live on a hill, which is 1 mile and 600 feet distant (by official measurement) from my Yale classroom and 150 feet high.

"Walking the distance daily is almost equal to an eighteen hole golf course."

"I've been sorry ever since I bought it" is not the plaint of the student of the "ads"—but you've heard women say it, probably a great many times.

The spot-light of full publicity, turned on a store, reveals and places in that full light a store's defects—if it have defects. For example: If high prices prevail, or lines of goods are not kept up to date, the reader of the store advertisements knows it. It follows that advertising "pays" the store that renders real service—and would not pay the other kind of a store.

The housewife is the "official buyer" for the home—in almost all families. She is, consequently, the official "ad reader" for the home.

PLAINFIELD ~NEW JERSEY~

MANY WILL GO TO TRENTON RALLY

Local Optionists of State to Appear in the Capitol Tomorrow.

TRAIN LEAVES AT 9.02

Supt. Shields, of Anti-Saloon League, Pleased With Prospects—Will Hear "Billy" Sunday on "Booze" in Afternoon.

Superintendent James K. Shields, of the Anti-Saloon League, was enthusiastic today over the prospects for the monster local option demonstration at Trenton tomorrow, and he predicted that a record-breaking crowd wiuld be present from all parts of the State. It is expected that fully 300 men from Plainfield and North Plainfield will go to Trenton. They are planning to leave here in the morning on the 9:02 o'clock train, which will bring them to the capital about 10 o'clock. A number of special trains will be run from various parts of the State to Trenton, while many are pianning to make the trip by trolley from convenient points.

"The best news I have heard," said Mr. Shields, "is this message from Atlantic City, stating that the Philadelphia brewers had offered to pay the way of the booze bunch on the same day for a counter demonstration. I hope it is true as an object lesson."

The friends of the local option movement will gather at the "Billy" Sunday tabernacle, in Trenton, at 11 o'clock in the morning. Resolutions will be adopted and speeches made by Senators Wells and Hennessey and Assemblymen William N. Runyon and Kates. Then, under the leadership of Colonel James W. Howard, the march will be made to the Capitol, where friendly legislators will meet their constituents from the balcony. Senator Gaunt will receive the resolutions. There will be a counter-march to the tabernacle, where at 2 o'clock in the afternoon, "Billy" Sunday will preach his famous sermon on "Booze."

Senator Gaunt's local option bill was reported by the committe yesterday, removing all doubt that members of the Senate with Gubernatorial aspirations would be compelled to go on record as to how they stood on the matter. It was rumored that the local option bill, which was introduced in the Assembly, was to be reported out of committee last night, considered under a suspension of rules and defeated. This having been done, the plan was, it is said, to allow the bill in the Senate to die in committee, since it would be useless to pass the measure in that House with the Assembly already on record as against the measure. Had all of these things come about, the big local option rally tomorrow would have been left without an object, so far as this session of the Legislature is concerned, and there would have been much disappointment among the many people who are expected to attend it. The report of the bill in the Senate, however, quieted the fears of the local option people, since the issue will now be before the Legislature when the rally occurs tomorrow.

PERFECT SCORES FEATURE SCOND NIGHT OF BIG FAIR

Two perfect scores were recorded last night at the Company K fair. A large number of marksmen kept the rifles hot by their constant shooting, the shooting easily being one of the most popular features of the fair. A large crowd of dancers was again on hand.

Col. Reading, of the Second Regiment, and his staff will be present Thursday night.

OHIO RIVER IS RAGING.

L. C. Whithall, of 1220 Park avenue, left today for Jacksonville, Fla., where he will spend some time.

Miss Lois Peck, of Park place, who has been ill for the past three weeks, is said to be improving slowly.

NEW GUNS WILL GUARD NEW YORK

Proposed Sixteen Inch Cannon Will Have Twenty Mile Range.

SAFEGUARD NEARBY COASTS

More Effective Than Any Armament of Modern Battleships, They Will Prevent Sea Attack by Foreign Foe. Protection Covers an Area of 1,256 Square Miles.

When the nation's ordnance experts materialize the program of harbor defense for New York which was outlined to the house military affairs committee by Brigadier General Erasmus M. Weaver, U. S. A., chief of coast artillery, the metropolitan district will become virtually impregnable to attack either from land or sea. The "all around fire" range of the sixteen inch rifles which the ordnance authorities contemplate installing soon at Far Rockaway is 35,000 yards, or approximately twenty miles.

With this range, which is greater than that of any battleship armament in the world and greater than that of any known artillery of the mobile type, all of the metropolitan district within a twenty mile circle, with Far Rockaway Beach as its center, will be commanded by the powerful new weapons. This circle includes all of Manhattan Island south of Harlem, the southern section of the Bronx, all of Brooklyn and Queens, all of Staten Island, Newark, Elizabeth, Hoboken, Jersey City, Bayonne and practically all of the Jersey coast.

A battleship as powerful in armament as the British superdreadnaught Queen Elizabeth could be held off from the harbor at a distance which would make her guns impotent so far as bombardment of any part of the five boroughs of New York city is concerned. Cruisers of the British royal navy at present engaged in patrol duty outside of New York harbor and the prescribed three mile limit are to be found continually in waters which are included in the range area of the projected Far Rockaway fortifications. In wartime no war vessel could come so close were the Rockaway guns installed.

Wide Sweep of New Guns.

An idea of this sweeping range may be appreciated from the fact that the area covered by the guns is 1,256 square miles. Unlike the present fortification armament of most of the harbor defenses, the Far Rockaway system will be as effective when employed to repel land attack as to protect against bombardment from seaward.

That is, as Brigadier General Weaver emphasized, the guns will be emplaced in such a fashion that "all around fire" can be directed by the garrison. The guns can be trained with equal effect in any direction, the only difference being that should it become necessary to concentrate their fire upon an invading force threatening New York city in the rear, as from the land side, the character of the ammunition used would be different.

Armor piercing projectiles used against naval attack are of little use against operations by a land force. Tests have been made by "reversing" coast defense guns and firing them inshore. The armor piercing projectiles used merely buried themselves many feet deep in the soil. When the new fortifications are made complete and manned two distinct kinds of ammunition will be stowed in the magazine—armor piercing projectiles and shells of the high explosive type.

Peril Under Present Conditions.

Comparison between the range areas of the projected Far Rockaway armament and that of Fort Hancock, the present guardian fortress of New York at Sandy Hook, is interesting. The great batteries of the ultra modern battleship could be directed with deadly effect against Manhattan's proudest architectural piles and leave the financial section a smoking ruin within a few hours without ever venturing within effective range of the present harbor defense guns. So say the military authorities.

The range of the Fort Hancock guns is about 24,000 yards, or approximately thirteen and a half miles. The range area of these batteries stops short at Bay Ridge, and New York city, with the exception of the greater part of Staten Island, is outside the range altogether. Thus against a land attack, even with the necessary "all around fire" improvement instituted in the Fort Hancock armament, the gun range does not cover the metropolitan district in any sense, and the function of the Sandy Hook fortification, unless guns of much heavier caliber are emplaced there, can never be other than the original one—defense of the harbor from naval attack only.

COURT RECORDS IN SAFFORD CASE ALTERED

Judge Charles A. Hough, of the United States District Court, New York, testified yesterday before Wallead pencil interlineations contained lead pencl linterlineations contained in the records of the court, in connection with the appeal of Frank D. Safford, convicted of perjury, were not there when Judge Hough certified to the correctness of the records.

Safford was convicted of having falsely identified James W. Osborne as the man with Miss Rae Tanzer at a hotel in Plainfield, and upon which she based her action for $50,000 against Mr. Osborne. The alleged falsified records constitute a bill of exceptions intended as part of Safford's appeal to the United States Court of Appeals against his conviction. David Slade, who also was attorney for Miss Tanzer, acted for Safford in having the appeal record certified by Judge Hough.

REHEARSALS FOR PARK CLUB PLAYS PROGRESSING

Rehearsals are progressing satisfactorily for "The Bracelet" and "The Red Lamp," to be presented at the Park Club on Monday night, February 21, the members of the two casts doing excellent work. The performances and the dance which is to follow will be open to the public and the club hopes that generous patronage will be given.

The sale of tickets will be opened at the Park Club on Saturday night and already there is assurances of a large demand for them. These plays will take the place of the one usually given at this time by the Park Comedy Club. There will be an informal subscription dance at the club Saturday night, this being the affair previously announced for February 19, but which was postponed because it interferred with a rehearsal for the plays to be given a few days later.

THOMAS F. MARTIN TO BE CANDIDATE

Secretary of State Announces He Will Seek the Gubernatorial Nomination.

Trenton, Feb. 1.—Secretary of State Thomas F. Martin has entered the race for the Democratic nomination for Governor. In giving out the news to the newspaper men Mr. Martin issued a statement, in which he quoted to some extent from the "minutes" of the harmony conference, held in Jersey City on January 6. Mr. Martin's statement follows:

"I have decided to become a candidate for the Democratic nomination for Governor. Many circumstances have entered into the decision, one of them being the recent harmony conference in our own county, which makes possible the entrance of a Hudson county man under circumstances that will not militate against party success in other parts of the State. Another element was the urging of many representative Democrats that my work in the Legislature, during four sessions, would furnish a record for achievement that would provide a groundwork upon which to build a substantial campaign, should my candidacy be successful at the primaries.

"I shall be very brief at this time but with every intention of giving a full account of my stewardship at a later date, when the time comes for a vitalizing of those things upon which I must stand.

"While my candidcy cannot be termed a product of the harmony conference held in Hudson county, there was so much good Democratic doctrine expounded there that I cannot resist quoting from that occasion to make my position known on some things that would be understood. I subscribe to the statement that delegates to the national convention this year, no matter who they are, will act only as messengers from Hudson county to St. Louis, which expresses the fulness of my conviction that Woodrow Wilson must and will be renominated for President.

"Again, I am unalterably opposed to any arrangement, agreement or deal which shall have for its purpose the limitation of the number of Democratic candidates for any office, local, county or State."

Thomas F. Martin.

FORMER PHYSICIAN NOW TRADE ADVISER

Dr. Charles A. Holder.

Dr. Holder before he went into the consular service eight years ago was a practising physician. He has served in the consular service at Rouen, Christiana, Cologne and London.

n the house he would succeed in ome manner in making his escape last week Detective Pelletier, the ounty detective from New Brunswick, and Walter Sisty, Middlesborough secret service man, went t tomp's home and apparently had heir man trapped, but while they advanced towards the place, one from he back and the other from the ront, young Romp opened a window nd vaulted out and fled. Sisty and Pelletier gave chase, firing shots at tomp, who can run like a rabbit. The shots instead of having the desired effect only made him run the faster and Sistery and Pelletier discontinued he pursuit when they came to a brook, which Romp had waded across up to his neck.

Others who apparently had young tomp trapped in his home were an officer from the Rahway Reformatory and Constable George A. Schenck, of the New Market constabultary, on one occasion and Secret Service Man Sisty and Constable Robert Le Roy Pierce on another.

With the continued mystic like escapes of young Romp and the continuance of robberies the young man was rapidly getting the name of a desperado. Lately it had been said hat he was going around armed to he teeth. Even one of the officers who had been designated to capture he young man had said, "He is no man for me to fool around. Why that fellow, whether asleep or awake, always has two revolvers and two knives in his possession."

In the meantime matters were growing worse and worse. The county and township authorities were showing a marked reluctance to further attempt to bag a man who might take one of their lives at any time and with this state of affairs the villagers were becoming extremely alarmed and were almost afraid to leave their residences at night.

One agitated villagerie could say he reign of terror no longer and on Saturday night he enlisted the assistance of the Dunellen police.

About 9 o'clock that night Marshals Mohan, Tarpey and Smalley, in company with Constable Schenck, of New Market, went to Romp's home. Fred Romp was not there, but his brother, Henry, aged fifteen, was, and he was arrested and taken to the Dunellen jail and locked up. Henry has been out of the Jamesburg Reformatory since November on parole and the Dunellen police used good judgment in arresting him as since his arrest evidence has been procured which implicates him in the robberies in this vicinity with his brother Fred.

Although the Dunellen police returned without Fred Saturday night they were not discouraged and on Sunday evening they made another attempt. They had been told that he was in the habit of visiting his brother Henry, at the Carrol place evenings, so Marshals Mohan, Tarpey and Snyder went to Carroll's dismissed tram, surrounded their man, Romp, was arrested by Marshal Mohan, who went in and asked for a night's lodging. While Marshal Mohan was inside in this role endeavoring to find out in round-about fashion which one of the five men who were in the place was Fred, Marshal Tarpey was guarding the entrance to the home and Marshal Snyder the windows.

Yesterday morning, on being examined by Judge Von Minden, Fred Romp admitted that he had taken some of the goods which the Dunellen police had obtained as a result of searching Romp's home after his arrest. These filled two dress suit cases and two bags and among them were tools, cups, tea kettles, frying pans, belting cut up to be sold as sole leather, clothing and a whole lot of odds and ends, which outside of the tools and the leather, were probably not worth a dollar all told.

Last evening, on being submitted to the third degree, young Romp admitted to having been a party to the stealing of the automobile tires at Lincoln. He said that these tires had been sold.

The Dunellen police are being congratulated for accomplishing in twenty-four hours what the other authorities failed to accomplish in six weeks.

ATTRACTIVE ELECTRIC SIGN FOR THE PLAINFIELD THEATRE

One of the most attractive electric signs that has yet caught the gaze of local people has just been completed over the entrance way to the Plainfield Theatre. Several trial lightings have been conducted during the past week, but it was not until last night that the sign was displayed in its full brilliancy and all the mechanism was in operation. It attracted wide-spread atention, and many persons stood for a long time watching the automatic border coursing around and the imitation torch made of lights flaring as though burning.

The sign is twenty-seven feet high and eight feet wide. It contains 516 ten-watt lamps, with colored caps, producing the snake border and the torch effect. At the bottom is a transparent panel bearing the inscription, "Plainfield Theatre, Vaudeville and Photoplays." It is believed that the sign is the largest of the mechanical variety there is to be found in this vicinity. It was designed and erected by the Public Service Corporation, through its local sales representative, A. H. Des Noyers.

CONGRESS PREPARED TO VOTE UPON MANY IMPORTANT MEASURES PENDING

Leaders Think That Other Bills Will Be Made Law Ahead of Preparedness Program.

Revenue Raising Plans and Creation of Tariff Board Are Subjects That Worry Lawmakers.

PRESIDENT WILSON, having requested some of the leaders in congress to speed up and pass some of the important measures now pending, left the capital on his speaking tour confident that some of the measures will be quickly disposed of. Aside from the preparedness program, there is much important legislation awaiting consideration by the house and senate. Among these measures are the tariff, the revenue bills, a merchant marine, the question of granting independence to the Philippine Islands, prohibition and others.

Perhaps the most important of these is the tax problem. The supreme court, having upheld the validity of the income tax law, opened the way for other legislation of a similar nature, and it is most probable that this method of raising revenue will be more extensively used in the future. In discussing with Mr. Kitchin and Mr. Fitzgerald, the house leaders, the matter of government revenues, the president indicated his willingness to accept any measure, provided the revenue will be sufficient to meet the increased expenses of the government, including the preparedness program.

He told the two leaders that he would leave the details to them and permitted the inference that his recommendations for a tax on bank checks, gasoline and other articles at the beginning of the session were made more with a view of forming the basis for a suitable revenue measure than for literal adoption.

Commenting upon the proposal to expand the income tax to its fullest development, the taxing of inheritances and a levy on munitions of war shipped abroad, the president gave the leaders the impression that he would not oppose them if they could be framed without unjust consequences to the people.

Will Stand For No "Pork."

A declaration made by the president to the leaders of congress that had pretty much the same effect as the explosion of a bomb was that he would not stand for the "pork barrel" this session. He bluntly told Mr. Fitzgerald that he would not sign any appropriation bill carrying items for unnecessary improvements.

He therefore urged the chairman of the appropriations committee to eliminate from the annual river and harbor and public buildings bill items for new improvements, but to confine it to the continuation of those already undertaken.

An immediate effect of the president's stand was the action of the rivers and harbors committee in voting to confine appropriations to projects already authorized, thus limiting the total to approximately $44,000,000. Estimates for new projects aggregate nearly $125,000,000. Chairman Sparkman announced the committee would begin hearings soon on new projects for inclusion in the rivers and harbors for the December session of congress. This action is regarded as formal notice that there will be no general river and harbor bill this year.

The improvement projects eliminated totaled $122,935,697, for which an initial appropriation of $27,622,399 had been asked. Among the proposals cut out were: New York-Delaware bay canal, $20,000,000; New York harbor, upper bay and East river and Hell Gate, $14,230,000; Jamaica bay, $1,273,000; dam at the foot of Lake Erie, New York, $3,500,000; Connecticut river, Connecticut and Massachusetts, $1,870,000.

Favors a Tariff Board.

Decision of the president and Democratic leaders in the house and senate to press for legislation for a tariff commission has excited no end of talk about the capitol.

The expectation is that a tariff commission bill will be passed, and the present outlook is that the president will have named such a commission, and it will have been organized by the time the pre-election campaign is under way.

He sent to Mr. Kitchin a letter explaining his reasons for having changed his mind regarding the question of creating a tariff board, which said in part:

"I have changed my mind because all the circumstances of the world have changed, and it seems to me that in view of the extraordinary and far-reaching changes which the European war has brought about it is absolutely necessary that we should have a competent instrument of inquiry along the whole line of the many questions which affect our foreign commerce.

"I have had in this change of mind no thought whatever of a change of attitude toward the so called protection question. That is neither here nor there. A commission such as I have suggested would have nothing to do with theories of policy. They would deal only with facts, and the facts which they would seek ought to be the actual facts of industry and of the conditions of economic exchange prevailing in the world, so that legislation of every kind that touched these matters might be guided by the circumstances disclosed in its inquiries.

Need of Studying Tariff.

"I dare say you feel as I do, that it would be folly at this time, or until all the altered conditions are clearly understood, to attempt to deal with questions of foreign commerce by legislation, and yet, having dealt directly and clearly with the whole question of unfair competition within our own borders, it is clear that as soon as we know the facts we ought to deal with unfair methods of competition as between our own nation and others, and this is only one of the many things that we would probably wish to deal with. The other matters I have attempted to indicate in my previous letter to you. I am glad to supplement that letter by this explicit statement of the considerations which have been most influential with me."

The Philippine Measure.

Following several recent conferences with President Wilson on the subject, Senator Hitchcock of Nebraska, chairman of the senate committee on the Philippines, has offered an amendment to the Philippine bill providing that not more than four years nor less than two years after the meeting of the Filipino legislature to be created by the pending measure the president should withdraw the sovereignty of the United States and proclaim the independence of the Filipino people, provided he should find that proper steps had been taken to secure by peaceful means an independent Philippine government.

Mr. Hitchcock's amendment differs only in details from the amendment presented by Mr. Clarke of Arkansas, president pro tempore of the senate. Mr. Clarke's measure fixed a period of from two to four years after the enactment of the pending bill before independence should come.

Both the Clarke and the Hitchcock measures permit the president to retain control of the islands throughout one session of congress following the end of the fourth year if conditions either in the islands or in the United States justify it.

Ship Bill Has Good Chance.

Many believe there is every prospect of the early adoption of a government ship purchase bill. Representative Kitchin has indicatively agreed to support the new bill. Mr. Kitchin, in company with Senator Clarke of Arkansas, another opponent of the bill which failed in the last congress, conferred at length with the president, and a virtual agreement was reached that the bill, minus the permanent government ownership feature, would be put before the senate and house as soon as possible. The bill, according to present plans, will come ahead of the preparedness program.

The new bill, it is understood, follows the former measure with the exception of the concession regarding the permanent government ownership of the proposed shipping line. The bill soon to be introduced also embraces the naval auxiliaries, but these vessels may be leased or sold to private parties as merchant steamers. The freight, rather than passenger, business is sought under the new plan, and it is not contemplated that the vessels shall be adapted to passenger service to any important degree.

The bill is framed so that the government from the outset may lease its naval auxiliary vessels, or it may operate them if it is found impossible to negotiate leases. Vessels leased are to be turned over to private agencies with the express understanding that the ships may be put into the naval service at any time they may be needed.

It is understood that the bill does not propose in any sense to embark the government upon a policy of perpetual ownership and operation of steamship lines, and the naval auxiliary feature will go far toward meeting the objection of Democrats who refused to vote with the administration last session. Mr. Kitchin said his understanding was that the present bill would permit the leasing of government ships at any time, both during and after the European war.

As the bill is now drawn it does not embody this specific language, but the vessels will be primarily for the use of the navy as auxiliaries, and their participation in the merchant trade may be terminated at any time.

The bill retains the provisions for the issuance of bonds to purchase or build the requisite number of vessels. The bond issue, it is said, is $50,000,000. In other respects the new bill is not radically dissimilar from the old.

The prohibition resolution which may be voted on provides for submission of an amendment to the constitution to the states. If ratified it would automatically prohibit the manufacture and sale of all liquors in the United States.

May Ratify Treaties.

The determination to force action, as a part of the administration's pan American policy, on the treaties with Colombia and Nicaragua, held up for more than two years, is having effect.

Some senators predicted that both treaties would be recommended for ratification by the committee, but both Democrats and Republicans have doubts regarding their reception in the senate. Opposition to the Colombian treaty, which proposes to pay Colombia $25,000,000 for the separation of Panama, with an expression of regret that anything should have happened to mar the relations of the two countries, is based on various grounds. Many senators believe that $25,000,000 is an excessive amount, insisting that half the sum or even less would be equitable. Others are insistent that no language should be used which might be construed as an apology by the United States for its acquirement of the canal zone property.

There has been even stronger opposition to the Nicaraguan treaty. This proposes to pay $3,000,000 for an option on the Nicaraguan canal route and for a naval base in Fonseca bay. One of the complicating features is an objection from two other Central American republics—Salvador and Honduras. These nations also own portions of the shore of Fonseca bay and insist that Nicaragua has no right to permit the United States to establish a naval base there without their consent.

The senate committee on foreign relations, it is said, will try to find relief for the lack of dyestuffs in the United States by some modification of this treaty. It is understood that the plan looks to a provision by which logwood dyes, which heretofore have come mostly from the British possessions, may come to the United States from Haiti.

A Galley o' Fun!

OUTCLASSED.

"My name was Captain Kidd as I sailed, as I sailed; and my name was Captain Kidd as I sailed. O, my name was Captain Kidd, and most wickedly I did, and God's laws I did forbid as I sailed." But I never owned a firetrap factory or tenement block, or an unsafe storage-dam on a hill above an unprotected town.

And I never cornered any necessity of life, or took advantage of a benevolent protective system to raise the price of the poor man's food.

Neither did I ever compel my workmen to labor for twelve hours at a stretch at dangerous and exhausting toil, or employ children to do heavy and hazardous tasks.

So I have been thinking it over, and while I still insist I was a pretty successful pirate and, for general all-around wickedness, could not be surpassed in my own day, I am ready to admit that, when it comes to a matter of callousness of human suffering and contempt for human life, I was not half so bad as I fondly imagined. In fact, I have about decided that in the way of cold-blooded, cynical, indifferent brutality I would be regarded at the present time as an almost complete failure.

A TERRIBLE THREAT.

The Frog—I guess you won't bothe me any more, old Vampire!

The mosquito (foiled by the smoke)—I'll make you croak on the othe side of your face before long. The very first time I catch you with you pipe out I'm going to inoculate you with an anti-tobacco germ!

THE OLDEN MOON.

The olden moon sails 'round the night
And lovers walk beneath its wile
And see it move, all golden bright,
Across the seas, behind the isles.

As from some lost and lonely dune,
Stone now for me no maiden smiles
Look and see the olden moon
Sail o'er the seas, behind the isles.

Why do I love you, orb divine?
It's not that you light the mirk,
Nor even that for love you shine,
But that you never jump or jerk.

Here on this neurasthenic bank
And shoal of Time, from fret and stew,
Bang and bang and slat and yank
And hurl and whirl—I turn to you.

For you—you never dodged around,
Or start my nerves with twist or quirk,
But sail a-sailing, sailing on
Without a jiggle, jump or jerk.

MIGHT HAVE PREVENTED THE SECESSION.

"Yes," replied the philosophic monkey, after the Darwinian theory had been considered in all its bearings; "if our ancestors had only been gifted with more diplomatic foresight and had had the power to enforce their policies, the monkey tribe would today be the leading race in the world."

"Ah!" inquired another monkey; "what policy do you think our ancestor should have adopted?"

"The policy of 'once a monkey, always a monkey.'"

STILL IN ADVANCE.

Boarder—You made me pay in advance at first because I was a stranger. That was all right. But I am not a stranger now.

Landlady—No; I know you now.

STUCK FAST.

"Come off!" we shouted to the man, again and again, but to no avail. We afterward discovered that he was stuck on himself.

AS TO THE BABY.

Friend—Kicks about taking medicine, eh?

Papa—Oh, yes!—kicks like a faith curist!

Humperdinck (at Money Window)—I vant to send a money order.

Clerk—Domestic or foreign?

Humperdinck—Hah?

Clerk—Hoboken or Hamburg?

TAMPERING WITH THE COURTS.

When members of the State Legislature begin to investigate courts of the State of New Jersey they are toying with the highest tribunals in the land, and if the charge that a proposed investigation of the Hudson County Court is but a political move is true, then those guilty of this outrage are not worthy of the consideration of decent men. It is one thing to play politics and another to use the government for political purposes, and our courts should be above all politics. Voters have long ago become accustomed to having their laws made by office seekers and politicians which is far from right, but they have never tolerated a tampering with the courts and we pray that they never will, for whenever this is true the very foundation of the country will have been uprooted. America is founded upon justice and liberty and we are entitled to justice and liberty only as these phrases are interpreted by our courts. If they become mere mouthpieces of politicians as "Boss" Dalrymple and others of his ilk would have them, we are no better than those who live in Darkest Russia. To day our legislators decide whether or not the courts of Hudson county are to be dragged into the mire of partisan politics, but the people of the State have already formed an opinion and all who vote with "Boss" Dalrymple on the question will be for ever dead in New Jersey.

THE REAL AMERICAN BUSINESS MAN.

Otto H. Kahn, in the February number of World's Work, speaking of the successful American business man, advocates that we "carefully refrain from so hampering and confining the activities of business men as to lame the initiative, weaken the self-reliance, chill the enterprise and zeal and joy of work which have always been their characteristics and which have so greatly contributed toward the marvelous development of this country. Let us have no patience with the presumption that men who, mostly from small beginnings, have fought their way to the top after having passed through the hard and searching test and discipline of business, are to be ignored or distrusted in the shaping of the industrial and economic policies of the country, because of alleged incapacity or unwillingness to take a broad and patriotic view of national questions directly or indirectly affecting their own interests. Let us lend no countenance to the presumption that patriotism, virtue, and knowledge reside primarily with those who have been unsuccessful, those who have no practical experience of business, nor yet, be it said with all respect, with those who are politicians or office holders."

A SHORT SESSION.

By adopting a concurrent resolution fixing the week beginning Monday, February 14, as the latest time for the introduction of bills excepting with unanimous consent, the Legislature has indicated its intention of making the session a short one, and the public will commend the good intention.

Aside from the appropriation bills there is very little legislation that is absolutely necessary, and by getting away early the temptation to indulge in petty politics will be removed. Unfortunately, there has been abundant evidence given of a willingness to sacrifice everything in order to gain a little political advantage.—Trenton Times.

They're All the Same.

Of all the girls who ever came away from their home town,
She was the greenest one,—her name was Angelina Brown.
She wasn't even up to date, her raiment was a joke;
She couldn't dance, she couldn't skate, she'd never tried to smoke!
But when a month or two had passed—oh, dear; ah, me! oh, my!
She had the city girls outclassed—her style would "knock your eye!"
She'd learned to skate, she'd learned to dance, to powder up her nose,
And city manners to enhance by bored nonchalant pose.
In city or country far; in cold or torrid clime—
It makes no difference where they are—they're WOMEN all the time!

"No, Alexander, I don't see the iceman, but I see his wagon outside."

W. E. TUTTLE, JR., TO RUN AS DELEGATE

Former Congressman Wants to Go to the Democratic National Convention.

Former Congressman William E. Tuttle will be a candidate for delegate to the Democratic Nation Convention, which is to be held in St. Louis, Mo., in June. The announcement is made by L. T. Russell, chairman of the Union county Democratic Convention. It disposes of the report which was circulated some time ago to the effect that Russell himself desired to represent the Fifth Congressional District. It is almost certain that no opposition to Tuttle's candidacy will develop from any quarter.

Just after the gathering of Democratic leader from various parts of the State, which was held in Trenton at the instigation of the Governor, the report was circulated that Russell was piqued at being left out of the list of the list of those invited because of the fact that he wanted to be a candidate for delegate. He denied that he had ever intended to seek the delegate nomination. The report still persists, however, but Russell's announcement today of Tuttle's candidacy no doubt ends the talk.

The ex-Congressman is very popular in Democratic circles in Union county, and his selection will be well received. He is known to be an ardent supporter and admirer of President Wilson. He was appointed by the President as commissioner to the Republic of Panama Exposition. During his time in Congress he always lined up firmly with the Wilson forces.

The announcement of Tuttle's candacy has a two-fold significance. It means that the ex-Congressman will go to the St. Louis convention as a Wilson supporter, and it also means that he will no doubt be the logical Democratic candidate for Congress next fall.

DELEGATES WILL BE CHOSEN AT PRIMARY

New Jersey Among Twenty-one States to Hold Special Elections This Year.

Under the changed basis of representation there will be 989 delegates in the Republican National Convention at Chicago on June 7, as against 1,107 in the convention of 1912. Of these, 597 will be chosen at direct primary elections; that is, assuming that the primary law passed by the Vermont Legislature is adopted on referendum this winter. Vermont is entitled to eight delegates in the convention.

The other twenty States where direct primary elections will be held and the dates of the elections are: Indiana, March 7; Minnesota and New Hampshire, March 14; North Dakota, March 21; Michigan, April 3; Wisconsin, New York and Illinois, April 4; Iowa, April 10; Nebraska and Montana, April 18; Massachusetts and Ohio, April 25; Maryland, May 1; California, May 9; Pennsylvania, May 16; Oregon, May 19; New Jersey, May 23, and South Dakota and West Virginia, June 6.

There will be 1,088 delegates in the Democratic National Convention at St. Louis on June 14. The call for this convention contains a plank from the Baltimore platform of 1912 directing that in those States which do not have direct primary elections delegates to the national convention shall be chosen at a primary election conducted by the party organization. The plank direct also that an expression of preference for Presidential candidates shall be given at the primaries.

GOVERNMENT SEEDS WILL BE DISTRIBUTED AS USUAL

The annual distribution of seeds by the government will take place this spring as usual. This distribution is controlled by the United States Senators and members of Congress. If you will write to James E. Martine or William Hughes, U. S. Senate, Washington, D. C., or to your member of Congress, you can receive free of charge a package of vegetable or flower seed.

Each package contains five different varieties. State whether you desire vegtable or flower, but do not indicate the varieties as the Department of Agriculture makes the selection based on the climatic and other conditions of the locality in which the seeds are to be planted.

- Proctor's Theatre -

Tonight, for the last time, film fans of this city will have a chance to see Helen Ware in 'Cross Currents," for tomorrow it will be succeeded by the greatest photoplay sensation of the age, "At Bay," George Scarborough's greatest Broadway success, in which Florence Reed is featured. This feature was adapted from the play by the Pathe Film Company, and is presented in five reels. "At Bay" will be presented for two days only, Wednesday and Thursday. Weber and Fields are scoring a decided hit in their latest Keystone comedy, "The Worst of Friends," and have the spectators in an uproar while they occupy the screen. This feature will continue tomorrow. The vaudeville attractions presented the first half of the week include a delightful musical comedy revue entitled "The Freshman," in which pretty girls predominate. The singing and dancing in this offering deserve special mention. Putnam and Lewis are eccentric comedians who offer an up-to-date line of patter mingled with some clever parodies, and "A Bit of Heaven" is a charming comedy skit that amuses by its droll comedy situations and its clever dialogue. Fred Roberts is creating a sensation by his extraordinary voice, for he has the knack of singing soprano, bass or tenor at will. Bazaar night on Wednesday evenings has been discontinued, but the children will still have a treat in store for them every Saturday matinee, when all the children attending will receive handsome toys. The Triangle features offered for the latter half of the week include William S. Hart in "Between Men," and Chester Conklin in "Dizzy Heights and Daring Hearts."

∴ Plainfield Theatre ∴

A vaudeville team that can play a solid year at one amusement place in New York must certainly have an act that gets the people, and yet that is what the Dunninger Company, which comes to the Plainfield Theatre today, did at the Eden Musee. The Dunningers claim the distinction of being the world's greatest conjurors, and the claim is verified by all who have seen them. The Dunningers carry special scenery and effects and present one of the most startling novelties ever seen in Plainfield. They will be at the theatre only today and tomorrow, and to miss witnessing their wonderful feats means regret for a long time afterward.

In addition to the Dunningers the new policy of seven big acts and feature photoplays inaugurated at the Plainfield Theatre today will include the following numbers on the monster program: Baby Phyllis Gay, juvenile performer; Marion and Moore, singers and dancers; William Saxton, America's foremost Hebrew character comedian, and his own company, presenting the comedy drama, "The Lottery Ticket;" the Harringtons, sensational comedy ladder and ring act; Mlee. Tule Tine's educated dogs, and Doc Rice, the South's exponent of minstrelsy.

The new policy at the cozy Second street playhouse will not eliminate pictures, and lovers of fine films of all kinds will have much to entertain them. There will be a change every day of comedies and dramas, together with the Vitagraph weekly, the animated newspaper.

--U. S. Astor Theatre--

"The Nation's Peril," a Lubin war drama, the theme of which is preparedness, was exhibited for the first time at the U. S. Astor Theatre, yesterday, with Earle Metcalfe and Ormi Hawley in the leading roles. "The Nation's Peril" is a Y. L. S. E. and is by far the best put out on that program in months. Last night a large audience in the Astor was gripped through the five exciting parts of the subject. Suffice it to say that "The Nation's Peril" is really preparedness propaganda and should be viewed by every man with red blood in his veins. It reveals what could happen to the United States in case of invasion by a foe superior to the United States. It is in many respects like that splendid Vitagraph drama, "The Battle Cry of Peace," in which New York is shown falling under the guns of an invading host. Wednesday and Thursday the principal photo-play at the Astor will be "The Fotal Card," produced by the Famous Players and released by Paramount, with Hazel Dawn and John Mason in the stellar roles.

Friday and Saturday, "Zaza" will be shown with Pauline Frederick in the title role.

Daddy's Bedtime Story—

How the Brave Greek Odysseus Reached Home at Last.

Minerva Told Him Where He Was.

"DO you know any children interested in Greek stories?" daddy asked Jack and Evelyn when they crowded around him. Then they clapped.

"The ship the king of Corfu gave Odysseus sailed the bright blue sea, with kind winds guiding it and skillful rowers to keep it in the right course, until one famous, wonderful day it touched the shore of Odysseus' own home island of Ithaca! Now an interesting thing happened. The land that Odysseus loved better than any place on earth, the home he had longed for through ten weary years, and the loving wife and young son that he had carried in his deep heart's love all this time were now almost within arm's reach of him. And it happened that when his ship touched the coast of Ithaca he was asleep! So the Corfu rowers lifted him very gently, without waking him, carried him ashore and, heaping all his presents beside him on the sand, sailed away without even waiting for his thanks."

"They were gentle people, weren't they?" Evelyn remarked.

"Now another interesting thing happened!" cried daddy. "Old Father Neptune, who, you remember, has command of all waters—the sea, the river Tiber and the tides—was so angry that the kind people of Corfu had put Odysseus beyond his power of shipwreck that when the Corfu boat set out to sail back home he turned it right into a huge rock just opposite the harbor of Ithaca!"

"Ooh—ooh!" murmured Jack and Evelyn.

"And travelers who go to Greece now may see to this day the huge rock that was once a Corfu ship."

"But how long did Odysseus sleep?" cried Jack.

"Until Minerva woke him. This goddess, you see, was always standing by to give him sweet, good care, while old Father Neptune was always trying to destroy him—and Minerva beat! He had been away from home so long that at first when a young shepherdess, who was Minerva, awoke him he did not recognize his own land—he probably thought he had just been shipwrecked again. But Minerva told him where he was, and, while tears of joy sprang into his eyes, she also told him that a hundred Greek nobles were at his home begging his faithful wife, Penelope, to marry some one of them. There were plans to be made, you see."

"And all the while Odysseus was away Penelope wove a shroud for his father and told the nobles she could not marry till the shroud was done. Then each night she raveled it out," Jack remembered.

"Oh, daddy," cried Evelyn, "we hate to go to bed tonight!"

But daddy only smiled and kissed them.

Marrying for Money

BY MRS. EVA LEONARD

The Attic Over the Store Is the Children's Only Home, Now.

"Daddy, we are going down to the store to see Dudley's den. If you feel like it, come on down after a while." Marian Townsend, looking lovely in her floating white draperies, ran over to the hammock where her father lay enjoying his Sunday afternoon cigar. His eye followed his son and daughter until they disappeared around the corner; then he turned to the window of his wife's room. The drawn shade proclaimed that the afternoon nap had not come to an end. He threw away the unfinished end of his cigar, clasped his hands under his head, yawned and closed his eyes. But a fly persistently settled on the bald spot in his head till he abandoned the idea of sleep and decided to follow the children and see what kind of a place Dudley had fixed up in the attic of the store.

He heard Marian's gay laughter as he climbed the stairs. He could not remember having heard her laugh before since he returned from his wedding trip.

"I am glad this place is going to be a source of pleasure to them," he thought.

"Here comes Daddy!" called Marian excitedly. "Come in, dear old Daddy. Here is your chair right by the table with my little rocker beside it, just as it used to be long ago when we had a home." She caught his hand and led him to his chair. Dudley clapped him on the back, exclaiming:

"Welcome to my home, Dad. I am keeping open house today. I just t[illegible]oned George and Fanny to c[illegible] down and make it a real house w[illegible]

Jacob Townsend looked around at the familiar furniture. The first wife's picture hung over the lounge where it always had hung since they had moved into the "new house" he had built for her when the business had begun to prosper. How happy she had been. He remembered how her eyes had shone that first night when he came home. She had Marian in her arms and, holding the baby toward him, she had said, "I am glad for her sake that we have such a lovely home. Girls enjoy a beautiful home more than boys, I think." And now the girl was contentedly sitting in a warm attic room over the store in preference to the elegant new house he had built.

"What do you think of it?" asked the son, smiling into his face.

"I think you will have many pleasant hours here. I am glad you thought of it."

"I wish I had a home, too." Marian dropped her head on her father's knee, and he stroked her hair.

"We can have this together, Puss. I shall need you to make it seem like a real home," said Dudley, sitting down by her side; "and Daddy will come up here sometimes to smoke a cigar before going to the house." Jacob noticed that they both spoke of "the house." They never called it home.

"I hope both of you will feel free to entertain as much as you like at home. You know Mrs. Tupper will not consider the extra work anything, and no one else will be inconvenienced." Jacob still stroked Marian's hair.

"It isn't home, Daddy. It never can be, but if we can get together here and have good old-fashioned visits so that we will not lose you entirely, why it will not be so bad." Marian's voice sounded choked, but she did not raise her head.

"I hear George and Fanny," said Dudley, disappearing hastily down the stairs.

"Oh, Daddy!" cried Marian convulsively clasping his neck, "I have not lost you, have I?"

After a long time George and Fanny appeared, carrying dishes and spoons, and Dudley brought up the rear with ice cream and cake.

"On account of the weather I decided to try and have a house cooling instead of a house warming. This is a frabjous occasion." Dudley was busy serving.

Ice Cream Taffy—Two cups sugar, one tablespoon butter, enough water to dissolve sugar. Boil eight minutes. Add one-half teaspoon cream of tartar, boil seven minutes nger. Take from fire, add one teaspoon vanilla and pour on buttered tins. When cool enough to handle, bull until white.

Butterscotch — Five tablespoons molasses, four tablespoons sugar, four tablespoons water, two tablespoons butter. Let boil until when dropped in cold water it will be brittle. Put in a pinch of soda before taking off fire. Pour on buttered tins. When cool enough, mark into squares.

BALL OF FLAXEN BLUE

If you have the little blue flax flowers fasten a string through the top of a large sponge so it can be hung up. Dip the sponge in water that is milk warm and squeeze out enough so it can be handled. Put as many flax seeds in the holes of the sponge as you can make it hold. Put in a dark place for a couple of days, each morning holding the sponge so the bottom just touches water in a pan, letting it draw up all the water it will.

After two days in darkness hang in a very light place, each morning filling with water from pan as before. Soon the sponge will be filled with the delightful blue blossoms.

TO RESTORE SCORCHED PAPERS

Any legal or valuable papers that have been charred by fire may be rendered readable by pouring collodion over them. In a few minutes this dries and a tough transparent coating is produced, through which the writing can be read. Bank notes and other papers thus charred may be treated this way with equally good results.

PREPARING THE OVEN

To get your oven in good shape for baking open all the holes in the burners with a hat pin; put the blower on your suction sweeper and turn it in the under oven, then adjust the suction nozzle and take up all the loose soot and dirt; clear all gas burners in the same manner.

MEXICAN DISHES

The following Spanish or Mexican dishes aid in digestion because of the warming qualities of chili or cayenne and with the exception of the relish are excellent substitutes for meat.

Baked Bean Chili—Four cups cold boiled beans, add a dash of cayenne and one-quarter cup flour and mix thoroughly. Put in baking dish. Pour over this the liquid from one pint of tomatoes, put dots of butter on top and bake.

Spanish Rice—One pint tomatoes, one-half cup rice, one-half teaspoon salt, one-eighth teaspoon cayenne, one-quarter cup butter, six medium size onions. Cook together till rice is soft.

Spanish Salad or Relish—Cut up equal parts of celery and onions, mix thoroughly, cover with mayonnaise, to which a little chili has been added, and garnish with slices of tomato.

Tomato Chili—One pint tomatoes, six good size onions, one teaspoon salt, dash of cayenne, tablespoon butter. Thicken with flour or a handful of macaroni.

Red Bean Chili—One can red kidney beans, half a dozen onions, a little cayenne and one-quarter cup butter.

SIMPLE HOME REMEDIES

For Croupy Children—Give one teaspoon goose grease elted. For a cold on the chest add a few drops of turpentine and grease well. For pneumonia fry onions in the grease, add flaxseed and keep putting on hot poultices till better.

Y. W. C. A. JUBILEE CELEBRATION TO BE USHERED IN TONIGHT WITH A BANQUET

Fifty years ago, on March 3, 1866, the first Young Woman's Christian Association in the United States was organized in Boston. The month of February will be observed as a nation-wide members' jubilee by all the 979 associations, comprising a membership of over 340,000 in the country today.

The local association will hold meetings of various kinds during the month, closing with a religious service in the First Baptist church on March 3.

The first event in the celebration of the anniversary will be the membership banquet which will be held in the Y. M. C. A. auditorium tonight beginning at 6:30, during which past and present members of the association will review the life of the local association and the association in America. Contrasting the years and looking backward the Y. W. C. A. has indeed had a wealth of golden achievements to its credit:

FIFTY YEARS AGO

Fifty years ago in the classical city of Boston, thirty earnest women met to consider the needs of girls who came to that city to seek employment. The needs of these girls led to the organization of the first Young Women's Christian Association in this country, which was effected March 3, 1866.

Down-town rooms were opened.

Miss Mary Foster was called as the first General Secretary and the work was launched.

The work at that time was largely that of an employment bureau, but educational classes, both vocational and cultural and religious meetings were also held.

Hartford, Conn., Providence, R. I., Pittsburg and Alleghany, Pa., in 1867, and Cincinnati and Cleveland, Ohio, and St. Louis, Missouri, in 1868 followed by forming similar societies.

Others in the Mississippi Valley took the name of Young Women's Christian Associations.

On October 9th and 10th, 1871, delegates from nine Women's Christian Associations met at Hartford and formed what later bore the name of the International Conference of Women's Christian Associations.

The first Young Women's Christian Association building was erected in Hartford, Conn., in 1872. Heretofore they had been purchased and remodeled.

The first student Association was organized at Normal, Ill., in 1873.

The first summer home was opened at Asbury Park, N. J., in 1874.

TODAY
FEB. 1-7, 1916.

Today there are 245 city Associations with a membership of 273,234. Ninety-three Associations placed 52,410 girls in positions last year.

Practically all of these city associations now have down-town rooms

1,663 secretaries are on the employment staff of the Y. W. C. A. There are also many volunteer workers.

Today the subjects taught in the educational classes range from those found on the curriculum of schools from the grammar grade to the university. The latest enrollment gives:

Bible study	47,835
Educational classes	45,415
Domestic art and science	26,964
Employment bureau placements	52,410

The last National Convention was at Los Angeles, Cal., May 5-11, 1915, with an attendance of 1,235.

Today the associations own 189 buildings, with a property valuation of $9,162,147.

There are 721 Student Associations with a membership of 65,348.

Today thousands of girls in relays joyfully hie themselves to one of the 100 summer homes in various parts of the country for country air, rest, quiet hours with good books, bacon bats, corn toasts, athletics and aquatic sports of all kinds according to the physical advantages of the location of these homes.

EXHIBITION OF SHRINE WILL CONTINUE THIS WEEK

Atendance at the exhibition of the model of the national shrine of the immaculate conception, held in Lauter's, Newark, last week, averaged over 200 a day. Because of the large crowds, and also because there are believed to be thousands of persons who still desire to see the model of the shrine, the model will be displayed in the window of the store all this week, beginning today. The exhibit is under the auspices of the Newark branch of the national organization of Catholic women. Mrs. Joseph B. Sandford is the local president.

At the home of Mrs. Sandford, the president, in Newark, a meeting will be held tomorrow afternoon to complete the organization of the Newark women. Catholic women interested in becoming members of the chapter are invited to be present. It is expected that Mrs. Francis Burrall Hoffman, vice president of the New York branch, and Mrs. David F. Kennedy, of Plainfield, president of the New Jersey chapter, will be present to address the meeting and to explain the puropose of the organization.

William Randolph Hearst, who controls newspapers in important cities, has directed his publications to reject all whisky advertisements and all advertising of medicinal preparations containing alcohol or opiates in habit-forming quantities. This announcement published in all his papers, read as follows:

"I note in a recent issue of The American an advertisement of a whisky masquerading as a medicine.

"I wish all our papers to reject all whisky advertising of whatever kind and all advertising of any ardent liquors and all advertising of any medicinal preparations containing alcohol or opiates in habit-forming quantities.

"Furthermore, I do not think that passive opposition to such great evils as the drink habit and the drug habit is sufficient for forces as powerful and as vital in the community as our newspapers.

"I think our papers have more active duties and more positive responsibilities. I think they should campaign for a system of sumptuary laws:

"First—To prohibit the sale of injurious and habit-forming drugs except by the State and upon the prescription of regular physicians.

"Second—To prevent the sale of alcoholic beverages except where the proportion of alcohol is fixed at some definite and acknowledgedly innocuous proportion.

"Third—To make the taking or administering or prescribing of alcohol or opiates in habit-forming quantities a criminal offense, from the penalties of which regular physicians shall in no way be exempt.

"The campaign against the drink evil and the drug evil is a matter of public health, of public morals and of public righteousness which it is the duty of our papers actively and aggressively to promote.

"WM. RANDOLPH HEARST."

Among the useful temperance laws passed by the recent session of the Swedish Riksdag is one conferring upon the central government and also upon county governments the right to forbid the retail sale of intoxicants (including wine and beer) in times of crisis," or to ordain such restrictions, short of complete prohibition as are deemed desirable. In the case of the central government the power conferred is absolute; but in the case of county governments the decree must receive the sanction of the king in council. The exercise of the power of veto is not restricted to times of war, but is permissible when unemployment or want prevails to an unusual extent.

Russians Peasants Want Permanent Prohibition.

Before the recent dissolution of the Russian Duma by order of the Czar the peasant deputies proposed the enactment of a perpetual prohibition law. In a formal statement proposing the law they first recall the terms of the decrees of October, 1914, under which prohibition came to Russia, and then bear this witness to the benefits of abstinence: "Then a miracle was wrought on Russian soil. The long-cherished dream of the Russian people was realized: the age-long curse of Russia was vanquished. Shame upon those who say that abstinence is impossible among us; that it cannot be enforced by prohibition. And that without the 'drink budget' the finances of the country will be wrecked! The year that has just passed has shown that abstinence has completely regenerated our people. Crime in general has diminished; there is less brigandage and begging; there are fewer convicts in our prisons; the hospitals are no longer crowded; peace is restored in family life; the production of labor has been augmented; there is more thrift. After all this, to all right-thinking people, to all who sincerely love their country, it ought to be clear that the happiness and greatness of Russia are bound up with prohibition, and that it is the sacred duty of every one to make it certain that this abstinence shall be perpetual."

Cromwell's Way.

In the days when Oliver Cromwell was lord protector of England there was no fine discrimination to favor members of an embassy. When such members committed crimes against the law of the land they were held to the same accountability as though they had been natives. So it was that on July 10, 1653, Don Pantaleon Sa, a Portuguese nobleman, brother of the ambassador from that country to England and a knight of Malta, was beheaded on Tower hill. He had killed an Englishman, mistaking him for another. The Portuguese took refuge with his brother, the ambassador, who claimed that by the law of nations his house was an inviolable sanctuary for all his countrymen. Cromwell sent a messenger to state that if the criminal was not given up to the civil authorities the soldiers would be withdrawn from guarding the embassy and the mob left to do as it pleased. Every effort was made by the Portuguese and other ambassadors to save Don Pantaleon's life, but without avail. Cromwell made no other reply than, "Blood has been shed, and justice must be satisfied."—Indianapolis News.

Newark Normal's Star Forwards Taken Care of by the Borough Guards.

MATTERS EVEN NOW

Strong Essex Combination Had Previously Given Local Girls Their Only Defeat—Maroon and Black Has Big Advantage.

The North Plainfield High School girls retrieved the only defeat they have suffered this season when they defeated th Newark Normal combination by a score of 20 to 18, yesterday afternoon, in Saengerbund Hall. Both teams played furiously, the decision being in doubt until time expired. In the first period, playing without side centers, the borough maidens displayed some clever manipulating of the spheroid, entirely outplaying their rivals, who had conquered them by a 16 to 12 margin on their own court. In the last section of the game the visitors rallied desperately in an endeavor to tie or outpoint the boroughites. The playing grew rough, and numerous fouls were called on both contingents.

The foul shooting of Miss Vennet figured conspicuously in keeping her team within a close margin of the their opponents, she shooting ten free throws. The local guards had an invulnerable defense in the first period, the Newark team being unable to score a goal. Miss Keller greatly assisted her team by holding the speedy Miss Miller basketless, while Miss Vernet scored the only three field goals during the last period.

Miss Burtis and Captain Spencer each scored a quartet of field goals for the locals, both of these maidens playing great games. Theresa McCullough, in center, was a material factor in securing the verdict for N. P. H. S. by her free passing and jumping.

P. G. S. FIVE MAKES P. H. S. BOYS GO OVERTIME TO WIN

A team of P. H. S. sophomers and freshmen, traveling under the name of the Independents, trimmed the Plainfield Grammar School five in the school court yesterday afternoon, 29 to 13, but not until an extra five-minute session to play off the tie was necessary. At the end of the first half the High School boys were leading, 7 to 5, but at the close of the last period the score was tied at 13 all, and in the extra period the grammar school lads yielded seven points and victory.

The game was fairly well played despite the many bad shots, and the teams were evenly matched. O'Donnell chalked up four counters for the Independents on fouls before the younger basketeers could get started. Butler and O'Donnell did practically all of the shooting for the High School quintet, while Van Winkle did well for the losers.

ALUMNI BASKETEERS OF TWO HIGH SCHOOLS WILL CLASH

A basketball game between teams of Alumni of the city and borough high schools will be played in the Plainfield High School gym this month, probably on the evening of Lincoln's Birthday. The P. H. S. team, which will probably be composed of Clyde Doane, John Heron, Al Manley, Benny Rosenson and Dan McNamee, will practice tonight on the P. H. S. court, and will play a scrub game against the Recreation Five.

The N. P. H. S. Alumni team has played one or two games this season, and is composed of the same players who are on the Canadian Five. The game between the grads of the two schools will be followed by an informal dance.

New Brunswick Elks, rolling at home, won three games from Rahway last night, the second game after a roll-off. The Champions are now just a shade behind the Newarks, who occupy second place.

The homesters averaged 908.1, Charley Greenwald showing the way with an average of 201. Captain Koops had high score for the night, a 225 lick, and averaged 204.

The winners returned 910 in the opener, winning by four dozen pins. Koops' good work earned Rahway a tie at the end of the second game, and on the roll-off the College Town Bills scored 91 to the Jungletowners' 86. The title holders hit 920 in the final, Rahway being 25 points to the bad.

Wednesday—Rutgers vs. Columbia, Princeton vs. Harvard.

Things are beginning to get a little more interesting in the Plainfield High School College League. Columbia broke into the victory column yesterday, and Yale jumped back into second place by winning while Cornell was getting walloped.

Columbia smeared the Cornell bunch, 15 to 8, and displayed the first real signs of ability. Loizeaux, one of the two new men that have boosted the tailenders, was responsible for a large part of the showing, while Carver also had a big hand in the scoring. Cornell seemed to be off its play, and Johnson was the only man that could come anyway near locating the basket.

In the second game of the afternoon Yale came back from its slump and trimmed Princeton by a 20 to 4 verdict in a game that was rather listless. Clarkson ran wild for the victors and made the highest individual score recorded in the league by caging eight baskets. He got six of them in the second half. Tinsman made two goals for his team.

ELIZABETH FIVE AND THE Y. W. C. A. ON K. C. COURT

After a lay-off of one week, the Knights of Columbus quintet and the Plainfield Five will again appear Thursday night on the Columbus Club court in a double-header basketball attraction. The Knights will line up against the Madison A. C., of Elizabeth, and the girls will play the Y. W. C. A. team. The Knights have been playing good ball this season and have lost but two games thus far. They will be minus the services of Al Bryniarski, their guard, who was injured in the Recreation game two weeks ago. Jack Caulfield will take Bryniarski's place.

The appearance of the Y. W. C. A. girls will be the first game of the season for the young women. The Plainfield Five will lineup as follows: Misses Helen Hummel, Helen Bryniarski, forwards; Misses Theresa McCullough, Mildred McAuliffe, centers; Misses Clara Smith and Elsie Debele, guards.

CITY HIGH SCHOOL TANK TEAM NOW WITHOUT A COACH

Now that Coach Hansen is lost as instructor, the members of the P. H. S. swimming squad have no coach. Hansen has taken a position that will make it impossible for him to help the fellows, and they will have to depend on themselves. It is probable that meets will be arranged shortly with the Boys' High, of New York, and the Paterson High School.

KENNEL CLUB NOW HAS 100 MEMBERS

Number of Cups Offered for Coming Bench Show is More Than 40.

The Plainfield Kennel Club now has more than a hundred members. The century mark, the goal the officers have hoped to achieve, has just been passed, it was announced at last night's meeting of the bench show committee. During the month of January, the club increased its membership from 60 to 101.

Details for the indoor match show to be held here five weeks from next Saturday were discussed at last night's meting. The premium list will soon be announced. Ten more special cups were given last week, the number of trophies now in numbering more than forty.

A large number of women have joined the club, among those who are new members being Miss Marie Salisbury, Mrs. J. Hartley Mellick, Miss Judith N. Claybrook, Mrs. A. Clinton Wilmerding, Mrs. Charles C. Wheeler, Mrs. J. J. O'Donohue, Mrs. Charles L. Howell, Mrs. Philip Hone, Miss Catherine Ames, Miss Helen Shoemaker, Mrs. J. PLAINFIELD ELKS GO TO ELIZABETH THIS EVENING

Plainfield Elks will go to Elizabeth tonight for an alley battle with the league leaders. The Betsytowners are setting a fast pact this season, and are almost unbeatable on their home chutes, where they have lost the odd game only once. The Elizabeth Elks won all three games when they rolled Plainfield on the local alleys last November.

ST. BENEDICT'S PREP FIVE HERE TOMORROW

St. Benedict's Prep School, of Newark, will appear on the P. H. S. court tomorrow afternoon to do battle with the Red and Blue basketeers. The Newarkers are one of the new teams on the schedule this year, and they come here with a fast reputation.

P. H. S. teachers are holding regular sessions on the basketball court in preparation for the annual tilt with the seniors.

ROYALS MAY GET OUT OF W. B. L.

Arcanum Team, on Which Two Plainfield Pinners Roll, Will Decide Tonight.

PROTESTS REJECTED

Refuse to Throw Out Any of the Games Protested by the Royals—This Will Probably Be Last Year League Will Exist.

At a meeting of the executive committee of the Westfield Bowling League, last night, both protests filed by the Royal Arcanum team were defeated in the voting. The Royal Arcanum team, on which two of the five regulars are Plainfield bowlers, will hold a meeting tonight, when it is expected that the Arcanumers will decide to withdraw from the league.

The series of the Royals protested were with the Clinks and the Loyal Association teams. The Clinks were awarded three forfeit victories over the Arcanum team last Wednesday night, because only three Royals were on hand to bowl. The Royals last night asked that the match be thrown out of the league records because Stegmier, one of the men who rolled with the Clinks, was ineligible. The league voted to let the series stand unchanged.

An unusual case was the bone of contention in the other protest, which related to the Arcanum tilt with the Loyal Association team, in which the latter were credited with a victory by one pin. The Royals claim the game was a tie. Their opponents declare that it was not discovered the game was a tie until after the match was over, and the lights had been extinguished, and that their anchor, Captain Pierson, who had not rolled his last ball because he thought his team did not need any more pins to win the game, returned to the alleys after the lights were turned on again, and rolled his last ball, winning the game. The committee sustained the Loyals.

The league has decided to finish out the schedule, whether or not the Arcanums remain in the fold. President George F. Brown is authority for the statement that the league will probably not be re-organized next season.

COMB SAGE TEA INTO GRAY HAIR

Darkens Beautifully and Restores Thickness and Life at Once.

Common garden sage brewed into a heavy tea with sulphur and alcohol added will turn gray, streaked and faded hair beautifully dark and luxuriant; remove every bit of dandruff, stop scalp itching and falling hair. Mixing the Sage Tea and Sulphur recipe at home, though, is troublesome. An easier way is to get ready-to-use tonic, costing about 50 cents a large bottle, at drug stores known as "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound," thus avoiding a lot of mess.

While wispy, gray, faded hair is not sinful, we all desire to retain our youthful appearance and attractiveness. By darkening your hair with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur, no one can tell, because it does it so naturally, so evenly. You just dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning all gray hairs have disappeared. After another application or two your hair becomes beautifully dark, glossy, soft and luxuriant and you appear years younger.—Adv.

DRINK HOT TEA FOR A BAD COLD

Get a small package of Hamburg Breast Tea, or as the German folks call it, "Hamburger Brust Thee," at any pharmacy. Take a tablespoonful of the tea, put a cup of boiling water upon it, pour through a sieve and drink a teacup full at any time. It is the most effective way to break a cold and cure grip, as it opens the pores, relieving congestion. Also loosens the bowels, thus breaking a cold at once.

It is inexpensive and entirely vegetable, therefore harmless.—Adv.

IF BACKACHY OR KIDNEYS BOTHER

Eat Less Meat Also Take Glass of Salts Before Eating Breakfast.

Uric acid in meat excites the kidneys, they become overworked; get sluggish ache, and feel like lumps of lead. The urine becomes cloudy; the bladder is irritated, and you may be obliged to seek relief two or three times during the night. When the kidneys clog you must help them flush off the body's urinous waste or you'll be a real sick person shortly. At first you feel a dull misery in the kidney region, you suffer from backache, sick headache, dizziness, stomach gets sour, tongue coated and you get rheumatic twinges when the weather is bad.

Eat less meat, drink lots of water; also get from any pharmacist four ounces of Jad Salts; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to clean clogged kidneys and stimulate them to normal activity, also to neutralize the acids in urine, so it no longer is a source of irritation, thus ending bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is inexpensive, cannot injure; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which everyone should take now and then to keep the kidneys clean and active. Druggists here say they sell lots of Jad Salts to folks who believe in overcoming kidney trouble while it is only trouble.—Adv.

INAUGURATE FIFTIETH ANNIVERSARY OF YOUNG WOMEN'S CHRISTIAN ASS'N

MEMBERSHIP BANQUET HELD AT Y. M. C. A. USHERS IN INTERESTING CELEBRATION WHICH WILL CONTINUE THROUGHOUT THE MONTH.

ADDRESSES BY PAST AND PRESENT OFFICERS

Miss Mary Dingman, Industrial Secretary of Northeastern Field, the Principal Speaker—Miss Harriet O. Mattison Presents Historical Sketch of Local Association—Mrs. Frederick G. Mead Presides—Music a Pleasing Feature.

With every pulse the country over vibrating with the same thought and engaged in the same object, that splendid organization known as the Young Women's Christian Association began its celebration of the fiftieth aniversary in the United States yesterday. The Plainfield association began its celebration with a membership banquet held in the Y. M. C. A. auditorium last night, when fully 350 past and present members gathered again to renew their membership and loyalty to the association. The banquet, prepared under the direction of Miss Catherine Quinn, was served at 6:30, Sigma Gamma Kappa girls, assisted by many friends, acting in the capacity of waitresses. The auditorium was handsomely decorated for the event, banners signifying each year in the local association life dividing the various groups, while a colored candle occupied each table. Palms and cut flowers also added to the decorations. The speakers and officers occupied a table on the stage.

During the repast various groups would rise and render vocal selections appropriate to the year in which they joined the association. The banner which was awarded to the group having the largest number present went to the 1907 members. Musical selections were rendered by an orchestra under the direction of S. Frederick Smith.

Mrs. Frederick G. Mead, the president of the Plainfield association, presided as toastmistress and opened the celebration with a few words of welcome followed by a short review of the early efforts of the Plainfield branch. In part she said:

"Nine years ago two women of Plainfield who had been members of the Northeastern Field Committee of the National Board saw through their work in other cities how Plainfield women and girls could have a larger, fuller life if there could be an association started here. First, through the hearty co-operation of members of one of Miss Chadborne's Bible classes, the possibility of at least an investigation of conditions in Plainfield was considered, then Miss Holmquist and Miss Blanche Snyder, headquarters' secretaries, came and spent several weeks here helping to gather facts and statistics that would prove the wisdom of starting one other organization in our progressive city. Many stores and factories were visited, many citizens were called upon and their counsel asked and Warren chapel very kindly asked us to hold a meeting there where the plans could be presented to some who had perhaps not yet heard of the Y. W. C. A. Parlor meetings were also held at the homes of Mrs. Percy Stewart and Mrs. Frederick G. Mead, and a tentative list of over 300 names was secured of women and girls who desired to join as soon as an association was organized.

"As a result of the thorough preparatory work a temporary committee was formed which reported at a meeting held for organization in the Y. M. C. A. building, April 18, 1907. Mrs. James Cushman and Miss Holmquist were the speakers of the evening, a constitution was adopted and officers elected. It was announced that the budget of the first year had been secured and the house at 210 East Front street rented as our first home. We had 513 charter members and we have 813 at the present time. Miss Amy Tapping was called as our first general secretary and in September, Miss Margaret Mosher came to us as a physical director."

During the evening, Mrs. O. G. Dale, the chairman of the jubilee

MISCHA ELMAN WILL OFFER CLASSICAL PROGRAM

Mischa Elman, the celebrated Russian violniist, who will come to the Plainfield High School, next Wednesday night, February 9, under the auspices of the Cheerful Workers' Circle of King's Daughters, will have a program to offer his audience which has been presented at the very best of American and European concert halls. The response by local music lovers through the purchase of tickets is gratifying and reveals the keen appreciation of the very best in music as well as the willingness to aid in the worthy cause for which the benefit is given. Tickets have been selling rapidly for the event. Those who have not purchased the same at Miller's Drug store as yet are urged to do so at once.

TEMPLE SHOLEM DANCE A SUCCESS

Annual Affair Held in Columbus Auditorium is Largley Attended.

One of the most successful affairs yet conducted by Temple Sholem drew a large gathering to Columbus Hall last night, when the third annual kirmess and ball was given. The program proved highly enjoyable to all attending, many of those present coming from New York, Newark and Philadelphia. Mrs. William Newcorn, who was the directress of the kirmess, was warmly congratulated for her work, and was presented with a beautiful bouquet and a prayer book. MAKE BIG HAUL IN BORO HOMES

ESTIMATE LOSS $1,000

Entrance is Effected at Both Residences Through Ground Floor Windows—Police Working on the Case.

Burglars entered the homes of Leslie Hallock at 79 Willow avenue, and Dr. James R. Joy, at 80 Myrtle avenue, the borough, early this morning and got away with silverware and clothing, the total value of which is estimated at $1,000. From the Hallock residence valuable solid silverware, including a number of wedding presents, were taken from the sideboard and a hat and ulster coat belonging to Mr. Hallock also disappeared. The Hallocks estimate their loss at about $600.

Solid silverware was also taken from the Joy residence, the sideboard being practically stripped of everything. The loss here will total at least $400, if not more.

Entrance to both homes was effected through ground floor windows, which it is believed were left unlocked, as neither of the window catches were damaged in any way. The burglars confined their operations entirely to the first floor in each residence. They were apparently well satisfied with their haul, for there was other silverware left behind in both places.

An investigation showed that the burglars carried the stolen articles in sideboard drawers to the rear of a garage at the Hallock place and evidently loaded it in sacks. Two pieces of silverware were found near the garage, indicating that the burglars must have been frightened away.

The loss of the goods was not known until both families awoke this morning. Even a fox terrier owned by the Hallocks failed to arouse the family while the burglars were operating in the house. Chief Marshal George Weiss was notified early this morning of the burglaries and every effort is now being made to obtain a clue.

TWO MEN KILLED AND FOUR INJURED

Boiler Explodes Wrecking Howe Rubber Co. Plant at New Brunswick.

The large plant of the Howe Rubber Company, on Upper French street, New Brunswick, and of which John Tenney, of Evergreen avenue, of this city, is the president, was totally destroyed by a boiler explosion at 9:30 o'clock this morning. Two men were killed and four others, all seriously injured, are in St. Peter's Hospital, with only slight chances of recovery. The wreckage caught fire and police and firemen worked alike in effecting rescues. The property damage was placed at $50,000.

The names of the two men killed are given as Edward Bingel, thirty-eight years old, and John Kruhl, twenty-seven years old, both of New Brunswick. The injured are. Edward Steinmacher, aged twenty-two; George Lynch, aged twenty-five, and William Rupprecht, all of South River, and John Schreck, of New Brunswick. They were suffering from broken limbs and internal injuries.

The main portion of the boiler was blown through the roof of the building and landed on the doorstep of the home of John Scaladi, thirty-five feet across the street from the factory. Bricks and mortar crashed through the doorway of the Scaladi home, overturning the kitchen stove and causing general wreckage in the various rooms. The cause of the explosion has not yet been determined.

Telephone messages were flashed to this city immediately after the accident, and Mr. Tenney left at once for the scene. He assisted in directing the work of rescue, and did everything possible for the injured men. The explosion is one of the worst disasters of the kind that has ever occurred in Middlesex county, and because of the reports sent out before the full details were known, drew thousands of persons to the scene.

WILL PROVIDE HOME FOR REVIVAL PARTY

Details for the Biederwolf Evangelistic Campaign Are Nearing Completion.

A number of the sub-committes to take charge of the details of the Biederwolf campaign have been completed. One of these is the entertainment committee, the chairman of which is Rev. Dr. J. S. Zelie. The work of this committee is to find a home for Rev. W. E. Biederwolf and his party during the stay of five or six weeks in Plainfield. In this party are Mr. and Mrs. Biederwolf, a male quartet, a choir leader, tabernacle expert, leader for women's work, an accompanist and a cook. It is interesting to know that each member of the quartet has definite duties to perform, in addition to taking part in the singing. For instance, one is business manager, another is Mr. Biederwolf's physical director, another has charge of the work for boys and girls, while the fourth supervises the organization of the personal workers and ushers. The same is true of the accompanist, who is Mr. Biederwolf's private secretary.

The plan of the entertainment committee is to secure a furnished home large enough to take care of all the members of the organization, if possible; but if this cannot be done, to secure comfortable rooms near the house, if they must go out, so that they can all eat together. The reason for this is that it provides a home for those who are away from home so much. It has been said by one who has been a guest at Mr. Biederwolf's table that the fellowship exhibited at each meal is a most inspiring example of the possibilities of home life.

Reports from Allentown, Pa., where Mr. Biederwolf is now in the fifth week of the campaign in that city, state that more than 30,000 people attended the meetings last Saturday and Sunday, and up to date 1,400 have hit the trail.

BISHOP WOODCOCK TO CONDUCT MISSION

Popular Preacher Will Be in Charge of Revival at Grace Episcopal Church.

At the preaching mission to be held at Grace Episcopal church, February 13-20, the special preacher will be the Bishop of Kentucky, the Right Reverend Doctor Charles E. Woodcock. Bishop Woodcock is said to be a man of great personal magnetism and charm, and for several years has been one of the most popular preachers at the noon-day services at Trinity church, New York, during the Lenten season. He is a native of Connecticut, having been born in New Britain in 1854, and before his election as Bishop of Kentucky he was rector of churches in New Haven and Ansonia, as well as of St. John's church, Detroit.

Although the mission is to be conducted under the auspices of the four Episcopal churches of the city it will be in no sense a sectarian affair. In addition to the regular Sunday services on February 13 and 20, Bishop Woodcock will speak every day of the week (except Saturday) at 4 and at 8 p. m. The services will be simple and every seat in the church will be free, and it is hoped that the people of Plainfield and neighboring towns will avail themselves of the opportunity thus presented of hearing one of the foremost preachers of the day. Bishop Woodcock is coming absolutely without charge, but at the last service of the series a collection will be taken up for the benefit of his work among the poor white of Kentucky.

FLYNN AND HIGGINS MAKE AN IMPORTANT ARREST

Joseph Salvadore, of South Plainfield, was arrested yesterday by Captain Flynn and Lieutenant Higgins, of the local police force, charged with an assaut on Sarah Mulkeen, of Richmond street. The Mulkeen girl lost her way on January 22 while seeking a position at a house near Hillside cemetery, and Salvadore met her and offered to direct her to the house. Instead he attacked her at a lonlely spo ton the road. Flynn and Higgins went to work on the case, and yesterday they brought Salvadore to Plainfield and the girl identified him. He was turned over to the Middlesex county authorities this morning, and will be held for the grand jury. It is said that he admitted the charge.

The Sesame Club will meet at 10:30 tomorrow morning at the home of Mrs. Samuel P. Case, 1140 Martine avenue.

PRESENT FARES FAR FROM FAIR

Taxi-drivers Will Demand That They Be Allowed to Charge More.

TO GO BEFORE COUNCIL

May Take Action at Meeting of Next Week—High Price of Gasoline and Lubricants Has Brought About Serious Condition Here.

Insisting that the present legal fares in the city of Plainfield are unfair, owners and operators of taxicabs are preparing to make an appeal to the Common Council for authority to charge higher rates. It is believed that action will be taken by the owners so that a formal petition can be presented to the Council at its next meeting, which will be Monday evening of next week.

The maximum rate in the city of Plainfield, or for all points within the first zone, which includes most all streets in the heart of the city, is now twenty-five cents. On most of the calls received the taxicab owners are barely breaking even, they insist, and on many of them they lose money.

The situation is serious, because those now in business are owners of from one to ten machines, which cannot be used for other purposes. They have established a clientele of customers, and their business is as permanent as that of a groceryman or clothing merchant, and yet they are facing a possible suspension, unless they get relief from the Standard Oil Company or the city of Plainfield, and they are appealing to Plainfield first.

Gasoline is now selling at twenty-four cents a gallon. Oils and other lubricats that are necessary to the operation of an automobile, even a Ford, are soaring sympathetically above the grasp of the ordinary owner of a machine, or one who uses it for commercial purposes. There is little hope of a drop in gasoline and oil prices in sight, and they are forced to appeal to the Council, which has the authority to change the schedule of prices that may be charged within the city limits.

Some of the calls that must be made for a quarter in Plainfield are more than one and one-half miles in length. For instance, a man may ride from the depot to the corner of Grant avenue and Eighth street for this sum. The trip, going and coming, is three miles. It cannot be made for less than twelve cents actual operating expenses, say taxi owners, and this does not include wear and tires, which is enormous, especially in this season of muddy and rough roads, nor the upkeep and deterioration of the machine, nor the salary of the driver. The call really costs the owner of the machine about twenty-eight cents, one experienced man figured for a Press reporter yesterday.

In case the Council does not take favorable action on the petition of the taxi men and grant their prayer for relief, they have the alternative of installing meters on all the machines, which would give them slightly more revenue. This plan has proven unsatisfactory to customers everywhere, and will not be put in use in Plainfield except as a last resort, they say.

MORPHINE TABLETS IN ORDERLY'S ROOM

John Bott, Employe at Muhlenberg Hospital, is Held Default of $500 Bail.

Newark, Feb. 2.—John Bott, twenty years old, an orderly in the Muhlenberg Hospital in Plainfield, was yesterday committed by United States Commissioner Edwin R. Semple in default of $500 bail charged with the violation of the Harrison anti-narcotic act. Bott entered the hospital's employ on December 2 last. Superintendent Smith, of that institution, testified at a preliminary hearing before Commissioner Semple yesterday that on account of Bott's queer demeanor he kept tabs on him, and on January 11, in his absence, caused his room to be searched with the result that 500 morphine tablets were found. At Mr. Smith's suggestion Bott quit as orderly for the time being and became a patient, slated as a drug victim. At the instance of United States Internal Revenue Collector Charles B. Duffy, of Paterson, Deputy Collector H. H. Kouters, of Elizabeth, on Saturday arrested Bott. At the hearing it was intimated to the prisoner that a degree of leniency might be exercised in his case if he shall make disclosure as to the source of his dope supply. All that Bott has so far admitted is that he got the tablets in New York.

SHOOTS HIMSELF IN WIFE'S GRASP

Thomas H. Keller, Former Plainfielder, Ends His Life in New York Home.

HAD BEEN DESPONDENT

Was One of the Best Known Sportsmen in the Country, Being a Promoter of Baseball and Trap Shooting—Leaves Wife and Three Sons.

While his wife clung to him screaming and fighting to hold his hands, Thomas H. Keller, manager of the Peters Cartridge Company, of No. 60 Warren street, New York, and up to fifteen years ago one of the most prominent residents of Plainfield, shot himself twice in the heart with a revolver, at 10 o'clock yesterday morning, in his apartment at No. 251 West Eighty-seventh street. He died a few minutes later, while a physician from Knickerbocker Hospital worked over him.

Mr. Keller, who was fifty-eight years old, had been ill for several weeks. In the last few days he had been despondent, having lost hope of recovery, the fact making him all the more depressed because for years he had been almost totally deaf. Yesterday morning Mr. Keller went to the room of his wife, who was formerly Miss Susan Angleman, of this city, and said calmly:

"I am tired of living. I can never get well and I won't exist like this any longer. I am going to end it."

He turned and left the room. Mrs. Keller followed and seized him. He fought and broke the woman's hold and reached a dresser in his own room, where lay an old-fashioned army revolver. As his wife again flung her arms about him, he pressed the weapon to his heart and fired twice.

Mrs. Keller's screams had roused the residents of the apartment-house and neighbors found the wife by her dying husband's side. The physician was called but Mr. Keller was beyond medical aid before the ambulance arrived.

Mrs. Keller and her husband were alone at the time the latter carried his determination into effect. The wife has since been almost prostrated. Two of her sons, T. Hazlewood Keller, Jr., of Sandford avenue, this city, and Harold Keller, of New York, were in Kansas City yesterday on business and telegrams were rushed to them. Another son, Courtney Keller, who

BETTER FEELING AT WASHINGTON

Break With Germany Over Lusitania May Be Avoided.

APPAM WILL INTERN

Belief at Capital That Passengers Will Be Allowed to Go—Demand Made by Liner's Agent That She Be Released at Once.

Washington, Feb. 2.—Recent despatches from Colonel E. M. House, following his trip to Berlin, have been forwarded to President Wilson and duplicate copies of those which bear upon the Lusitania negotiations have been given to Secretary of State Lansing. It is believed that the general tenor of the forthcoming German communication on the Lusitania has already been made known to the administration in an informal way through Colonel House. For this reason the apprehension of a new crisis which was manifest last week is no longer shown in the State Department. In fact there is confidence in a complete settlement of the difficulty following the cue that the President has taken in several of his speeches.

No Decision On Appam.

Secretary of State Lansing today stated that he had reached no decision in the Apam case, as he had not yet received all the facts. He does not expect to make any announcement before tonight.

It now seems certain, however, that the Appam will be interned at Hampton Roads, according to reports heard at the State Department today. It is believed the passengers and various prisoners aboard the vessel will be released, but the ship itself will not be allowed to depart.

Berlin, Feb. 2 (by wireless via Sayville).—Although it is admitted that diplomatic relations between Germany and the United States have been perilously near a complete rupture, it was officially announced today by the German Foreign Office that fresh representations have been made to Washington, by which it is believed that the Lusitania case will be amicably adjusted. The indication is that the handling of the Lusitania case was taken out of the hands of Ambassador Von Bernstorff, and that the present negotiations are being carried out directly between the Foreign Office of the Imperial German Government and the State Department at Washington.

New York, Feb. 2.—Formal protest asking for the release of the Elder Dempster liner Appam, which arrived at Norfolk in charge of a German prize crew yesterday, was made last night to Secretary of State Lansing by Daniel Bacon, New York representative of the line.

House In Paris.

Paris, Feb. 2.—Colonel Edward M. House, special envoy of President Wilson informs the editor of The Petit Parisien that he met various people in Berlin, including Dr. Von Bethman Hollweg, the Imperial Chancellor, and Dr. Von Jagow, secretary for Foreign Affairs. He spent in all four days in Germany before going to Switzerland.

Aerial Attacks Renewed.

Amsterdam, Feb. 2.—Allied aeroplanes have attacked Ghent, Belgium, according to the "Echo De Belge." Ghent is an important distributing point of the German army.

ADDITIONAL SCHOOL ROOM NEEDED AT DUNELLEN

Supervising Principal Guy H. Rentschler, of the Dunellen schools, told the members of the Dunellen Board of Education at the monthly meeting of the Board last evening that if the growth of the schools continued at the present rate of about 6 per cent. of the enrollment per year, it will be necessary to open an additional room next year. There is only one availazble room, and that is in the Lincoln School, and Mr. Rentschler recommended that the Board study conditions and see what can be done to meet future needs. He stated, in this connection, that present accommodations would be in inadequate after June, 1917, explaining that the present growth of 6 per cent. means that two new rooms will have to be opened every three years.

YOUTHFUL BURGLARS TURNED OVER TO COUNTY AUTHORITIES

Fred and Henry Romp, the boy burglars, of New Market, were taken to New Brunswick yesterday afternoon by Probation Officer Cary, of the Jamesburg Reformatory. There was a contention for the possession of these youths between the county authorities of the Rahway Reformatory, from which Henry was out on parole, and of Jamesburg Reformatory, from which Henry was out on parole. The authorities of Middlesex borough, in which borough Fred confessed that he committed two of his crimes, viz., stealing two automobile tires from an automobile standing in front of the Lincoln firehouse on one evening in December, and breaking into a house and completely ransacking it, demanded that the youths be turned over to the custody of the county, and Judge von Minden decided to do so.

Officer Cary said that Henry, in whom he was directly interested, was a victim of poor home surroundings. He said that he was convinced that he was not a criminal at heart, and pointed out that he had been working industriously of late at Saurer's and trying hard to make a man out of himself. Officer Cary said that he was going to do all that he could for the young man.

JAPANESE AND U. S. VESSELS IN COLLISION AT HALIFAX

Halifax, N. S., Feb. 2.—Mystery surrounds the fate of the American steamship Silver Bell and the Japanese steamship Takata Maua, which were in collision late last night off Cape Race. A dispatch from the Cape Race wireless station stated it was feared that both ships had gone to the bottom, and that nothing had been heard from the crews. Later the Department of Marine received the following message:

"Have received wireless reports that Takata Maru's engine room and stoke hole are flooded." Takata Maru reported she had been sending out numerous calls for assistance and that the steamer Silver Bell was standing by. Silver Bell reported all well."

As Old as They Feel.

They fell for the fox trot and tango last season,
But now these diversions are not up to date;
Our set doesn't do them, and that is the reason
Our aged relations have learned how to skate.
Gliding with well balanced equilibration,
Gracefully over the surface they go,
Tickled to death with a real recreation,
For dancing they found was a little too slow.

Grandma was seventy-one in November;
Great-uncle Ezra is seventy-two.
Grandpa declares that he well can remember
His old days in college with Chauncey Depew.
You'd think that they all would be quietly waiting
The summons that calls to the cloudy beyond,
But not these old birds—they have all gone out skating;
They're kicking their heels up on Cafferty's pond.

Leave to the schoolboy the chair by the chimney;
Let the young shrink from the snow and the cold;
But, while the blood can still tingle, by jim'ney,
Hearthsides no longer shall shelter the old!
Doctors may solemnly croak out a warning
That death is abroad on the midwinter breeze,
But Cafferty's pond's like a mirror this morning,
And death has no terrors for old folks like these!

AMERICANS. IN WAR ZONE ARE HONORED FOR BRAVERY.

Decorations and Promotions Frequent, but Names Are Withheld.

"Americans in the Foreign legion of the French army have taken part in some of the roughest fighting of the war," says an officer who has been in a position to watch their work from the beginning.

The Americans of the Foreign legion have distinguished themselves on many occasions, earning in one case an officer's stripes and in another the cross of the Legion of Honor, while many have earned the war cross.

"The annihilation of the foreign legion has been announced at different times by the Germans," the officer went on, "and even the American press has published experiences of the legion, stating that the American volunteers and other foreigners serving France have been wiped out.

"At an impressive review, however, which has just taken place at the front General Gilinski presented to the Russian and Polish volunteers decorations conferred by Emperor Nicholas. The legionaries filed past in superb alignment, preceded by their flag, which is one of the few regimental banners decorated with the Legion of Honor. The men of the regiment showed none of the fatigue of sixteen months of the campaign. The veterans of Madagascar, Morocco and the American and other young volunteers presented the same soldierly bearing on parade as in action."

SOLDIER NEEDN'T PAY RENT.

British In France Declared to Be Under No Liability.

The British chamber of commerce issues a note regarding rents payable by British subjects who have enlisted in the British army. It says:

"In reply to questions which have been received as to the exact position of British subjects enlisted in the British army as regards the question of the payment of rent we may say that the ordre des avocats at the Palais de Justice informs us that the term 'mobilize' in the different decrees concerning rent is considered as applicable also to persons who have voluntarily enlisted, and in consequence British subjects with the colors cannot be called upon to pay.

"With regard to the question of sums paid by such persons while on active service, there is no present means of obtaining restitution, although it is very probable that the arbitration committees which it is proposed to set up will judge all cases individually and order a reimbursement if it is justified."

HOW TO AVOID GRIP.

Nurse Says Keep the House Open and Get Lots of Fresh Air.

Open air exercise taken every day and avoiding house to house visiting especially where there is a case of grip influenza or the slightest cold, is the advice of Miss Ada Byford, a trained nurse, who prescribes for the prevention of influenza or grip. Miss Byford writing to the North Carolina state board of health, says she was a child in England when the first well remembered epidemic of grip passed through that country and that she was a hospital nurse when the second epidemic made its tour.

She says: "Air the house thoroughly every day. It is a mistake to shut up the house to keep the cold out, as it only keeps the germs in. Let the children out; put on their walking clothes."

Miss Byford doesn't say don't kiss or cover up the sneezes, but she says more—avoid the presence of any one suffering with the slightest cold, for in your case it may be not merely a cold, but grip or pneumonia.

NEARLY OVERCOME BY AMMONIA FUMES

John Bauer Risks His Life in Accident to Refrigerating Plant of Roth & Co.

John Bauer, an employe at Roth and Company's market on East Front street, proved yesterday afternoon that he has the stuff in him of which heroes are made. Too much pressure on a valve connected with the refrigerating plant, caused a pipe to give away filling the basement and suroundings with an almost overpowering odor of ammonia. A telephone call was sent to fire headquarters for a face mask with which to protect someone who might gain entrance to the cellar and shut off the ammonia supply.

The department responded, but the masks it has are of an antique variety and could not be used. At this juncture, Bauer improvised a mask by using a sponge saturated with vinegar and offered to make a try at finding the shutoff. He groped his way to the point successfully and was on his return when he was overcome at the head of the basement stairs. W. Riley, another Roth employe, sprang to his assistance and dragged him out in a semi-conscious condition. The plucky man was fully restored a short time later when Dr. Albert Pittis administered treatment.

The ammonia ceased as soon as the flow was stopped and later in the afternoon workmen from the New Brunswick refrigerating plant hurried to this city by automobile to repair the break. The fumes, although they were strong for nearly a block away, caused no damage as the company's supply of meats was safe in the closed ice boxes.

STRATEGY OF A SCOT.

Ruse by Which the Laird o' Cockpen Came Into His Own.

"Brose and Butter"—that is, porridge and butter—is an old Scotch tune of which Prince Charles, afterward Charles II., was very fond. The laird of Cockpen when Charles was at The Hague played the air for the prince the last thing at night and the first thing in the morning. On returning to Scotland after the restoration the laird found his estate had been forfeited for his attachment to the royal cause, and, sad to relate, Charles, forgetful of Cockpen's services, refused to interest himself in his faithful follower's petition to have it returned to him and even refused him an audience.

The laird, with the pertinacity of his race, resolved to achieve by stratagem what he could not by direct appeal. While in London Cockpen formed an intimate acquaintanceship with the organist of the Chapel Royal and prevailed on him to allow him to act as his substitute at a service at which the king was to be present. Obtaining his consent, he played the regular tunes for the service. When dismissal time came he played the king's old favorite melody, "Brose and Butter."

On hearing it Charles wended his way to the organ gallery, where he found his quondam courtier, whom he greeted with a touch of the old familiarity, remarking, "You almost made me dance." Quick to seize the opportunity, the laird responded, "I could dance, too, if I had my lands back again." Charles' better nature awoke under the power of the music and the old memories it recalled, with the result that the laird received his own again.—Edinburgh Scotsman.

SHE KNEW AMOS.

And Evidently Amos Was Fairly Well Acquainted With Her.

The man who takes trolley rides through the country, says a writer in the Boston Advertiser, sees and hears much that is amusing. On one occasion, while I was riding through the outskirts of Amesbury, an old lady—but a decidedly spry one—hailed the car. She was accompanied down to the road from the house by a young woman, possibly her daughter.

The elder woman put her foot on the lower running board, grasped the upright and was about to climb into the car when she turned to the young woman and said:

"Don't forget that gingerbread in the oven, Liza. You know pa just hates burnt gingerbread."

"All aboard!" shouted the conductor. But the old lady paid no attention to him.

"And, Liza," she continued, "when you pick up the eggs, bimeby, look out for that Rhode Island Red that wants to set. She'll peck you if you ain't careful."

"All aboard!" again shouted the conductor, but as the old lady proceeded to climb on to the car she paused long enough to say to him: "Ye can't scare me, Amos. I've known ye ever since ye was knee high."

Amos grinned, pulled the bell, and we were on our way.

What Happened to Him.

"Ever been arrested for speeding?"

"No."

"Ever tried to climb a telegraph pole with your car?"

"No."

"Ever have it turn turtle on you?"

"No."

"Ever have to fix a tire all by yourself?"

"No, can't say that I have."

"Great Scott, man! Hasn't anything happened to you that happens to all other motorists?"

"Oh, yes. I've had a robe and three lamps stolen."—Detroit Free Press.

10 P. C. OF DEATHS DUE TO PNEUMONIA

During Past Thirty Days This Rate Has Been Doubled in Some Sections.

Ten per cent. of the deaths in the United States result from pneumonia. It is estimated that during the past thirty days this rate has been doubled in some sections. Tuberculosis and heart disease, each causing one-ninth of all fatalities, are the only diseases which outrank pneumonia among the legion of the men of death, but in certain cities pneumonia is steadily increasing and even has surpassed the mortality from tuberculosis. Seventy per cent. of all cases occur between December and May. It is distinctly a cold weather infection seemingly brought by wintry blasts, but especially prevalent during the winter season only because its victims are rendered more susceptible at that time by exposure, delibitating influences and the presence of predisposing infections.

Pneumonia principally affects those at the extremes of life, but no age is exempt. It is invariably a germ disease. The predisposing and exciting organisms are so numerous that it would be futile to attempt their enumeration. Many of them are constantly present in the mouths and throats of healthy persons and it is only through the aid which we unwittingly extend to them that they are transformed from harmless organisms to one of man's most powerful enemies.

The presence of other diseases is the great predisposing cause of pneumonia. They prepare the soil for invasion. Holding first rank in this category is influenza, the increased incidence of pneumonia at this time being largely due to the present epidemic of la grippe. Individuals suffering from this infection are peculiarly susceptible to respiratory complications and should properly observe every hygienic rule. Inflammation of the upper air passages, pharyngitis, bronchitis, and tonsilitis often predispose to the development of the disease, particularly among the aged and infirm. The acute contagious diseases of childhood, more especially measles and whooping cough frequently prepare the way for pneumonia. Anyone who through neglect or carelessness permits the spread of these infections is therefore open to the severest condemnation. Exhausting disease of whatever nature is often sufficient to so reduce our resistance that we are unable to cope with organisms which should be easily overcome, and hence predispose to the infection.

Debility, either temporary or chronic, developing from any cause increases susceptibility. Because of this the disease most often attacks those at the extremes of life. Among debilitating influences must be mentioned cold, exposure to penetrating winds, and the chilling of body surfaces as a result of wetting.

The combination of lack of food and fatigue proves particularly disastrous during the winter season and is a condition to be avoided whenever possible. Bad housing, mental or physical harrassment, and overwork are alike the advance agents of the infection. Overcrowding, in street cars, theatres, and other public places, is unquestionably in part responsible for the spread of pneumonia in cities, as far greater opportunity is thus offered for the dissemination of the predisposing disease through indiscriminate coughing and other means of droplet infection, as well as the directly injurious effect which inevitably result from exposure to such environment. The over heating of rooms is also seemingly harmful. Promiscuous expectoration may be, and probably is, a factor in infection and consequently should be avoided by every citizen. It is in truth the handmaiden of pneumonia and there is none more certain or more sure of success, especially if liberally and continuously used.

committee, told of how the work in Plainfield was divided up into districts and gave an interesting account of the number of members in each district. The fourth district of North Plainfield holds the banner number of association members, there being eighty-even in that section.

Two former members who received much applause were Miss Amy Tapping, and Mrs. Alexander Capron, the first secretary and physical director of the association here, respectively. Miss Tapping, who is at present at the head of the work for children at Jamestown, N. Y., practically grew up with the local association and her return last night was an occasion of renewal of old acquaintances. Mrs. Mosher Capron was formerly Miss Margaret Mosher. She congratulated the members on the splendid growth since her stay here and looked for a future of wonderful good for the entire association.

The principal speaker of the evening was Miss Mary A. Dingman, the industrial secretary of the Northeastern Field of the National Board. Her remarks were followed with much interest. The occasion was the first visit of Miss Dingham to Plainfield and she brought a message to the women urging them to widen their scope of work and broaden their sisterhood. She deplored the exclusiveness of some associations where the barren outlook of the building as well as the attitude of the members inside tended to frighten girls away from the association ties rather than bind them closer. Annihilation of these cleavages of society would be the only thing that would make the bond of sisterhood stronger and encompass every member, thus making for a fuller and better meaning of the life of the association. She concluded her remarks with some statistical facts of the growth of the work in America and in the world, and also paid a glowing tribute to the late Miss Grace H. Dodge, the first president of the National Board of the Y. W. C. A. of the United States, whose watchful and statesman leadership made her thousands of friends

The following historical sketch of the Young Woman's Christian Association of Plainfield, from April 17, 1907, to February 1, 1916, was prepared and read by Miss Harriet O. Mattison. All the verses used in the resume are original compositions by various grils belonging to the association:

"You are all invited to go with me in imagination to our own dear association building, and as we sit around the open fire, I will endeavor to point out to you some of the pictures which the fire-light of memory reveals.

"The fireplace is dark and empty! But wait a moment, my friends. I think I see the wood gatherers coming this way. Yes, here come the workers from the National Board and some familiar local friends, bringing much material. One bears a list of 436 names for charter membership; others bring the needed money; while still others offer personal service. * * All is ready for the fire which shall set the fuel aglow. And now, she who was destined to be president comes, and in her hand she bears a torch which has been lighted by the Divine Spirit in the preliminary meetings. The fire is quickly kindled and burns briskly, the flames shooting up in almost dazzling splendor. And then, as it settles down to a steady burning, we begin to discern certain objects. The 'beginnings' take form and stand out clearly: the first secretary, the dedication service, the gymnasium and the first physical director. Then the library and the first Bible, educational and gymnasium classes come within our vision, and we see the year go down in history with a membership of 513 and a balance of a little over a thousand dollars in the treasury, while the mortgage on the property has been reduced by $500.

"Enthusiasm has marked the first year; will the fire continue to burn or will it flare up and die out? We watch with prayerful interest, and as we look we see that the things which were new last year have become established as a part of a permanent institution, and not only so, but they have grown, and we also see new forms come out of the shadows, take definite shape and assume their rightful places.

"More fuel, my friends! The zeal of our house has consumed the materials at hand. We must have a larger equipment for our work; we have outgrown our quarters! A valiant friend meets the need by offering the double-house next door. Now, see! The flames leap high, picturing the busy months when the alterations are being made. Do you remember the verses sung by the girls at Silver Bay that summer of 1909?

'Now, here's a tale we like to tell:
A friend who loves us very well,
Added to our house the one next door,
So we'll be finer than before.

Of course, our building is upset,
But over this we do not fret,
For when the work is all complete,
We're sure you'llsay it can't be beat!'

And see what a beautiful house it is! Beauty and utility; harmony and homeliness; cheerfulness and quietness—all blended to form an ideal association home.

"Within the building I see groups of busy girls * * * It must be Monday night, for the tables in the dining room are surrounded. Who says one cannot do two things at once? These girls seem to be eating with zest and talking with quite as much enthusiasm. Someone rises—she looks to me like a secretary—and appears to be giving the announcement of what is scheduled to happen at the association during the ensuing week. The girls scatter to their various classes, and some of them, their number reinforced by others who have not been at supper, gather around their leaders in Bible and mission study.

"In the various classes some of the girls are learning to make their own gowns and hats; some fashion dainty flowers out of ribbon; others weave baskets, hammer brass, make useful household articles, do pieces of exquisite embroidery; still others I find in the kitchen learning to cook. Here is a group of foreign girls struggling with the intracacies of the English language; there a group of American girls trying quite as hard to learn French or German. More girls are in the library, reading, writing or selecting books for reading at home. In the assembly room, a girl is amusing herself by playing the pianola; or, perhaps, the Glee Club is practicing. Above and away from the hum of activity, some transient guest may be enjoying the peacefulness of her room on the third floor.

"Suppers again! This time the girls are coming in twos and threes, so I fancy it must be Saturday night or, perhaps, Christmas week. They seem to enjoy not only the supper but the oportunity for fellowship and the chance to rest a while.

"See how the flames dance and leap and roar, as if they were possessed by a spirit of fun and frolic. Doesn't it remind you, girls, of the parties you have enjoyed at the association? Whether it was Hallow E'en, Valentine's night, the fall reception and rally, a gymnasium reunion, a lawn fete, a birthday supper or a dramatic performance—it was always a happy occasion, and you went home at 10 o'clock refreshed in body, mind and spirit, with a deeper understanding of true fellowship.

"I'm sure you recognize this picture without my naming it. Of course, it is the gymnasium, and the girls are doing all sorts of stunts and playing games that will make for health and strength, and in the meantime having a good time. The scene shifts a little as we find ourselves in the Y. M. C. A. gymnasium, but these are the same girls, and they are giving an exhibition of some of the drills and pretty folk dances they have learned, finishing with a basketball game. These girls are wont to sing:

'We're gymnasium girls,
See how straight we walk,
(We have to walk the chalk),
We're gymnasium girls.
We can breathe down here and here and here!
Strong as any boy,
Life for us is only joy.
We don't have headaches or pains,
Or catch a cold each time it rains,
Because we're gymnasium girls.'

"It is not only these particular girls, but many others besides who have reveled in the outings, which took a variety of forms, such as walks, strawrides, picnics, campfires and cornroasts; but I fancy that the participants in the sunrise breakfasts were confined almost entirely to the girls of this department.

"You see how the fire flares up, burns brightly for a while, and then apparently sputers out? Wasn't that just like the orchestra that flourished for a season or two and then apparently died out? Let us, hope, however, that the fire is not quite out, and that a breeze of awakening interest will fan the embers into flame again.

"The fate of the Glee Club was almost as sad, though its life was longer. Once it gave concerts in the Y. M. C. A. Auditorium, and later, in conjunction with the orchestra, in our own assembly room or at our presidents home. The fire of enthusiasm seems to have burned low, and few who go out on Christmas Eve to sing carols can hardly call themselves a glee club. There was a time when—

'Every Monday evening had a meaning all its own;
Every Glee Club member came at 8 just to be shown
How she could improve her singing,
And the halls were set a-ringing
When the echoes back kept flinging
Little discords all their own.'

"Here comes a regular procession, 116 girls long! All wear white, with red crosses on their arms and nearly half of them carry diplomas. I need not tell you they are the first-aiders, who learned how "To put on a tourniquet,

Or bandage figure eight;
Artificial respiration—
If 'twas not too late.

Sterilized, sterilized.
Everything that they used.
Boiled their hands in water hot,
Never once did they refuse.

Always carried 'neath their arms,
Their first-aid kit so neat;
So they always would be ready
At their homes or on the street.'

"What is the occasion that brings this happy crowd together It is a Silver Bay lawn fete, I am sure. But what strange proceeding is this? That figure, leading the rest from the lawn into the house, is surely our president! She holds something white in her hand that looks like a legal document. She pauses, seems to say a few words, and drops the paper into the fireplace, where, in a moment, it is reduced to ashes. A glad shout goes up from the girls, and then their heads are bowed as their leader offers a prayer of thanksgiving. The $11,000 mortgage on the association property has been destroyed!

"I mentioned Silver Bay just now, and I want to tell you that fifty-nine different girls and a total delegation of seventy-three have attended the Northeastern city conference our organization in 1907. As one of the girls has expressed it in song, we do indeed hope that many more will be able to attend either the Silver Bay or similar conferences, that they may bring back to our association the inspiration they are sure to gain:

"On the shores of Lake George, in the heart of the hills,
Silver Bay in its loveliness stands;
And 'twas there for nine summers in years that have passed,
That our girls sailed in small, happy bands.
And now 'tis our motive, this glorious retreat,
Helping soul, body, spirit for aye,
May be shared by some others, in summers to come,
Sent to this beauteous place—Silver Bay.'

"More eats! Banquets they appear to be! I recall quite plainly two that were held in the interest of Bible study and two as anniversary celebrations. Those brilliant colors in the fire—the flaming red, the deep orange, the purples and greens—remind me especially of the May Day festival in 1913, which proved one of the most delightful events in the history of the association. Each department was represented by an appropriate flower, and as the girls responded to the toasts by singing original songs, they brought great armfuls of them until the huge basket, provided for the purpose, was filled to overflowing. Perhaps no other occasion furnished so good an opportunity for bringing out the latent wit and cleverness of the girls. At the close, as our president was crowned 'Queen o' the May,' everybody joined in singing:

'Now at last with hearts united, raise your voice in song,
All association flowers in one bouquet belong;
Bring your garlands bright and bonny, let your hearts be gay,
For, lo, the girls with loyal homage, crown our Queen o' May!'

"Our association home was no less lovely, though in a different way, when, one October evening, it was the scene of a wedding in which our first office secretary was the happy bride.

"This scene that stands out in the firelight of memory in bold relief against the background of all that has gone before, was the dominating event of 1914. It is the memorable finance campaign, when, in four days, $12,566.75 was secured either in cash or by subscription—the amount being nearly $3,600 more than that asked for. The year's budget of $6,000 was thus assured, and we were enabled to settle the loan and make a payment on the mortgage on the property located at 218 East Front street, purchased the year before.

This left a total indebtedness of less than $2,000.

"The campaign was characterized as 'ideal' by the secretaries of the National Board, who outlined and helped us in carrying it to a triumphant conclusion. The money was not the only result, however. Many new members were brought in and old ones reclaimed, so that, at the end of the year, there were literally 1,001 members; but—and perhaps best of all—an interest in the association work was awakened, and in many cases, actually created, throughout the entire community. Of course, our girls mentioned the campaign in a song. This is the first stanza:

'Held we once upon a time
A finance campaign.
In the winter's cold and rime,
A finance campaign.
Far and wide our workers sped,
Getting silver, gold and lead,
And coming back, with tea were fed,
Our finance campaign!'

"Do you wonder what all those girls are making as they ply their needles so industriously? Many of them are sewing on garments destined for the European war sufferers. Approximately four hundred of them were finished and sent abroad; and as the girls sewed they learned something of their sisters who live across the water, and who, because of the terrible war, must endure so much hardship and want and suffering.

"These other girls, meeting in various groups, week after week, are evolving a model wardrobe for a business girl which they hope will be exhibited at the Panama-Pacific Exposition. The hope was realized, though the wardrobe proved ineligible for an award because, through no fault of ours, it reached its destination too late to be judged with the other exhibits. Recognition of its real merit, however, was sent to us in the form of a gift of books. The wardrobe consisted of twenty pieces, and represented the work of thirty-five girls.

"Of course, you remember receiving an attractive card last May inviting you to a membership festival? And if you attended, you saw an impressive presentation of the pageant, "The Ministering of the Gift," and you learned thereby a good deal about the kind and scope of the association work the world over.

"This picture, I dare say, is not a very familiar one to you all, but that was partly because it is new and partly for the reason that the scene is in the High School building. Yes, you have guessed it! The girls are having a good deal of fun in the swimming pool!

"The history of the nearly nine years of our association life has now been briefly told, but were I to make the record as elaborate as words would permit, going into the minutest detail, it would be quite impossible to show all that has been accomplished in fact. The 1,694 members which we have enrolled since the beginning (April 17, 1907) represent only the smallest part of the number that directly or indirectly have come under the influence of the association. Results in the great majority of cases must necessarily be obscure, but nearly every day brings us some evidence that our existence as an organization, with the avowed purpose of bringing the Light into the lives of the girls of our community, and in a measure abundant, is fully justified. In spite of mistakes and failure, we are assured of success in the main, because we are building on the one sure foundation. Of the phase of our work which we call religious' I have said little. You see how steadily and clearly the fire is burning now? Well, we know that the association spirit has been kept burning thus steadily through the years by means of the inspiration that has been obtained in the monthly vesper services, in Bible and mission studay, in the sweet Sunday Home Hours, at Silver Bay and other conferences, and most of all through earnest prayer. And the steady glow of the fire, sending its warmth into our hearts and its light on our faces, typifies to me the deep, rich, passionate fire of love to God which seeks to express itself in service with and for the girls!

'Tis not by might,' though hearts with might have striven;
'Nor yet by power,' that strength to us is given;
'But by my Spirit,' saith the Lord of heaven;
Help us to heed Thy Word.'

MAY LIMIT SKYSCRAPERS.

New York, Feb. 2.—Taxpayers' organizations of the city will meet tomorrow with the Advisory Council of Real Estate Interests, to consider the question of limiting the height of buildings, and districting the city into zones. City officials will also take part in the meeting. It is the concensus of opinion among real estate owners that the limitation of height of buildings will do much to stabilize property values. It is pointed out that the erection of skyscrapers causes adjacent property to depreciate in value and deprives the smaller buildings of tenants. The general conference to be held tomorrow will ceentre building attention upon the new program as outlined by the Commission on Building Districts and Restrictions.

WOOLEN MILLS MEN MEET.

Boston, Feb. 2.—The annual convention of the National Association of Wool Manufacturers opened here today. The mill men will be in session today and tomorrow, and the present phases of the wool supply will be taken up.

Egotists

An egotist is one who thinks that the only thing in the universe that cannot be improved upon is himself.

We discover traces of Egotism in some stores quite as often as we do in some individuals—those stores that are completely satisfied with themselves. We are not satisfied with our store. We hope we never will be.

When you feel that you have reached the best that's possible, inertia will surely send you tumbling. The Rothberg Store is in the process, just as all successful institutions are. TO AROUSE INTEREST IN HOME MISSIONS Presbytery of Elizabeth Arranges for Exchange of Pastors Next Sunday.

Elizabeth, Feb. 1.—To increase interest in home missions, both intellectually and financially, the Presbytery of Elizabeth has arranged for a general exchange of pulpits next Sunday morning. Nearly every pastor in the Presbytery will address some neighboring congregation, presenting the subject of home missions as fostered and conducted by the Presbyterian church, through its missionary boards.

New Jersey, with its complex population, affords at once a foreign and home mission field, and churches of every denomination are awakening to the task of amalgamating and Christianizing the newcomers from other lands, and the exceptional classes, some of whom have been neglected. The work of the Presbyterians at this time is in line with this policy, and the Elizabeth Presbytery has been asked to raise $13,000 for home missions in State and nation during the current year.

A few of the churches have found it impossible to arrange for a special service next Sunday morning, and they will give attention to the subject later. The schedule, as announced for Sunday, is as follows:

Basking Ridge Rev. Peter K. Hageman; Bethlehem, Rev. Edwin H. Bronson; Clinton, Rev. Ernest R. Brown; Dunellen, Rev. Dr. Samuel J. Rowland; Elizabeth, First, Rev. Dr. William I. Steans; Second, Rev. Loyal Y. Graham, Jr.; Third, Rev. George E. Bevais; Westminster, Rev. Dr. W. Force Whitaker; Madison Avenue Rev. Herbert K. England; Greystone Rev. Dr. John T. Kerr; Westminster Hope Memorial, Rev. Arthur Wellboelter; Garwood, Rev. William B Hamilton; Lamington, Rev. Charles H Hoyt; Liberty Corner, Rev. Laurence G. Bennett; Lower Valley, Rev Henry McGilvray; Metuchen, Rev Robert W. Mark; Pluckemin, Rev Henry S. Sperbeck; Rahway, First Rev. Dr. James G. Mason; Second Rev. Dr. E. B. Cobb; Roselle, Rev George A. Liggett; Springfield, Rev. Dr. Clarence G. Reynolds; Westfield, Rev. Louis B. Crane; Woodbridge Rev. Dr. Frederick W. Johnson.

On Thursday evening of next week, February 10, there will be group meetings at three central churches—Crescent Avenue, Plainfield; First, Elizabeth, and First, Rahway. At each service there will be addresses by two men of prominence in the denomination. In the afternoon there will be a similar meeting at the Pluckemin church.

Clear, Peachy Skin Awaits Anyone Who Drinks Hot Water

Says an inside bath, before breakfast helps us look and feel clean, sweet, fresh.

Sparkling and vivacious—merry, bright, alert—a good, clear skin and a natural, rosy, healthy complexion are assured only by pure blood. If only every man and woman could be induced to adopt the morning inside bath, what a gratifying change would take place. Instead of the thousands of sickly, anaemic-looking men women and girls, with pasty or muddy complexions; instead of the multitudes of "nerve wrecks," "run downs," "brain fags" and pessimists we should see a virile, optimistic throng of rosy-cheeked people everywhere.

An inside bath is had by drinking each morning, before breakfast, a glass of real hot water with a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate in it to wash from the stomach, liver, kidneys and ten yards of bowels the previous day's indigestible waste, sour fermentations and poisons, thus cleansing, sweetening and freshening the entire alimentary canal before putting more food into the stomach.

Those subject to sick headache, biliousness, nasty breath, rheumatism colds; and particularly those who have a pallid, sallow complexion and who are constipated very often, are urged to obtain a quarter pound of limestone phosphate at the drug store which will cost but a trifle, but is sufficient to demonstrate the quick and remarkable change in both health and appearance, awaiting those who practice internal sanitation. We must remember that inside cleanliness is more important than outside, because the skin does not absorb impurities to contaminate the blood while the pores in the thirty feet of bowels do.—Adv.

SHOOTS HIMSELF

was employed in a wholesale grocery house in New York, was summoned by telephone, reaching the apartment shortly after his father's death.

News of Mr. Keller's tragic end was brought to Plainfield last night and created a profound impression in every part of the city and borough. It seems only a few short years ago that "Tee Kay," as his associates loved to call him, was known to every local man, woman and child. He was a native of Brooklyn, but came here in 1873, making his home on East Front street. His wife is a daughter of the late George Angleman, Plainfield's street commissioner for many years. Mr. Keller was always an ardent lover of baseball and it was as the founder and manager of the famous Crescent baseball team that he acquired his greatest prominence. The story of the Crescent team, when it was at its heighth in the early '90's, is tradition among local baseball fans. Practically everybody knows that "Tee Kay" Keller discovered "Willie" Keeler, perfected his baseball stamina in Plainfield and then sent him out to become of the most famous right fielders and batters ever signed up by the American League. At one time "Willie" Keeler commanded the highest salary of any professional baseball player outside of a battery position. Plainfielders also remember distinctly how "Tee Kay" gave Plainfield and North Plainfield the historic Crescent-West End games, in the diamond battles with Somerville; how he brought "Chick" Lofford, "Billy" Sneeden, George Leidy, "Freddy" Jones, "Dummy" Taylor and many other professional diamond artists into the local limelight. Hundreds of columns have been written in the daily papers and sporting magazines regarding "Tee Kay's" ability to pick a player and develop a baseball team.

"Tee Kay" Keller's love of wholesome sport, however, was not confined to baseball alone. When a mere youth he became a crack rifle shot and after coming to Plainfield was instrumental in the organization of the Middlesex Gun Club, which had trap shooting grounds just west of Rock avenue, near Dunellen. He was especially clever at live bird shooting, and eventually entered the professional ranks. It was at this time that he became associated with the Peters Cartridge Company, and under its auspices took part in professional trap shooting tourneys throughout the country. For many years he teamed up with Neaf Angar, of Clinton avenue, who is also with the Peters Company, and the two were regarded as one of the best pairs handling a rifle. Charles Smith, of Craig place, was another associate of Mr. Keller's at live bird shooting and frequently teamed with him at big events. When "Tee Kay" gave up active baseball when he removed from Plainfield about fifteen years ago, his going was a distinct loss to the local sporting world and it is the belief of many that his place has really never been filled.

Although Mr. Keller was kept in New York because of his management of the Peters Company's downtown branch, he always maintained an interest in Plainfield and came here at regular intervals. He was in town about three weeks ago and spent several hours chatting with friends at the Elks' Club. Beside his wife and three sons, he is survived by one brother, Joseph Keller, of New York, and two sisters, Mrs. J. H. Kissam, of New York, and Mrs. James H. Craig, of Myrtle avenue, this city. His oldest son, T. Hazlewood Keller, Jr., is a crack rifle shot and has been in the employ of another cartridge concern, following his resignation from the Peter Company, with which he was connected for a long time. Harold Keller, the youngest son, is with the Peters Company, and it is a coincidence that he and his brother, Hazlewood, were traveling in Kansas at the same time when the father's death occurred.

Mr. Keller's business originally was that of wholesale dealing in cigars, and it was from his New York shop that the well-remembered "Tee-Kay" cigar was put out. He was a member of Jerusalem Lodge, No. 26, F. and A. M.; Jerusalem Chapter, No. 24, R. A. M., and Trinity Commandery, No. 17, K. T., of this city; Mecca Temple, No. 1, Mystic Shrine; New York Lodge of Elks; the Hardware Club, the Zettler Rifle Club, all of New York. At one time he was captain of the Old Guard in New York and while living in Plainfield was once foreman of No. 2 Engine Company. For a long time after leaving the city he maintained his interest in the Exempt Firemen's Association. The funeral service will be held at his late home and will be private, the exact time not being fixed as yet pending the return East of the two sons. Burial will be in Hillside cemetery, this city.

PAUL D. BUZBY GIVEN PARTY ON HIS BIRTHDAY

Many friends gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. P. S. Van Fleet on Monroe avenue, last night, to help Paul D. Buzby celebrate his twenty-first birthday anniversary. There were guests from Brooklyn, New York, Basking Ridge, Paterson, Philadelphia, Trenton, Bridgeport, Conn.; Yonkers, N. Y.; Albany and Plainfield.

The evening was spent playing games and enjoying a musical program, there being soprano solos and duets by the guests. There were also piano and mandolin selections. Mr. Buzby received a number of beautiful gifts, including a gold watch and chain. A feature was three birthday cakes.

The house was attractively decorated for the occasion. There will be a theatre party and dance tonight in Brooklyn. The out of town guests left here this morning and will again gather tonight in Brooklyn for the planned festivities.

ACTS OF "REPRISAL."

When this war is over there will be little left to humanity in the form of international law. Every agreement of the Hague conference, every article covering decent and humane treatment of mankind and every law of civilization has been violated, not once but hundreds of times by those who are engaged in the process of elimination on the other side of the ocean. Germany alone is not the guilty nation. The dark deeds of Turk and Russian have been known for ages and now Germany, France and England seem to be engaged in a bloody effort to surpass even the horrible massacres of Armenians or the slaughter of Jews. And they politely excuse it all by the explanation that they are acting for "military necessity" or in "reprisal." Saturday and Sunday night German aeroplanes and dirigibles raided Paris, killing women and children, aged men and other innocents. The German war office announced that it was "in reprisal for air raid in Freiburg last week." In announcing the air raid on Freiburg the French war office declared that it "was in retaliation for the bombardment on Jan. 25 by a Zeppelin in the region of Epernay." That raid, the Germans said, was provoked by a previous murderous attack on German subjects. The world cares little now who was guilty of the first offense. Even the war does not excuse the killing of women and babies who are peacefully sleeping in their beds, but if the war-mad leaders who can see nothing but a possible victory order such slaughter, then they should not attempt to excuse it by explaining that it was done "in reprisal." The editors of Paris and of London, ordinarily men of deep religious convictions, are demanding that Germany be made to suffer for her raids on these two cities—that the dropping of bombs on homes where only women and children lie be carried on until the Kaiser is brought to a realization of the horror of air raids. This may be a "military necessity" and it may be war, but the crime is made the more beastly by the weak attempt to excuse it.

A FAIR SUGGESTION.

Senator Kenyon, of Iowa, has introduced a bill to levy a special tax on incomes of expatriated Americans. Among these are Baron Astor, formerly William Waldorf Astor, the Duchess of Marlborough, formerly Consuelo Vanderbilt; the Duchess of Manchester, formerly Helen Zimmerman; Princess Colonna, formerly Eva Mackay, and others Undoubtedly these American-Europeans are drawing incomes which residents of America have earned. They are drawing ground rents n some form, and are able to do ths because our laws confer on a few favored individuals the privilege of appropriating values created by all the people. It is quite just that incomes drawn from such a source should be taxed. But it is not right that the tax should be limited to only a few of those who legally appropriate what others produce. On this ground Senator Kenyon's bill deserves some criticism.

Had William Waldorf Astor remained in New York and retained his American citizenship he would have been no less a parasite on the American people, than he is as a British baron. The tenants on his New York property get just as much in return for the rent they pay as those on the property of his American cousin, Vincent Astor. The ground rent that goes to Vincent is to pay for living among advantages created—not by Vincent—but by the people of New York city. The ground rent that goes to Baron Astor, of Hever Castle, goes to pay for the identical same thing. There is neither reason nor equity in discriminating against one and in favor of the other. The ground rents both draw, belong morally to the pepole, as also does the rental value of lands which are not producing ground rents because held out of use.

Senator Kenyon should accept an amendment to his bill, so as to make it apply to all socially created values, privately appropriated, regardless of the residence or citizenship of the beneficiaries.

That would make his bill entirely unobjectionable.

No chapter in all fiction rivals the bare truth of the capture of the British liner Appam which steamed into Norfolk harbor yesterday flying the German flag. This feat has never before been equalled in all the records of the sea and probably will never be repeated. What manner of man would dare dream of defying the lordly British navy in a small tramp steamer would capture and sink seven big liners, some of them armed, and then put a crew of twelve aboard an enemy vessel carrying 154 passengers and 132 members of her crew for a wild dash over 4,200 miles of open sea alive with hostile gunboats and dreadnoughts? It is a severe blow to British pride. What wonderful citizens these Germans would make if they could but be civilized.

We can think of no manner of celebrating the birthday of Lincoln that would please that great advocate of peace more than to spend it in bringing about preparedness for the nation that he loved so well. No man knew the horrors of war better than Lincoln and no man loved peace more than he, yet he realized the need of preparedness and the need of armed strength. The suggestion of Henry A. Wise Wood for a celebration of February 12 is a timely one and should be carried out by all who revere the memory of the man who is to be honored on that day.

The New York World is attempting to prove that a rich young society man who claims to have been born in France really came from Texas. It is an awful charge and ought to be worth $1,000,000 in a libel suit if not established.

On the Spur of the Moment

by Roy K. Moulton

Do You Know This Man?

He never has a decent word to say of anyone;
He packs a hammer in his mitt; it swings from sun to sun.
He goes far out of his way to knock and never skips a chance
To wither some well-meaning chap with sour, scornful glance.
Whene'er a chance for boosting comes he puts it on the shelf.
He has no use for anyone except—except HIMSELF!

The Knocker.

All hail to the knocked, wherever he's found—the man with the hammer and sob; the fellow whose grouch is the bane of his life, and which queers him many a job. He's usually short on delivering the goods and hates to see other men win. He wants to be clever, but 'tain't in the cards, so that's why he raises a din when he gazes around him and sees other folks succeeding and copping the dough. It gives him a bad case of warts on his mind and makes him his own mortal foe. He knocks those who work with him—backbites and lies—for lying's a part of his game. He whines just because he can't put things across, but he's got to have someone to blame. So this hammering cuss gets his anvil and sledge, he knocks and he knocks and he knocks, quite often succeeding in gaining his point, but he knocks himself out of the box every time, in the end, 'cause he fails to make good. What Fate slips to him is her worst. He is out of his sphere, so he flounders about and his last end is worse than his first. In the grand summing up, why he always finds out that his chickens all come home to roost; that his hammering stunts have all failed like himself, and that each of his knocks was a boost for the fellow or thing that he envied or crabbed; that he'd better have been on the square and played the game straight, for the world doffs its hat to the scout who is right and totes fair. So here's to the knocker, just pity the chap. God knows he's in need of a friend; and do what you can, then, to put the guy right, and stave off his sorrowful end.

Waller and Jane Pierson, "Rosey Posey Girls," at Plainfield Theatre, Monday, Mat. and Night, February 7.

Packed houses at the Plainfield Theatre both yesterday afternoon and last night are today seconding the management's recent announcement that the new policy at the house would bring attractions to the theatre second to none. Every one of the seven big acts on the program was a cracker-jack, several of them having to respond to repeated encores and curtain calls. Big hits were made by Dunninger, the conjurist, whose amazing feats came to a climax with the "disappearing Venus;" little Phyllis Gay, the stage's youngest sketch artist, who delighted everybody with her songs, dances and drawings, and William Saxton, the celebrated Hebrew character comedian, whose company presented the "Lottery Ticket;" Marion and Moore, refined singers and dancers; Doc Rice, an exponent of minstrelsy, who kept his audiences in roars of laughter, and Eddie and Lottie Harrington, marvelous revolving ladder and ring experts, and Mlle. Tulie Tine' educated dogs. Although each of these numbers mentioned was devoid of dull moments, there need be no apprehension that the succeeding programs will not be up to the standard set by this opening effort. Assurances have been received from the booking offices that the Plainfield Theatre will be given the very best that can be had and the seven acts in each show will be worth double the money at any time.

Beside the vaudeville portion of the program, a comedy or dramatic photoplay will open each bill and there will also be a good picture at the finish. No advance in prices has been made despite the magnitude of the program. The performances will be given as heretofore at 2 in the afternoon and at 7 and 9 in the evening.

WILLIAM S. HART (BOB WHITE) AND HOUSE PETERS (GREGG LEWISTON) IN A TERRIFIC HAND TO HAND COMBAT IN "BETWEEN MEN," NEW TRIANGLE-INCE PLAY. IN THE BACKGROUND THE HALF CRAZED JOHN WORTH (BERT WESNER) PREPARES TO QUELL THE FIGHT BY A PISTOL SHOT.

At Proctor's Friday and Saturday.

George Scarborough's greatest Broadway success, "At Bay," with Florence Reed in the leading role, is the photoplay attraction appearing at Proctor's Theatre today and tomorrow, in conjunction with the Keystone comedy feature and the high-class vaudeville entertainment. "At Bay" was adapted from the play of the same name and produced by the Pathe Film Company, under the personal supervision of the author, and with the leading woman of the original production in the leading role. Miss Reed is supported in this wonderful photoplay by an excellent cast of talented artists. Today for the last time those two popular favorites, Weber and Fields will appear in "The Worst of Friends." Starting tomorrow and continuing the rest of the week the management of Proctor's will present Chester Conklin and a noted cast in the latest Keystone comedy production, "Dizzy Heights and Daring Hearts." This comedy abounds in thrilling situations. On Friday and Saturday, two days only, William S. Hart, who scored such a hit in "The Disciple" at Proctor's a few weeks ago, will be seen in even a greater role in "Between Men," a stirring dramatic story of intrigue and physical combat in which Mr. Hart is supported by a superior cast, including House Peters and Enid Markey. On Friday only the fifth episode of "The Red Circle" will be shown, and on Saturday the toy matinee for the children will take place.

BROTHER GROUND HOG DOES HIS ANNUAL STUNT

The ground hog is due to stir himself today and poke his nose out from his burrow. He emerges surveying the landscape with a knowing eye. If he sees his own shadow, he discreetly retires, for this sage prognosticator knows there are yet six weeks of winter to come. But if the day be cloudy and there is no shadow, he wiggles his nose with a growing inward satisfaction and joins the hardier animals and birds in the hunt for grub.

Today, therefore, is fraught with grave meaning to those whose welfare depends on wind and wave, sunshine and shadow, or change of time and tide. If there is a ground hog living in your vicinity, watch him carefully. For on February 2, with a regularity equalled only by the movement of the sun and the stars, out he pops for his look around.

Of course it's a fable that has been handed down from generation to generation, but it is one that appeals to the imagination, and it lingers. There are people in some parts of the country who really pin their faith upon it. But the naturalist has no faith in the fable, for he has found that Brother Ground Hog is one of the sleepiest of the hibernators, and is usually one of the last to appear.

In Scotland, the fable omitted to famous ground hog, and ran thus:

"If Candlemas Day be dry and fair,
The half o' the winter's to come and mair;
If Candlemas Day be wet and foul,
The half of the winter's gone at Yule."

Daddy's Bedtime Story—

How Baby Becky Put Out a Fire With Her Milk.

Put Out the Fire With Her Bottle of Milk.

"THIS is true story night," said daddy as the children wiggled with glee when he sat down. "On the east side of New York, where thousands and hundreds of thousands of little children have to live in small rooms and have no pleasant dooryards to play in, dwell a widowed mother and her five children. To buy them food and clothes she works all day at her bread stall, which stands where two streets meet. Here most all night and all day people stream by like a human river, so that this mother often makes quite a lot of money with her queer braided loaves. She is so busy that she has to leave her baby, Eva, her seven-year-old sick boy, Jacob, and her four-year-old Becky home to take care of themselves. One day eleven-year-old Sarah came home from school, and what do you think she found?"

"Oh, tell us, daddy!" cried Jack and Evelyn without guessing.

"She found that the baby clothes her mother had left drying behind the kitchen stove had caught fire. Ugly red flames were charging up the wall paper, and the street and safety were down three dark flights of stairs."

"What did she do, daddy?" cried Evelyn.

"She did a brave deed. She seized her sick brother Jacob and lugged him down to the street; then she went back and carried the baby safely down; then she turned in the fire alarm without sending to the bread stall for her mother. But while she was doing all this guess what four-year-old Becky had been up to."

"Did she cry?" Evelyn guessed.

"Not Becky!" said daddy. "She had been putting the fire out with her bottle of milk! When Sarah went back to get Becky the fire was only steaming. Meanwhile a neighbor had fetched the mother. 'Lots good cents wasted!' cried the mother, gaping at the white stream on the floor and giving poor Becky a good spanking. Of course Sarah got all the praise, but she put pour milk on the fire, did she?"

"No-o!" shouted Jack and Evelyn.

"And this is what Becky keeps saying while Baby Eva keeps bawling for her spilled milk: 'Becky put out the fire! Came lots of mans and womans with buckets of water, which they wanted should put the fire out. Came engines and made toots, and they wanted they should put the fire out. But Becky she put the fire out with milk.' This is what she still tells the neighbors," daddy finished.

"I just love Becky!" cried Evelyn, with a good night kiss.

"But it was Sarah who was brave," said Jack.

"Becky was just as brave, besides being a baby," daddy added.

Household Hints

WINTER MORNING GLORIES

If you wish to make your dining room more cheerful on winter days, put five or six morning glory seeds in a small flower pot (one a nice size for the table) and when they come up make a small rack for them. With a little care in watering and twining them around the rack you soon have a pretty little plant. There will be from one to five blossoms on it every morning, which will look wonderfully bright and cheerful on the breakfast table on cold winter mornings. When the sun is not too bright they sometimes stay out all day. They seem to stand the cold well, as they are not easily frozen.

CONVENIENT KINDLING

A very good substitute for wood with which to start the morning fire is paper prepared as follows: In a tub of water lay in forty or fifty folded newspapers. After they become saturated wring them as dry as possible without tearing. When dry they make very clean and convenient kindling.

BREADS

Salt Rising Bread—At noon the day before baking day, scald a half cup of corn meal with sweet milk; set it in warm place well covered. Next morning it should be puffed up in the center and light. Take one cup hot sweet milk and cool with water till it is blood heat; into this put a teaspoon sugar, a teaspoon salt, half teaspoon soda; add the light corn meal, and flour to make a smooth sponge. Set to rise in warm water. The sponge will soon be running over. Next take two pints warm water into which pour the light sponge and add flour to make smooth sponge. Dredge flour over this an inch thick and set over warm water to lighten. In half an hour it will break the flour into cracks and be light around the edges. Add a tablespoon of butter and stir in flour and knead into loaves. This makes three good-sized loaves.

Graham Bread—Four teacups graham flour, one level teaspoon baking powder, one level teaspoon salt, stir; add one cup New Orleans molasses with one level teaspoon soda in it; stir into the flour two cups sour milk into which stir another level teaspoon soda. Stir well and bake one hour slowly.

Nut Bread—One egg well beaten, one-half cup sugar, two cups sweet milk, one-fourth cup butter and lard mixed, four cups flour, four teaspoons baking powder, one teaspoon salt, one cup English walnuts broken (not too fine); stir well, raise twenty minutes and bake slowly three-fourths hour.

Corn Bread—One egg, one-half cup sugar, 1½ cups sweet milk, two cups flour, one cup corn meal, one-half teaspoon salt, one-half cup shortening, two teaspoons baking powder.

HONEY IN COOKING

Honey Fruit Cake—Four cups flour, one-half cup butter, three-fourths cup honey, one-third cup apple jelly, two eggs, one teaspoon soda, one teaspoon powdered cinnamon, one teaspoon nutmeg, one-half cup raisins, one-half cup currants, one-half cup chopped candied orange peel, one-fourth cup warm water, and one-fourth teaspoon salt. Warm butter, honey and apple jelly, remove from fire, add eggs beaten, then soda dissolved in warm water, add spices, flour and fruit. Turn into buttered tin and bake till done.

Honey Jumble—Two quarts flour, three tablespoons melted lard, one pint honey, one-fourth pint molasses, one and one-half tablespoons soda, one tablespoon salt, one-fourth pint water, vanilla extract to taste.

Honey Shortcake — Three cups flour, two teaspoons baking powder, one teaspoon of salt, one-half cup shortening, one and one-half cups sweet milk. Roll quickly, and bake in a hot oven. When done, split the cake and spread the lower half thinly with butter and the upper half with one-half pound of the best flavored honey. Let it stand a few minutes, and the honey will melt gradually and the flavor will penetrate all through the cake. Serve with milk or whipped cream.

Honey Raisin Roll—Cream together one cup sugar, one-half cup honey, three-fourths cup lard or butter, six tablespoons milk, one-half cup raisins, two cups rolled oats, two eggs. Sift together two or more cups flour, one-half teaspoon salt, two teaspoons cream of tartar, one teaspoon each of soda and cinnamon. Mix together and roll quite thick.

Marrying for Money

BY MRS. EVA LEONARD

Even Nell Morton Finds It Hard to Comfort Marian Townsend.

"Dear Mrs. Morton, may I come over here and sit with you a little while this afternoon? I am so lonely and I am the poorest company on earth. At least for myself." Marian Townsend laughed. "I thought I had better add that or you would not consent to entertain me."

"I am so glad to have you come." Nell smiled up in the pretty young face while she drew up a rocker for the girl.

"I suppose it will not be long before you will be leaving for college," began Nell. "It will be a great experience."

"Oh, I can hardly wait for the time to come," breathed the girl.

"For a time you will be so engrossed with your new surroundings that you will not have time to get lonesome. The first months will be crowded full of new friends. I am sure you will like it."

"I have got to like it. I am going into it with a determination to get all out of it that I possibly can. You see the only happiness there is in store for me must be found away from here. I realize that." The girl's mouth closed in a hard line.

"Oh, it is never so bad as that," said Nell soothingly. "Of course you feel deeply having one so young in your dear mother's place, but Time is such a good old homeopathic doctor; he cures everything, or at least we adjust ourselves to the inevitable. I am glad you are going away. It will help you get a new angle on the situation."

"My dear Mrs. Morton, if you only knew. Every new angle reveals some still more dreadful aspect of the case. I go away utterly homeless. My home has dropped off the earth." There was a suspicious switching about the mouth, but she looked hard at her embroidery and was silent.

"That is not fair, Marian, with your devoted father and Dudley," reproved Nell.

"Perhaps not. It's hard for me to take a normal view of things with the fumes of the volcano inside of mt rising in my face all the time. But really they are all changed; Daddy is not himself. He is such a loyal old soul and is so afraid he will not be fair to all sides that he lives in a state of perpetual constraint, except when he is in Dudley's blessed den." A smile lit up the girl's troubled face.

"What is the den?" asked Nell.

"Dudley has fitted up a room in the garret over the store with the dear old home furniture the 'new incumbent' cast aside. Every night after the store closes Daddy goes up there and smokes a pipe with Dudley and I go down and have a visit with them. There Daddy is himself. We stay there till bedtime. I feel sure I shall not do anything to annoy Daddy when I am in bed." The girl made a wry face. "Everywhere else in the house I can hear my chains of constraint clanking behind me." Marian's laugh had no mirth in it.

Nell tried, but thing of nothing comforting to say.

"At first I did not care how much trouble I made poor Daddy, but now I know he has all he can manage. I must not add to it. If she made him happy I could learn to tolerate her for his sake, but now——" The girl broke off her sentence and résumed in a lower voice: "Poor Daddy, he must walk as he can and carry his burden."

"You must help him all you can," said Nell softly.

"Yes, indeed. There he comes now. I will run and walk home with him." The girl gathered up her work. "There is one comfort, as Mrs. T. cares nothing for him, she is not jealous over any attention we show him.

"Good-bye." Marian sped down the walk and tucked her hand confidingly in her father's arm as he lifted his hat to Nell.

EAST END WANTS STREET IMPROVEMENTS

Civic Association Complains of Wretched Condition of Many Thoroughfares.

The meeting of the East End End Civic Association last evening was very enthusiastic, although not largely atended. The muddy and almost impassable crossings in many parts of this section of the city accounted for the attendance, and also for the enthusiastic interest of those who did come. The report of the street committee, dealing with the condition and needs of the streets, was heartily endorsed. The report was, in part, as follows:

"About a year ago the Common Council was petitioned to order sidewalks laid on Leland avenue and on cross streets between Leland and Netherwood avenues. Most of this work has been done. We feel that the property owners on East Second street, who cooperated so promptly, by laying sidewalks of their own free will, should receive a vote of thanks from the association. The following new work should be done:

"East Second street should be paved from a point between Netherwood and Leland avenues to Terrill road; Midway avenue should be graded, between Netherwood and Leland avenues, for its full width.

"A crosswalk should be laid across North avenue, at Watson avenue, spanning both gutters. There should be a similar one at Jackson avenue. Crosswalks should be laid at the junction of Watson avenue and George street; also at East Second street and Emerson avenue, and East Second street and Summer avenue. Other points where crosswalks should be laid or lengthened are as follows: Jackson avenue at East Front street; Netherwood avenue at East Front street; Leland avenue at East Front street; East Second street and Leland avenue.

"Suitable places should be provided for passengers to board and alight from trolley cars. At present it is sometimes necessary to go into mud ankle deep to get on or off cars.

"More prompt attention should be given to the removal of snow from sidewalks, where the property owners do not clean them.

"Arrangements should be made for the systematic sprinkling of streets during the coming summer.

"As to the grading of Midway avenue, this street, formerly the railroad right of way, has an embankment between Netherwood and Leland avenues, containing approximately 3,000 cubic yards. To the west of Netherwood avenue it is graded, as also between Leland and Emerson avenue. A new church building is being constructed at Emerson avenue. This embankment is between these new buildings and the main part of the city, and should be removed without delay. A large part of the material can be wasted on adjoining lands."

Other matters of interest were considered and fully discussed, including the disposal of ashes and garbage, and the placing of warning signs for vehicles at the approaches to the school.

Our readers can now secure either or both of these two nationally famous publications for but little more than they now pay for their paper alone.

Woman's Home Companion is the great home magazine of this country. Its wonderful serial novels, its splendid short stories, its beautiful picture section in the magnificent new gravure process—all in addition to the splendidly helpful home departments, cooking, serving, entertaining, the garden, the "Better Babies Bureau," the "Better Films Bureau" and the newest Fashions—make it the favorite magazine in a million homes.

The American Magazine is famous for its clean, clever fiction, its timely news articles its practical departments such as "The Family's Money," "Health," etc. Ray Stannard Baker, Ida M. Tarbell, Wm. Allen White, and scores of other nationally famous authors make it the most interesting, the most informing [illegible] of all the great monthly magazines.

One million and a half people read these two magazines every month. The regular price is 15 cents a copy—30 cents for the two—but you can now get either or both of them for but a few cents more than you now pay for this paper alone.

Sign the coupon, or phone, and our representative will be glad to explain the details of this wonderful opportunity. Better do it at once so that you will be sure to get the big new number that will be out in a few days.

PLAINFIELD HIGH NOT ON EAST ORANGE GRID CARD

Plainfield High School is not on East Orange High School's 1916 football schedule, just announced. The severe beatings handed the local schoolboys by E. O. H. S. in 1915 and 1914 proved conclusively that the East Orange teams are invariably too strong for the P. H. S. elevens.

The teams on the list are Newark Central, Asbury Park, Alumni, Stevens School, Rahway, Montclair, Commerce and Barringer.

AFTER M. G. A. HANDICAPS.

James A. Tyng, of Baltusrol, chairman of the Metropolitan Golf Association handicap committee, has at last succeeded in getting consents to serve on the committee. The last name to be added was G. C. Greenway, Jr., of Garden City. Others on the committee are A. H. Pogson, of Fox Hills; Charles W. O'Connor, of Essex county, and A. F. Robinson, of Ardsley. The first notice will be sent to the club secretaries some time this week, with requests to report back to the handicap committee by February 14.

Tuesday night—Somerville at Elizabeth.

Even the vocal support of more than two dozen lusty lunged rooters could not give the Newark Eagles the one game they needed to clinch the F. O. E. League championship last night, and the present title-holders finished their season by losing three close games at Somerville.

As matters stand, however, only miraculous work by Elizabeth can nose Newark out of the championship. The Betsytown Birds have six more games to roll, all of them with Somerville, and need every one in order to tie the Newarks.

The games last night were heartbreakers. In the first game, the teams were always within a few pins of each other, Somerville being 7 pins ahead at the end. In the second game, the teams were from 3 to 7 pins apart until the last couple frames, when Somerville soared to 931. The visitors made a great bid for victory in the last game, and in the eighth inning were 42 pins to the good, but the home aerie, by another great finish, won the game, this time by 7 pins.

Gruenling pounded out 230 and 202 for Newark, averaging 207. Stauder hit 212, Roller 217, Stabile 20[illegible] and R. Schenk 208.

BREATHING IN THE WATER.

Doing It Properly Lies the Secret of Success In Swimming.

The way to avoid drowning, according to a swimming teacher, is to learn how to swim. Good swimmers don't drown. They might die of chill or starve to death, but as for drowning—pooh!

"How about cramps?" he was asked. "Even good swimmers have cramps."

"Cramps needn't cause a moment's worry. I've seen thousands of good swimmers seized with cramps, and never a one was drowned. All they did was to turn over on their backs and either wait for help or paddle with their free limbs. I've never heard of a swimmer having cramps in both legs and arms. Even then his case would not be hopeless.

"There never was a case of drowning that was caused by cramps. That may seem surprising after the countless water tragedies that have been blamed on cramps. Death in the water is caused by chill or strangling.

"People strangle to death because they are ignorant of the proper method of breathing. When they sink beneath the water they hold their air passages shut. When they come to the top they have to breathe out the air they've used while under water. As breathing out takes fifty times as long as breathing in, they have no time to get a fresh supply of air before they go under again. This keeps up until they breathe in under the water and thus strangle to death.

"The process should be reversed. Breathe in for the second you are above water; then breathe out through the nostrils while under the water, and you can keep it up until you starve to death.

"Nine-tenths of swimming is breathing, and movement is only one-tenth," says the expert.—Kansas City Star

MANY CASES OF RHEUMATISM NOW

Says We Must Keep Feet Dry, Avoid Exposure and Eat Less Meat.

Stay off the damp ground, avoid exposure, keep feet dry, eat less meat, drink lots of water, and above all take a spoonful of salts occasionally to keep down uric acid.

Rheumatism is caused by poisonous toxin, called uric acid, which is generated in the bowels and absorbed into the blood. It is the function of the kidneys to filter this acid from the blood and cast it out in the urine. The pores of the skin are also a means of freeing the blood of this impurity. In damp and chilly, cold weather the skin pores are closed, thus forcing the kidneys to do double work; they become weak and sluggish and fail to eliminate this uric acid, which keeps accumulating and circulating through the system, eventually settling in the joints and muscles, causing stiffness, soreness and pain called rheumatism.

At the first twings of rheumatism get from any pharmacy about four ounces of Jad Salts; put a tablespoonful in a glass of water and drink before breakfast each morning for a week. This is said to eliminate uric acid by stimulating the kidneys to normal action, thus ridding the blood of these impurities.

Jad Salts is inexpensive, harmless, and is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and is used with excellent results by thousands of folks who are subject to rheumatism. Here you have a pleasant, effervescent lithia-water drink, which overcomes uric acid and is beneficial to your kidneys as well.

LOCAL PEOPLE GO TO TRENTON

Local Optionists of State Petition for Passage of Their Bill.

HEAR BILLY SUNDAY

Not Pleased With Treatment Accorded Them By Many Members of Legislature—Vote In Senate Monday Night.

Almost a hundred Plainfielders had a part in the big local option demonstration that took part in Trenton yesterday, when thousands of voters from all parts of the State took charge of the Capitol in an impressive petitioning to their representatives in the Legislature for passage of bills that are now pending in both houses.

Special trains brought the advocates of direct home rule on the liquor question into Trenton at all hours from early morning until shortly before noon and when the mass meeting was called to order in the Sunday Tabernacle at 11 a. m. by the Rev. Henry Collin-Minton, of Trenton, there were more than 5,000 in the hall. The local optionists who attended the rally were not in a very good humor towards members of the legislature who failed to stay over in Trenton for the rally. A hurried adjournment Tueeday afternoon sent practically all senators and assemblymen scurrying to their homes in various parts of the State and it was openly charged that they was due to influence of "Boss" Dalrymple and the whisky interests.

A resolution calling for the passage of the local option bill was passed by the mass meeting, and enrollment cards for membership in the New Jersey Anti-Saloon League, which fathered the rally, were passed among those present. Those who addressed the meeting were Senator Charles O'Conner Hennessey, Senator Harold B. Wells, Superintendent Joseph K. Shields, of the Anti-Saloon League; Republican House Floor Leader John B. Kates, of Camden; Assemblyman William N. Runyon, of

PURE OIL COMPANY TO ERECT BIG TANK

Purchases Gettings' Property in Fanwood Where Supply Station Will Be Located.

Confirming the report published in the Plainfield Press recently, the Pure Oil Company, of Newark, has purchased the Gettings property, on the dividing line of Fanwood township, near Westfield, where it will erect a large storage tank, the capacity of which will be large enough to supply oil to this entire section, including Plainfield, Somerville, Elizabeth and Perth Amboy and adjoining towns. The plans call for the erection of a house for the occupancy of the superintendent.

The tank will be of steel and similar to the one erected by the Elizabeth Town Gas Company, on Scotch Plains avenue. With the erection of this new oil tank the company will enter into competition with the Standard Oil Company for the trade in this part of the State. There is litle possibility now of any number of new dwellings being located in that part of Fanwood township, as previously reported.

HE CUSSED OFFICER WHO AROUSED HIM

Stranger Who Wanted to Go to Trenton is Sent on His Way.

When Charles Simpson, of Brockton, Mass., lay down for a little nap in the depot yesterday he asked not to be distubed and naturally he was a little peeved over being rudely awakened a few minutes later. The fact that he was engaged in sleeping off the effects of too much diquor did not sweeten his disposition toward the man who aroused him, and it little mattered to him that the caller was arrayed in the blue uniform and brass buttons of the law. Charley began cursing, and Patrolman Martin Welsh found it necessary to put him where his language would not be heard by decent people.

When arraigned in police court this morning on a charge of being drunk and disorderly and using profane language the man admitted his guilt, but explained that he was awakened so roughly that he did not realize the identity of the man who brought him back to earth. Mayor Calkins, sitting as judge, found that Charley was possessed of a few dollars, also a desire to be in Trenton, N. J., so he was honored with an official escort to the depot and he departed shortly after court. Charley was the only offender against the law and society to be tried this morning.

NEW P. S. COMMISSIONERS.

Mr. Whitney is elected for a term of five years and Mr. Hervey for one year. The name of Frank Irvine to be commissioner for the Second District also was sent to the Senate. The Senate ad adjourned before the nominations were received, but will consider them tomorrow.

SOCIAL AND ENTERTAINMENT.

The Agoga Bible Class and the Volunteer Bible Class, of the Park Avenue Baptist church, will give a social and entertainment at the church tonight, to which a general invitation is extended to all members and friends of the church. The committee in charge has arranged a most attractive program, including refreshments, and there will be some unannounced features.

CHARLES HOTALING INDICTED.

New York, Feb. 3.—The grand jury handed to Judge Mulqueen in General Session today indictment returned against Charles R. Hotaling, sergeant-at-arms of the Thompson investigating committee. LOCAL ELKS PLAN BIG ANNIVERSARY

Will Celebrate Entrance to Minstrel Field by Giving Mammoth Show.

OLD TIMERS WANTED

Efforts to Be Made to Have all 1906 Performers in the Coming Blackface Entertainment—Committee Appointed to Get Busy.

At the regular meeting of Plainfield Lodge of Elks, last night, the ball was started rolling for the tenth anniversary minstrel show of the organization. It will be held in April and will be made bigger and better than any heretofore as it was just ten years ago when Plainfield Lodge gave its first blackface entertainment in the Plainfield Theatre. The lodge's artists have been before the boards annually ever since and have always set a standard for shows of this kind.

The committee appointed by Exalted Ruler Alfred A. Prudhon last night to arrange the preliminaries and start rehearsals is as follows: William C. Mulvey, John H. Cose, Joseph C. Martin, Chauncey F. Stout and E. J. Harding. These men will meet this week to elect a chairman, after which the principals and chorus will be selected. It is probable that Harry Wetton, of Roselle, who has directed several previous shows, will again be the coach.

The Elks' first minstrel performance was given in the Plainfield Theatre on February 15, 1906. It was decided last night that as many of the performers in that show as could be obtained would be pressed into service for the big tenth annual affair. In the 1906 show, John A. O'Keefe, now of Boston, was the interlocutor and the end men were W. J. Counihan, Charles J. Ward, Thomas M. Muir, William N. Runyon, George O. Stevens and the late Herbert Brooks. The soloists were Joseph A. O'Keefe, Harry Roberts, Elmer D. Cutting, James Dodd, Joseph C. Martin and George Schoonmaker.

The olio following the first part was all given by the members, no professional talent being engaged. In the 1916 show, this idea will again be carried out and a number of new features never attempted before will be on the program.

At last night's meeting, the Exalted Ruler also appointed a committee to make arrangements for the reunion at Newark next September, similar to the one held at Atlantic City last year. This committee is composed of John B. Cose, William Mulvey, Chauncey F. Stout, Chalmers L. Crist, L. A. Bellis and George W. Pope.

The women friends of the Elks are giving a euchre and "500" party at the clubhouse this afternoon and this will be followed this evening by a dance.

PREPARING FOR DEBAE.

The members of the Omega Literary Society will "tryout" Monday for positions on the debating team that will line up against the Alpha debating team. The Alpha tryout will be held Tuesday. ADDRESS ON "LINCOLN."

Rev. Frederic L. Greene, pastor of Hope chapel, will deliver an address on the life of Lincoln at the evening service in the chapel next Sunday night. He has extended a special invitation to the West End Reminiscent Club to attend. The invitation has been accepted and the club will attend in a body.

PLANS FOR JUNIOR PLAY.

Plans for the annual junior play have been entirely changed, and it has now been decided to present "The Sleeping Car." Professor Harold Biddle will not be able to take charge of the cast this year owing to other school activities he has in charge, and Miss A. K. Miller, a teacher of Latin, will be the coach. The first trial for characters was held yesterday afternoon.

GERMANS DID NOT CAUSE EXPLOSION

Rubber Company Accident Due to Boiler Trouble—Victims Recovering.

Following a personal investigation conducted during the past twenty-four hours by President John Tenney, of this city, and other members of the Howe Rubber Company, whose factory at New Brunswick was blown up yesterday morning, with the resultant death of two men and the injury of four others, it was stated today that the accident was the result of an exploding boiler and not the work of German sympathizers, as had been stated in news dispatches. The story of a plot being back of the affair contained the announcement that the concern was shipping tires in large quantities to the Allies, engendering the hatred of Teutonic sympathizers, but this is also erroneous. In an interview with a Daily Press reporter this afternoon, Howard A. Colby, brother-in-law of Mr. Tenney, and one of the principal stockholders in the company, who had been at the scene of the disaster all yesterday and until last night, declared that no rubber goods of any kind were being shipped to the belligerent nations, and that there was no doubt but that the accident had resulted from an exploding boiler.

"The death of two workmen and the injury of others is deplorable," Mr. Colby continued. "but aside from this fact, the company will suffer no loss. We have just completed a fine new factory along the line of the Pennsylvania Railroad, at New Brunswick, and were gradually moving into it. It was our intention to sell the old place and dispose of it in any way that might suggest itself later. The buildings destroyed were fully covered by insurance, and only three days before the accident happened experts from the insuring company made a complete inventory of the factory and all its contents. The financial loss might aggregate $50,000, but this is not definite. Mr. Tenney and myself were at the scene for hours yesterday, and established the fact to our full satisfaction that the boiler, although it was of the best make and full tested, had exploded. It was very fortunate that the demolished iron and brick bed was projected backward. If the force of the explosion had sent the debris forward it would undoubtedly have killed a score or more of our workment, sixty of them being in a room that way."

It was stated at St. Peter's Hospital today that the four men badly injured who were removed to that institution were doing well. The most severely hurt was Edward Steinmacher, twenty-two years old, of Milltown, who sustained a broken leg, three broken ribs, and a severe scalp wound. He had so far recovered this morning as to be able to eat a hearty breakfast. The police and firemen of New Brunswick went through the wreckage in a careful and precise manner yesterday to make certain that no men were buried beneath, so that the first list of dead and injured was correct. The new plan of the Howe Company will cost about $150,000, and will enable the concern to more than double the present output. Mr. Tenney and Mr. Colby are the only Plainfielders interested in the company, while one of the others is Harold McCormick, of Chicago, son-in-law of John D. Rockefeller.

BOROUGH POLICE HAVE NO CLUE TO BURGLARS

There are no new developments in the burglaries which occurred at the homes of Dr. James R. Joy and Leslie Hallock, in North Plainfield, early yesterday morning. The police are working diligently on the cases in search of some clue, but thus far have failed to get any tangible evidence.

Some of those who are interested in the burglaries have thought it rather strange that there should be an unlocked window in both houses, making it so easy for anyone to effect an entrance. The burglars evidently knew just where to find the silverware, which was taken away. Both Dr. Joy and Mr. Hallock carried burglar insurance.

Councilman and Mrs. A. D. Edgar, of East Front street, will leave Saturday for Palm Beach, Fla., for the benefit of Mrs. Edgar's health.

SHEELEN NAMED AFTER HOT FIGHT

Strong Opposition to His Being Reappointed Recorder of Fanwood.

ALL CAME FROM HIM

Everyone Else in Borough Demanded That He Serve for Thirteenth Term, and He is Finally Persuaded to Accept.

Over strong opposition Charles Sheelen was appointed recorder of Fanwood borough at the meeting of the Council held last night. There was but one man in the borough who objected to the appointment and he fought it with all his might, but those who wanted him to hold office for another year finally won and Mr. Sheelen was named. The man who opposed was Mr. Sheelen himself.

He has held this office for the past thirteen years and has made the best recorder the borough has ever had. He took the office when it was created in 1902 and naming him to succeed himself has become a habit with Mayors there. This has not been done with Mr. Sheelen's consent for many years. He has repeatedly tried to retire but so convinced are the officials and residents that another man cannot be secured who will serve so well that they have refused to listen to his refusals and have named him year after year, always perusading him to serve until another man can be found for the place.

He is also collector of the borough and as collector he has even seen longer service. Following the first holder in office nearly seventeen years ago, he cleared up long standing back accounts and ever since has had the annual and rather unique record of having one hundred per cent.

The ordinance committee reported at the meeting that it had complete compiling all of the borough ordinances and it was voted to award A. D. Beeken, of Fanwood, the contract for printing 350 pamphlets of them, which will be distributed among the residents. The Mayor made a slight re-arrangement in his committees by changing A. I. Nichols to the street committee from the poor and police committee and Offley Brown vice versa.

A communication was read from residents of Midway place petitioning for repairs to that street, but as it is a private thoroughfare the borough has no jurisdiction. The auditing of the regular monthly bills was done and cash on hand of a little over a thousand dollars was reported.

MISS MARGUERITE WALSH DIES AFTER LONG ILLNESS

Following an illness of several months, with a lingering complaint, Miss Marguerite L. Walsh, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas L. Walsh, died last night at her parent's home at 108 Central avenue. She was twenty years old, and because of the fact that she had always lived in Plainfield, she enjoyed a wide acquaintance. Miss Walsh was a talented pianist, and frequently played at dances and social affairs, also assisting her mother in conducting a dancing class. For several years the young woman had been employed in the office of the Baker Printing Company, on West Fifth street.

Beside her parents, Miss Walsh is survived by one sister, Miss Marie A. Walsh and one brother, William H. Walsh. She was a communicant of St. Mary's church, and was interested in its societies, as well as in the Lady Nest of Owls, of which she was a member. The funeral will be held in St. Ann's church, Hampton, Hunterdon county, Monday morning, at 10 o'clock. Burial will be in the cemetery at Hampton.

ASSEMBLYMAN RUNYON CHOSEN SUPERINTENDENT

Assemblyman William N. Runyon, who for a number of years has been very active in the work of the Park Avenue Baptist church and Sunday school, has been elected superintendent of the Sunday school to succeed Willard M. Maxim, who retires after a long service in that position. Mr. Runyon has for some time taught a Bible class for young men at the church.

ENDEAVOR SOCIETY SOCIAL.

Under the auspices of the Christian Endeavor Society of Trinity Reformed church a social will be held in the church on Monday evening, February 7, to which all local Endeavor societies are invited. An entertainment will follow the social hour and refreshments will be served in the Sunday school rooms.

SUNS ECLIPSE MAY HAVE CAUSED SHOCK

Small Earthquake Felt This Morning in Parts of New York.

Distinct earthquake shocks were felt in some parts of New York State this morning, and it is believed by many that they had some connection with the partial eclipse of the sun. No damage was done by the earthquake shocks, although it was feared that some of the big stores of explosives in munition plants might be caused to go off.

The eclipse was plainly seen in Plainfield. One-half of the surface of the sun was obscured for a few seconds near 10:30. The sun was clear again by noon.

The pupils of the North Plainfield High School were given a recess of fifteen minutes at 10:23 this morning, which they viewed the partial eclipse of the sun through smoked glasses in Supervising Principal Aungst's room. The maximum of the eclipse during the time which the pupils were viewing it was 50 per cent.

"WE NEED LARGEST NAVY IN WORLD"

Wilson Tells Germans United States Fleet Should Be Unconquerable.

St. Louis, Feb. 3.—President Wilson today told 8,000 people, many of whom were Germans, that he intended to keep his administration neutral. He would try to look at all things, he said, from the point of view of the other man. The President went on record today as being in favor of a navy which would be unconquerable. The largest navy in the world, he said, was needed to protect America's coast lines.

MRS. ZACHARIAH D. WILSON DIES IN HER 57TH YEAR

Mrs. Isabelle N. Wilson, wife of Zachariah D. Wilson, of 18 Elm place, died this morning, after an illness of about five weeks. She was taken sick about Christmas time with pneumonia and complications followed. Mrs. Wilson was born in Wilmington, Del., fifty-seven years ago. Beside her husband, who is the sexton of the First Presbyterian church, she is survived by one son and two daughters. These are Edward Wilson, of this city; Mrs. George LeMatty, of Somerset street, and Mrs. Joseph Liable, of Hightstown. Two grandchildren, Edward and Alice LeMatty; one brother, Pierre H. Moore, of this city; three sisters, Mrs. A. J. Nolan, of New York, and Mrs. G. L. Ackerman and Mrs. Carrie A. Brower, of Newark, also survive her. Arrangements for the funeral have not yet been completed.

DICKENS FELLOWSHIP MEETS.

St. Louis, Feb. 3.—The second annual convention of the Dickens Fellowship Movement of America, which convened here today, has brought together the leading lovers of Charles Dickens, who aim to exemplify the teachings of Dickens and to cultivate and diffuse the spirit which pervades his writings. The American organization is a branch of the Dickens Fellowship Movevment formed in London in 1902. It is estimated there are twenty-five millions of Dickens' books in circulation. The life presidents of the organization are the two surviving Dickens children, Henry F. Dickens, K. C. and Mrs. Kate Perugini.

CASE IS QUITE COMPLEX

Note on Lusitania Case Said to Be Satisfactory—England to Begin Conscription February 10—Three Ships Sunk.

Washington, Feb. 3.—Several new elements were injected into the Appam case today by State Department officials. Complex questions have arisen which will require some time for a settlement. One is the fact that the German commander of the ship, Lieutenant Berge, has refused to release all the passengers and prisoners aboard in accordance with the order of the American government.

Lusitania Note Coming.

The German Ambassador today heard from the Berlin Foreign Office and a forecast of the coming German note was received. It is understood that it is a compliance to the American demands in every particular and that a settlement of the whole controversy is now in sight. The German Embassy does not expect that the note itself will arrive before tomorrow or possibly Saturday.

Still a Masked Marvel.

Newport News, Va., Feb. 3.—With the British liner Appam docked at Newport News today and unloading passengers mystery deepened regarding Germany's new masked marvel, the sea raider which captured this British ship and sank seven others.

Captains of four British vessels transferred to the Appam strenuously insisted today that the raider is the converted fruit liner Ponga and not the Moewe. Lieutenant Berge, commanding the German prize crew which brought the Appam here after his weird dash across the Atlantic, Prince von Hatzfeldt, German Embassy counsellor, and the other Germans positively insisted the raider is the Moewe.

British S. S. Belle Sunk.

London, Feb. 3.—The British steamer Belle of France, 3,876 tons, has been sunk in the Mediterranean by a submarine. Nineteen members of the crew are missing and are believed to have perished. Twenty-two sailors were rescued.

S. S. Chasehill Goes Down.

A despatch from Gibraltar announces that the British steamer Chasehill foundered in the Atlantic, while bound from New York to Havre. The crew was rescued. The Chasehill displaced 4,583 tons and was built in 1891.

Conscript After February 10.

A privy council was held today at Buckingham Palace at which King George signed a proclamation fixing February 10 as the date on which the military service bill goes into effect. This is the conscription measure.

Dutch Steamer Sunk.

The Dutch steamer Artemia, 3,803 tons, has been torpedoed and sunk, presumably by a German submarine, it was announced this afternoon.

Germans Take Offensive.

Paris, Feb. 3.—Violent attacks are imminent along the Yser front, according to reports received at the War Office today. Large bodies of German troops are being brought up. They are extending and strengthening their elaborate system of trench fortification along the entire front from Westende to Ypres. It is believed that the capture of Nieuport is the object of the offensive movement, but British troops are also preparing to resist an attack in the direction of Dunkirk.

Saloniki Suffers Heavily.

Athens, Feb. 3.—Fires set by incendiary bombs dropped upon Saloniki by a Zeppelin airship on Monday night, destroyed the bank of Saloniki, six shops, nine houses and two supply depots of the Anglo-French troops, according to advices received today. The bombs killed 11 civilians and two soldiers. Sixteen civilians and a soldier were wounded.

TO GIVE BARN DANCE.

The annual barn dance to be held at St. Mary's Hall, Stony Hill, on Friday night, February 11, promises to be in every way equal to the affair of last year. The young people of the parish are particularly anxious to make this affair one not soon to be forgotten and with this view in mind, they have secured very fine prizes to award the wearers of the best costumes in "Rube County."

All the Happenings of the Day in Plainfield's Hustling Suburb.

BROKEN LOOKING GLASS PREVENTED A ROBBERY

Last evening in Campbell's general store, the center where the men who were young some forty or fifty years ago assemble to discuss the topics of the hour, the subject under discussion was "Candlemas Day and the Ground Hog." None of the wiseacres believed that because that animal was unable to see his shadow yesterday it insured an early spring.

Discussing some of these old superstitions, Recorder Campbell told how the mothers in his day believed that if a looking glass should be broken in any home it forbode a death in that home inside of a year.

In this connection, Mr. Campbell told how the breaking of a looking glass in the home of his mother, which was located near Rockview avenue, North Plainfield, saved his brother, William Campbell, one of Plainfield's present-day wealthy men, from being robbed of a large sum of money, which he was in the habit of carrying around in his pockets and frequently displaying. The incident happened about 2 o'clock one morning about forty years ago. Recorder Campbell, with his wife and child, was at the house of his mother. At the hour mentioned the household was awakened by a terrific crash downstairs. Mr. Campbell hastened down and found that a large looking glass had dropped from its place on the wall and had been smashed. Mr. Campbedll called up to his mother apprising her of what had happened. She said, "Oh, my, that is a bad sign." Then she asked Mr. Campbell whether his brother, William, had got in yet. Mr. Campbell said that he would look in his brother's room and see. He did so and found the bed was empty. Mrs. Campbell was aware that her son carried a large sum of money with him, and that he was in the habit of displaying it. Fearing that he might have been waylaid and robbed, Mrs. Campbell asked Mr. Campbell to go out and look for his brother. To ease his mother Mr. Campbell dressed, and putting a revolver in his pocket, ventured out in the night. Now his brother in those days always wore white trousers. Mr. Campbell had not gone far along the road before he saw these white trousers appearing through the night.

There was a stretch of brush along the road, and Mr. Campbell, hitting upon the idea of scaring his brother, jumped in the brush. He waited until his brother had just passed his hiding place, and with drawn revolver, which he intended to fire in the air, he jumped out in back of his brother.

He had no more than landed on the ground when he discovered that he had jumped out between his brother and a man who was approaching with a heavy club in his hand. Wheeling and covering the fellow with his revolver, he said, "What are you up to?" William Campbell by this time had joined his brother, and approaching the man closely, they discovered that they knew him. The fellow admitted that he was after the money that William had been frequently displaying, and the brothers let him go on his promise that he would leave the neighborhood for good.

MIMICKED HIS BOSS.

When Nat Goodwin First Gave an Imitation of Stuart Robson.

Nat Goodwin had just finished his monologue at the Palace one night when William Barkus, a veteran actor and lifelong friend of the comedian, said:

"Nat, I remember the first night you went on the stage at the Howard Atheneum and played Ned the Newsboy in Stuart Robson's production of 'Law In New York.' You gave imitations then, and I never heard better ones before or since."

"Well," replied Goodwin modestly, "they told me that my stunt went remarkably well that night. If you remember, after I had responded to several encores some of them in the gallery shouted, 'Imitate Stuart Robson!' I was afraid to imitate my manager, so I shook my head. Still they shouted, 'Robson, Robson!' He was standing in the wings, and as I came off I said: 'What can I do, Mr. Robson? They are clamoring for me to give an imitation of you!' 'Do!' said he in that falsetto voice so well known to theatergoers of that period. 'Go back and give the villains —!'

"On the impulse of the moment I went through an entire scene which the audience had just witnessed between Robson and a favorite player named Henry Woodgood. As I assumed each voice, particularly Robson's, the applause was deafening, and at the finish, after repeated calls, Robson was obliged to take me on and make a speech, thanking the audience in my behalf.

"After the play Robson said to me: 'Young Goodwin, you have done two things tonight that I shall never forget—halted the performance and given a very bad imitation of me. I could have done it better myself.'"—New York Times.

CARLYLE AND HIS WIFE.

A Glimpse of the Ill Assorted Couple and Their Home Life.

It is certain that the Carlyles were an ill assorted couple. She considered from the beginning that to marry him was an act of condescension on her part. The daughter of a country doctor of Haddington had descended from the skies, like Diana to Endymion, to marry the son of a stonemason. * * * But he loved her and was happy in his love.

Not so she. Jealous of him as she was—furiously jealous—not as a lover, for there she knew she was safe. But she could not bear to think that if she were famous it was as his wife, whereas she, knowing herself to be brilliant, would fain have had him to be known as the husband of that wonderful Mrs. Carlyle. If was his success, social and literary, that she resented. It irked her to be in the second place, and she could not forgive it. * * *

There was something else of which the lady was jealous, and that was the agony of concentration which her husband's work meant for him. At moments her "saeva indignatio" against "that Carlyle," as she would contemptuously call him, passed all bounds.

One day my aunt went to call upon her and found her in one of her tantrums. "What was the matter?" she asked. "Oh, my dear, it's just that Carlyle! Would you believe it, I have had a headache for three days, and he's only just found it out. 'I'm afraid you're not quite well, my dear,' he said, and all the time he has been working, working! I just threw a teacup at his head."—Lord Redesdale's Recollections.

How She Won Sheridan.

Harriet Mellon, the old time English actress, did not lack astuteness, even at seventeen. Her admirable answer to Sheridan when he asked her to read the part of Lydia Languish in "The Rivals," with a view to proving her fitness for Drury Lane, could not have been bettered by a ripe diplomat:

"I dare not, sir, for my life. I would rather read it to all England. Suppose, sir, you did me the honor of reading it to me?"

Delightedly Sheridan acceded and, after reading nearly the whole of the play, enrolled her in the Drury Lane company.

The Latin Language.

Latin was one of the original languages of Europe, and from it sprang the Italian, French, Spanish and Portuguese languages. Many words of our own language are of Latin origin. It ceased to be spoken in Italy about 581 and was first taught in England by one Adelmus in the seventh century. The use of Latin in law deeds in England gave way to the common tongue in the year 1000.

Real Bigness.

A Yankee clinched his argument with an Englishman as to the relative size of the Thames and the Mississippi rivers by saying:

Ringing Up the Curtain.

Fashions in plays change as well as the fashions in the time of ringing up the curtain. At the time of the restoration in England the curtain rose at 4 o'clock in the afternoon, and Garrick in 1741 rang up his curtain at 4. By 1824 the hour had become 6 and twelve years later 7 o'clock.

HOW FARMERS MAY USE PARCEL POST

Bringing Producers and Consumers Together Is Difficult.

ADVERTISING BEST METHOD

Personal Acquaintance Is Beneficial, and Other Patrons May Be Secured. Department of Agriculture Explains System in Detail, and Many Postmasters Are Actually Co-operating.

[Prepared by United States department of agriculture.]

One of the most important requirements in marketing farm products by parcel post is the bringing of the producer and the consumer into business contact. This may be attained (1) by personal acquaintance, (2) through the medium of a third person, (3) by advertising in an appropriately selected paper, (4) by personal canvass and (5) through the postoffice in the city or town in which a customer is sought.

Once a satisfactory parcel post business is established with or through an acquaintance other customers are likely to be secured through the first one. Advertising frequently may bring the producer into touch with a prospective purchaser. A brief but well worded advertisement will bring results.

Another method is for the producer to make a personal canvass in a residence section of the town or city selected. Good, representative samples of the produce available at the time doubtless will help to secure the first sale.

Postmasters Giving Their Aid.

The postmasters in thirty-five cities of the country, under the direction of the postoffice department, have instituted campaigns intended to foster parcel post marketing. The names and addresses of producers, together with the produce offered, are listed for distribution to the patrons of the offices, and some of these postmasters issue for distribution to producers lists of consumers who wish to buy.

Persons desiring to market by parcel post should acquaint themselves with the time at which mails are dispatched from their postoffices so that they may regulate the preparation and mailing of parcels accordingly. On rural delivery routes this suggestion cannot always be followed. In some cases certain patrons can intercept the carrier on his return trip at no great distance from their homes, while others may find it convenient to take the weekly shipment direct to the postoffice themselves when going to town on their weekly shopping trip. Where it is possible perishable shipments should be made so as to reach their destination for delivery during ordinary delivery hours. Postmasters will give information as to the postal requirements for mailing the various kinds of produce.

Parcels containing perishable articles must be marked "Perishable," eggs must be marked "Eggs," and any parcel containing glass must be marked "Fragile." Articles likely to spoil within the time reasonably required for transportation and delivery are not accepted for mailing.

May Insure Parcels.

If desired a receipt can be secured from any postmaster acknowledging the mailing of a parcel on the payment of 1 cent. For 3 cents a parcel may be insured against loss if not valued at over $5.

The United States is divided into units, each one of which is numbered. The center of each unit constitutes the center of the zones for all postoffices within that unit. The first zone consists of any given unit, together with all the adjoining units, even though they but touch at the corner. The second zone embraces all those units within a radius of 150 miles from the center of any given unit. The whole of any unit, any part of which is touched by this 150 mile boundary line, is considered entirely within that zone.

BERLIN BOYS ARE WORSE

German Professor Blames War For Increase In Juvenile Delinquency.

War has increased juvenile crime in Germany, declared Professor Franz von Liszt of Berlin university, one of the most distinguished criminologists and professors of law in Germany today, in an address before the Society For the Reformation of Youthful Criminals.

Professor Liszt recommended as a remedy a decree just issued by the military governor of Cassel forbidding boys to visit saloons or moving picture shows or to loaf about the streets during the evening smoking and drinking alcoholic beverages.

Apart from its direct influence in firing the spirit of adventure, an inquiry by the society revealed the war has an indirect influence on boys left without control through the absence of their fathers in the field and their mothers in the workshops and also through the relaxation in school discipline because of male teachers going to the war and their places being taken by women.

AWAITS DEATH BY SLEEPING ILLNESS

Brooklyn Physician Bitten by Tsetse Fly Five Years Ago.

SCIENCE HAS NO REMEDY.

Man Suffers No Pain, Rational During the Time He Is Awake and Talks of His Disease With Others—Moments of Wakefulness, However, Are Becoming Less Frequent as End Nears.

Slumbering to death in the grip of the African sleeping sickness, Dr. Albert C. Pervell of Brooklyn, explorer and big game hunter, has attracted the attention of physicians in all parts of the world who are students of tropical diseases. His case is remarkable in that five years elapsed between the time he was infected by the germ carrying tsetse fly in the Kongo jungle and his entrance upon what has proved in practically all cases to be the fatal sleep. The most unique case on record previous to this was that of an English physician, who fought off the sleep for two years.

In a last hope that somewhere a remedy may be found to rouse her son from his lethargy, his mother, Mrs. Delancy Pervell, who has been his devoted nurse, is making a widespread appeal to physicians with knowledge of the dread disease. One physician asserted a belief that the sufferer might be saved.

Although he has not been out of bed in eight weeks, Dr. Pervell does not suffer the slightest pain. He appears to be sleeping peacefully and shows not the slightest trace of disease. The rugged tan of the African sun has not left his cheeks, he has lost but little weight, and as he is in the prime of life, about forty years old, over six feet in height and of athletic build it is hard to believe, after a sight of him, that he is ill. He has the appearance of a man coming from a hard day's work and sleeping soundly.

Clear Mind In Waking Moments.

At intervals during the day he wakes up and remains awake for several minutes. Then he is given food which he digests without trouble. In his few minutes of consciousness he can talk clearly of his case, of his African travels and adventures and of matters of general interest, but often in the middle of a sentence his eyes will close and he will sink back upon the pillow sound asleep. His heart, lungs and all the organs of his body are in sound condition.

Dr. Pervell graduated from New York university in 1894 and six years later went to the Kongo with an exploring party of Belgians. He remained there until May, 1914, when he returned to Brussels. Three years before leaving the Kongo he had been bitten by tsetse flies and was taken with the first symptoms of the sleeping sickness. He used herbs prepared by the natives and with his rugged constitution apparently wore away the disease, but it reappeared when he arrived in Brussels.

Upon his arrival he found that a man to whom he had been sending his earnings had stolen the money and left for South America. He suffered a nervous breakdown after hearing of this, and in his weakened condition the disease again came on him. He was treated in Brussels and was taken from there to the Pasteur institute in Paris and later to a hospital in Liverpool where tropical diseases are specially treated. Nothing could be done for him, and last August he returned to this country.

The glands and muscles of his legs and arms were affected when he arrived here, but he did not have the sleepy feeling. That came on gradually and eight weeks ago became so pronounced that he could not leave his bed. His moments of wakefulness now are getting fewer and fewer, and it is becoming more difficult to give him nourishment.

Scientists Offer Little Hope.

The little parasite deposited in the blood by the tsetse fly, which carries it from the mouths of wild animals of the jungle, lodges in the cerebro-spinal fluid, and it is in the spinal nerves leading to the brain that it exerts its influence, according to Sir William Osler of Oxford and Professor Thomas McCrae of Jefferson Medical college of Philadelphia, who made a joint study of the disease. Until ten years ago the cause of the sleeping sickness was unknown, and it was believed a disease peculiar to the negro. But Dr. J. E. Dutton discovered it was due to germs carried by the tsetse and distributed with its bite. The fly is about three-quarters of an inch long and looks like a cross between a common housefly and a bee.

After stating that a few in the preliminary stages of the disease recover Dr. Osler in his treatise says that when the patient reaches the sleeping stage all hope is lost and death comes sooner or later.

When Baby Sleeps

Bubbles of laughter and joyous shout!
Harry and Tom have a wrestling bout,
Turning the house all inside out, tumbling around pellmell.
Baby gurgles and baby crows; baby bites at her baby toes.
What baby's thinking just baby knows, and baby declines to tell.
But sooner or later, you may depend, the boys' rough play will see its end.
With boyish spirits confined and penned, to their chairs they'll softly creep.
Mother's finger is on her lips; father smiles and his coffee sips.
Sister moves on her light toe tips, for baby has gone to sleep!

"Baby has gone to Bylow Land, gone to see the sights so grand!"
Mother croons, and her loving hand smooths a dear little baby curl.
Father, watching, feels tenderness, love for the babe, for the wife no less,
And a future joy, like a faint caress, stirs the heart of a pure young girl.
Brothers, unknowing, unthinking boys, long for their games, their romps, their toys,
But, dutiful still, refrain from noise, but grin in the silence deep—
Happiness sought for and prized and earned, love for which youth has forever yearned, Lessons of duty in silence learned—when baby has gone to sleep!
—Grif Alexander in Pittsburgh Dispatch.

MOVIES NOW AID IN TEACHING OF SURGERY.

All Details and Movements Are Shown Upon the Screen.

Members of the New York County Medical society saw at their meeting the other night a series of moving pictures intended for educational use among doctors and students of surgery. The camera had recorded all the details of a number of intricate operations. The pictures had been taken at a range of only eight feet from the operating table, and each movement of the surgeon was seen more clearly than is possible in a clinic amphitheater, where the seats of the nearest students are fifteen or twenty feet distant from the operating table.

While films of surgical operations had been made before, the new series was distinctive. The accuracy and detail of the pictures, according to the physicians present, had not been equaled in previous views, nor had other operating room pictures been confined so closely to the scientific side of the subject. The new films were described as entirely impersonal, as only the chief surgeon's hands and those of his assistants were seen doing their work, and at no time did the faces or the paraphernalia of the operating room figure in the scene.

Accompanying the pictures were explanations and diagrams to show just what was being done. Dr. J. Bentley Squier, who made the demonstration, tracing each operation from the first incision to the final stitching, explained that the idea in having the films made was that they would afford an opportunity for students of surgery to follow quickly and accurately the new developments in their field; they would be enabled to see, for instance, exactly how a new operation was performed by the man who had originated it in a distant city.

The films are not for public exhibition, but probably will be used in medical colleges and libraries, where it may soon be possible on short notice for any surgeon or student to call for just the film he needs to teach him the details of an operation he himself must perform without delay.

BIRDS THRIVE IN WARTIME.

Europe's Game and Song Varieties Are Now Unmolested.

Have the song birds of Europe become the victims of bullets, shrapnel and deadly gases, or have they deserted the war ridden continent entirely? Apparently they have done neither, for the war has helped instead of hurt the birds of Europe, according to T. Gilbert Pearson, secretary of the National Association of Audubon Societies and an American authority on birds.

"Our correspondents have discovered," said he, "that the wild birds are receiving an amity from the hands of men in Europe to which they have long been strangers. The French government has stopped all hunting, and the minister of war has issued an order that the sale of no native game will be tolerated. Ordinarily more than 1,000 tons of native killed game are sold annually in the markets of France, more than 2,000,000 pounds.

"Belgium in time of peace is one of the greatest bird catching countries in Europe. More than 50,000 skylarks, as well as hundreds of thousands of other birds, are annually trapped and exported from that country for food."

NOT A MAN EXECUTED.

British Officers Never Find It Necessary to Impose Death Penalty.

Not a single soldier of Great Britain's 3,000,000 volunteers already under arms has been put to death by sentence of a military tribunal for any crime. This fact was formally stated in the house of commons in the course of debate on an amendment to the military service bill.

Assurance was given by the government that no man will in future be sentenced to death for any offense for which conscientious objection can be pleaded in defense.

By custom, death may be the penalty in wartime for desertion, sleeping on post as sentry, mutiny, cowardice and deliberate disobedience to orders in sight of the enemy.

JOURNALISTIC OPINIONS

The disappearance of Newark's only English morning daily newspaper with a suddenness which did injustice to some honest workers is regrettable for more reasons than one. The sale of the Newark Evening Star and Newark Eagle was made because the receiver of this and other properties of ex-Senator Smith had no other course to pursue. His duty was to get the largest amount of money for the creditors which could be obtained. That is part of the disaster of a great failure, only this happens to affect the general public more than some other things. The larger sum of money invested in the new enterprise comes from outside, and since Newark capital did not appear to be ready to meet the competition, no one can complain. The local field is quite peculiar and requires more than ordinary ability on the part of the inexperienced, but there will be no lack of welcome. Newark is not narrow in that way.—Newark Sunday Call.

OUR MARINE CORPS.

Its Status in the Military Organization of the Nation.

The United States marine corps was first called into existence by an act of the Continental congress of Nov. 10, 1775, and gallantly served throughout the Revolutionary war. It was disbanded at the close of the war, April 11, 1782, but was reorganized and permanently established July 11, 1798. From that day to this its officers and men have been zealous participants in every expedition in which the navy has engaged, and in many trying campaigns they have won distinction with their brethren of the army.

It is the gallant little corps that has so ably assisted in fighting America's battles in every corner of the globe for more than a century. Its members are the first men on the ground in case of trouble with a foreign power and the first men into battle in case of hostilities. They have at all times served their country faithfully both in peace and war and have reflected great credit upon themselves as a corps and on the nation which they represent. Ever have they lived up to the letter as well as the spirit of the motto of the corps, "Semper fidelis." Marines serve on both land and sea, but are trained, clothed and equipped very much as are soldiers of the land forces.

The military and naval services of the United States are divided into three separate and distinct branches—the army with its duties on land, the navy at sea and the marine corps, which serves both on land and sea. The marine corps is a separate organization entirely and is under the direct supervision of the secretary of the navy and usually serves with the navy. In time of war or other public necessity the president is empowered to detach the marines for service with the army.

JEWELED BOOKS.

Ancient Volumes Bound In Gold and Incrusted With Gems.

Bibliophilists will tell you that the bookbinding of the ancients has never been equaled, let alone surpassed. They will extol the beauties of the bindings of the Byzantine period, when books had covers of gold, silver and copper studded with jewels, the massive tomes being carried in imperial processions.

The books produced in the middle ages were of remarkable beauty inwardly and outwardly. Religious manuscripts were enriched with illuminations themselves, while their covers were of silver, gold or enamel, incrusted with gems. These books were generally bestowed as splendid gifts by bishops and princes on monastic houses and churches, where they were laid on the altar or chained to a desk.

The dukes of Burgundy were renowned for their libraries. The "Boccaccio" of Charles the Bold was bound in red velvet set with five large rubies. Another Burgundian book was velvet bound and set with fifty-eight pearls of great size.

The library of Philip the Good of Burgundy surpassed all other book collections of the time. It contained nearly 10,000 volumes, all richly illuminated on vellum, with bindings of damask, satin and velvet, incrusted with jewels, with clasps of gold and gems.—Pearson's Weekly.

Napoleon on Horseback.

Extraordinary were the precautions taken that Napoleon should never appear at a disadvantage on horseback. The emperor was not a first class horseman, and his horses were always thoroughly broken in. Here is a description of the methods employed: "They were trained to remain perfectly steady under tortures of every description; to receive blows about the head; drums were beaten, pistols and crackers fired in their ears, flags waved before their eyes, clumsy packages and sometimes even sheep and pigs were thrown between their legs. None of the animals were deemed sufficiently trained till the emperor could without the least difficulty pull them up short at full gallop, which was his favorite pace."—London Chronicle.

Climbing Down.

Macarty applied for a job as a builder's laborer and was asked by the foreman what experience he had. "Sure," said the applicant, "ye don't need any experience for hard work at all, at all." "Oh, but I want to know," said the foreman, "if you've been used to going up a ladder." "That's all right," replied Jerry; "you'll have nothing to complain about. Sure Oi can mind the first time Oi went up a ladder. It was down a well."—London Mail.

SUFF BILL GOES TO SENATE MONDAY

Women Say Legislature Can Give Them Right to Vote for President.

The active campaign of the suffragists of this State for presidential suffrage will begin next Monday night, when a bill granting women the right to vote for presidential and vice presidential electors will be introduced in the Senate by Senator Charles O'Connor Hennessey, of Bergen county.

Mrs. E. F. Feickert, president of the New Jersey Woman Suffrage Association, in an interview today said: "There seems to be a very general misunderstanding as to what is meant by 'presidential suffrage,' and many men, at Trenton and elsewhere, seem to believe that the New Jersey constitution prohibits us from getting any degree of suffrage except through a popular referendum, not realizing that we are not basing our claim upon any loophole in the State constitution, but upon a very distinct provision of the Constitution of the United States, which is, of course, the paramount law of the land, and takes precedence over any State constitution. Section 2 of Article II expressly says that the Legislature of each State shall direct the way in which presidential electors are to be chosen, and the Supreme Courts of several of the States have interpreted this to mean that the State Legislatures have the right to have such electors chosen in whatever way they may deem best. A decision of the U. S. Supreme Court in a case disputing the right of the Michigan Legislature to have electors chosen by electoral districts, covers the case very clearly. It says:

"The appointment of these electors is thus placed absolutely and wholly with the Legislatures of the several States. They may be chosen by the Legislature, or the Legislature may provide that they shall be elected by the people of the State at large, or in districts, as are members of Congress, which was the case formerly in many States, and it is, no doubt, competent for the Legislature to authorize the Governor or the Supreme Court of the State, or any other agent of its will, to appoint these electors. x x x x Whatever provisions may be made by statute, or by the State constitution to choose electors by the people, there is no doubt of the right of the Legislature to resume the power at any time, for it can neither be taken away nor abdicated."

"Our bill has been drawn by Linton Satterthwaite, of Trenton, one of the foremost constitutional lawyers of the State, and it will have a good sponsor in Senator Hennessey, whose pluck and determined championship of an measure introduced by him has made his famous."

FUNERAL OF MRS. WEINMAN.

The funeral of Mrs. Bertha Weinman, widow of Veit Weinmann, and mother of G. J. Weinmann, of Sandford avenue, this city, was held at 8:30 this morning in St. Boniface' church, Paterson. The solemn requiem high mass offered by the rector was attended by a large gathering of relatives and friends, many of whom were from Plainfield. Numerous beautiful floral tribues were sent by friends of the family, a number of them coming from here. Interment was in the cemetery of the Holy Sepulchre at Paterson.

NOVEL PLAN TO HONOR LINCOLN

Henry A. Wise Wood Suggests That Day Be Given Over to Preparedness.

ALL WRITE LETTERS

He Believes That People Do Not Fully Understand Meaning of Immortal Words Spoken On Gettysburg Battlefield.

A novel celebration of Lincoln's birthday is suggested in a letter from Henry A. Wise Wood, chairman of the Conference Committee on National Preparedness, sent out this week. Mr. Wood is well known in Plainfield having visited here several times recently.

Eloquently Mr. Wood appeals to Americans for a beter understanding of what Lincoln meant in his immortal words at Gettysburg when he said: "It is rather for us to be here dedicated to the great task remaining before us * * * and that government of the people, by the people and for the people shall not perish from the earth."

He wants every American citizen to mail a letter on Lincoln's birthday to his Congressman and Senator urging their support of any movement to increase the army and navy to a size when it shall decently represent the United States. His plan follows:

We revere the name of Lincoln because he extricated the nation from the perils of its own unpreparedness for such a disaster as the Civil War. But notwithstanding this reverence we, on the recurrence of the birth anniversary of this great American, present a spectacle which would indicate that we have learned no lessons from his sacrifice, nor from the sacrifices made by those who fell or suffered in any of the great causes for which our forbears fought.

What Lincoln said at Gettysburg applies to task of today as fully as it did to that of 1863, to the task of conserving the rights and liberties which constitute us a free people in full control of our own destinies:

"It is rather for us to be here dedicated to the great task remaining before us; that from the honored dead we take increased devotion to that cause for which they gave the last full measure of devotion; that we here highly resolve that these dead shall not have died in vain; that this nation, under God, shall have a new birth of freedom, and that government of the people, by the people and for the people shall not perish from the earth."

Who dare counsel leaving defenseless the nation of and for which this man spoke!

A year and a half has passed since the European war revealed to us the extent of our neglect of our defenses, and of the danger that neglect has brought us.

A series of events unparalleled in our history has proclaimed that we are both weak and irresolute—weak because we have allowed other nations to kill our citizens and have not resisted, irresolute because we have permitted over a year to go by without taking even preliminary steps towards turning our military resources into effective military strength. Irresolute, also, because even as yet we are unable to agree as to whether anything at all should be done in our defense, much less to evolve a program for self-protection. This, notwithstanding we have men, material and money in sufficient abundance to enable us to set about instantly to repair our long neglect of our own safety.

Events overseas, full of significance for every American family, testify eloquently to the fact that the power of the sword is supreme once more in shaping human events. Yet here at home we argue and hold back, and treat what is a very practical matter—that of our defense—as one that is academic, and may be discussed by the heart instead of the head. It is as if the armed migrations of destroying nations, which we see now in effective action, and the making ready of still other nations, were mere matters of ancient history set before us as a film drama having no connection with our own affairs! At such a time the apathy of some, and the fanatic opposition of others who preach the defensive value of defenselessness, are extremely grave indications of our weakness, which the practical sense of our people must deal with promptly if we are to be made secure.

What a strange commentary upon American spirit and foresight it is that, after eighteen months of such a war, which repeatedly has involved our rights and the lives of our people, our President should at last be compelled to go upon a speaking tour to arouse enough patriotism to enable us to get from Congress any effective action at all on behalf of our national defenses.

Therefore, appeal to you, and through you to all men of decision among your readers, to bring every influence to bear upon Congress, so that we shall be restored to the position of second naval power which we formerly held, and our regular army be so reinforced that we may be secure against sudden invasion. This the program of the General Board of the Navy of July 30, and the recommendations of the Army War College, if carried out, will do.

I appeal to you and to the men of your district to let Congress know that the spirit of Lincoln still lives and that it is now time that the American people, through Congress, shall again dedicate themselves to the "Great task remaining before us." On the coming anniversary of Lincoln's birthday, February 12, let all participate in doing homage to this master mind of democracy by laying in our defenses such a foundation that our liberties henceforth shall be based not upon treaties, but upon our power to compel all aggressive nations to respect them.

In conclusion, I ask how better can the approaching anniversary be observed than by an outpouring of the national spirit in letters to Congress of such a nature that our Senators and Representatives therein shall be encouraged immediately to fulfil their bounden duty, in the light of the irrefutable truth that it is the first duty of government to secure the safety of its people from alien attack, to the end that their internal development may proceed in peace and in happiness.

HISTORIC NASSAU INN NOW IN NEW HANDS

Princeton, Feb. 3.—Nassau Inn one of the oldest hotels in this part of the country, was sold yesterday by J. D. Renwick to William R. Lewis and Louis R. Vogel. The inn was built originally as a private residence in 1757 and has been operated as a hotel for 147 years. Six Presidents have stopped there—George Washington, John Adams, Theodore Roosevelt, William H. Taft, Grove Cleveland and Woodrow Wilson.

During Revolutionary days it was known as the "Nassau Hall of the College," and a famous half way stop for stage coaches between Philadelphia and New York. At that time more than one hundred fresh horses were constantly kept in the stables, and as many as thirty coaches were known to have left the tavern in each direction in a single day.

VAUDEVILLE AND DANCING.

The Dramatic Club, which has been presenting plays at intervals during the past three years, is to offer an entirely new kind of program on Thursday evening, February 10, in the Washington School Auditorium. Dancing and vaudeville are the two most popular forms of entertainment of the day, and the club is offering both to its friends combined in a novel and delightful manner. The vaudeville will be snappy and up-to-date. Music for the dancing will be furnished by Al Squire. Every effort is being put forward to make this one of the most successful dances of the season, and the extremely low price of tickets will place a most enjoyable evening within the reach of all.

THOUSANDS AT TRENTON

Union, John H. Ward, of Ridgewood, representing the Bergen County Local Option League, Filmore Condit, of Essex Fells, and Nolan R. Best, of Montclair.

"On to the Capitol" was the cry at noon, and the thousands flocked from the Tabernacle exits to the streets, where marching lines were formed. James W. Howard was grand marshal of the parade, and he was escorted by twenty-five aides. At the Capitol the trump card was played. Superintendent Snields handed Assemblyman West, of Gloucester, the resolution adopted at the morning meeting favoring the passage of the local option bill. Senator George W. F. Gaunt, of Gloucester, received another set of resolutions for the presentation to the Senate.

At 2 o'clock the visitors again assembled at the Tabernacle where they heard a typical "Billy" Sunday address on "The Trail of the Serpent," which was an indictment of whisky and whisky dealers as only Sunday could draw it. Mr. Sunday was handicapped by a severe cold but he talked for almost two hours on the iniquities of whisky and made a wonderful impression on his audience.

"No earnest, honest or intelligent man can deny," said the evangelist, "that the saloons and drunkenness are the curses of the United States, and those who love their country most, the men most desirous for its best interests and welfare, are among those who most oupose this infamous business that damns our land.

"Go to the prisons and see the long lines of men who have fought the booze, and who have let it conquer them, and, as a result, have committed some offense which has taken them there. Go to the divorce courts and listen to the pleadings of wives of men who are drunkards; or go to the home where the serpent has left its slimy trail as it would its way through the kitchen.

"I am a sworn enemy to everything that is an enemy of my country. If a foreign enemy should attack my country I would become bullet meat. I say our enemy is not a foreign enemy, but a grog shop. Look at the miserable, blighting, damnable business. Go into your gin shops, gentlemen, and see the men lined up in front of the counters.

"No power on earth is doing the work of the evil as is the saloon. The devil sits on a high pinnacle and orders the saloon to take him men enough to fill up his hell. There is no power that can drag a man to hell as quickly and as surely as the saloon. Men, put an end to it all."

HOTELKEEPERS MEET.

The Somerset County Hotelkeepers' Association held its monthly meeting and dinner at Hotel Chatham, in North Plainfield, on Tuesday, at which time two new members were elected. The dinner was served under the direction of Fred S. Moore, proprietor of Hotel Chatham. The next meting will be at Miller's Hotel, Somerville, Tuesday, March 7.

PRIVATE FUNERAL HERE FOR THOMAS H. KELLER

The body of Thomas H. Keller, whose tragic death was reported in these columns yesterday, will be brought to this city from New York tonight and removed to the home of his son, Thomas Hazelwood Keller, Jr., of 73 Sandford avenue. The funeral service will be held there at two o'clock tomorrow afternoon, and will be private. Rev. Dr. C. M. Anderson, of the First Methodist church, will be the officiating pastor. A Masonic service will be conducted at the graveside in Hillside cemetery.

Eight of Mr. Keller's nephews have been selected as pallbearers. These will b Herbert L. McVoy, of Westfield; Raymond McVoy, of Rahway; Percival H. and George McVoy, Glen Angleman, Orrin G. and Frank Dodge, and Harry Bouton, all of Plainfield.

LOCAL ORGANIZATIONS WILL BE AT CO. K FAIR TONIGHT

The dancing, music for which is furnished by Al Squier's orchestra, is the biggest feature of the bazaar, but is given a close run by the shooting gallery, which is kept busy all night long. If the last three days of the fair are as successful as the first four have been, the sum netted the local company will without doubt be the largest ever taken in at the annual fairs.

EASY TO DARKEN YOUR GRAY HAIR

You Can Bring Back Color and Lustre With Sage Tea and Sulphur.

When you darken your hair with Sage Tea and Sulphur, no one can tell, because it's done so naturally, so evenly. Preparing this mixture, though, at home is musty and troublesome. For 50 cents you can buy at any drug store the ready-to-use tonic called "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound." You just dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time. By morning all gray hair disappears, and after another application or two, your hair becomes beautifully darkened, glossy and luxuriant. You will also discover dandruff is gone and hair has stopped falling.

Gray, faded hair, though no disgrace, is a sign of old age, and as we all desire a youthful and attractive appearance, get busy at once with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur and look years younger.—Adv.

Big Guns Not New.

Modern howitzers and siege guns are giants of destructiveness, yet, making allowance for time and experience, we must still admire the good old burghers of Ghent, who 500 years and more ago turned out an iron "bombarde" that weighed thirteen tons. This prototype of the up to date siege gun had a bore twenty-five inches in diameter. Out of it was projected a granite ball that weighed 700 pounds.

Bronze guns as big were cast half a century later at Constantinople. And when only a little over 100 years since an earlier British fleet was fighting its way into the Dardanelles these big guns crippled six of the English men-of-war and killed or wounded 126 of those on board. One gun of this type weighed eighteen and three-quarter tons, had a twenty-five inch bore and fired a 672 pound stone shot.—New York World.

Origin of the Gypsies.

When the gypsies first appeared in England in the fifteenth century the name gypsy was given to them by the English people, who believed them to have come from Egypt. The French, by a similar mistake, called them Bohemians. But a careful study of this race, and especially of their language, shows that they came originally from India. The gypsy language is derived from the Sanskrit, as are the other Aryan languages of India. A similar error was made by the English when they called a distinctively American bird a turkey, under the impression that it was an importation from the Ottoman empire, and by the French when they called the same bird coq d'Inde, believing that it came from India.—Christian Herald.

Curious Manx Custom.

On July 5 every year all the officials of the Isle of Man, including the clergy in their surplices, walk to the top of Tynwald hill, and from the top of it the laws made during the year are promulgated in Manx and English. This promulgation of the laws on Tynwald hill is as necessary as the royal assent to the validity of all laws passed by the Manx legislature. This is one of the many relics which the old Norsemen left behind, and it dates so far back that its origin is lost in the mists of antiquity. — Liverpool Mercury.

Wonderful.

It was in the Boston Musuem of Fine Arts. The little man with the hunted look on his face was standing before the mummy of an Egyptian princess. And silently wiping away a tear he hurried out and caught a car, for it was only twenty minutes to dinner time.—Boston Post.

MYSTERY OF STEEL.

Our Modern Civilization Is Based on a Freak of Nature.

If it were not for one tiny, erratic break in nature's orderly progression we should never have had the machinery that has brought about modern civilization. For we should not have had steel. It is true we should have had iron, but pure iron is almost useless. It is only when a small quantity of carbon is added to it that it becomes hard enough to take a cutting edge. Then it is called steel.

Why steel hardens is an unsolved problem. The Scientific American reproduces some extracts from an address before the British Institute of Mechanical Engineers, delivered by Professor Arnold, who has for many years been investigating the chemical and mechanical relations between iron, carbon and other metals, and Sir Robert Hadfield's experiments that called attention to this "break" in the order of nature which alone makes steel possible.

Nickel and cobalt are so closely related to iron in their properties and in their position in the periodic classification—atomic weights, specific gravity, fusing point and valence being almost the same—that it might be expected they would behave identically when united with carbon. Not so, however. Sir Robert Hadfield found that when the "steel" made of nickel and cobalt was heated or hammered the carbon came out of the composition and was precipitated as graphite. If iron behaved this way tool steel would turn to cast iron as soon as heated. And it is on the fact that it does not—"a seemingly quite erratic departure on nature's part from her orderly plan"—that modern manufacture is founded.

LOFTY ACOMA.

Strange Indian Village Perched High Up In the Air.

Perched on the top of a great rock in the neighborhood of 300 feet high stands Acoma, in New Mexico, in some respects the strangest village in this country. Acoma is an Indian settlement of some 600 people and means "the people of the rock." Though the founding of the village is lost in the mist of antiquity, it is supposed the Acoma Indians chose this site as a measure of safety against the warlike Apaches and Navajos of their day. Their selection was made with admirable judgment, for the walls of the rock are almost perpendicular.

The earliest Spanish explorers found the tribe settled securely in their natural fortalice. Acoma has remained delightfully untouched by the influences of Spanish and American civilization. These Indians are quite well to do in sheep and cattle, which are pastured on the grazing lands of the valley, where summer villages are located and where the minimum of effort is required to care for the flocks and herds. Although less than twenty miles from a railroad, the village is comparatively unknown.

The natives do not care for curious visitors. They do not wish to be stared at and photographed. Nevertheless the irrepressible tourist with his camera occasionally scales the steeps that baffled the Navajo. Nowadays it is no longer practicable to suppress him with a tomahawk, so the Acoma are philosophically making the best of a bad job by collecting $2 a day for a camera license. The gray adobe village peers from its eyrie over miles of gray plain, lancing in the glare of a burning sun, broken only by the sheer outlines of buttes and mesas.—Argonaut.

The Cherokee Tribute Stone.

There are, of course, stairs running up the inside of the Washington monument, but few people walk up the stairs. Of course there are stones set in the wall by different states that are well worth the climb, but at sunset time the majority of folk think that it is better to ride. There is so much to see in our capital and feet are only feet. As the elevator crawls up one sees the New York stone, the Ohio stone, the Kansas stone and many others. One sees a blurred stone labeled "The Cherokee Nation." Somehow that stone depresses a few people, for the white man has done little for his Indian brother in return for his land, his game, his dying race—his memorial stone.—Margaret E. Sangster, Jr., in Christian Herald.

Races of Mankind.

Authorities differ greatly in the classification of the races of mankind. Cuvier makes three races; Pritchard, seven; Agassiz, eight, and Pickering, eleven. But the classification most commonly accepted is that into five races as made by Blumenbach, as follows: The Caucasion, European or white race; the Mongolian, Asiatic or yellow race; the Ethiopian, African or black race; the American Indian or red race the Malay or brown race.

The "Earl Strad."

The most valuable remaining product of Stradivarius, the famous seventeenth century violin maker, is part of the Havemeyer collection of New York and is known as the "Earl Strad," because the master dedicated it to the earl of Northumberland in return for financial favors.

BREAK RECORD CLEANING WALKS IN THE BOROUGH

The sidewalks in the borough were all cleared of snow by 8:30 o'clock this morning, allowing the residents to go about without any trouble, a fact that was appreciated. Mayor "Bill" Smalley anticipated such a condition, and when the snow fell there were six plows in readiness in various parts of the borough to take care of some particular section. The plows started to work at 5:30 o'clock, and within three hours walks were cleaned, which is a record-breaker.

A CHANCE TO THINK.

The revelations in the gunman scandal in Chicago which is involving some of the police of that city, is one of those happenings that literally compels the man who doesn't give thought to much that is taking place all around him to take notice. Further than that it forces him to supply himself with some sort of sufficient answer to the problem, says the Pittsburg Leader.

If Chicago politicians and Chicago policemen, officials or plain coppers, organize a movement that crystallizes in the importation of New York gunmen, youthful in years, but ripened in experience and advanced methods in their industry, what is the man who doesn't think to say to himself about it? What is his answer?

Is the thoughtless man, along with his thoughtful brother, to condemn himself or the politicians and the others said to be involved in the plot? Is the worst element in such a case the civic fountain or the corrupted waters that flow from the civic fountain?

And where, in the long run, are we heading? If this is nothing worse than an isolated instance of political shimblerigging, in close contact with the underworld, isn't that enough? But if it turns out to be merely the advanced work of the advanced pupils in our civic game, what then is the answer?

The Becker case in New York, and this case in Chicago, are not the only instances to prove the close corporation tactics in common use in our largest cities, and probably in some of the others not so large.

It is up to the thoughtless man who has pooh-poohed the fears of the thoughtful brother who has been tut-tutted every time he issued a warning against the common trend of our civic affairs, to say something for himself. If there were nothing more than the Becker case and this Chicago case, that ought to be enough to startle even the thoughtless man out of his unthinking shell and induce him to take a look about.

Senators Colgate and Edge will be forced to vote for or against the local option bill. Despite desperate attempts upon the part of the Dalrymple machine to dodge the dominant issue in New Jersey politics these two aspirants for the Republican nomination for Senator and Governor are to go on record. Tuesday Assemblymen Runyon and Wolverton prevented a sneaking attempt to have the bill brought up in the House and killed. If this had been accomplished it would have died in the Senate Monday night and every voter in the State will await the action of Senators Edge and Colgate.

The bill will not be passed by the present Legislature. This much even its most ardent supporters admit, but those who want local option, and they have mustered an army of sufficient numbers to be formidable, are entitled to put every member of either house on record. This they will do. Senators who vote against the measure cannot excuse their action by the explanation that it will be killed in the House anyway. They are not sent to Trenton by the people to find out the will of the political majority and then bend to whatever boss happens to be in control by grace of money, dirty politics, luck and nerve.

HE WAITED PATIENTLY.

An old man boarded a New York Central train at Amsterdam the other day and presented a ticket to Little Falls. The conductor found it aged and dirty and upon examination he learned that it had been sold March 3, 1852, but never used. The passenger offered no explanation and as the ticket was not limited as to time it was accepted. Now the railroad is wondering why the trip from Amsterdam to Little Falls was postponed so long. Maybe the prospective passenger fell asleep in the station expecting an agent to call him.

WORRIES OF A NEUTRAL.

To show that neither side can see anything good in things "made in America," the Berlin Tagliche Rundschau says that the U. S. note could just as well have been signed by Sir Edward Grey and the London Daily Telegraph declares that it sounds as though it had been dictated by Count von Bernstorff.

The Newark Star-Eagle begins its career by demanding to know the mission of Col. House in Europe. It admits that he is making a favorable impression but wants him to tell what he is really doing in his rounds of the great capitals of Europe. Suppose its editor sends a man out to interview the Texas Colonel. He will probably "spill" all the information wanted.

An Ohio blacksmith boasts that he has used the same hammer every day for fifty-six years. He's a mere piker. He did not hammer the same thing all the time and we know people who have used a hammer on their home town ever since they were born.

Germany may be expected to sue for peace before long as news reports from Berlin state that there is a shortage in the supply of sauerkraut there, owing to the English blockade.

Those who do not believe that the Colonel is able to keep his temper should have read the program of a meeting in Brooklyn the other night, when he was preceeded by the Pacific Quartet.

About the only consolation that England can get out of the Appam case is that the twelve Germans will not dare try to go back across the ocean.

"Burglars in the Borough" made a smooth-reading headline, but it carried a jolt for officials of that municipality.

Norfolk seems to be the only neutral spot on earth.

SCIENCE CLUBS TO MEET AT TROY, N. Y.

Unique Convention to Be Held on April 21-22 With Attractive Program.

The Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute, upon the invitation of the High School authorities, has taken an active interest in the unique convention of High School Science Clubs, which will be held in Troy, April 21 and 22, at which delegates will be present from the New England States, and New York, Pennsylvania and NUew Jersey.

Dr. Palmer C. Ricketts, president of the Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute, said that it was believed by the faculty of the institutue that a convention of such clubs was of more importance as tending to give high school students propert concepts of college than interscholastic athletic meets, and expressed the hope that this, the first convention if its kind, would meet with success, as being a step in the right direction.

The members of the local High School Science Club will be the hosts of the convention, and the program will include illustrated lectures, addresses by scientists, and such trips as would be of interest to the visiting delegates.

NOVEL SPRING CONCERT.

The Plainfield Choral Society will reorganize on Tuesday evening, February 8, at the Franklin School Auditorium. S.FrederickS mith isthe torium. S. Frederick Smith is the leader of the choral and has made extensive plans for an interesting program of miscellaneous choruses, including grand opera, and possibly a short oratorio. There is an educational value to the public in general, and every musician in town should do what he can to promote the success of this spring's concert. A goodly crowd is expected Tuesday night, when new members, as well as old, will be welcomed.

C. E. SOCIETY IN CHARGE.

The Young People's Society, of the Dunellen Presbyterian church, will have charge of the service at the Rescue Mission tonight at 8 o'clock. There will be a special musical service and good singing. An invitation is extended to all interested.

On the Spur of the Moment

The Old-Fashioned Maid.

Tell me where's the old-fashioned girl,
The modest violet;
The quiet and retiring maid
We can never forget?
A half a dozen petticoats
She wore to keep her warm,
To show an inch of ankle then
Was held to be bad form.
She used to help her mother
With the housework every day;
She never danced the trot or hug
Of other movements gay.
She never hiked around at night,
Or traveled forth alone.
It caused a scandal when she went
Without a chaperone.
It seems we ne'er will see again
This modest maiden fair.
Where has she gone? We ask in vain,
For echo answers, "Where?"

Back Out the Hearse, Hiram.

Down in the southern part of the State a woman testified in her divorce suit that friend husband had given her but one dollar in real money and but one pair of second-hand shoes in twelve years of married life. The local judge gave her a decree, but the irate hubby took it to the supreme court before he could be convinced that both the woman and the law were in eaarnest. Why the old tightwad ought to be thankful that the court didn't order him shot in the bargain.—Pewamo News.

Meaning "Full Of."

"Now,' said a teachere to his class during a lesson in English, "can any one give me a word ending with 'ous,' meaning full of, as 'dangerous' full of danger, and "hazardous' full of hazard?"

There was silence in the class for a moment. Then a boy sitting in the front row put up his hand.

"Well," said the teacher, "what is your word?"

"Please, sir," came the reply, "'pious,' full of pie."

The Cashier.

The cashier of an establishment is always the man who knows the innermost secrets of one's soul. A man will go and tell his cashier things that he wouldn't dare tell his wife, or his mother-in-law or his best friend. The cashier is always in on the know. He knows when you are flush and he knows when you are broke. He is the partner in your joys and sorrows.

When you get a raise in salary, who is the first man to extend the right hand of fellowship? The cashier?. When you get a new job, who hands you the first concrete evidence of it? The cashier. When you get canned, who hands you the blue envelope? The cashier. Like a doctor, he is in at the start and the finish.

A Hoppertown Hat.

Plans and specifications for a nifty hat come from Hoppertown. It is claimed that Mrs. Bowser appeared at church last Sunday in a hat which she had manufactured from the following ingredients: Two handles ou of a bushel basket, some wire from a broom handle, a part of an old bird cage and five yards of mosquito netting for trimming. The hat created a sensation and looked as though it might have cost $18.65.

Magazine Stuff.

As chronic readers, we must own,
In changing times like these,
The anecdotes are better known
Than the celebrities.
—Louisville Courier-Journal.

The reason we would like to state,
If we may be so bold,
Is that the yarns claimed for the great,
Are really twice as old.

- Proctor's Theatre -

"At Bay," starring Florence Reed, the photoplay production that has created such a stir among local amusement seekers, will be presented at Proctor's today for the last time. Proctor's cozy playhouse was fairly packed last night with theatre-goers who wished to see "At Bay," and the management is preparing to accommodate a crowd equally as large this evening. A thrilling Keystone comedy made its appearance at Proctor's today and will continue for the rest of the week. It is entitled "Dizzy Heights and Daring Hearts" and is by far the most thrilling and spectacular production ever released from the Triangle studios. On Friday and Saturday, two days only, William S. Hart, the old favorite, who is usually seen in photoplays dealing with the Far West, appears in a new role in "Between Men," a stirring production of Wall street intrigue and physical combat which was directed by Thomas H. Ince. Mr. Hart is supported by an excellent cast, including House Peters and Enid Markey. Every Friday Pathe's greatest serial, "The Red Circle," is presented at Proctor's as an added attraction and tomorrow the fifth episode will be shown. On Saturday afternoon the management will entertain the children at the toy bazaar and beside the many gifts given from the stage, each child attending will receive a handsome present upon leaving the theatre. The vaudeville entertainment offered for the latter half of the week, starting today, includes The Six Musical Misses, who present a refined and entertaining musical offering; Billy Woodhall and Company, who present a rollicking comedy playlet that will literally "bring down the house;" Melville Lloyd, billed as "The Wizard," who presents an exceedingly clever and delusion novelty and Repel and Fairfax, two clever girls who sing and dance in unison

COMMITTEES TO MEET.

The candy, gypsy and fancy work committee for the coming Columbus bazaar, under the chairmanship of A. E. Kenney and A. A. Cannon, will hold a joint meeting in the Knights of Columbus Auditorium, Sunday afternoon at 3:30 o'clock. Every member is urged to be present.

SHERIFF'S SALE.

Elizabeth, Feb. 3.—William Cory, defendant, was the purchaser yesterday, at a sheriff's sale of property in Fanwood, in which Daniel H. Manning was complainant. The purchase price was $1,126.53. The property is located between the Dunham and Lyons plots in Fanwood.

AND THE WORST IS YET TO COME--

SNOW BALLING

∴ Plainfield Theatre ∴

Some of the Beauty Chorus, "Rosey Posey Girls," Plainfield Theatre Monday, Matinee and Night, February 7.

"Girls in Funland," a musical comedy act that is really a musical comedy act and not a mere bluff at it, is the attractive headline feature offered by the Plainfield Theatre for the new seven-act bill which commences this afternoon for the last half of the week. The girls in this number are all young and pretty, possessed of fresh voices and capable of clever dancing. Ten people in all are in the company and they come to Plainfield with beautiful costumes and special scenery.

Another feature number on the big program is Princess Victoria, the smallest entertainer the world has ever known. This little lady is only twenty-three years old and twenty-five and a half inches in height, but she is chock full of talent, the whole two feet of her. She comes to this city in an entirely new and original act. Other numbers on the new program are: Richards and Brandt, sensational gymnasts; Schilling and St. Clair, comedians; Roma Laurie and Company, presenting their sketch, "Fooling Father;" George Taylor, Hess, in nonsensical nonsense. the German orator, and Chute and

They have fine pictures at the Plainfield, too. New ones are shown every day, comedies, dramas and news weeklies. Every Friday night is "Country Store" night, when they give away useful and valuable presents. Follow the crowd to the Plainfield and not only witness a splendid show for a small sum but stand a chance of winning an acceptable gift.

Here's a new one! A Love Club. Not a club to beat your loved one with; but an organization of young and charming girls who wish to be loved—by the right man, of course. Wouldn't you like to be admitted within the sweetly sacred precincts of such a club? To know just what went on there? Well, Peter S. Clark's Rosey Posey Girls will show you if you visit them at their theatre next week. "The Redemption Club" or "She Sins Again," is the title of the new two act musical whimsicality the Rosey Posey Girls Company is presenting this season. It is a mixture of laughter and melody and don't forget the girls. In the second act those girls present a Barbary Coast dance that is the real thing. Right from 'Frisco, it is "some" dance. For years they have been doing the dances at present vogue in society out on the Barbary Coast, but differently—oh yes, very differently. This is a good opportunity to see just how it is done by girls who know how to do it.

Among the treat in store for all is "The Spirit of 1776;" battleships in action; the mammoth electrical American flag and the big Broadway Review; presenting well known and popular Boadway favoites. Plainfield Theatre, Monday, matinee and night, February 7.

U. S. ASTOR THEATRE

John Mason, now appearing in "Common Clay," and Hazel Dawn, acting exclusively in photoplays, were seen as co-stars for the first time in Plainfield yesterday at the U. S. Astor Theatre in the Famous Players' production of "The Fatal Card," an intensely dramatic portrayal of life among persons who move in the upper strata of society. "The Fatal Card" is beyond question one of the most intensely dramatic photoplays of the season. Miss Dawn plays the part of Mr. Mason's daughter in the picture and does her role with all her infinite talent. Rarely has she had a role which suits her artist talents better than the one in which she appears in "The Fatal Card." Pauline Frederick, another noted dramatic star, will be seen on the Astor screen tomorrow and Saturday in the Famous Players' production of "Zaza," in which she portrays the title role. Miss Frederick is one of the best little vampire women now appearing on the screen and as Zaza she achieves quite the biggest hit of her cinema career.

RECREATION NOTES

The dressmaking class, under the direction of Miss Scarborough, will meet in the library room at Washington School this evening. New pupils will be received at any time, and special arrangements may be made to take individual lessons instead of subscribing for the entire course.

The Dramatic Club will hold special rehearsals both tonight and tomorrow night at the Washington School. This evening two playlets will be rehearsed, as well as the singing and dancing acts which are to be presented next week at the annual entertainment.

The Dunbar dance will be made particularly interesting tomorrow evening. Special prize dances are to be held. The spot dance has always been popular, and no doubt a large crowd will be out in the hope of capturing one of the prizes. The music is especially good these days, and all who attend will have a glorious time.

POSTPONE ENTERTAINMENT.

The entertainment, which was scheduled for tomorrow night, by the Lakeside Council, of New Market, has been indefinitely postponed on account of the weather conditions.

He Dashed Off to Pick Up the Hat.

Daddy's Bedtime Story—

What the North Wind Did to The Little Boy.

"THIS is a story of the North Wind," daddy told two wiggling children. "She lives way far up in the icy northlands, and her bed is an ice bank. For garments she uses mists that the winter sun makes on the sides of icebergs, and her arms are so long and strong that sometimes she reaches down into the earth and uproots huge trees."

"Are you sure she is a lady, daddy?" asked Jack.

"Once I saw a beautiful picture of the North Wind, and she was hiding in a treetop, waiting to race down a valley. On, on from the northlands she charges each fall, seizing beautiful autumn leaves by the bushel and tossing them like feathers miles from their mother trees. Down, down toward the southlands she races, pushing winter cold down chimneys till they whistle and thrusting her icy fingers in through the cracks around the doors and windows of little poor children's homes. Sometimes she whisks up to a little girl going to school in the rain and just for fun turns her umbrella wrong side out. Sometimes she blows signs from shops down on the heads of people passing by. Again she rushes into cracks around poor people's windows and chills their rooms when already they have no fire. Then she will dash up to some nice old man out for a morning walk and blow his silk hat right down the street.

"This is exactly what the North Wind did one January I know about. She blew an old man's hat right into the middle of the street, and a little lad whose parents were both dead and who had had no breakfast that morning dashed off to pick up the hat for the nice old man."

"Maybe the nice old man will give him 5 cents for a breakfast," Evelyn imagined.

"Nothing so happy!" cried daddy. "A big pair of horses hitched to a beer wagon swung around a corner, knocked the little boy down, ran over the silk hat and the little boy's arm and went on its way. Then an ambulance came to pick up the little boy who had so obligingly tried to pick up the silk hat. The North Wind, without caring very much about all the trouble she caused, tore off to see if she could wreck a fruit steamer down the Atlantic coast, and the old man went shivering home hatless. But the nicest part of this story is that when the hospital doctors had made the little boy's arm all well a very kind lady who had no boys adopted the little lad and took him to grow up on her farm."

"Oh, daddy, you please must adopt a farm for us, too!" cried Jack.

And daddy promised, "Next year!" with two big hugs.

Marrying for Money

BY MRS EVA LEONARD

Jacob Townsend's Appeal to His Wife's Better Nature Goes Unheard.

"Ortrude," said Jacob Townsend, laying down his paper and looking over to his wife, "I would like to talk business a few minutes, if you can give me the time."

"That sounds interesting." Ortrude listlessly dropped the book that she had been yawning over for half an hour and looked up.

He did not begin, however. Instead, he polished his glasses vigorously with his handkerchief.

"Well," prompted his wife, suppressing a yawn.

"The fact is you have been spending a great deal of money." Jacob blurted the sentence out with an effort, without looking up.

"Naturally; I have nothing else to do." Ortrude looked at him with an amused indifference.

"I think it will be best to put you on an allowance, one that my business can stand. Then we will both know where we are." Now that the ice was broken he looked at her calmly.

"Really, this is unexpected, J. C." She only called him Mr. Townsend when on her dignity now, having adopted the initials of his names as the least objectionable form of address open to her. "I thought my businesslike candor before marriage had paved the way for smooth financial sailing." Ortrude stood her book up on the arm of her chair and, resting her elbow on it, shaded her eyes with her hand.

"Business has been exceptionally dull this summer, and as I have taken the boys into partnership of course the income available for household expenses is reduced. Then for all concerned it is best that Marian should go away to school. That will be an added drain on the pocketbook." Jacob leaned forward and rested his elbows on his knees, thus bringing his bald spot in view. Ortrude hated that bald spot.

"If your memory is as good as mine, you will remember that I told you I should expect to spend money. Life is blank enough in this deadly dull town at best. The days drag like weeks. My only chance of making life interesting is to spend money, and money I expect to spend." She sat erect now and spoke with slow distinctness.

"What I wish to do is to give you a liberal allowance to run the house with and clothe yourself; then I will know just what I have to meet," continued Jacob slowly, though with rising color.

"I have had all I care to have of managing, of making money go a long way. I hate it." She spoke passionately. "I married to escape it. Surely I have had disagreeable enough things to encounter. I refuse to give up my one pleasure."

"I am sorry your marriage has been a disappointment to you. My hopes, too, are in ruins. We must make the best of a bad business, Ortrude, and it will not help a bad matter by straining the finances to a breaking point."

"Thanks for telling me that you are disappointed in me. That helps my enjoyment of life as you meant it should." Ortrude's tone was bitter.

Jacob looked at her with eyes full of pain.

"Do not misunderstand. I am disappointed that I have been utterly unable to get below the decorated surface, to the woman that I was so sure was there. If the woman in you would wake up, life would not be dull. There is so much of interest for a woman to do." The tone was low and appealing, but Ortrude chose to ignore the appeal.

"While this woman sleeps I shall continue to 'decorate the surface.'" There was withering scorn in her tone.

"And if I cannot supply you with money?" asked Jacob wearily.

"Your credit is good," replied his wife, walking rapidly to the door.

Household Hints

TO TEST EGGS.

Dissolve two ounces common salt in one pint water. A fresh laid egg placed in this solution will descend to bottom of vessel; the egg laid on the day previous will not quite reach the bottom. If the egg be three days old it will not swim in the liquid, and if it is more than three days old it will float on the surface and project above the latter more and more in proportion as it is older.

THINGS WORTH KNOWING

Preserve cider by boiling raisins in it, skimming and bottling. Raisins give a fine flavor and are themselves improved for further use.

When baking fish, remember to line pan with waxed paper; then there will be no disagreeably sticky dish to wash.

Take your husband's old silk knit neckties and unravel them. The silk makes excellent darning cotton and can be used for making and embroidering sofa cushions.

To Remove Dust From Velvet—If a piece of black crepe is used (mourning crepe) instead of a brush it will take every particle of dust away and mane the velvet look like new.

THE TABLE

Swiss Steak—Four and one-half pounds round steak; pound well each side till all threads are out, then rub salt, pepper, flour on each side. Have spider hot with half butter and lard; put steak in, fry brown on each side, then set back on stove and simmer 2½ hours, with a cover on, slowly. Forms its own gravy. Very delicious and juicy.

New Cheese Salad—Dissolve one tablespoon powdered gelatin in four tablespoons boiling water; strain and add half pound American cheese, grated, and one pint whipped cream with seasoning of salt and paprika. Pour into wet mold and allow it to become firm. Turn it out, cut in slices, place each slice on a crisp lettuce leaf. Serve with good boiled dressing. This salad will answer for twelve persons.

Salad Dressing—Yolks four eggs, two tablespoons sugar, three-fourths cup vinegar, butter size of walnut, one teaspoon mustard. Mix and boil until thick. Add whites of eggs well beaten. If desired, add cup of cream.

The Lightest of Biscuits—Two cups flour (pastry), one-fourth teaspoon salt, four rounding teaspoons baking powder. Mix, chop into this two full tablespoons butter (or lard), then add gradually one cup milk. Roll out dough, cut in small biscuits, place in greased pan and bake in quick oven for twelve minutes. Dough should be very soft.

Mother's Love Knots—One egg, one tablespoon each of sugar, butter and milk, pinch of salt, pinch of nutmeg; add enough flour to knead very hard. Roll out thin; cut like pipe stem, tie in two or three nnots and fry in hot lard. Sprinkle with pulverized sugar while hot.

Chocolate Pudding (simple and inexpensive)—Three-fourths cup granulated sugar, 1½ teaspoons cornstarch, one tablespoon cocoa, pinch of salt, small lump butter, flavoring. Mix these together and into mixture pour one pint boiling water; let boil until desired thickness. It also makes a splendid filling for one pie.

Sponge Cake—Beat yolks and whites of five eggs separately. Into the yolks stir one cup sugar and scant teacup flour well sifted with a level teaspoon of baking powder. Beat long—at least twenty minutes. Add a teaspoon of flavor to suit taste and fold in lightly the stiff whites. Bake in large loaf or round tin, as this cake will double in size. Bake in steady oven. It should be done in three-quarters of an hour. This cake is just as cheap as other cakes in spite of using five eggs, as there is no milk or butter used, and it has never failed.

Rice Pudding—One-half cup of rice, one cup of raisins, one-half cup of sugar, four and a half cups milk or part cream, pinch of salt, nutmeg; after washing rice well add milk, sugar, salt and nutmeg, put in moderate oven and when rice is soft add raisins; leave in oven half hour longer.

Child Welfare Day.

February 17 is known as Child Welfare Day. In arranging the program for club meetings near that date it would be well to report what New Jersey is doing for the children. The Child Welfare Magazine for February has a short concise report from forty clubs within the State. The following is the report from Plainfield:

Franklin School Parent-Teacher Association holds each year a class-room reception, giving parents an opportunity to confer with teachers in the same surroundings in which the child works.

Bryant School Parent-Teacher Association has taken over the responsibility of serving the "penny lunch" which the Mothers' Association started two years ago.

Mothers' Association raised over a hundred and fifty dollars for school lunch extension work, and last winter fed per day forty children of the unemployed at the Bryant School lunch counter.

Franklin School Parent-Teacher Association have, with the help of the extension lunch committee of the Mothers' Association, arranged for the serving of a hot lunch in the school building at the noon recess.

Irving - Jefferson Parent-Teacher Asciation has paid for two yearly subscriptions to Child Welfare Magazine, each school having a copy to circulate among its members. They have also supplied each school with a punch bowl and glasses, and cups and saucers for the Jefferson School—and purchased a rug for the rest-room of that school.

The High School and Grammar School Parent-Teacher Associations have taken over the responsibility of serving hot lunches to about six hundred pupils a day, children of both schools being noused in the same building, but served at different periods.

North Plainfield Parent-Teacher Association offered six prizes of five dollars each for a spelling contest to be conducted monthly by the teacher. They have raised $450 through the efforts of the members anl the school children, to be used towards a recreation hall. The economic committee offered a first and second prize to the girls of the senior class who would make the best graduation dress at a cost not to exceed five dollars.

The Dunellen Parent-Teacher Association raised money to supply the meeting room with chairs, and have now a committee to investigate conditions where children are kept from school by lack of clothing, with authority to provide what is needed.

Fear Causes Suffering.

Fear is the cause of nine-tenths of all suffering, whether it be fear of the dark, germs, fire, earthquake or other disaster, according to Dr. William Sadler, of Chicago, in an address before the convention of the Federation of Women's Clubs.

Doctor Sadler also declared that children have not the nervous strength to bear up under the examination given in the schools.

"Examinations are ruining children," he said. "If the teachers do not know whether or not their pupils are ready to pass it is time we got teachers that did."—Chicago Herald.

Busy Work.

The inventive mother will do a great deal of her own constructive planning for the development of her nursery brood. She will visit the kindergarten shops, the toy shops and all the places where the wonderful and much-heralded constructive materials and tools are shown to the purchasing public. More than this she will select for herself such materials as she believes are suited to her own experiences, and then will work out her own plans in accordance with the individual development and requirements of her children.

The occupations best fitted for little children in the home, those which can be conducted with some success by a person untrained or self-trained in kindergarten work, are serving, drawing, painting, weaving, cutting, folding, peas-work, clay modeling, bead stringing and chainmaking.

Mothers who are not apt at inventing paper cut-outs should provide themselves with a book of directions, for paper-cutting is an easy way to teach children children to amuse themselves on rainy days and in the evening, when they are to remain in the house until beditme. It is far better for them than to hear exciting tales of fairy ogres and giant-killers—with the certain results of bad dreams and restless sleep.—Good Housekeeping.

St. Benedicts Work Ball up Court Along Floor—Win by Score of 28-23.

LOCAL SECONDS AHEAD

Dispose of Subs From Newark School, 24 to 21—Both Games On Ninth Street Court Are Rough, But Many Free Throws Are Missed.

Plainfield High School broke even in a double-header basketball clash with St. Benedicts' Prep School, of Newark, here yesterday, the first team losing, 28 to 23, and the second team bringing home the bacon by a 24 to 21 score. Both games were fast and replete with fouls, but the first set-to was more closely contested.

The Saints rolled up a lead of eight markers before any Red and Blue man could locate the basket, and then, for every one Plainfield made, the visitors would trump it.

The second period was in favor of the locals, but so much time was consumed in shooting fouls and arguing that little time was left for anything else. The Newarkers evidently had a strange idea as to what constituted a foul, and after the referee called one it took several seconds to explain what it was for. Pengitore did not get a single field goal in the last period, but accounted for five fouls. Boyle made a pretty shot from near the middle of the court, and followed it up shortly after with another one. Linke, Dunham and Coudray each hit the mark once, while McDowell rung up three fouls during the few minutes he was in the game.

The Saints showed a new kind of passing that was entirely new to the locals, and all through the first half had the Ninth street youngsters guessing. Seldom did the visitors make a straight pass down the court in the afr, but either rolled or bounced the ball, and before the homesters knew where the ball was, Pengitore, who always hung around the basket, grabbed it from the floor and had a basket. It was not until the second period that the Saints tried overhead passing.

The game between the two second teams was full of rought work, but the locals had the beter of the foul shooting. McDowell's two baskets, early in the half, gave the P. H. S. basketeers a lead that couldn't be overcome, and the period ended with them leading by a four-point margin. McDowell was only in during the first half, but in that time made ten of the locals' points, while Kyle and Noonan contributed two apiece.

The visitors got away to a better start in the last period, and managed to hold the P. H. S. lads nearly even. Flynn, after replacing Daly, did some dandy shooting, and if he had been around the whole game might have made things more interesting.

Tomorrow—Yale vs. Rutgers.

Things sure are beginning to tighten up in the P. H. S. College League. After tomorrow's game, four teams may be tied for first place, if Harvard puts up the game it did yesterday afternoon when it handed Princeton a 17 to 11 defeat. Cornell also won yesterday, and was the first team in the league to mar the Rutgers' record. At the end of the half it looked as if Rutgers had the game won, with a lead of five points, but Cornell uncorked a sprint that netted sixteen counters and victory.

With Fawcett doing the best work he has yet displayed, Harvard early took a five-point lead and kept it all through the half. In the last half Wright opened up as a helper of Fawcett, and Harvard crept nearer the top of the league heap, although Princeton made a desperate effort to head them offand for a minute even had the lead. Fawcett scored nearly all of the winners' points, and Smith did the same for Princeton.

Rutgers kept up her gait that has marked her first four league games, in the first half yesterday against Cornell, but the league rule that every man belonging to the team that is on hand is to have half a game proved her undoing, as with nearly a whole new team to start the last half, all signs of teamwork or good shooting passed away, and after being held scoreless in the first session, Cornell came from behind and tallied sixteen points in a few minutes.

Tuesday night—Royal Arcanum vs. Westfield Club.

Charles Montross, the Broad street headliner, continued to play the leading part in his season success, "Murdering the Maples," which is having a long run at the Westfield Playhouse. The Westfield Bowling League star was in exceptionally clever form last night, and in the first and second acts of the Immediate Aid's competition with the Loyal Association team, Mr. Montross scored 247 and 223. Mr. Montross' average for the series was not quite as high as Mary Pickford's annual salary, but it was 17 pins over the select double century mark.

The Aiders, by winning three games, stepped into first place in the league, the Loyals not changing their position for the good and sufficient reason that they were in last place before they lost three games last night. The Loyals made their highest total of the season in the last game, when they rolled 903, but the greedy Immediates won out by 13 pins.

Montross' towering counts weren't the only big games. Nelson shot 233 and Allen 229 in the last game.

Last night's match was the fourth league series between these two teams this year. The Aiders won 11 out of the 12 games rolled.

Schedule.

Tomorrow night—Plainfield at Somerville.

Elizabeth's hopes of capturing the B. P. O. E. Junior League championship again this season were given a severe blow last night, when the Newark Elks, averaging 949 at home, took three games from the titleholders. Elizabeth is now four games behind the leading New Brunswick.

Newark rolled up 977 in the first game, winning by 118 pins. Elizabeth's 902 in the second game was 49 points below Newark's total, while the final was decided by 12 bottles, 919 to 907.

Gilland and Keppler each hit 224 in the first game, while Graef had 222, Williams 220 and Van Bergen 215 in the second. Henry Keller contributed the highest mark of the match in the third game when he rolled 238.

Gilland averaged 201.1, Graef 199.2 and Van Bergen 198.

TREAT INJURIOUS TO THE KIDNEYS

Take a Tablespoonful of Salts if Back Hurts or Bladder Bothers.

[illegible] a nation of meat eaters and our blood is filled with uric acid, says a well-known authority, who warns us to be constantly on guard against kidney [illegible].

The kidneys do their utmost to free the blood of this irritating acid, but sometimes they become overworked and they get sluggish, the eliminative tissues clog and then the waste is retained in the blood to poison the entire system.

When your kidneys ache and feel like lumps of lead, and you have stinging pains in the back or the urine is cloudy, full of sediment, or the bladder is irritable, obliging you to seek relief during the night; when you have nervous headaches, nervous dizziness, sleeplessness, acid stomach or rheumatism in bad weather, before you go to pieces consult your pharmacist about a dozen of Jad Salts; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast each morning and in a few days your kidneys will act fine. This salts is made from the acid of lemon and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for years to flush and stimulate the kidneys, to neutralize the acids in urine so it is no longer a source of irritation, thus ending urinary and bladder disorders.

Jad Salts is inexpensive and cannot injure; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink, and no body can make a mistake by taking a little occasionally to keep the kidneys clean and active.—Adv.

CAN'T BEAT "TIZ" WHEN FEET HURT

"Tiz" for sore, tired, puffed-up, aching, calloused feet or corns.

You can be happy-footed in a moment. Use "Tiz" and never suffer with tender, raw, burning, blistered, swollen, tired, aching feet. "Tiz", and only "Tiz" takes the pain and soreness out of corns, callouses and bunions.

As soon as you put your feet in a "Tiz" bath, you just feel the happiness soaking in. How good your poor old feet feel. They want to dance for joy. "Tiz" is grand. "Tiz" instantly draws out all the poisonous exudations which puff up your feet and cause sore, inflamed, aching, sweaty feet.

Get a 25-cent box of "Tiz" at any drug store or department store. Get instant foot relief. Laugh at foot sufferers who complain. Because your feet are never, never going to bother or make you limp any more.

HOT TEA BREAKS A COLD—TRY THIS

Get a small package of Hamburg Breast Tea, or as the German folks call it, "Hamburger Brust Thee," at any pharmacy. Take a tablespoonful of the tea, put a cup of boiling water upon it, pour through a sieve and drink a teacup full at any time. It is the most effective way to break a cold and cure grip, as it opens the pores, relieving congestion. Also loosens the bowels, thus breaking a cold at once.

It is inexpensive and entirely vegetable, therefore harmless.—Adv.

2 SISTERS DEAD WHEN HOME BURNS

North Plainfielder Called to Brooklyn Early This Morning.

MOTHER IS RESCUED

Seven Women Perish When Home of Mrs. Casimir Tag, Mother of Fred Tag, of This City, Burns During Night.

Two sisters and an aunt of Fred Tag, of Rockview avenue, North Plainfield, lost their lives this morning in a fire that destroyed the Tag home in Brooklyn, burning seven women to death.

Mrs. Casimir Tag, mother of the North Plainfielder, was saved through the heroism of her daughter Caroline, who sacrificed her own life. The beautiful Tag home, one of the handsomest in the fashionable Hancock street section of Brooklyn, was completely destroyed.

The fire occurred near 3 o'clock this morning. Fred Tag was at his home here. He received a message before daylight telling of the death of his two sisters, and rushed to Brooklyn at once.

The list of dead includes Caroline Tag and Helen Tag, twenty-five and thirty-one years of age, respectively, daughters of Mrs. Hannah Tag; Hannah Suarley, sixty-eight, cousin of Mrs. Tag; Miss Jennie F. Steadman, twenty, a trained nurse; Annie Cain, fifty-two, servant; Lizzie Cain, forty-five, servant; Delia ———, cook.

The fire was discovered by Miss Caroline Tag, whose marriage day had been set for February 16.

She was awakened by a suffocating feeling and getting out of bed went to the first floor, where she tried to turn on the electric lights, but for some reason was unable to do so.

Then she went to the telephone and called up her brother, Dr. C. H. Tag, at No. 284 Jefferson avenue. She then notified fire headquarters, after which she went upstairs and aroused the sleeping women. That was the last seen of her alive.

Miss Steadman, the trained nurse, had been in the Tag home only one day. One of the Tag family was ill and Miss Steadman had been engaged only yesterday. She was sleeping in a room on the third floor and is thought to have been suffocated to death.

The fire was caused by defective insulation of electric wires in the house. This opinion is borne out by the fact that when Miss Tag, aroused

EPISCOPALIANS READY FOR PREACHING MISSION

The parish leaflet of Grace church in its February issue, devotes the entire edition to the approaching Mission to be conducted by the Right Reverend Charles E. Woodcock, Bishop of Kentucky. The preparation has been very general and very complete, and the members of all four Episcopal churches feel that everything has been done that might have been done, and now wait with interest the opening service at Grace church on Sunday morning, February 13th.

The "Cottage" meetings which have been a prominent feature in preparing for the Mission, have been successful and well attended. On Wednesday evening last, notwithstanding the inclement weather, many parishioners of Grace church met at the home of Mrs. D. H. Rowland, West Seventh street, and the devotional meeting was greatly enjoyed by all present. Similar meetings are being held in all parts of the city, and will be continued until the end of next week.

SUDDEN DEATH OF MISS PESENGER

Lifeless Body Found Beside Her Bed at Her Home in the Borough.

HAD COUGHING SPELL

Dr. J. H. Buchanan, Who Was Summoned, Believe Death Was Due to Strangulation—County Physician Long Issues Burial Permit.

Members of the Carver family living at 20 Jackson avenue notified the borough police at noon today that Miss Jennie Pesenger, an elderly woman who occupied the apartments above them at the same address, had died suddenly. Chief Marshal George Weiss visited the house and found that Miss Pesenger had expired on the floor beside her bed. Death had ensued only a short time before the discovery, as the body was still warm. The chief called Doctor J. H. Buchanan, who stated after an examination that the woman had evidently been seized with a violent coughing spell, which resulted in strangulation. Countyy Physician William H. Long, of Somerville, was notified and will view the body this afternoon.

Miss Pesenger, who was about sixty-five years old, had lived alone in the Jackson avenue apartment for a long time. The Carver family heard her moving about last night, several times noticing that she was coughing violently. As she had been about yesterday as usual, no more than passing thought was given to the circumstance, but when she failed to appear this morning, an investigation was made today at noon. Miss Pesenger had been in bed, as she was dressed in her night clothing and had probably attempted to get some medicine when the fatal coughing spell seized her.

Miss Pesenger was a native of Brooklyn, but came to Plainfield about 1882. She had a sister living in Newark, who died a year ago, and so far as known, her only relatives are several nephews and nieces in Newark and Brooklyn. Miss Pesenger united with Trinity Reformed church more than thirty years ago and since that time had been active in its work. She also was a frequent attendant at Warren chapel. Outside of her church friends, she had few acquaintances in the city, as she practically lived the life of a recluse. No arrangements have been made for the funeral, pending word from her relatives.

L. B. BEERS LECTURES ON "THE MAINE WOODS"

L. D. Beers gave an interesting illustrated lecture on "The Maine Woods" at the weekly meeting of the Boy Pioneers held yesterday afternoon in the Crescent avenue church. About fifty slides were shown during the course of the lecture. Among these were pictures of a deer, a beaver dam and camp life.

Following the lecture, Mr. Beers gave a short talk in which he showed how the constitution of the organization could be applied to life in the woods. Four new boys were received into the organization. Benton Lawrence was promoted to sachem, and Rufus Searles to assistant guide. Thirty boys were present at the meeting.

STATE ENGINEER MEEKER WOULD NOT BE AFFECTED

The State Board of Agriculture, in a resolution adopted at its meeting on Wednesday, demanded an immediate revision of the laws of the State relating to the improvements of public roas. The association also endorsed the bills introduced by Senator Gaunt, which were drafted by the legislative commission. These bills were so drawn that State Road Commissioner Stevens, State Road Engineer R. A. Meeker, of this city, and Motor Vehicle Commissioner Dill would not be legislated out of office.

CLASSICAL PROGRAM FOR ELMAN CONCERT

Famous Artist Will Include Among His Numbers "Ave Maria" by Request.

Among the numbers which Mischa Elman will play at the concert in the Plainfield High School Auditorium next Wednesday night, arranged under the auspices of the Cheerful Workers' Circle of King's Daughters for the benefit of the Day Nursery, will be 'Ave Maria," from Schubert and Wilhelmi. This selection will be played by special request and is well known to a large number of music lovers. Tickets for the recital are still on sale at Miller's drug store, and although many of them have already been sold, there are still a large number of excellent seats.

During Mischa Elman's past five tours of America, he has played at six hundred concerts and recitals, all of them to capacity audiences, and at most of the concerts, hundreds were turned away. Elman is now making his sixth tour of America and the demands for his concerts indicate it will be his banner year. No matter from which side the life of Mischa Elman is reviewed, the thoughtful student of human events is certain to declare that the young Russian genius is an unsolveable mystery. Gifts like his cannot be explained.

As an artist he charms, fascinates, uplifts, and his influence upon the public is the same, no matter in which country he plays; be his auditors critics, connoisseurs, aristocrats or just plain mortals, it is much the same; all marvel at his accomplishments and wonder at his achievements. When Elman first appeared in this country, the first thing said of him was that he had created a new epoch in violin playing and it is not extravagant to state that the concerts of this wonderfully endowed Russian in America stimulated violin students and the sale of violin compositions to a remarkable degree.

CHAUTAUQUA WEEK PLANS CONSIDERED

Informal Meeting to Discuss the Proposition Was Held Last Evening.

An informal meeting of interested persons was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. M. Sandford in the Crescent Apartment last night, for the purpose of discussing the advisability of holding a Chautauqua week in Plainfield next summer. No definite action was taken. Some of those present were in favor of the proposition and there were still some who were unwilling to commit themselves one way or the other.

The plan was presented at the meeting by a Mr. Getts, who is stopping in the city for a time. His idea is to have the Chautauqua week during warm weather so that it would be possible to have the gatherings in a large tent. The matter is to be discussed at a meeting of the Plainfield Mothers' Association today.

ELKS' AFFAIR A BRILLIANT EVENT

Afternoon of Cards and Evening Dance Draws Two Large Attendances.

MANY FINE PRIZES

Seventy-one Tables Used in Playing 500 and Bridge—Mrs. Robert Gow Chairman of the General Committee.

Success even beyond the most sanguine expectation of the promoters attended the card party and dance conducted under the auspices of the Atlantic City reunion committee in the Elks' Club house on Watchung avenue yesterday afternoon and last night. Fully 300 women gathered in the spacious lodge room in the afternoon to enjoy "500" and bridge; while in the evening many of the same attendants and others took part in a reception and dance. All together, the combined program was one of the largest and most enjoyable social affairs that has taken place under the direction of the local Elks. The primary object for its giving was to offset the deficit of the reunion excursion to the shore resort last September, which was more than overcome.

The assembly rooms of the clubhouse were beautifully decorated for the occasion with palms, plants, cut flowers, flags and bunting. The Elks' colors of purple and white predominated, producing a most artistic effect as they were entertwined through foliage. Charles L. Stanley and Augustus Laggren, both of whom are experts in decorating, exercised the master hand in this direction. A total of seventy-one tables were used in the card playing, so that more than two hundred and eighty women enjoyed the various games. Many others were in the balcony, where they found equal enjoyment in admiring the vari-colored combination produced by the scene below, where the beautiful gowns of the women were in striking contrast to the green of palms and plants about them. Handsome prizes of silverware, cut glass, fancy work and many other articles were awarded. One prize was given to the highest score at each table. The playing was spirited throughout, and the coveted prizes were carried off only after closely contested games.

In the evening the members of the lodge and their friends reassembled for the dance. This also proved as delightful as the preceding affair in the afternoon. Wetton's orchestra furnished the music, and the reception committee made every effort to give a feeling of "home" to all present. Altogether the double program met with the unstinted praise of the guests, and the women friends of the Elks set a new mark for success in informal social events.

Mrs. Robert H. Gow was chairman of the general committee which made the arrangements, and to her untiring efforts much of the credit is due for the subsequent success. She was ably assisted by Mrs. Edward J. Harding, Jr., as secretary, and Mrs. A. E. Force as treasurer.

The sub-committees were as follows:

Reception committee, Mrs. Fred Sanford, Mrs. William R. Townsend, Mrs. George R. Westcott, Mrs. E. A. Giddis, Mrs. S. P. T. Wilbur, Mrs. Walter Apgar, Mrs. W. R. Causebrook, Mrs. P. E. Wisch, Mrs. C. F. Stout, Mrs. William Pope.

PROBASCO CLASS TO GIVE A COMEDY

"A Count of No Account," by A. E. Willis, Will Be Presented Saturday, Feb. 12.

The Probasco Bible Class has decided to present "A Count of No Account," by Anthony E. Wills. The members of the cast have been rehearsing for two months, and much hard work is evidenced by the smoothness with which they go through their parts. This is a delightful French comedy, in which a tramp presumes to fill the shoes of a French count, and, of course, is always in "hot water."

The cast is as follows: Archibald Waring, Carlton L. Smith; James J. Long, Herbert Amundsen; Marvin Short, Robert P. Mitchell; Johann Kramer, Earl B. Pierson; Count Henri Nogoodio, M. E. Stowe; Gen. Iama Terror, N. J. R. Chandler; Si Perkins, Duncan Patterson; Hans, Theodore Glaser; Otto, Harold W. Downs; Mrs. Maria Goodly, James W. Dunwell; Bessie Long, Cedric H. Ostrom; Jessie Short, Irving J. Pratt; Louise, Fred E. Serrell.

The tickets are selling rapidly, and the boys promise all who attend an evening brimful of laughter.

SUPPER FOR NETHERWOOD CHURCH TO BE REPEATED

The turkey supper given for the benefit of the Netherwood Reformed church by the women of the congregation at the home of Horace Adams, 202 Leland avenue, last night, proved such a success that it will be repeated tonight. Many attended the event and after the supper an entertainment was offered that proved pleasing. Miss Florence Disbrow was in charge of the dining room, assisted by Miss Laura Morris and Miss Naomi Fritts. Others who were in charge of various parts of the program were Mrs. Burke, Miss Norris, Miss Edith Adams, Mrs. Pierson, Mrs. Morton, Mrs. Nielson, Mrs. Bergman, Mrs. Telfar, Mrs. Adams, Mrs. Carson, Mrs. Young, Mrs. Daily, Mrs. Andrews. A cornet solo was rendered by Miss Dorothy Seader, assisted by Ralph Martin. Mrs. Ralph Martin also took part in the musical program. Mrs. S. O. Rush is general chairman of the supper committees.

David T. Kenney Told Commerce Chamber Ordinance Should Be Changed.

FLOODS ALSO A TOPIC

Civic Body Meeting Last Night Brought Out Healthy Discussion of Local Matters—Mr. Kenney Accepts the Presidency.

"Safety First" was the general topic under discussion at the February meeting of the Chamber of Commerce last night. There was an unusually large attendance of members, as well as Councilmen L. M. Booth, Charles C. Graves and Charles S. Sminck, of this city, and Councilman Julius J. Stahl, of the borough, and Fire Chief T. O. Doane and others who were theer as specially invited guests.

After David T. Kenney, who was elected president of the organization at the last meeting, acknowledged through a letter, his acceptance of the office to succeed Paul H. Burns, he presented several matters which are considered by him to be of vital importance to the city. These included the improvement of Green brook and Cedar brook, whereby it would safeguard the city in the future from flood conditions, and the building code which permits a person to erect a building in Plainfield any height they desire.

As the result of this agitation, the Chamber adopted resolutions urging the passage of Assembly bill No. 47, which provides that any obstructions to waterways may be removed. This bill was brought to the attention of the members by Mr. Sminck, who has made a study of conditions in the East End, where there are several dams in the water way of Green brook, which, it is believed, are responsible for floods in heavy rains.

The Chamber also adopted a resolution requesting the Common Council to obtain an engineer's report on conditions surrounding Cedar brook, with the idea of taking the matter up with the Board of Freeholders, it being the opinion that if the board is thoroughly acquainted with conditions and are given something definite to work upon they will be willing to lend their aid to the desired improvements.

Mr. Sminck especially called attention to conditions in the East End where he resides, explaining that that section was one of the most desirable in which to live notwithstanding

MEMORIAL SERVICE FOR REV. L. E. LIVERMORE

A memorial service for the late Rev. L. E. Livermore, three times pastor of the Seventh Day Baptist church in this village, will be held in that church tomorrow morning at 10:30, taking the place of the regular Sabbath morning service.

The chief speaker will be the Rev. Dr. T. L. Gardner, of Plainfield. Talks by different members of the congregation will also be given, the speakers dealing with incidents in the life of the deceased pastor. Special music is being prepared for the service, which everyone is invited to attend.

KING BRADY HAS NARROW ESCAPE AT DUNELLEN

King Brady, general service man under Robert S. Craig, head of the local office force of the Levgar Structural Company, narrowly escaped being run down by a New York train near the Chestnut street crossing yesterday. Brady was riding on one of the large auto trucks which have been carting heavy structural iron for the Levgar concern since the embargo was put on freight. As the truck was crossing the Chestnuet street crossing it stalled just as a train was approaching. Brady became excited, and, jumping off the truck, started down the middle of the track towards the approaching train waving his hands. The truck started up after a pause of a second or two and rapidly left the danger zone. The men in charge of the truck yelled at Brady, but he did not hear them. Eyewitnesses say that Brady, in his excitement, miscalculated the rapidity with which the train was approaching, and just missed being run down himself.

MARVELS OF ACCURACY.

Wonderful Instruments in Uncle Sam's Bureau of Standards.

Standing on one of the many high hills that fringe the nation's capital is a group of buildings that house one of the greatest aggregations of wonder workers in the new world. In their enchanted chamber truth makes fiction seem tame and commonplace. Men make fairies appear, weak, insipid and impotent as doers of strange things.

Entering, one may see a grain of sand become a mountain, an inch become a mile, an unappreciable zephyr become a howling storm, the footfall of a fly become the thundering tread of a draft horse upon a thrashing floor, the heat of a candle a roaring furnace, the unperceived warmth of a star a cheering fireside and the pressure of a finger the force of a thousand giants in one.

These enchanted chambers are the creation of the United States bureau of standards.

Here can be seen instruments of such delicacy and precision that the mind at first fails to grasp the full significance of what they can accomplish.

In one room is a balance so sensitive that the mere presence of the operator's body generates an amount of heat sufficient to disturb its accuracy.

In another there is one so delicately adjusted that it shows the loss of weight due to the reduction of the earth's attraction when two pieces of metal are weighed one upon another instead of side by side.

Remarkable beyond the imagination are the heat measuring instruments which register infinitesimal fluctuations of temperature. A ray of light may have started ten years ago from some distant star and may have spent all of those ten years hurtling earthward bound through space at a gait so astounding that it could girdle the globe in far less time than it takes to blink the eye. Yet when it falls upon the sensitive bolometers at the bureau of standards they will tell the observer how much heat that ray brought with it from the star to the earth.

Such are a few of the most delicate instruments. But there are others which are as powerful as they are sensitive.

In the engineering laboratory there is a huge testing machine which can tear apart the strongest steel girders used in building great skyscrapers, while on the floor above are little electrical furnaces capable of generating a heat intense enough to melt the most refractory materials. The bureau can measure accurately cold great enough to liquefy the very air we breathe and heat which can melt solid rock.—National Geographic Magazine.

"Women's Tongues" of Nassau.
You emerge from the custom house shed of Nassau of the Bahamas into the warm, spicy murmur of the negro thronged street that tells you that you are in the tropics. This murmur you soon perceive is compounded of a curious soft shuffling of feet—the effect of the loose down at heel shoes or slippers affected by the negroes—the soft, cooing darky voices, pathetically childlike and friendly, to which a note of exhilaration is added by a breezy rattling overhead that puzzles you till you discover its origin in the great bean pods of the poinciana trees. "Women's tongues," the natives call them, because of their keeping up this continuous streamlike chatter even on the stillest day.—Richard Le Gallienne in Harper's Magazine.

The Human Voice.
You may find two persons who resemble each other. You may find them of the same size and weight and complexion—and disposition. But you will never find two whose voices are the same. For there seems to be that about a human voice which is individual, never to be copied, never to be resembled by any other.

There is not another person upon the whole earth whose voice could deceive you as being the voice of an acquaintance, whether you catch only a few faint whispers or hear it distinctly.—Columbus Dispatch.

Von Moltke In Arabia.
The most famous of German leaders, Von Moltke, gained his first taste of warfare in Turkish Arabia in 1839. The future "organizer of victories" was attached to the sultan's armies, which were utterly routed by the Syrians under Brahman Pasha at Nezib, and he escaped only by riding two days and two nights almost without a pause and with no food save half a biscuit, two onions and a glass of water.—London Opinion.

Ink Erasing Blotter.
Take an ordinary sheet of blotting paper and steep it several times in a solution of oxalic acid or potassium oxalate and dry. While the ink spot is still moist apply the blotter, and the ink will be entirely removed. If the ink is dry moisten and apply the blotter.—Popular Science Monthly.

The Doctor Knows.
"Humanity owes a great many debts to medical science," observed the philosopher.
"That's right," agreed the physician "You would be surprised if you knew how hard it is for a doctor to collect his bills."—Spokane Review.

Marvelous.
He—There is no doubt that nature's works are indeed marvelous. She—Aren't they? Only fancy, even the tiniest insect has its Latin name.—London M. A. P.

The Russian Moujiks.
After he had smashed a Russian army and overrun a province Napoleon collected the moujiks and told them that henceforth they belonged to him and France. They glared at him and gave him the lie. He shot some of them, but the rest were adamant. Then he had one moujik branded on the left arm with the letter N. "Now," he said, "you belong to me." The moujik lifted to the conqueror's face his bloodshot eyes under his shaggy mane of hair, and then, seizing a hatchet, lopped off the left arm and let the bleeding limb fall at Napoleon's feet. "That is yours," he growled, "but the rest of my body and my heart belong to holy Russia and the czar." And from that hour Napoleon realized what he was up against.—New York Sun.

How Italian Soldiers Behave.
The Italian soldier gets a very high character from Richard Bagot in his "Italians of Today." "To see an Italian soldier drunk or in any way misconducting himself in a public place is exceedingly rare—so rare indeed that it would create a very disagreeable impression on the witnesses. Indeed, the men of any one of the more important Italian regiments who misconducted themselves in a public place would, in addition to the severe punishment administered by the regimental authorities, undergo a very bad time of it at the hands of their own comrades."—London Globe.

ACID IN STOMACH SOURS THE FOOD

Says Excess of Hydrochloric Acid is Cause of Indigestion.

A well-known authority states that stomach trouble and indigestion is nearly always due to acidity—acid stomach—and not, as most folks believe, from a lack of digestive juices. He states that an excess of hydrochloric acid in the stomach retards digestion and starts food fermentation, then our meals sour like garbage in a can, forming acrid fluids and gases, which inflate the stomach like a toy balloon. We then get that heavy, lumpy feeling in the chest, we eructate sour food, belch gas, or have heartburn, flatulence, waterbrash or nausea.

He tells us to lay aside all digestive aids, and instead get from any pharmacy four ounces of Jad Salts and take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast while it is effervescing, and, furthermore, to continue this for one week. While relief follows the first dose, it is important to neutralize the acidity, remove the gas-making mass, start the liver, stimulate the kidneys and thus promote a free flow of pure digestive juices.

Jad Salts is inexpensive and is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia and sodium phosphate. This harmless salts is used by thousands of people for stomach trouble with excellent results.

HARDWARE, TOOLS AND CUTLERY.

The spot-light of full publicity, turned on a store, reveals and places in that full light a store's defects—if it have defects. For example: If high prices prevail, or lines of goods are not kept up to date, the reader of the store advertisements knows it. It follows that advertising "pays" the store that renders real service—and would not pay the other kind of a store.

GERMAN PLANES SURPASS OTHERS

Spiraling From Above, Ring Cone of Fire Around Victim.

FLY AT A TERRIFIC SPEED.

Also Can Climb at Amazing Rate and Attack a Helpless Quarry From Beneath—Shoot from Propeller at Almost Any Angle, Just as a Battleship.

Sir E. Cornwall's question in the house of commons respecting German Fokker machines and the reply of Harold J. Tennant, parliamentary under secretary for war, dealt with a subject which latterly has been arousing British apprehensions. The Daily Mail emphasized British headquarters reports of losses of British air craft in France, which totaled sixteen in a month, and suggested that Fokkers would accompany Zeppelins when Germany made her next raid on London. The Mail refuses to accept Mr. Tennant's explanations as satisfactory.

Recently a young English aviator wrote:

"That Herr Immelmann is the very devil. He flies a Fokker monoplane, shoots through his propeller and flies beautifully. I have met him twice and got off drums of ammunition at him, but with no result on either side barring a few holes in the wings."

Conversations with several British air men do not indicate that if the Germans really have the idea of frightening enemy air men their plan will be successful. On the contrary, it is the chief ambition of British air men at the front to engage a Fokker.

Amenities of Naval Warfare.

The aerial war is conducted with the courtesies of Fontenoy. Both British and German air men frequently exchange tidings of aviators who have come to grief by dropping written messages within the hostile lines. "Both flying corps respect each other and act like gentlemen," said one aviator.

The Fokker machine is the invention of a young Dutchman who lived in Germany. About 1911 or 1912 he built a weird looking, unexplainable monoplane which few quite well long before the scientists of other countries had put their theories into practice and had produced the inherently stable biplanes, of which so much has been heard. In this country there was at the time some question of these early Fokker monoplanes being imported by one of the British flying services, but their construction was so bad that the inspecting officers did not dare to ask Pots to risk their lives on them. The new Fokkers are the very opposite to the maker's early effort. All attempt to balance has been abandoned, and they are designed to be absolutely under control of the pilot in every position. This is what makes them such dangerous opponents, as they can maneuver with lightning speed.

Most of those machines carry a passenger in front, who works a machine gun, but others have the gun fixed on top of the engine and firing through the propeller, or rather tractor screw, to be technically correct. In the latter case the gun is aimed by steering the whole aeroplane to suit, like Judson's Indian opponent in Kipling's story.

Favorite Method of Attack.

The favorite method of attack is for Fokker to get up high, to about 1,500 feet or so, and hang around till one of the allies' machines appears in sight below. Then, if of the fixed gun type, the Fokker stands on its head and goes straight for its victim, loosing off a stream of bullets as soon as it gets within range. By making the descent over so slightly spiral the straight stream of bullets becomes a cone of fire, with its apex at the gun and with the victim inside, so that whichever way the lower machine tries to escape it must pass through that cone. When the Fokker gets close to the enemy, if he be not already hit, it approaches directly from behind, firing straight along the body or fusilage, so as to give pilot, passenger, tanks and engine all in one line of fire, and unless the pursued machine is very quick on its controls and is able to dodge like a rabbit some vital part is bound to be hit sooner or later.

Many Fokkers fire through their propellers. It appears that the propeller blades are fitted with deflector plates to turn aside such bullets as hit the blades. Only about five or six bullets in a hundred are likely to hit the blades, and the ninety odd pass between the blades straight for the target. This deflector dodge was first tried by the French aviator Garros, who was shot down and captured in Flanders some months ago.

Fokkers which do not fire through the propellers almost always attack their victims from behind, diving under their tails and coming up in such a position that, while they can shoot up into the body of the pursued machine, the passenger in that machine, even if sitting behind the pilot, cannot shoot at the Fokker for fear of blowing his own tail off.

FUNNY MONEY IN CHINA.

Getting or Making Change Is a Sore Trial to a Foreigner.

A dollar of our money in Chinese cash weighs eighteen pounds.

In Chentefu, which is a small village where white people seldom go, I was going along with my guide when I saw a small peddler beside the street with some fine Peking pears. I bought six of them for 2½ cents and in payment gave the street peddler a twenty cent piece. He turned it over and over and tested it with his thumb nail, which was surely made for the purpose. The peddler gave back the coin and said that he would not take it. The guide asked him why, and he explained that he had never seen any such money and that it might be bad. So I had to dig up some coppers.

In all his life the peddler had never seen a piece of silver money. There are thousands and thousands of people in China whose financial dealings never amount to enough to have it put into silver, who are born, grow old and pass to their reward without ever having seen a piece of silver.

All China is suspicious about money. Every time you put down a dime or a piece of silver the other person tests it before he will take it, ringing it on the counter or on the pavement. You can't give a merchant the right amount of change and walk off. He won't let you leave until he has tested every piece, and he always gives back one or two pieces. He wouldn't think very much of himself as a merchant if he didn't refuse some of your money.

If you buy something in one part of a store, get your change and walk to another counter and buy something else and give the change that has just been given you the second clerk on general principles will refuse part of it.

Before you buy anything your money has to have the once over. Sometimes it is maddening to have to wait while your money is tested. One day I rushed up to catch a train with just a minute to spare. One of my dollars was bad, and before change could be made the train had rumbled off into the silent [illegible] a few minutes the silence was broken—broken beyond repair—by an impulsive young man 6,000 miles from home who put his whole soul into one mighty Missouri effort.—Homer Croy in Leslie's.

LIFE OF A PEARL.

A Good Jewel Never Gets Sick Nor Dull, Says an Expert.

In his book, "The Magic of Jewels and Charms," George F. Kunz, the jewel expert, explodes the sick pearl fallacy. He says:

"For years a statement has been going through the press that pearls are liable to become diseased and die and that the famous necklace of pearls presented by President Thiers of France to his wife and bequeathed by Mme Thiers to the French government had lost their luster and died, perhaps owing to the death of the owner. For there is an old belief that pearls, as well as opals and turquoises, lose some of their luster when the owner or wearer becomes ill and change to a dull and lifeless hue when the owner dies.

"An examination of the necklace by the writer showed that the pearls were in good condition, and to confirm his statement to this effect he had the director of the Louvre museum write him a letter. In this official communication the director not only states that the pearls had not sickened and died but that they were in as 'healthy' a condition as they had ever been.

"The invariable experience of the writer has been that whenever pearls have been said to have suffered in this way the true explanation has been that they were old and poor at the time of their purchase and that this romance was started on its travels as an excuse to cover up the defect of such pearls and to arouse the belief that they had been remarkably beautiful and valuable when they were originally acquired."

The Cart Before the Horse.

Mr. Harbord had a jewel of a servant called Johanna. One day he found his bedroom a foot deep in old and muddy tea leaves. Johanna explained: "The missus said I made such a dust when I swept the floor and that I must put tea leaves all over the carpet, so I emptied the old barrel standing by the kitchen door, and I put them on the floor like missus said, master, after I had swept the carpet."—London Telegraph.

Buried Alive.

In the early history of Japan it was decidedly a dubious honor to be closely related to any person of note, for one of the laws at that time decreed that when a person of rank or importance died all immediate relatives must be buried alive in a perpendicular position around the personage's grave. Their heads were left above the earth, and thus they remained until welcome death came to free them.

Quick Lunch Episode.

"You tip the waiter, and I don't."

"Well?"

"Yet he gave us both the same amount of clam chowder."

"You are unobservant, my friend. He dipped yours from the top and mine from the bottom, where the ingredients are."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

Honey.

Honey has been known from the earliest times. The Scriptures make mention of it, and pagan writers celebrated its virtues. It was called "the milk of the aged" and was thought to prolong life. Honey was also used in the embalming of the body after death.

FREEHOLDERS TO CONTINUE AUDIT

Examination of Late County Clerk's Accounts to Extend Back to Nov., 1909.

REPORT IS ACCEPTED

Legislation Will Be Sought Giving the Board Control Over the Accounts of All County Officials Which it Does Not Now Possess.

Elizabeth, Feb. 4.—The Board of Freeholders at its meeting yesterday afternoon accepted a report of its appropriation committee recommending that the audit which has been made of the late County Clerk James C. Calvert's accounts for two years be continued back to November 15, 1909, the time at which the fee system was abolished in this county. Up to that time all fees went to the county clerk. This report also carried a recommendation, which was accepted, to the effect that the legislative committee secure legislation giving the Board control over the accounts of the county clerk, surrogate, sheriff and register—control which it does not now possess.

It also complied with the request of County Clerk Abram P. Morris by accepting the audit made, instead of making a new one of its own, the other alternative in his request. The audit was appended to the committee's report and showed that $18,7[illegible] was due the county, state, and the county municipalities from the late county clerk. This sum was turned over during the week by counsel for Mr. Calvert's executrix.

In view of the various rumors afloat concerning unsystematic bookkeeping methods of the late official, the committee [illegible] that the adoption of the audit was made necessary because of the sudden death of Mr. Calvert, which did not permit of another being made within a brief period.

County Clerk Abram P. Morris reported that Neil McLeod of his office had been named as his cashier under a bond of $5,000.

The recommendation for an increase in the salary of Jail Physician Horace R. Livengood, from $300 to $400 per year was held up for investigation because of the question of law as to whether or not his salary can be raised during his term.

Harvey Miller and Robert Faulkes, jail keepers, were increased from $750 to $950 and $900, respectively. The New Jersey and Staten Island Ferry Company informed the Board that it had no power to forbid the charging of fares to children between the ages of five and ten years. The matter was referred to the ferry committee. County Clerk Morris informed the Board that Justice Bergen had designated the National State Bank and the Union County Trust Co., both of Elizabeth, as depositories for county monies.

John W. Clift, of Summit, representing county publishers, protested against the publication of the Board's minutes for $100 yearly. He asked that the sum be increased to $250, or else that the publication of bills and claims be eliminated. Referred to the publication committee. Members of county road committee were authorized to attend the American Road Builders' Convention at Pittsburg, February 28.

NEED MONEY TO CARE FOR CARRIERS

Local Committee Wants to Bring New Yorkers With Band and Drum Corps.

Whether or not the leter carriers of New York are to be invited to attend the annual convention of the New Jersey Letter Carriers' Association to be held in Plainfield on May 30, depends on the manner in which contributions to the fund are received today and tomorrow. A meeting of the citizen's committee of 100 which is arranging for the convention is to be held Sunday, and representatives of the New York carriers will be present. It is desired that they atend, but local men will not invite them unless it is assured that sufficient funds will be available to make a good showing in the parade and to provide adequate entertainment for all visitors.

If the New Yorkers come they will bring their band of 40 pieces. There will also be a fife and drum corps of 40 pieces. There will also be a number of other bands from Newark, Elizabeth, Plainfield and other cities.

If members of the committee are assured of the fund of $1,200 which they have asked they will arrange for a parade of 1,500 people, which would bring thousands of visitors here and give the city a great deal of valuable advertising. An encouraging response has been made to letters asking for contributions sent out recently, but not sufficient money has been offered to guarantee the success of the celebration. Members of the committee made the following appeal this morning:

"Whether we are to have a small convention and a little parade, or a splendid parade and celebration befitting the first letter carriers convention to be held here in 17 years will be determined by the financial support of the Plainfield citizens.

"The local carriers cannot finance a convention and celebration befitting our city without the help of our citizens, and will have to arrange for a convention in accordance with the money conotributed. The appeal for funds was made with the intention of making this a day of honor and advertisement for Plainfield, and we are all desirous of sending forth over the State and to New York a remembrance of a celebration long to be remembered.

"It is therefore desired that a liberal response be made by us all that we may be known as a city that knows how, and is willing to spend our good money that our friends may be entertained in manner befitting the Queen City of the east."

SKY LIMIT FOR BUILDINGS

that on numerous occasions it had been covered with water owing to flood conditions. He said that the soil is sandy and within a very short time after the hardest rain the surface water quickly disappears.

Daniel F. Dugan spoke of the conditions about Cedar brook, adding that in his experience that watercourse had always been able to take care of its flow except when Green brook overflowed. He said that in the vicinity of Berckman street the brook had been narrowed down and the course of the stream otherwise interfered with. This he thought should be remedied.

As to the building code which permits of the erection in the city of a building any height, Mr. Kenney read a correspondence he had had with Fire Chief T. O. Doane. In his letter he informed Mr. Doane that he contemplated the erection of a store and office building to face on both North avenue and Second street this building to be one of modern steel construction and built on a lot which measures about 70 feet front and rear by about two hundred feet in depth. He asked Mr. Doane the limit in height one is allowed to build. In reply, he was told that he could go any height.

Mr. Kenney believed this to be a matter of serious importance to the welfare of Plainfield in general. He said that in New York where the "sky is the limit," owners of buildings and others are realizing the folly of such freedom in building and in consequence there are any number of empty buildings in New York, the tenants having been attracted to other modern structures through flattering inducements. Mr. Kenney said that he could forsee such conditions here if such a thing was permitted by the building code. Mr. Kenney outlined the matters he brought before the Chamber as follows:

"In a desire to assist in the betterment of this community there are some matters which should be brought to the attention of the citizens of Plainfield, North Plainfield and vicinity.

"It seems to me that this organized body, the Chamber of Commerce, might properly bring some of the matters I propose to discuss, to the attention of the authorities enabled to act.

"The first subject will be 'Safety First.' I have invited our good and popular mayors, Leighton Calkins and William L. Smalley, to be with us tonight, also the faithful city engineer, Andrew Gavett, H. C. Van Emburgh, borough engineer, F. J Hubbard and F. A. Dunham, the well known civil engineers, and the members of the Common Councils of the city and borough; also the Board of Freeholders of Union and Somerset Counties, all of whom may be interested.

"A year or more ago, or more recently, I have talked with City Engineer Gavett, about the possibility of flood in Plainfield, which might do very great damage to both property and health. You will no doubt recall the flood of last summer when the Cedar brook section, and the easterly or northeasterly section of Plainfield was under water, how much damage was done in the aggregate I do not know. I do believe, however, that it was many thousands of dollars, but perhaps the cause of some sickness, perhaps deaths. Had the heavy downfall of rain which was of short duration lasted a few hours longer, you should not have been surprised if the center of the business district was added to the flood area, with additional great damage to a large residential section.

"You are, of course, aware of the fact that additional streets and roads are being opened up, all of which provide an easy channel for the outlet of heavy rains. Where is the water to go? Will Green brook take care of it? Will Cedar brook take care of it?

"Immediately after the flood of last August, I made a personal superficial investigation of most of the flooded area and among the buildings affected, I found water overflowing from Cedar brook into the cellar of Evergreen avenue school.

"Look at the conditions existing just beyond Berckman street northward along Cedar brook, this and also the Green brook conditions should be looked into by those in authority. By their (the municipalities and counties) getting a responsible engineer's report and acting upon it.

'Another matter which I believe to be of serious importance, to ask the authorities to act upon and settle, is the height of buildings. Now, suppose I should build a twelve-story building here in Plainfield, of course it would be a building boom, a lot of men put to work and a lot of material used. How about your neighbor with a three or four story building? The first thing for me to do would be to invite the tenants out of the small building into the large building, with all its up-to-date equipment and other inducements Would the large building enhanse the value of the small building? I ask the owners of the small buildings what they think? Ask the owners of small buildings on Manhattan Island what they think? Yes, ask owners of twelve story buildings up and down Broadway and across town, and in the financial district, how it has effected them. Yet Manhattan Islanders, it might have been claimed, had an excuse to build high, with a river bordering on all sides and nowhere else to build but up in the air. But today I am inclined to think it would be better to take down the high buildings to a moderate level when it would be found that fire conditions and transportation could be easier handled, and the property owners made happy again.

"I am putting this argument forward for your consideration, that you act on it in order to present your views to the governing bodies."

ALLIED CAPTIVES BY THOUSANDS IN GERMAN PRISON CAMP

A few of the prisoners in German concentration camp at Koenigsbruck.

Germany has shown the same spirit of organization in her concentration camps for war prisoners as she has in the rest of her military plans. At Koenigsbruck, Germany, is located the largest prison camp in the country. Here over ten thousand allied prisoners of war compose the population of a newly erected city, where the prisoners do useful work and live with tolerable comfort, at least safe from the bursting bombs and whistling bullets.

Building a Small House.

When the prospective owner of a small house determines at last to build the home to which he has been aspiring for, perhaps, many years, he faces the consideration with the realization of a complex problem—the necessity of harmonizing the ideal that has formed in his years of anticipation with the sternalities of the actual building. Concisely stated, his problem is this: To combine the five desirables—space, charm, distinction, utility and comfort—with the sixth, economy, within the apparently limited allowance of the small house. Sometimes he succeeds in this. Generally he yields to the difficulties presented and sacrifices one or more of the desirable qualities, thankful to get a finished house after all the dissension ensuant with building progress. When, however, a home builder succeeds in the combining of all these qualities in the construction of his house the achievement is worthy of record.—Raymond Comstock in Countryside Magazine.

Never Eat What You Dislike.

I am constrained to protest against the advice given mothers to oblige their children to eat food which they dislike. Most grown people have their likes and dislikes, and if it were punishment to them to eat a despised article how much more so it is to a child to whom small troubles loom as tragedies! The child's distaste should not be discussed, simply ignored until he has forgotten how much he hated a certain article. There are so many good and nourishing things that if one is at all disliked how much better to substitute something else, thereby avoiding issues and friction, which every one knows are harmful to a child's nerves and health and disposition as well. And, as for letting a child go without his needed nourishment till next meal if he refuses one article, the injustice of it is too apparent to need comment.—Woman's Home Companion.

Sing Different Songs.

"Pa, you sing bass in the choir, don't you?" asked Bobby Smithers.

"Yes, my son," replied Smithers.

"And ma sings soprano?"

"That's right."

"Well, there's one thing I don't understand."

"What is it?"

"Mrs. Tompkins says you sing mighty big in public and mighty small at home."—Philadelphia Ledger.

FRANTIC THRONG SEES TABS WIN

Exciting City League Match on Knights' Alleys—Jim Scott Stars.

MAY BE TRIPLE TIE

Tabs, Imperials and Eagles Will Be on Even Terms if Latter Win Two Tonight—Jim O'Keefe Produces Sensation by Making the 6-7 Split.

Knights of Col.	3	6	.333	902

Schedule.

Tonight—Imperials at Eagles.

Before one of the largest, most enthusiastic galleries that ever rooted at a bowling match in this city, the Tabs won two games on the Knights of Columbus alleys last night. The winners went into second place, passing the Eagles. It was the third straight defeat for the Knights in the league. The Imperials roll on the Eagles' alleys tonight, and if the Eagles win two games, there will be a triple tie for first place.

The Abstainers plucked the rubber game by spectacular work. There was much good spare bowling, Jim O'Keefe making the feature split when he negotiated the 6-7, a feat that drew applause from the supporters of both teams.

The spectators were lined up four and five deep, the length of the alleys. The noise was terrific at times, neither team's supporters sparing their voices in their efforts to lend vocal encouragement. The fact that the Tabs were victorious on their rivals' alleys must go down as one of the season's most creditable achievements.

No records of the new league were broken, but both the team and individual marks were threatened. Jim Scott, who was the individual star of the pretty series, had two good games, and is now the average leader of the league. In the first game, Jim touched 224, which is only three pins shy of Harry Radin's record. In the last game, Bill Skinner was going like a house afire, but after striking out in the six frames from the second to the eighth, he lost a chance to tie Radin's record by going over the foul line on his second ball in the ninth inning.

The Tabs, who are lacking a fifth experienced man to roll with the four veterans, used Dick Lawton, who has been bowling only a short time. The youngster did nobly, and for the three games he totaled only six less pins than George Howe, captain of the Knights, who was paired against him.

The Tabs breezed in ahead in the first game by a margin of 49 pins, 869 to 820. Scotty was the leader in this game, while Joe Sullivan was the only Knight who was up to scratch.

There was little to the second game, the Knights winning by 117 pins, 901 to 784. John Duffy led with 190, and went up to 203 in the third.

The Tabs at one time had an excellent chance for a thousand score in the final, but the breaks went against them in the eight and ninth, and they stopped at 944, 74 bottles in front of the homesters. O'Keefe added his 195 to the double centuries of Scott and Skinner.

INSTALL EXTRA SEATS FOR TITULAR CONTEST

Second P. H. S.—N. P. H. S. Basketball Fight Tomorrow in Saengerbund.

Playing on their own courts the North Plainfield High School basketballers will enter the second contest of the local Interscholastic League tomorrow afternoon with Plainfield High School, determined to even matters up with the city team. The contest will be staged in Saengerbund Hall, commencing at 3 o'clock, with Joe Beirns officiating.

The last contest between these two schools was played in the P. H. S. gymnasium three weeks ago, the White and Blue team triumphing by a two point margin, the score ending 19-17.

Foul shooting will figure conspicuously in the scoring of both teams. By shooting eleven fouls, two more than his opponent, "Bus" Dunham was able to give P. H. S. the final victory, as both factions scored the same number of field goals. The importance of this department is realized, and both teams have had their foul shooters practicing earnestly.

Accommodations have been made for a large crowd, extra seats having been put up in Saengerbund Hall. Arrangements have been made for the cheering sections of both schools. N. P. H. S. will have the use of the stage, while their rivals will also be seated downstairs.

The two teams will take their positions as follows:

P. H. S. STUDENTS PREPARING FOR SECOND N. P. H. S. BATTLE

The Plainfield High School students are holding a monster mass meeting this afternoon in the school gymnasium, to prepare yells and songs to be used in cheering the Red and Blue basketeers to a second victory over N. P. H. S. in Saengerbund Hall tomorrow afternoon. The student plan is to meet at the school, each one bringing a tin pan or some other noise maker. They will proceed in a body down Park avenue and across the brook to Saengerbund Hall. The basketball squad held its last workout yesterday afternoon on the Saengerbund Hall court, and is in fine trim to annex another game, and by so doing, the city scholastic championship.

The Elizabeths won the first game by 39 pins, 804 to 765. The Betsytowners totaled 901 in the second game, Somerville stopping 832. In the last game the homesters were there for 796, and the visitors won with 843.

R. S. PATCH OFFICER IN THE N. J. H. S. A. L.

Plainfielder Made Secretary-Treasurer—Will Include Two Other Sports.

Ralph S. Patch, director of athletics at the Plainfield High School, was elected secretary and treasurer of the recently formed New Jersey High Schools Athletic League at the second meeting of the body in Battin High School, Elizabeth, yesterday. Ira Sheppard, of South Side High School, Newark, was made president, and Leon Campbell, of New Brunswick High School, was chosen vice president.

It was decided to embrace baseball and basketball, as well as football, but the league will not begin its activities until the next school year, which begins in September.

The body may regulate track athletics also, and it is likely that a meet will be held next year. Another decision arrived at yesterday was that officials for four league games must be agreed upon by the schools interested at least one week before a game.

All the schools were represented at the meeting. Mr. Patch was unable to be present, and Edward Crone represented Plainfield High School.

RAHWAY MASONS NOW LEAD COUNTY BOWLING LEAGUE

Last year, when Plainfield had two teams in the Union County Masonic League, all the honors were cornered by Elizabeth bowlers, but things are different this season. NEW GUARDS ON K. C.

Jack Wilson Tries His Hand at Game—Plainfield Five Swamps Y. W. C. A. Girls, Miss Helen Hummel Dropping in Eighteen Field Goals.

Knights of Columbus basketeers had little difficulty in annexing the game played on the Columbus Club court last night, when they lined up against the Madison Five, of Elizabeth. The final score was 38 to 20.

From the very beginning the home team had things pretty much its own way, and the spheroid was kept constantly in the territory of the home goal. Every member on the Columbus Club five shared in the point getting, while Bostock and Houstan were the chief scorers for the Elizabethans.

Coyle is scheduled to be the foul shooter in future games for the Knights, and his ability to get his eye on the basket was demonstrated last night, when he tallied nine of the one-point variety.

The score:

The Plainfield Five basketball team boasted another victory last night on the Columbus Club court, defeating the Young Women's Christian Association by the overwhelming score of 58 to 4. This is the sixth consecutive victory for the West Front street girls.

During the first half the visitors were held to four points while the home team made thirty-three tallies, which were divided between the Misses Helen Hummel and Helen Bryniarski. The former numbered twelve goals and three fouls, while the lafer accounted for three goals. Miss Nettie Steiner and Miss Ethel Blazier did the scoring for the Y. W. C. A.

In the second period the Plainfield Five guards, Miss Clara Smith and Miss Elsie Debele, held the East Front street aggregation scoreless. Features of this session were two beautiful field goals thrown from center by the Misses Theresa McCullough and Mildred McAuliffe.

A ROYAL MYSTERY

Most Famous State Secret of the Reign of Louis XIV.

THE MAN IN THE IRON MASK.

Who the Unfortunate Prisoner Was Has Never Been Disclosed, and When He Died His Body Was Destroyed by Chemicals In His Casket.

A famous state mystery of the reign of Louis XIV. of France was the mysterious prisoner, the Man In the Iron Mask. Many are the guesses which have been ventured as to who he was. Plays and novels have been written with the iron mask as the central character, but his identity has remained a secret. It is known without doubt that St. Mars during his life had as a prisoner a man whose face always was covered with a mask of black velvet fastened by springs of steel behind the head.

The guards had orders to kill the man if he ever exposed his face, and St. Mars' own life depended on no body finding out who his prisoner was. His first prison was the castle of Pignerol. When St. Mars was transferred to the isles of St. Marguerite the king himself told the jailer to take his prisoner with him and cautioned him not to let him speak to any one, even his guards.

On the night of April 20, 1674, a closed litter escorted by a troop of horses stopped at Bron, some leagues from Lyons. From the litter descended a young man of slim and active figure his face hidden by a mask and his hands firmly tied, in which state he lay down on a couch prepared beforehand. Next day ten horsemen arrived with sealed orders to convey the prisoner with the utmost secrecy to the fortress of Pignerol. So it was the Man In the Iron Mask began his twenty-nine years of captivity under the impassive, silent, remorseless St Mars.

Several years later the man of the mask was seen again when St. Mars was transferred to St. Marguerite. This time troopers surrounded a chair covered with waxed cloth. The travelers stopped at an inn for supper. The more daring of the curious peasants peeked through a small window from outside the locked supper room. The prisoner sat with his back to the window, and they could not tell whether he had on his mask. St. Mars sat opposite him with a pistol on each side of his plate.

This prisoner was the subject of much correspondence between St. Mars and Louis XIV. of France. Louis continually was asking about him. He gave full instructions as to the care of the man, and about the cell he was to occupy the king wrote:

"Let there be so many doors closed one after the other that the sentinels cannot hear a word, and you will never listen to anything he has to say on any pretext whatever. Threaten him with death if he ever opens his mouth to speak of anything but of what he may be absolutely in want of."

The blindly obedient St. Mars followed his instructions carefully. The doctor who waited on the prisoner said he had never seen his face, although he had examined his tongue. Dishes and plates were examined each time the prisoner was served to see if there was any writing on them. The guards always were ready to kill the moment he took off his mask.

In other respects the greatest attention was shown him, and nothing which he requested was refused. He always was dressed in black. St. Mars himself stood uncovered in his presence and remained standing until the prisoner had requested him to be seated. The jailer often took his meals with the prisoner.

Just who was the Man In the Iron Mask? Some thought he was an illegitimate son of Anne of Austria. Others said he was a twin brother of Louis XIV., whose claims might have deprived the king of his throne. Another writer makes him the leader of an association which was formed to assassinate the ruler. The most general belief is that he was Count Mattioli, first minister of the Duke of Mantua, who had betrayed the interests of Louis XIV. by failing to secure for him, as he had pledged himself to do in consideration for a bribe, possession of the fortress of Casale from his master. Louis XIV. knew the secret, but to all questions replied that if it was known who the prisoner was every one would be surprised to find him so uninteresting a person.

The prisoner died after a short illness in 1703. He was buried one autumn day, and his name was inserted in the prison register as "M. de Marchiel."

Eighty-six years later the frenzied citizens of Paris broke into the Bastille and rushed to the cell where it was known he had been kept. They stopped short before clean whitewashed walls. Nothing was in the room. The prisoner's clothes and the mask had been burned when he died. Chemicals had been put in his casket to destroy the body. Only one man had seen the face behind the iron mask during the twenty-nine years. He was St. Mars. And St. Mars never told.—Kansas City Times.

ADVERTISING YOUR TELEPHONE NUMBER.

Under the caption, "Points for a Sales Talk", The Telephone Review, N. Y., brings to the attention of telephone salesmen the importance of the telephone number in advertising. The incident described is the experience of a New York City firm who having certain real estate to sell, advertised an auction and headed the advertisement with the office telephone number, in large print. A few days after the sale the president of the company wrote a letter to the telephone company telling of the success which this advertisement of the telephone number had brought. He said:

"Enclosed herewith you will find an advertisement which we used in connection with our recent auction sale at Edgemere, L. I. It may interest you to know that the returns from these ads were far beyond our expectations and that two of our men were kept busy all day answering telephone inquiries. Moreover, these inquiries were of the very best kind, from people thoroughly interested in our offering and well able to invest. We were able to give them all the information regarding the property over the telephone and tell them just how to come to Edgemere and some of these inquirers actually came and bought.

"As far as we know this is the first time that this method of securing buyers for real estate at auction has been tried and we think you will be glad to know of its success. Selling by telephone is surely only starting and this little experiment of ours may suggest further fields for development."

The telephone salesman is always on the look out for new points to present to the prospective subscriber or new uses of the telephone to bring to the notice of the business man whose telephone equipment the salesman wishes to enlarge. To this end The Telephone Review points out the significance of the incident quoted, in these words:

It gave the newspaper readers the easiest avenue of approach to information regarding the sale. In office or home, they could turn without discomfort to the telephone, call the number, and secure information.

The telephone is being used more and more every day to make sales, but in this case, the telephone was used to disseminate information which later resulted in sales. This is indeed one of the best methods of selling by telephone.

Queer Way to Display a Trousseau.

An Arabian bride is arrayed in all her dresses, one over the other. She is perched on a high stool, so that they all hang down over it, and one by one they are taken off with much display and admiring comment from the guests. The last is, of course, the most beautiful. The bridegroom is hidden in some corner where he can see his future wife's dowry, which, however, he may not touch.

Beat Him to It.

"As I was sitting in the crowded car coming out home tonight," said Warner at the dinner table, "a woman entered and stood almost exactly in front of me."

"And you got up and gave her your seat?" queried his wife.

"No," replied Warner; "another fellow got ahead of me. But I had to wait five minutes for him."—New York Globe.

Look and Feel Clean, Sweet and Fresh Every Day

Drink a glass of real hot water before breakfast to wash out poisons.

Life is not merely to live, but to live well, eat well, digest well, work well, sleep well, look well. What a glorious condition to attain, and yet how very easy it is if one will only adopt the morning inside bath.

Folks who are accustomed to feel dull and heavy when they arise, splitting headache, stuffy from a cold, foul tongue, nasty breath, acid stomach, can, instead, feel as fresh as a daisy by opening the sluices of the system each morning and flushing out the whole of the internal poisonous stagnant matter.

Everyone, whether ailing, sick or well, should, each morning, before breakfast, drink a glass of real hot water with a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate in it to wash from the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels the previous day's indigestible waste, sour bile and poisonous toxins; thus cleansing, sweetening and purifying the entire alimentary canal before putting more food into the stomach. The action of hot water and limestone phosphate on an empty stomach is wonderfully invigorating. It cleans out all the sour fermentations, gases, waste and acidity and gives one a splendid appetite for breakfast. While you are enjoying your breakfast the water and phosphate is quietly extracting a large volume of water from the blood and getting ready for a thorough flushing of all the inside organs.

The millions of people who are bothered with constipation, bilious spells, stomach trouble, rheumatism; others who have sallow skins, blood disorders and sickly complexions are urged to get a quarter pound of limestone phosphate from the drug store, which will cost very little, but is sufficient to make anyone a pronounced crank on the subject of internal sanitation.—Adv.

Subway at Astor Place. The John Wanamaker Store Broadway at Ninth, New York.

This Is Our "Big" SALE of SILKS

Opening Tomorrow---Saturday---at Wanamaker's

It is our "big" Spring Sale; the big Sale of New York. It is big in quality, big in variety, big in values, big in offering the silks most in demand, presenting the new silks for Spring.

It offers 36 qualities of black silks—taffetas, crepes, charmeuse, satins, failles, brocades, bengalines, meteors—a remarkable collection.

It offers 17,000 yards of plain silks at six prices in a wide range of shades (good shades), including navy blue now so hard to get. A separate table is devoted to navy blue alone, in all qualities.

It offers 3,000 yards of plain taffeta at $1.35 yard for a grade selling in our stocks today at $2.

It even offers white habutai in eight grades, and natural pongee—staplest of the staple silks.

The fancy silks at $1.35, $1.68 and $1.85 are all double-width—9,000 yards—and in the fashionable designs and colors of the day.

Wonderfully beautiful, as well as rare at the price, are the Lyons metallic silks just off the steamer—high novelties not before shown in America—$5 yard for $10 to $25 grades.

And in the Daylight Silk Store on the Subway floor are 10,000 yards of silks in dress lengths—nearly all double width silks—at $1 yard. Two dollars is the starting point for good double-width silks. To get them at $1 is most unusual.

No Poor Dyes in these Silks

Everything is guaranteed, as though full price were paid—even the colors. These silks were dyed with the reliable foreign dyes now grown so scarce.

The dye situation has an important bearing on this sale. It makes the future qualities, colors and prices of silk very uncertain. We may have to come to the wearing of white or "natural." The "cutting-up" trades—manufacturers of ready-to-wear—know this, and they would take our large lots if we would let them.

The sale is for the public. It has been preparing for two months. Nine-tenths of the 60,000 yards offered have come freshly into the store within two months.

It is so important a sale that we give over to, at the Silk Rotunda, the entire Main Aisle, the Daylight Silk Store on the Subway floor and large spaces at the Subway entrance and Motor Entrances of both buildings.

Additional salespeople will insure prompt attention, we hope, no matter how large the crowds in attendance.

10,000 Yds. Remnants of Silks, $1 Yd.

For $2 to $10 Grades—(Mostly Double Width)

About nine-tenths of these silks are full double width. The lengths range from 1½ to 6 yards. A very few of the remnants are slightly soiled from handling. Some are special purchases that have been selling here for $1.85 to $4.85 yard, but most of them are our regular grades that have been marked until to-day in our regular stocks at $2 to $10. The variety is very wide, as is shown by this list:

by the smoke, attempted to turn on the electric lights when she descended to the first floor, was unable to do so.

Casimir Tag, who was president of the German Savings Bank and of the German-American Bank, both in Manhattan, died September 21, 1913, leaving an estate estimated at $1,000,000. He was sixty years old at the time of his death.

With his father, the late Charles F. Tag, Mr. Tag was in the tobacco business for many years before taking up the banking business. He had been a trustee of the German Savings Bank, at Fourteenth street and Fourth avenue, for twenty-three years, and had been its president since 1901. He was secretary and trustee of the New York Improved Real Estate Company, and a director of the United States Casualty Company, the Consolidated Coal Company of Wyoming, the Decatur Land Company and the Title Insurance Company of New York.

FIVE DEAD AND MANY INJURED IN ATLANTIC CITY

Atlantic City, Feb. 4.—Five persons are reported dead and 20 injured in a fire that started today in the heart of the hotel and cottage section.

Most of the victims were burned to death in their beds. Falling walls buried several firemen.

The fire started in the Overbrook Hotel at Vernon and Pacific avenues.

The fire gained headway rapidly. Within a half hour it was in ruins and several adjoining buildings were in flames.

Departments from Atlantic City, Margate, other suburbs and throughout the mainland district bent every effort to check the flames, but it was several hours before they were under control.

The Episcopal Church of the Ascension adjoining the hotel collapsed shortly after the walls of the Overbrooke fell.

HULL HOTEL DESTROYED.

Hull, Mass., Feb. 4.—The Rockland House, one of the largest hotels at Nantasket Beach, was destroyed by fire early today. The loss is estimated at $150,000.

UTICA ALSO SUFFERS.

Utica, N. Y., Feb. 4.—Flames devastated a considerable portion of Camden, a few miles west of here, early today. Loss over $100,000.

METROPOLITAN MEN GUESTS AT BANQUET

District Superintendent Parris Shows Appreciation to Staff at End of Record Year.

As a testimonial to the men for completing, during 1915, the best business year the local office of the Metropolitan Insurance Company has ever enjoyed, Harry C. Parris, superintendent of the Plainfield district gave a banquet last night to the eighteen members of his staff and the medical examiners. The affair took place in the Park Club and a delightful period of speechmaking which followed the repast, made the evening one of the most enjoyable social gatherings in which the insurance men have yet participated. Mrs. Henry Johnson was the caterer and served the dinner in her usual able manner. The banquet room was made unusually attractive through the use of palms, potted plants and other decorations.

With the serving of coffee and cigars, a session of speechmaking began, over which Mr. Parris presided as toastmaster. Those called upon were the medical examiners, Doctors M. L. Clawson and A. H. Pittis, of Plainfield, and Dr. William H. Long of Somerville; Deputy Superintendent William Augenblick, Deputy Superintendent Jacob Hoos; T. W. Moore, Frederick C. Burner and Frank Stewart, of this city; Joseph Ten Eyck, of Somerville, and William Callahan, of Westfield. Some decidedly interesting reminiscences were given by Mr. Stewart, who completed his twentieth year with the company last April, and Mr. Burner, who is now finishing up his score of years in the local field. All the addresses were in a congratulatory vein, especially that of Mr. Parris, who warmly thanked the staff for the support it had given him and the splendid results of the fiscal year.

In addition to those mentioned, those at the dinner were: Harry Frienberg, Clarence Bilyeu, Warren Kirkman, Pasquale Orlando, Harry Bush, William Banks, Joseph Heberman, Eugene Sanfillippo and Michael Randwanski.

Fund For Doctor's Garage to Be Built At Muhlenberg Hospital Nears $300 Mark

The special committe having in charge the obtaining of funds for the doctor's garage announce that up to the present time the sum of $290 has been contributed. There are no doubt many people in Plainfield, possibly patients, or particular friends of the various doctors, who have not contributed to this fund, but who still wish to do so.

It is felt that this facility to the doctors, that their cars may be covered in snowy and rainy weather, is due them, and yet the demands upon the general fund of the hospital is such that the governors hesitate to use the general fund money for this purpose, and therefore hope that it can be obtained through voluntary contributions. Checks may be mailed to the hospital, drawn to the order of the treasurer, and a receipt will be sent.

INVENTOR MAY GET MILLIONS.

Chicago, Feb. 4.—For the use of his patent on an air-brake for electric railway cars by the Westinghouse Electric Company, of Pittsburgh, N. A. Christensen, of Milwaukee, will probably receive two millions of dollars this month. The Court of Appeals of the United States has confirmed the judgment of the district court and ordered the Westinghouse Company to pay damages and profits. A stay of judgment was secured, and this expires tomorrow. The Westinghouse people secured a stay of judgment in order to make application to the United States Supreme Court for a writ of certiorari. Christensen alleged that he had not been paid for the use of his patent in the suit which was tried in the U. S. District Court in Milwaukee two years ago. He won the suit and won on appeal, and he is awaiting his money.

THE CHARITY OF NEW YORK.

New York, that gave more than $1,000,000 for the relief of suffering Jews of whom it had never heard except as a nation, is permitting its orphan children to live in filthy homes that breed disease and crime, according to evidence introduced at a recent official investigation, and yet it wonders where its criminals are coming from.

"It was worse than anything in 'Oliver Twist,'" said W. J. Doherty, Second Assistant Commissioner of Charities, describing before Gov. Whitman's Commissioner the conditions in a Staten Island home where poor children were supposed to be cared for.

Boys lapping up soup from sloppy tables covered with ragged and greasy oilcloth, because there were not spoons enough; 200 boys with one tooth brush, 100 with four combs and brushes; filth everywhere, slack attention to health—these are some printable details about this New York "home." In a smaller Brooklyn asylum, heads were infested with vermin, eighteen children were bathed together in a tank, the little-used combs were common property, sanitary arrangements were filthy, communicable disease was naturally common, and boys and girls were put to sleep in one dormitory.

If newspapers would carry on a studied campaign of publicity, throwing the spot light on these institutions and printing the names of contributors to the fund in black-face type it would be but little time before sufficient money was raised to give every orphan boy and girl in the big city a home. But the New Yorker does nothing without a brass band, not even charity.

PETITIONING THE LEGISLATURE

"There is something impressive about this," a member of the New Jersey Legislature said to a friend the other day as he sat in the State House while thousands of local optionists presented a petition for the passage of a bill now pending. "It makes me feel that I am really a servant of the people. All these silent, sincere voters and citizens coming from every part of the State, and quietly asking that their wishes be considered in the making of laws is good for government. It cannot help but bring about good government."

The speaker was not a newly elected member of the Legislature nor was he an amateur at politics, inflated with any exaggerated ideas of his relation toward the people, as politicians sometimes have when they first get into the game. It is a great thing to his credit that he could realize the potency of the incident, of course, for there are many now serving in both houses in whom the scene would have awakened nothing but resentment. They are the ones who will carry the balance of power in voting on the local option bill, and many other measures, and they will defeat it, but those who made the trip to Trenton Wednesday have lost nothing by the expenditure of time and money. They will realize on this in years to come, and there should be more of this personal appealing to legislators, for they cannot help but be impressed when the people who elect them and who are to live under laws that are made there stand solemnly before them and ask for a hearing.

SEEKING THE MAN.

In this advanced time of wild greed for political power, of sacrificing of conscience, dignity, honor, everything, in the scramble to hold public office, it is refreshing to read that "admiring citizens have pressed an office on one of their number" and to know that it is true. Charles Sheelen was named Recorder of the Borough of Fanwood Wednesday evening for the thirteenth time and he was named over his protest that he did not have time to give to the position. Mr. Sheelen has made a good official, or the voters would not have insisted on his remaining in office. He is to be congratulated on his unique record and Fanwood is to be congratulated on having so honest and efficient an official.

The Wall Street Review rudely points out that "no day passes without bringing fresh announcement of increase in wages. Steel and iron workers, miners, textile workers, munition workers, all are participating." What a shock for Republicans who are planning this year's campaign. This destroys their only political argument.

Puck points out that among those able to testify that Woodrow Wilson is not "too proud to fight" are the oldline machine politicians of New Jersey. That doesn't distinguish him from the mass. Everybody here is doing it now.

It is said that two ex-Assemblymen of the State of New Jersey have "hit the trail" at the Billy Sunday meetings in Trenton. They were probably too old to be active in politics further, however.

Those who have been worrying about the awful silence around Oyster Bay should feel better after yesterday, when even the Sun was in eclipse for a short time.

If Bryan goes to Switzerland he ought to be well entertained by the officers of the navy.

Germany's masked marvel of the seas has the British navy on its back.

On the Spur of the Moment

by Roy K. Moulton

Those New Year Vows.

Last year he pulled the same old stuff and made the same old vows,
And worked the same old New Year's bluff for curtain calls and bows.
The year before he did the same; the year before that, too—
For everybody plays that game when every year is new.
And I am always moved to mirth, for it's a joke sublime,
When all these humans down on earth swear off at New Year's time.

I know I merely have to wait a week
—a month at most—
To see their earnestness abate—to see their will a ghost.
And one by one the things they swore they'd never do again,
I see them doing as of yore with all their might and main!

THE HICKEYVILLE CLARION.

One of the high-toned social events of the season at Hickeyville was the reception by the Barkin Soap Club to their husbands. Tea and wafers were served. Mrs Anse Frisby, who entertained the club, expected to have some of that pink tea she has heard so much about, but couldn't get any, so had to serve the ordinary kind.

Uncle Ezra Harkins says he hopes spring will hustle up, as he has only one parlor sofy and three rods of rail fence left for fuel.

Anse Frisby, our banker and capitalist here at Hickeyville, is looking for a first-class chauffeur, one who can take a car apart and put it together, and one who has a fine technical education. But wife has only one hat on the shelf, and only one dress in the closet.

- Proctor's Theatre -

Today, as an added attraction, the management of Proctor's local photoplay and vaudeville theatre present the fifth episode of "The Red Circle," the latest and greatest of the Pathe serials, that is becoming more interseting and exciting every day, and which is a masterpiece of fiction and dramatic situations. The Triangle features presented today include William S. Hart, the popular star, who made such a deep impression by his excellent acting in "The Disciple," which appeared here a few weeks ago. His present vehicle is entitled "Between Men," and instead of appearing as a Westerner in Western garb, Mr. Hart assumes the part of a society man. The Keystone comedy presented today and tomorrow is a veritable riot of fun and thrills and is entitled "Dizzy Heights and Daring Hearts," in which Chester Conklin, the Keystone daredevil, assumes the leading role. The vaudeville entertainment provided today and to-morrow is of excellent quality and variety, and includes the Six Musical Misses, in a refined musical act; Billy Woodhall and company, a comedy skit that will be met with continuous billed as the Wizard of Mysticism and Delusion, and Repel and Fairfax, two dainty bits of feminity, who entertain with songs and dances. Tomorrow afternoon the big toy bazaar for the children will take place, and every child attending will receive a handsome present. On next Wednesday and Thursday the famous Fox features will be presented at Proctor's, the first production being Richard Mansfield's greatest success, "A Parisian Romance," featuring Cooper Cliffe, the eminent English character actor, and Dorothy Green, the Fox feature.

ALARMS BUT NO FIRES

The fire department was called out yesterday afternoon on a still alarm for a chimney blaze at the residence at 107 West Fourth street. There was no damage. Another still alarm was answered at 3:30 yesterday afternoon for a supposed blaze at the home of A. F. Nathan, on Belvidere avenue. When the apparatus arrived, it proved to be only a back draught in the furnace.

AND THE WORST IS YET TO COME—

NEW WORRY WRINKLES

∴ Plainfield Theatre ∴

If the familiar epigram is true, and we believe it is, "Variety is the spice of life," there is a whole can full of spice in the Plainfield Theatre's new seven-act bill which opened yesterday. It embraces a tabloid comedy, a Lilliputian entertainer, clever gymnasts, singing and dancing, sketch comedians, other features. Every number went big, and audiences yesterday afternoon and last last night were more than satisfied. One of the most pleasing gymnastic numbers seen in this city for a long time was presented by Richards and Brandt. They are absolutely clever, and keep the spectators in a tense mood during what is ordinarily a tame act. They have a lot of original and clever stuff. "Princess Victoria," the world's smallest entertainer, pleased young and old, and the tabloid musical comedy, "Girls in Funland," was the best of the kind at the house this season. The company numbers ten people in all, mostly girls.

The "country store" will be held as usual tonight, and another big batch of gifts have been secured for presentation. Everything is conducted on the "square" and everybody has a chance. For those who like the movies, one and two reel comedies and dramas are on the program, thus adding further to the variety of the entertainment.

"The Redemption Club," or "She Sins Again," is the title of the two-act musical extravaganza which will be presented by Peter S. Clark's Rosey Posey Girls, at the Plainfield Theatre, next Monday, matinee and night. This piece was writen by Walter Pearson, the well-known musical comedy playwright, and is said to be entirely different from anything heretofore offered by an attraction of this kind. In the first place the story or plot is delightfully interesting, and holds the close attention of the audience from start to finish. Besides, there are more than a score of up-to-date musical numbers staged especially for the Rosey Posey Girls. These numbers, which are interpreted by a chorus of thirty beautiful young women, will not be seen with any other company, as the copyright for the songs is held by Manager Clark. Costumes, designed in Paris, and which are said to be most sensational, are worn by the members of the chorus. Everyone of these girls sing and dance in a most delightful manner.

Two of the most talented musical artists have been secured by Al G. Field, and will be seen in the musical act of Murphy and Quinn, with the Al G. Field Greater Minstrels, at the Plainfield Theatre, Thursday, matinee and night, February 10. T. H. Murphy has introduced many novel effects in musical instruments. He is a black-faced comedian, and will not deny his admirers a lot of new comedy. Mr. Murphy is well known as a saxaphone soloist.

C. J. Quinn specializes in solos upon the xylo-marimba, an unusual instrument, a distinct novelty. Besides the instruments mentioned, Murphy and Quinn will be heard in the latest melodies on the cornet and trombone. Their act opens with music upon brass instruments, and from these they turn to others, offering always masterful music or the liveliest of comedy.

The close of the act is done in Scotch national costume, both men wearing the full marching uniform of the "Kilties," and performing upon Scotch horns, instruments not often seen, from which some unusual effects of harmony are obtained. Murphy and Quinn are a feature of the Al G. Field show, furnishing one of the most pleasing bits of the performance.

U. S. MUST DEPEND ON PRIVATE ARMS MAKERS — CROZIER

Gen. William Crozier.

General William Crozier, chief of ordnance of the U. S. army, in his testimony before the house committee on military affairs recently, dealt a hard blow to the plan of many congressmen for exclusive government manufacture of munitions. It was hoped in this way to defeat the war god and the munition manufacturers at the same time. Gen. Crozier says that to build factories that could supply the arms needed under the new army plan would cost the United States $50,000,000 and for the amount now used by England $400,000,000.

SUGGESTIONS FOR HALLOWEEN PARTY

Cream and Cakes—Make a plain ice cream and color it a deep orange. Freeze and mold in melon molds to represent pumpkins. Just before serving paint eyes, nose and mouth with melted chocolate. With this cream serve witch cake or black cat cookies. For the cake, bake an ordinary spice, to which add finely chopped raisins and citron and place a ring, thimble or piece of money in the batter. When baked, cover with plain white icing and on top portray a witch in red and chocolate icing. For the cookies, cut them to represent a cat, ice with chocolate icing, the eyes, nose and mouth outlined in white icing. These will be found novel and attractive, especially for Halloween parties.

Queen Alice Appears—At a Halloween gathering the big dining room was lighted only by twenty-two jack-o'-lanterns and by the crackling fire on the hearth. When the guests entered, as if by magic appeared the spirits gliding in a fantastic, ghostly dance. In a dimly lighted corner Queen Alice interpreted the future of the guests. For refreshments were served grapes and pears in huge pumpkin fruit baskets, crisp crullers, tiny individual pumpkin pies, butternut meats, pop corn and molasses candy.

Set of False Teeth—A Halloween device, effective in disguising a well known face and converting it into a witch's head, is the use of a set of teeth cut from an orange peel. These can be easily made by cutting a straight strip of the peel, a half-inch wide and long enough to slip about the jaw and slashing with a pair of scissors at regular intervals. This piece can be placed over the real teeth, so that the lip will hold it in position, and the voice as well as the mouth will undergo a complete change.

Decorations—Decorate the house with cornstalks, apples and lanterns. After the guests have arrived have games appropriate to the time, such as the traditional "bowls" of water, an apple eating contest and a bottle filled with grains of corn to guess the number of grains. Have a large pumpkin face on the dining room table for centerpiece and at each place a tiny pumpkin face to be given as favors. Have place cards cut of yellow cardboard in the shape of pumpkins. Serve pumpkin pie, apples, popcorn balls and coffee. During the serving of the lunch have the lights turned out and the candles in the pumpkins lighted. When through eating the lunch give each one a pencil and piece of paper with the word pumpkin on, then give them three minutes to see who can write the most words using the letters in the word on the paper and give the winner the large pumpkin face on the center of the table as a prize. Your evening will be a success and not be expensive or hard to arrange.

Green Pumpkins Used—An amusing decoration for use at a Halloween party may be made by taking the tiny green pumpkins, cutting them like jack-o'-lanterns and putting them on the gas or electric fixtures in place of the ordinary globes.

CARE OF SHOES

The summer low cuts have been discarded. Many an owner is putting them away expecting to get a good deal of wear out of them in the spring. But unless properly taken care of they will be sadly disappointed. All shoes are more or less damp with perspiration and as they dry out the toes turn up and deep wrinkles settle across the leather.

Here is the remedy: Brush well, removing every particle of dust, rub with vaseline, pack full of crushed paper, wrap with paper and pack away.

In the spring you will find them soft and comfortable and a good shape. "A penny saved is a penny earned."

CANNED ENDIVE

To can endive, which is fine for salads and winter greens when a change in menu is desired: Take crisp blanched endive, cut into inch lengths, wash in cold water. Take one-half pine vinegar, one pint water, one tablespoon salt to each quart jar. Bring to a boil, then add endive and boil from three to five minutes, according to crispness of endive, pour into jars and seal like other canned vegetables.

Marrying for Money

BY MRS EVA LEONARD

Mrs. Townsend Drags Her Husband One Step Nearer to Bankruptcy.

"Here is a telegram for you." Mrs. Tupper laid the envelope by Mr. Townsend's plate. "The boy is waiting."

When the father returned to his place there was hushed expectancy in the faces of his children. Telegrams were rarely received and they dimly suggested sickness and death.

Jacob tore open the envelope and read:

"I shall remain here until I am able with assistance to drive the car home.

"Ortrude."

"What is it?" asked Marian, for the father had folded the telegram and put it in the envelope in silence.

"It is from Mrs. Townsend. She will not be back for some days." The children exchanged glances. "She has bought a machine and is learning to run it." The tone was dreary in the extreme.

"Bought a machine!" echoed Dudley. "Does she know about the bill from the wholesale house?" Dudley laid down his knife and fork.

"She does not understand, evidently. I tried to make her see that I could not afford to buy anything more now." Jacob's voice was low and he looked at his plate.

"What did you give her the money for?" exploded Marian.

"I did not give her the money. She has run in debt for it." Jacob felt that it was only fair to Marian that she should know that he had not approed of this extravagance on Ortrude's part.

"Make her take it back." Marian's face was red with anger.

"We cannot air our troubles that way; besides it would be a sure way to bring embarrassing money problems on us to have it known that I would not honor my wife's debts." Jacob leaned his head on his hand. Marian rose and going around to his chair put her arms around his neck, saying:

"Dear Daddy, I will not go to school this fall. That will save you some money and make it easier for you to meet the bills of—that woman."

"Thank you, little daughter." Jacob put his arm around her and looked into her face with a smile, the saddest Marian ever remembered to have seen. "I want you to go and we will manage some way. You will be as careful as you can, now that you know what a tight place I am in. It is only temporary, I am sure; just a flurry on the market has upset business somewhat. I may have to sell some property at a sacrifice."

"Let me pour you some fresh tea, dear." Marian took the cup.

"Is there no way to stop this—reckless expenditure?" asked Dudley.

"I have not thought of a way yet. I have been a fool and have played into her hands. I must make the best of a bad bargain." Jacob had never before acknowledged his mistake in marrying. "But it hurts when I see that I have made it impossible for me to do my duty by my children. I thought I had safeguarded your interests, but I failed, you see." Again the head dropped on his hand.

"Drink your tea, Daddy," urged Marian, bringing it to him.

"Now that the ice is broken, and we can talk about the matter, I believe we can think of ways out of the difficulty." Dudley looked absently at his plate. "At any rate it relieves the tension."

"I believe it does." Jacob drained his cup and set it down.

Daddy's Bedtime Story—

How Glad Odysseus' Dog, Argus, Was To See Him.

The Nobles Began to Insult Him.

"WHEN Odysseus planned to enter his own home as a beggar so he and his son could learn the best way to drive out the nobles who were making themselves at home there," daddy began the bedtime story, "you must know that old time beggars had many more privileges than those of today, who often get arrested. Ancient beggars were often travelers and good story tellers, who were welcome at palaces and were received like guests if they were interesting. So Odysseus warned his son, Telemachus, not to betray him, but to act just as if he had never seen the beggar before. He also made Telemachus promise that if he saw his father insulted or even beaten he would not act any differently than toward a stranger."

"What a queer way to come home!" cried the children.

"With this plan well understood between them the two men went to their home—to find the nobles feasting and having a good time. The old beggar was permitted to enter and was given a scrap of food from the table. The nobles pretended to be glad Telemachus had come back, although in their hearts they planned to kill him.

"One of the saddest parts of all Odysseus' homecoming was his old dog Argus, that lay in the courtyard almost dead with old age. When the old beggar entered the yard, seeing a stranger, the poor dog raised his head and pricked up his ears. Twenty years ago he had been Odysseus' favorite hunter and many times they had spent happy days together. Argus recognized his master and wagged his tail for joy, although too lame to stand up. And Odysseus was afraid to stop and pet his dog for fear the nobles would see him.

"So Odysseus sat in his own palace and ate his own bread just as a beggar would have, and soon two or three of the nobles began to insult him. When he mildly asked them to let him alone one of them seized a stool and struck him with it. Telemachus had hard work to obey his father's orders now, seeing him so badly treated, but he said only what any master of a house would have to protect a guest.

"Now, you must remember that Odysseus' wife, Penelope, who believed her husband had been killed in the Trojan war, had held off the nobles who wanted to marry her by saying she would when she had finished weaving a shroud for Odysseus' father. Then each night she had raveled out what she had knitted that day. So that the wedding never took place. But when the nobles learned what she did they compelled her to make her choice of them. So she said that the man most skillful in a trial of skill might be her husband," daddy ended.

AMERICAN ROAD BUILDERS TO MEET

Annual Convention to Be Held in Pittsburg Week Beginning February 28.

Invitations have been sent to the governors of the several States of the Union and to the lieutenant-governors of the provinces of Canada, with the request that they attend and appoint delegates to the thirteenth annual convention of the American Road Builders' Association, to be held in Pittsburgh, Pa., during the week beginning February 28.

Mayor Armstrong, of Pittsburgh, has shown special interest in the convention, and has sent out a personal invitation to the mayors of some three thousand other cities to attend in person, and also to appoint delegates, including the city engineer and superintendent of streets, or similar officials. Invitations are also being sent out to the road officials of the different States, and the correspondence of officials of the association indicates that the attendance will be very large.

Announcement has been made that the Trunk Line Association has granted a rate of two cents per mile from points in its territory to Pittsburgh and return. To secure the reduction passengers must travel both ways over the same route, and return to the starting point not later than March 7. Tickets will be on sale February 26, 27 and 28. Arrangements are being made for Special Good Roads trains to carry officials, delegates and others to the convention.

Provisions are also pending for the accommodation of special parties who wish to travel together to the convention city. Details, including the time of departure from various points East and West will be announced within a few days.

The city of Uittsburgh is expending $22,000 in putting Mechanical Hall in first-class condition for convention purposes. The improvements include a new concrete floor, a new heating plant, and other changes. The thirteenth annual convention of the American Road Builders' Association and the Seventh Good Roads Show will be the first meeting to be held there after the improvements have been made.

POLICE OF ROOSEVELT SEEK MISSING CAPTAIN

The police of Roosevelt yesterday sent out a general alarm for Richard Murray, captain of the coal barge New Yorker, who has been missing since January 3. A reward of $100 for information leading to his discovery, dead or alive, is offered.

According to D. W. Downs, of 218 Greenwich street, Philadelphia, an uncle of Mr. Murray, the latter left his barge on January 3, at Port Reading, and walked to Chrome, where he purchased provisions. He has not been seen since he left the store at Chrome. Mr. Murray was thirty-five years old, medium height and weight, and had dark brown hair. He has a wife and two children.

The Lord's Supper will be celebrated at Warren chapel, Sunday morning, at 11 o'clock. In the evening the men's choir will sing.

DEMAND PAY FOR CALLING FIREMEN

Council Committee is Considering a New Regulation for Plainfield.

PRICED IS FIXED AT $50

Run Outside the City Costs Taxpayers That Sum, Experts Say, and Those Who do Not Pay Taxes Ought to Be Charged.

Those outside of the city of Plainfield who call on the local fire department for assistance in the future are to be made pay for its services, if a plan now being considered by members of the Councilmanic fire committee is put into operation. It is understood that members of the committee have been considering this action for some time, and there is a probability that it will be brought before the Council in definite form at the meeting of Monday evening.

It is pointed out that other cities all over the country are charging for outside runs made by the fire fighters. New Brunswick adopted the plan long ago and Elizabeth is using it. In most cases a minimum fee of $50 is charged for a run outside the corporate limits, and this will probably be fixed as the cost of calling the Plainfield fire department outside its territory.

It is not desired by those in charge of the fire department that any money be made off outside calls, but that people who do not contribute to the maintenance of the department be made to pay a part of its expenses when they receive benefit from it. For instance, a property owner who lives just outside the limits of Plainfield escapes the municipal taxes, while his neighbor, who may be inside the limits, helps support the police and fire departments. It would not be fair to the city taxpayer for the department to answer calls to the two houses alike.

In many cities the regulation demands that a deposit or guarantee of the price charged be made with fire headquarters before a call is answered. Those who are near the city and who fear that they may need firemen at any time, keep a deposit with the department, so that there will be no delay in case of a fire.

It is estimated by experts that the big automobile engine cannot be taken outside the hall on even a short run for less than $25. This includes the wear and tear on the machine, but not the salary of firemen. If taxpayers of Plainfield pay to maintain a department that will be ready in case of fire, it is argued that outsiders who pay nothing should not be allowed to reap the same benefits from the organization.

PRINCETON MEN OFFER TO DO RESEARCH WORK

An offer from Princeton University students to do municipal research work was submitted yesterday to the executive committee of the New Jersey League of Municipalities, by Mayor Frederick W. Donnelly, of Trenton, at the committee's meeting in the City Hall at Jersey City. The students offer to get information concerning municipal engineering, illuminating, economic and public utility, legal and administrative problems. The members of the committee were pleased with the offer and will probably recommend it to the league.

The committee spent the afternoon in considering the report of Dougald Jackson, an expert to the Public Utility Commission of New Jersey, on values held by public utility corporations in New Jersey.

THREE FIGHT AS RESULT OF A LABOR ARGUMENT

Harry Goff, Samuel Wernfield and Charles McGarvy were arrested late last night near the corner of Front and Somerset streets on a charge of disorderly conduct. They were not tried this morning, but will be given a hearing before Mayor Calkins Monday. It is said that the fight in which the men engaged arose as a result of an argument over labor questions.

BUSY NIGHT IN BORO COUNCIL

Takes Steps to Widen Somerset, Remodel Fire House and Buy New Apparatus.

STAHL LOSES FIGHT

Opposes Move to Put All City Departments in Fire Building, But All Other Members Vote for it—Other Business.

An ordinance, pledging the Borough to widen and improve Somerset street, another calling for the purchase of a new automobile chemical and engine, and a third appropriating money to be used in remodeling present fire headquarters so that all of offices and departments of the Borough might be in the one building—were passed by members of the Council of the Borough of North Plainfield at the meeting last night.

There was no opposition to any measures except that appropriating a sum not to exceed $3,500 for the remodeling of fire headquarters. Councilman Stahl fought this bitterly. He feared it would be an illegal action, as the Council, in 1891 and 1892, issued bonds with the approval of the people for a building for "fire purposes." He did not believe the building could be used for other departments. Mr. Stahl also declared that such a work would not be permanent, as a succeeding administration might decide that the entire fire house was needed for fire purposes a little later and tear out the partitions, thus destroying all that had been done before. He argued for the construction of a small building on a lot adjoining the fire building to house the borough clerk and borough collector, and said that this could be done for a sum of $1,500.

Despite the protests of Mr. Stahl, the resolution as introduced by Mr. Milne was passed, all other members voting for it.

The ordinance calling for the widening and improvement of Somerset street, was passed on its first and second readings, and by resolution, the Council fixed March 3 as the date on which property owners might be heard before final action was taken. The street is to be made sixty feet wide, which means that buildings or property lines must be set back five feet on each side from Jackson avenue to Johnson's drive.

Councilman Stahl introduced a resolution pledging the Borough to purchase a combination hose, chemical and engine motor fire apparatus. A sum not to exceed $2,000 was set aside for this, but the amount may be increased later. It passed without opposition.

A resolution, introduced by the light committee, calling for a light north of the bridge on Rockview terrace, and another on Stonybrook place, was passed.

It was moved that a warrant be made out for Frank Sacher for $6,080.33, or one-half of the fifteen per cent. of his sewer contract money retained by the city. Progress was reported on all sewer work.

Bills for the month, amounting to $3,675.99, were audited and ordered paid.

Action of the Mayor and Clerk in signing warrants for a $3,500 advance on the school fund was approved.

A resolution authorizing the payment of a salary for a clerk to aid the clerk and collector was passed. This means no addition to the borough staff, as the clerk has been working for some time, but the salary has never been formally authorized by the Council.

The report of the treasurer was read and ordered filed. Committee heads reported the following expenditures for the past month: Streets, $134.14; police, $521.89; fire and water, $242.41.

Council adjourned to meet again Friday evening, February 18.

JEWS STILL DREAM OF A GREAT NATION

President Newcorn Tells of Traditions of His Race Through All Ages.

The Friday evening services were held at Temple Sholem last evening. President Newcorn preaching upon the subject of Jewish traditions and ideals and taking for his text the fifth verse of the 78th Psalm, "which He commanded our fathers to make them known to their children," and amongst other things said:

"The history of the Jews might be divided into two periods, the first from the creation until 70 B. C. when after having reached the heighth of their glory as a nation, the dissolution began in the second period beginning with the sway of the Romans over the Jewish Nation and resulting in scattering them all over the earth.

"The traditions of the people as a result of the various vicissitudes through which they have passed has resulted in the creation of ideals which have been proclaimed in song story and prose, by the psalmist, the dreamer of the Ghetto, by the Rabbi, and even today while conditions are more complex than in the past, Jewish life is so full of noble traditions that they should not be permitted to decay. It is within the power of our people to add to its beauty, to add new and glorious chapters to its record. It is essential to have a vital Temple by instilling in the minds of its communicants that traditional spiritual belief in the unity of God, by maintaining a spiritual home, by fostering a religious education, thus preserving and perpetuating the traditions and ideals of the Jewish religion.

"While civilization has been undergoing a remarkable change during the last century the practise of religion in minor details has been modified in order to conform to existing conditions, but still the Jew of today is the Jew of centuries ago, he is the same dreamer, the same idealist, he dreams of the re-establishment of the glories of the Jewish nation at Palestine in the future under their own government and administration and on the banks of the Jordon re-establish the splendors of the past."

TAXI OWNERS ASK FOR LARGER FARES

Petition Will Be Formally Presented to Mayor and Chief Today.

Mayor Leighton Calkins and Chief P. S. Kiely will today receive a petition from taxicab owners in the city, requesting that they be permitted to increase rates. This petition has been drawn within the past two days and was said to be ready for presentation to officials sometime today. It sets out that the owners of automobiles used as public conveyances are unable to make a profit on calls at the present legal fares, because of the high price of gasoline, oils and automobile repairs and parts, and asks that a slight increase be allowed. Just what course the petition will take is not known.

Mapelson, William Mulvey and George W. Pope.

The Parent-Teacher Association of the North Plainfield High School will give a dance to the pupils of the school in the Harrison Avenue School auditorium tonight. The affair will begin promptly at eight o'clock and will be in honor of the basketball players who play their second scholastic game with Plainfield High School this afternoon in Saengerbund Hall.

HELD IN HEAVY BAIL.

William Berrell, 46 years old, of 24 Park place, was arrested last evening at his home by Chief Weiss of the borough police, charged with a serious offence. He pleaded guilty before Recorder Hand this morning and was taken to the Somerset county jail by Officer Pope in default of $3,000 bail pending sentence. The complaint against Berrell was made by a number of boys, whose ages range between 13 and 20 years.

PUBLIC GARDENS AS A MEMORIAL

Alumnae Ass'n of the Seminary Plan to Honor Memory of Miss E. E. Kenyon.

ACTION NOW PENDING

Monday Afternoon Club, Which Miss Kenyon Founded, is Expected to Co-operate—Option Secured on Eight-Acre Tract in Centre of City.

Desiring in some suitable way to establish a memorial for Miss Elvira E. Kenyon, who was for many years the principal of The Seminary, which she founded, plans are now being formulated by the members of the Alumnae Association which became public today for the first. It has been suggested that the memorial take the form of public gardens for the children of Plainfield, a movement which is popular in many other cities throughout the country.

While no definite action has been taken beyond the securing of an option on a tract of land near the center of the city where these gardens can be established, it is the purpose of those interested in the matter to purchase the land and have it in readiness during the early spring.

Members of the Monday Afternoon Club, which organization was also founded by Miss Kenyon, have been discussing the proposition in an informal way, and it will be presented at the annual meeting of the club, Monday afternoon, for definite action. There seems to be no doubt but that the Alumnae Association will have the full co-operation of the members of the club. Each organization has a membership of about two hundred women, and the success of the enterprise seems assured.

Those who have secured an option of the desired land do not want to disclose its exact location at present, but they say that it is not only centrally located, but in other ways is suitable for the project. It is proposed to call it "The Kenyon Gardens." It comprises about eight acres and at first there would be between fifty and one hundred gardens for the care of children. Any child in the city so desiring would be encouraged to have and take care of a garden. It is believed that potatoes could be raised at a profit as one feature of the proposition.

It is also planned to set apart a section of the tract as a park, providing seats, where the parents of the children and others interested might go and enjoy the work of the children. If the gardens are established, a professional teacher from New York will be engaged to act as supervisor.

Henry Griscom Parsons, head of the school gardens for children in New York, has been secured to give a talk on his work at the parish house of the Congregational church, Wednesday afternoon, at 4 o'clock, when the local proposition will be discussed. It is expected that the Alumnae Association will hold a meeting soon afterward, when a decision will be reached. All persons interested are invited to attend the lecture at the Congregational church.

Miss Kenyon was a woman of rare culture and education, and there are many Plainfielders who recall her valuable work along these lines in Plainfield, and they now want to establish a worthy memorial in recognition of her efforts.

F. A. POPE ADDRESSES MEN OF WARREN CHAPEL

The monthly meeting of the Men's Association of Warren chapel, held last evening, was marked by a stirring address delivered by F. A. Pope, former prosecutor of Somerset county, on "Stop! Look! Listen!"

Mr. Pope called the attention of his audience to the dangers confronting the people of this country, which he said were moral as well as physical. He drew a parallel between the lack of morals of ancient civilization and present day conditions, asserting that this country faced the same fate as Rome and other nations which have fallen through the morals of their people being undermined. Under this heading he referred to the present day desecration of the Sabbath and the over-zealous quest of the American people after gold. Following the address, a social hour was enjoyed, during which refreshments were served.

GIRL GAVE LIFE TO RESCUE OTHERS

Miss Caroline Tag Died Heroically in Big Fire in Brooklyn.

Out of the destruction of the residence of Mrs. Casimir Tag, of Brooklyn, by fire Friday morning, there came a story of rescue, heroism and sacrifice of life that has few parallels. Miss Caroline Tag, brother of Frederick Tag, of North Plainfield, gave her life in an attempt to save others in the home after she had dragged her mother to safety, and all New York is today applauding her heroism.

As an evidence of the manner in which her brave actions are viewed, the following editorial is clipped from the New York Times:

"Caroline Tag.

"Are women as brave as men? What man could possibly have been braver than Miss Caroline Tag? The Tag home, in Brooklyn, took fire early yesterday morning and was destroyed. The youngest daughter of the family, Caroline, twenty-four years old, assisted her aged mother through the scuttle to the roof, whence she was finally rescued, and the daughter then returned to the flaming room in which was located the telephone. Here she got a call through to 'central,' and while talking her message over the wire was overcome and there died. 'There is a fire in our house. Please'—— was the message. 'Through 'central' the call was traced and the fire department summoned, but the young woman was found dead at the telephone.

"Greater fortitude and courage cannot be shown than that displayed by Caroline Tag."

The wedding of Miss Caroline to Mr. Carl Harrison Zinn, of 365 Jefferson avenue, had been fixed for February 16. On Tuesday the announcements were sent out and the first of the presents were received on Thursday night.

Fred Tag returned to his home in North Plainfield last night, after having visited the ruins, and spent the day by the bedside of his aged mother, the only one of the seven women in the burned house that escaped alive. He went back to Brooklyn early this morning to make arrangements for the funeral of his two sisters, his aunt and others who were victims of the flames.

MISCHA ELMAN'S VIOLINS ARE VALUED AT $16,500

Persons wishing seats for the Mischa Elman concert to be given at the Plainfield High School Auditorium on Wednesday night, February 9, under the auspices of the Cheerful Workers' Circle of the City Union of Kings Daughters, for the benefit of the Day Nursery, are urged to purchase their reservations as soon as possible at Miller's drug store, at Fourth street and Park avenue. The price of tickets is advertised in another part of today's paper.

Mischa Elman is the owner of two very precious violins. Both are Stradivarius instruments and in perfect condition. One of the violins is valued at $10,000, and the other at $6,500; the former is the one on which Elman generally plays, but the other is always carried in case of emergency. Sometimes a string breaks during a concert, and instead of waiting to put on a new one, the artist steps off the stage and picks up the reserve instrument. As may well be imagined, the violins are never out of Elman's sight; both are carried in the same case, a black oblong leather affair holding three bows as well as the violins. Heavy insurance is carried on the valuable "babies," as Elman calls them, but no money could actually make up for the loss of such treasures.

NO BACKING DOWN DECLARES WILSON

U. S. to Remain Firm in Its Demands on the German Government.

CASE IS UNCHANGED

Washington Describes Situation as Grave, But Sees Ray of Hope Ahead—Fear of Break Creates Rioting in Germany.

Washington, Feb. 5.—Despite the general apprehension of a crisis State Department officials decline to comment on the situation today further than to say that no important change has taken place. While admitting that the present condition of affairs is grave, they seem to maintain an optimism probably based on several new elements which may effect a solution of the controversy. President Wilson holds the key to the situation. He probably will confer with Secretary of State Lansing today. It is expected that Count vo Bernstorff, the German Ambassador, will confer with Secretary Lansing shortly.

Lansing is Silent.

Washington, Feb. 5.—Except for the statement that the Lusitania negotiations are still continuing Secretary Lansing declined to add any light to public knowledge today. He indicated, by implication, that an entire deadlock had not yet been reached. Although negotiations are still open, it is understood that Count von Bernstorff will be given to understand that there will be no recession of the U. S. from its original demands.

Panic in Berlin.

London, Feb. 5.—A despatch from Amsterdam to a news agency states that there was a panic on the Berlin Bourse today on unconfirmed rumors that relations between the United States and Germany would be severed. The despatch says that prices suffered severe losses.

LAYING A SPECTER.

A Filmy Blue Light and Some Daring Japanese Police.

In the village of Hase, near Kanzaki, at the end of the Rokosan range, says the Kobe Yushin, rumors were set afloat not long ago that in the small hours of the morning a phantom could be seen at the Miyama pass, where some time ago a murder was committed by robbers. The ghost, whenever he caught sight of a lonely traveler, would attempt to stop him, as if he had something important to say. People reported having seen a filmy blue light hovering in their path. In the whole village no one dared thereafter to walk that way after dark.

The rumor was laughed at by the skeptical police, but late one night a number of officers were instructed to patrol the haunted pass in the hope of bringing relief to the tortured minds of the timid by proving that there was no ghost or, should he be met, putting him under arrest. Every half hour after midnight a different policeman was to traverse the pass. Up to half past 2 nothing happened. Then one of them saw the blue light in front of him. He blew his whistle and ran—back to the police station. The others also ran—in the same direction.

When morning came the whole countryside joined the police in making search for the ghost. What they found near the scene of the blue light was a human skeleton in a long disused lime kiln. The local scientist declared that the light was a phosphorescence from the poor neglected bones, which were thereupon interred with full Buddhist ceremony at Kase, and the people as far as Kanzaki breathe easier.

Chinese Typewriters.

A Chinese typewriter is a wonderful contrivance. It has 4,200 characters. It has only three keys. It can make 50,000 letters or characters by combinations of the basic 4,200. To write a letter you turn a cylinder upon which are the 4,200 characters until the right one comes opposite the keyboard of the guide on another cylinder. After striking the printing key, just as on an American machine, you begin a still hunt for the next character which you are to print, and so on while reason lasts.—Christian Herald.

Pleasing Superiority.

"Why are there so many old jokes on the stage?"

"Oh, they go good. That is due to the feeling of superiority produced by the fact that you know the answer while the actor gink who is being told the joke apparently does not."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

Fully Covered.

As he crawled out of the wreck of his auto a solicitous friend asked, "Are you covered?"

"Yes," he said sadly, "with mud, blood, chagrin and insurance. Is that enough?"—Detroit Free Press.

FUNERAL SERVICE OF THOMAS H. KELLER

Many Mourners Attend Obsequies Held at Home of Son in This City.

Although the service was announced as one of a private nature, many relatives and business associates and a few intimate friends were at the funeral of Thomas H. Keller was the Eastern manager and Hazelwood Keller, Jr., of Sandford avenue, yesterday afternoon. Three members of the firm of the Peters Cartridge Company, of which Mr. Keller was the Eastern manager and employes from the New York offices were included in the gathering. The service was extremely simple and was in charge of Rev. Dr. C. M. Anderson, of the First M. E. church.

The floral tributes were numbered in scores and nearly all of them were large set pieces. One of the most striking was a garland of roses and lilies, sent by the Peters Company. It occupied so much space that it had to be brought from New York to this city by automobile. There were also handsome pieces from two distant points, one coming from a social club at Baltimore and another from a group of friends in Cincinnati, Ohio. Dozens of telegrams of condolence were received at the Sandford avenue home during the day, one of them from John Phillips Sousa, the famous bandmaster, who was an intimate friend of Mr. Keller's and his companion on numerous hunting trips. Burial was made in Hillside cemetery, the pall bearers being eight nephews of the deceased. These were, Herbert L. McVoy, of Westfield; Raymond McVoy, of Rahway; Percy A. and George McVoy, Harry Bouton, Olan Angleman, Frank and Orrin J. Dodge, all of this city.

A sad feature in connection with the funeral was the fact that Mr. Keller's youngest son, Harold Keller time to be in attendance. The young time to be in atendance. The young man was traveling in Missouri in the interests of the Peter's Company when the message reached him that his father was dead. He made a desperate effort to get to Chicago by two o'clock yesterday afternoon in order to catch the Pennsylvania Limited which would have gotten him to this city by noon yesterday but he failed to make connections through a delay of two hours. As a result he arrived in Plainfield late last night. T. Hazelwood Keller, Jr., was also traveling at the time of his parent's demise, but being in Kansas City a telegram reached him long before one was gotten to his brother and he started east immediately.

You Touch a Magic Button When You Become a "Want Advertiser."

Our day is the day of "touching buttons."

A President presses a button in Washington, and a titanic explosion, thousands of miles away, weds the two great seas.

We are fond, nowadays, of accomplishing big effects with simple processes.

And so the "button-pressing" magic applies to the "little things" of life, as well as to the big episodes.

When you become a "want advertiser" you press a MAGIC BUTTON—and the influence is felt in the homes and business places of the city.

Your quest becomes of interest to the people who are able to help you accomplish it.

If you seek work, and "press the button" of Plainfield Daily Press want advertising publicity, your quest becomes one of personal interest to the people who need you. The same law operates in the working out of every "want ad task."

For classified advertising makes the whole city your market; makes the right people your audience; delivers your message to all people to whom it could have any interest or importance.

PAIN GONE! RUB SORE, RHEUMATIC ACHING JOINTS

Rub pain away with a small trial bottle of old, penetrating "St. Jacob's Oil."

Stop "dosing" rheumatism.

It's pain only; not one case in fifty requires internal treatment. Rub soothing, penetrating "St. Jacobs Oil" right on the "tender spot," and by the time you say Jack Robinson—out comes the rheumatic pain and distress. "St. Jacobs Oil" is a harmless rheumatism liniment which never disappoints and doesn't burn the skin. It takes pain, soreness and stiffness from aching joints, muscles and bones; stops sciatica, lumbago, backache and neuralgia.

Limber up! Get a small trial bottle of old-time, honest "St. Jacobs Oil" from any drug store, and in a moment, you'll be free from pains, aches and stiffness. Don't suffer! Rub rheumatism away.—Adv.

TEACH CHILDREN VALUE OF THRIFT

Seeking to Start 50,000 New Bank Accounts In New York.

THE CITY IS FAR BEHIND.

Few of the Public Schools Have Institutions For Savings—American Bankers' Association and School Boards Co-operate to Establish Banks For Pupils Everywhere.

Fifty thousand dimes.
Fifty thousand school children.
Fifty thousand bank accounts.

To bring these three groups together is the object of the "dimes to dollars" campaign launched in New York by the board of education and the American Bankers' association.

One hundred new savings banks are to be opened in the public schools of the city this year, the hundredth anniversary of the savings bank in America. The American Bankers' association is arranging for the banks, the board of education is supervising plans within the schools, and they are to provide one dime for each 50,000 children to open a savings account.

Nobody is barred from contributing. Each dime contributed will be the tenth dime in a dollar deposit opened by some child in the schools, thus giving him a savings account of $1 as a nucleus with which to work toward a regular bank account.

It is said New York city lags behind the country in its encouragement of thrift in the public schools. Only thirty-five school savings banks are in operation, with only about 1,800 depositors, owning approximately 175,000 dimes. Installed in 1913, these thirty five savings banks have transferred about 1,200 accounts to regular banks. So much for what New York city has done.

There are still 514 schools in the city that have no banks for the children.

To encourage the habit of saving and establish banks this year in at least a hundred of the schools this campaign is opened.

Schools and Banks Co-operate.

Associate superintendent of the city schools, Edward B. Shallow, is honorary chairman of the school committee working in conjunction with the bankers. A. N. Clark, originator of the "Brooklyn plan" of savings bank operation in schools, is active head of the committee.

Mr. Clark is a believer not only in the savings idea for children, but is an advocate of the method that teaches the children to handle the money for themselves as clerks, tellers and bankers.

This campaign is part of one that covers the entire country.

The public savings banks in which the school banks deposit their funds will guarantee a small bank equipment for each school. A large stationery house will provide paper supplies.

All that is needful now to arrange for the actual opening of the hundred new school banks is the education of the children to the saving spirit and to provide them with a dime each. When they have earned nine dimes each themselves, 50,000 bank accounts of ten dimes each may be started.

SWISS TAKE WAR INVALIDS.

Two Hundred French and German Consumptives Arrive In Berne.

Two hundred consumptive prisoners of war arrived in Berne the other day. Half of them are French prisoners from Germany and the remainder German prisoners from France. They are the first soldiers to be brought to Switzerland under the agreement recently made for the treatment of consumptives at health resorts of that country. The French prisoners are bound for Leysand and the German for Davos.

The French and German governments have given orders to the men to make no attempt to escape, and if any of them should do so they would be treated as deserters and subject to court martial. They will not be watched by the Swiss authorities. Each nation will pay the cost of maintaining its own soldiers.

It is expected that about 20,000 Frenchmen and as many Germans will be permitted to avail themselves of treatment in Switzerland. Three hundred rheumatic prisoners of war from Germany and France will be cared for at Baden, near Zurich.

Although in many instances the soldiers were affected with incipient tuberculosis before the time of mobilization, the malady has developed in their term of service on account of exposure and other hardships.

MEAL TICKETS PAY FOR FARM

Joking Remark of Real Estate Agent Results In Unique Deal.

"I have no money to put in a Wisconsin farm," insisted Angus Cameron, proprietor of a St. Paul, (Minn.) hotel, when urged by F. W. Lapham, real estate man, to purchase an equity in a farm.

"Then give me $1,200 in meal tickets," suggested Lapham, as he started to leave.

"If you will take the meal tickets I will give them," snapped Cameron. Lapham considered a moment, then accepted. Cameron is now a farm owner, and Lapham is taking friends to Cameron's hotel for dinner.

That Boy

You've got to have faith in that boy
And to show him the faith that you feel;
That you know beneath all his alloy
Is the metal that's honest and real.
You've got to let him trust in you
As you trust in him day by day;
You've got to have faith in that boy
If you want him to go the right way.

You hear them cry out now and then
That their boy won't amount to a thing.
And he won't—in this wide world of men
You've got to give faith the right ring;
You've got to make him feel that you
Feel firmly and truly his worth;
That you know he will put things right through;
That he showed the right will at his birth.

You can't trust a boy to do right
If you don't let him see that you trust;
You can't be to him like a light
If you hide all your faith in the dust.
He needs such a faith as will shine,
As will show and make plain o'er his path
That he'll win; that he's starting out fine;
That he'll triumph o'er evil and wrath.

MORGAN GOES ABROAD TO ARRANGE A FRENCH LOAN

Wall Street Thinks That Bonds Will Be Sold In This Country.

The purpose of J. P. Morgan's departure for Europe is the negotiation of a new French loan of between $100,000,000 and $200,000,000, based on the sale of French government bonds.

Mr. Morgan was accompanied by John F. Harris of the Stock Exchange firm of Harris Winthrop & Co. Another visitor to Europe is Benjamin Strong, Jr., governor of the Federal Reserve Bank of New York. It is said that the two financiers do not have a common mission, but that Mr. Strong is going abroad to look over the ground for the possible establishment of branches of the Federal Reserve bank in Europe and to familiarize himself with the financial situation with a view of extending farther credits to Great Britain.

Wall street is inclined to discredit the firm's explanation of Mr. Morgan's trip that he was going primarily for a rest and for the sake of his health. His sailing for Europe at a time when heavy gales add to the dangers from submarine and floating mines convinced financiers that the situation abroad presented problems that demanded the presence of the head of America's biggest banking house.

The proposed loan was understood to be an offering of French government bonds in this country rather than a credit based on a purely banking arrangement. The bonds will run from three to five years. What interest rate the French bonds will bear is not known, but it is believed that the interest will be higher than the 5 per cent return on the Anglo-French bonds.

These bonds will not only have the credit of the French government back of them, but will be secured by collateral, part of which may be American railroad securities of high grade. The loan will not be assailable by those who criticised the Anglo-French loan on the ground that it had back of it no other security than the credit of Great Britain and France. Part of the collateral offered by the French government as security for the loan may be the securities of other European governments, of which France holds large amounts.

France and French bankers have already borrowed about $120,000,000 in this country in addition to France's share of the Anglo-French loan, which is understood to be $250,000,000. In most cases, however, the financing was purely of a banking nature in that no bonds were offered for sale.

LIFE DEPENDS ON BIRDS.

Destroy Them, Says Davey, and There Will Come an Awful Horror.

Do you want to know what the one thing is that can be worse than the European war? John Davey, big brother to the birds and tree physician Kent's (O.) arbiter of lawn and stream, has found out what it is.

Mr. Davey told an audience at a New York Y. M. C. A.:

"Human life depends upon vegetation. We would all starve if vegetation ceased for a year. But vegetation depends upon the birds, who protect it from destruction by insects.

"Human life therefore depends upon the birds. All insectivorous birds in this country are decreasing 10 per cent each year. Unless we start at once to increase their numbers, to protect them and kill their enemies, within a decade will occur the disaster to humanity which I have spoken of—a catastrophic horror more awful than the European war."

Decrease in the insectivorous birds, said Mr. Davey, is due to destruction of forests, depriving birds of retreats from storms and cold and the enmity of the English sparrows, which, he said, increase almost as fast as the ton measured progeny of the cankerworm.

Yearly Amount Paid to Retired Ministers and Widows and Orphans.

The Methodist church paid $1,200,000 in pensions to retired ministers and widows and orphans of ministers during 1915, according to the annual report of Dr. Joseph B. Hingeley, secretary of the board of conference claimants, submitted at the annual meeting of the board in Chicago.

Fifteen million dollars is needed for the pension fund. Dr. Hingeley's report said, and of this amount $6,000,000 is now in the treasury of the conference

The service will be in charge of Rev. John Y. Broek. Miss Pesinger was found dead in her apartment, as told in yesterday's Daily Press. Tenants on the lower floor of the residence failed to notice her about and summoned Harry Codlington and Charles Steiner, who forced an entrance into the place.

URGE PASSAGE OF CHILD LABOR BILL

Mother's Association Adopt Resolution Favoring Keating-Owen Measure.

The Mother's Association went on record yesterday afternoon favoring the Keating-Owen child labor bill, and on a motion the secretary was requested to write to the New Jersey Senators at Washington urging them to vote in favor of the bill. During the business meeting the hygiene committee made an interesting report dwelling on the use of the school roofs as open-air places for exercises and gymnastic work. A report of the extension of school lunches was also favorably heard; those served in the Franklin and Stillman schools being decidedly successful. A discussion of the plans of the Mother's Association's part in the coming "Baby Week," from March 4 to March 11, was also discussed.

Interesting addresses were also heard from Miss Lillian Lamson, supervisor of the recreation work in the city, and Charles Getts, who spoke on the possibility of a summer Chautauqua in Plainfield. Miss Lamson brought before the women the possibilities of musical education for the children at a nominal price. At the conclusion of the meeting, Mrs. C. L. Riley gave a short address on woman suffrage.

SMOKE, BUT NO FIRE.

West End Hose Company, No. 3, was sent out at 1:50 this morning in response to a telephone alarm from Mrs. Randolph, at 1116 West Seventh street, stating that her home was on fire. Chief Doane accompanied the men to the scene and found that the supposed fire was only smoke from a faulty chimney. The family had been aroused and believed that flames were somewhere between the walls. The Randolph house is located only a short distance away from the Lyle residence, which was badly damaged by fire last month.

SUFFS TO APPEAR BEFORE LEGISLATURE

Will Send Big Delegation to Trenton to Urge Passage of Bill.

Mrs. Robert S. Huse, of Elizabeth, chairman of the legislative committee of the New Jersey suffrage organizations, has instructed the county chairmen throughout the State to organize large deputations of men and women to wait upon each of the State Senators within the next week, to request them to use their influence in favor of the bill for residential suffrage for women, to be introduced in the Senate by Senator Hennessey, of Bergen county, next Monday night.

Many of the Senators are strong suffragists, but the legislative committee feels it will do no harm for even the friendly legislators to realize how strong is the sentiment in their communities in favor of giving this degree of suffrage to the women of the State at once, so that New Jersey may have her fair share of influence in the next Presidential election.

Over four million women will vote next fall, Illinois, through the votes of its women, taking precedence of even New York, so that if New Jersey and New York want to have a proportionately large vote they will have to give their women Presidential suffrage, which degree of suffrage can be granted by the State Legislature without being referred to a popular vote.

The New York Legislature has already arranged for a public hearing on the question of residential suffrage, and a very strong sentiment for it exists at Albany.

The New Jersey suffragists have a good precedent for their action in going to the Legislature with this bill in the course pursued by the women of Illinois. Immediately after being defeated in a popular referendum in Chicago, on the question of granting women municipal suffrage, the suffragists had a bill introduced in the Illinois Legislature, which passed it by a large majority, not only giving them municipal suffrage, but also the right to vote for President. Bills for Presidential suffrage have been introduced in several State Legislatures during the past year or two, and in two cases such bills nearly passed last year. The anti-suffragists contested the legality of the Illinois law, but every court in the State, including the Supreme Court, upheld its constitutionality, and the women of Illinois have been voting in large numbers for several years.

The suffragists believe that even though many legislators would not favor the women of New Jersey participating in State elections, they will be glad to vote to give them the right to vote for President, and thus place New Jersey on the same footing as Illinois, California, Colorado, Arizona, Oregon, Washington, Kansas, Utah, Idaho, Nevada, Montana and Wyoming in regard to national affairs.

Realty Deal There Last Week Gives Life to Other Proposed Developments.

START WORK IN SPRING

In Addition to Tank or Reservoir There Will Be Homes for Employes—Further Building is in Sight.

The rumor that has been troubling residents of Fanwood and Scotch Plains for some time, of a large building boom in that section, has been exploded by the announcement of the Pure Oil Company, with main offices in Newark, that it has secured the Gettings property, consisting of slightly over an acre of land on South avenue Fanwood township, on which they propose to build. While it will not at present have any noticeable effect on realty in either of the two suburbs, it is a forerunner of further building by manufacturing concerns.

The Company intends to start active work in the Spring on the building of a large receiving and distributing station that will supply all of the central portion of the state, including Plainfield, Elizabeth, New Brunswick and other towns. It will have a capacity of approximately one hundred thousand gallons, and be capable of supplying the wants of a population of 200,000. It is said that to start with a dwelling for an overseer or superintendent will be erected, besides a structure for shelter for the company's equipment.

The property is ideally located for such a purpose, being situated on South avenue, the county road near Scotch Plains avenue. It also borders the tracks of the C. R. R. of N. J., and it is intended to have a siding built to be used by the company. The new branch of the company will be under the supervision of Andrew Dickson, who will have a corps of men under him. Both horses and auto trucks will be used in distributing the oil to various points from the plant.

The Company was at first desirous of locating near the centre of Fanwood borough, and had secured options on land bordering on LaGrande avenue. That street, however, is several hundred yards from the railroad and across South avenue. Agreements could not be reached with the Fanwood Lumber & Supply Company for the joint use of its siding, and, besides, the expense that would be incurred by building a new one, there would be considerable opposition to having two sidings cross South avenue so near together.

The ground is already cleared and active work will be started as soon as the weather becomes favorable.

THREE PERMITS THE PAST WEEK'S OUTPUT

Although a total of only three permits were granted by Building Inspector T. O. Doane during the past week, the total expenditures reached the sum of $30,450. This sum is due to the permit for the new East End school, bids for the construction of which are to be asked within the next few days. The plans fix the cost of the school building at $30,000, and this figure will be allowed to stand, although the Board of Education's appropriation for the actual building was but $25,000. An additional $5,000 is to be expended in fixtures, from which the total of $30,000 is gained. A description of the school will be found in another column of this page.

Of the other two permits, one was an alteration job at the business building at 217 Park avenue, occupied until the first of this month by Henry L. Viebrock, the grocer. It is owned by the State Trust Company, and when the changes are made the premises will be taken by Moraller & Son, the jewelers, wh now have their place of business in the Vanderbeek building directly next door. According to the plans filed with Inspector Doane, the changes to the structure at 217 Park avenue will cost $375. They will embrace the erection of a three by twenty-two foot extension of the building in the front. The addition is to be but one story high, and it to be of hollow terra cotta tile block. W. H. Clum is the architect, B. F. Tallamy & Brother, the mason contractors, and G. I. Forgenson, the carpenter contractor.

The third permit was granted Alexander D. Ayers, of 718 West Fourth street, for the erection of a garage at that address at a cost of $7. It will be ten by fifteen in dimensions.

AWAIT NEW SCHOOL PLANS FROM STATE

Have Already Been Sanctioned by Building Inspector T. O. Doane.

The Plainfield Board of Education has announced that the plans of the new East End school will, in all probability, be returned by State Examiner Dougherty, today. They have already been sanctioned by Building Inspector T. O. Doane, who issued a permit for the local end last Saturday, and if the approval of Examiner Dougherty is given, bids for the construction will be asked for next week. The plans were submitted to the State Board of Examination when they were first completed and a number of changes were ordered, this having been done. Nothing now stands in the way of actual work.

The site of the new school is on a plot bounded by Emerson, Midway and Sumner avenues, and includes a number of parcels purchased from different owners at a total cost of $6000. Title to each portion was passed to the Board of Education during the present week. A total appropriation for the school was $36,000, $25,000 of which is for the building and $5,000 for furnishings. The structure will be ninety-four feet in width in the front, and fifty-eight feet in the rear, and will have a depth of sixty-five feet. It will be of brick construction, two stories high. Two playrooms and a room for the manual training class are provided for in the basement, two class rooms and a large assembly hall on the first floor, and two on the second floor. Wilder and White, of New York, are the architects.

OUTLOOK FOR THE YEAR PROMISING

Total of Eighteen Permits Aggregating Expenditure of $56,568 for the Month.

BUILDERS OPTIMISTIC

New East End School is Among the Largest Contracts to Be Completed This Year—Resume of Work for January.

With a total of eighteen permits, aggregating an estimated expenditure of $56,568, the month of January just closed begins an auspicious period in legal building prospects for 1916. Although this total figure is $16,270 behind the record of January a year ago, the total is looked upon by contractors in an optimistic vein. The larger figure in 1915 is due mostly to the fact that the Berry Building and Construction Company filed application for twelve houses, costing in all $54,585. There were only four other permits in that month. In 1914 there were only twelve permits granted during January, representing an outlay of but $33,885, so that this year's figures are almost twice as much.

The eighteen permits for the month just closed include the one granted the Board of Education for the new East End school, four private dwellings, one business building, three private garages, seven alteration jobs and the installation of two tanks for the storage of gasoline. Each ward in the city was represented in the application. A table is printed below which will give a ready idea of how the building work is distributed.

In February, 1915, permits were somewhat scarce, as only twelve were granted, and these represented a cost of $14,900. This amount will undoubtedly be beaten many times for February of this year, as numerous plans are out for big jobs. One of these is the alterations to the McCutchen building, at 124 West Front street, which will approximate $100,000. Another is the new home for the State Trust Company, at North and Park avenues, the plans of which are nearly completed, and for which a permit will be asked in a few weeks. Numerous other prospects for smaller amounts are beginning to appear in all parts of the cityy, so that indications for a busy season are exceptionally good. The table for last month's operations is as follows:

January, 1916.

Wards	New Buildings	Alterations	Totals
1st	$32,000	$2,400	$34,400

DUNELLEN CONCERN PURCHASES LAND HERE

New Owners Have Been Active in Developing Tracts in Other Sections.

The Standard Investment Company of Dunellen, which is composed of business men from that borough and Plainfield, has purchased the tract of land in the inside area bounded by Mariners place and Clinton avenue, West Front street and Myrtle avenue. It is surrounded more or less by substantial dwellings, some of which have been erected many years, and is directly across the street from the new Jefferson school. The plot is several acres in extent. The purchase was made frim William H. Talmadge, who recently secured it from W. S. Tyler.

The Standard Investment Company has been active in the local building field, both in Plainfield and at Dunellen. Some time ago it acquired the old "Vail's woods" property at West Fourth street and Monroe avenue and has gradually been developing that portion nearest Monroe avenue. The Company proposes to develop its new tract mentioned above between now and next fall, putting up houses of moderate price. There is a considerable demand for this type of dwelling in the far west end, owing to the influx of workmen in that section, as a result of busy times at the big manufacturing plants.

BUILDERS PLAY WAITING GAME

Hardly a Change in Price Levels Took Place During the Past Week.

ADVANCE IS EXPECTED

There is a Continued Heavy Demand for Materials and This May Have a Tendency to Boost Prices—Active Season Anticipated.

New York, Feb. 5.—Building material movements this week showed a tendency upon the part of builders to wait and see what the price movement in the first week in February was going to be. Hardly a change in levels took place, as far as formal lists were concerned, but there were several instances where inquiries were answered subject to immediate acceptance. One was in the brick market, where a price was made on a load at $8.25 a thousand, another was in the case of a special lot of molding sand, where a five-cent slide was made on quantity, and another in a lumber movement concering a grade of oak.

Offsetting these three instances were four where spot prices were made at slightly above list figures now ruling. One was on cement for late spring and early summer delivery. The advance was not stated, but it was intimated that it was above five cents. Another case where prompt acceptance of a quotation made in response to an inquiry was urged was in the case of a certain form of reinforcing material. All steel and iron quotations are being made on condition of immediate acceptance, and many of the hardware lines in jobbers' hands are almost as tightly held.

Architects taking figures on new operations have found, in the recent past, that owners were showing a disposition to hold off speculative operations until the complexion of the spring building movement could be determined, and particularly wnether there was going to be trouble in getting fuel at manufacturing centers pending the adjustment of the wage scales at the coal mines. Assurances made in Indianapolis that the men would not walk out on April 1 gave many builders reassurances that conditions would remain undisturbed and that only slight advances, if any, might be expected before spring specifications were in.

As the general building materials market in the metropolitan district now stands, the aggregate gain in prices for all basic materials, outside of steel, copper, tin, iron and allied commodities, show a gain of only 3.8 per cent. above those ruling last year at this time. The principal gain accrues from the rise in the price of cement and common brick. Incidental factors are crushed stone, glass and fireproofing terra cotta block. With structural steel, iron copper and tin included, the aggregate reaches 10.5 per cent.

It is apparent, therefore, that the price movement of building materials entering into speculative operations is not sufficient to warrant postponing operations, and in sections where actual demand exists small operations will continue to proceed to completion.

As for types of buildings requiring steel and considerable metal concrete reinforcement, there is an increasing demand, and it is held by some architects that this is so insistent as to make certain kinds of construction imperative regardless of the added cost. For instance, it was pointed out, that there is an actual dearth of moderate-sized office space in the Greeley square section. There is an increasing demand for loft building space in the central business zone of Newark. Factory building is active, as far as prospective operations are concerned, in both Queens and Brooklyn. Bronx, on the other hand, is developing a moderate sized small building movement.

The height of the building material price movement has not yet been reached, according to some authorities in the trade. There are many dealers and distributors who believe that it has gone high enough, but when Portland cement manufacturers say they are doing a summer business in their business, brick manufacturers are contemplating starting operations earlier than usual this year, and steel companies are taking business subject to late third-quarter and end-of-the-year delivery except when high premiums are paid, it leads many conservative houses to believe that, despite the high price of good materials, the building movement this spring and summer will be equal to, if not greater, than that of 1913. Some even go so far as to look for a repetition of the volume of business taken in 1912.

GERMANS PLAN BIG SEA ATTACK?

Expert Says Fleet Will Soon Make Dash For England.

TESTING MANY NEW DEVICES

President of Aeronautical Society of America Asserts That Time of Expected Drive Depends on Development of Aerial Torpedo—Zeppelins May Carry Fokkers.

Thomas R. Macmechen, aeronautical engineer and president of the Aeronautical Society of America, says that he believes reports of a coming attack on England by a German fleet are well founded. In his opinion the attack will be carried out by a battleship fleet armed with seventeen inch guns, far outranging the largest of the British guns, and escorted by a fleet of Fokker aeroplanes and Zeppelins, armed with a new pneumatic gun capable of firing armor piercing projectiles.

Mr. Macmechen said he based his prediction on sources of authoritative information in Germany.

"To understand what is going on in the field of scientific progress," Mr. Macmechen said, "we must keep in mind the fact that the stimulus of the most terrible war and the greatest resources of genius have joined hands, and in a great effort inventions are rapidly being produced which are modified and improved from month to month. Only in this way can we understand the wonderful progress that has been made in the science of aviation during the war."

Big Raid to Test New Device.

The time of the German navy's dash from the Kiel canal will be fixed mainly by the results of the testing of the new engine of destruction from the air, the pneumatic gun or torpedo tube, Mr. Macmechen asserted. He says he believes the weapon will be tried out shortly in a monster raid by Zeppelins on London.

"The previous raids on London have been fruitless from a military standpoint on account of the impossibility of hitting any object aimed at with a bomb thrown from an altitude of more than two miles—11,000 or 12,000 feet," he said.

"For the past four years the Krupp company experts have been working on the aerial torpedo which, according to my information is now perfected. Briefly the torpedo tube or pneumatic gun launching the projectile is about eight feet long. Air pressure is used because of the danger of using powder for a gun of that caliber on an airship. The projectile has an initial velocity of 650 feet a second. This great velocity overcomes all the cross currents and the motion of the airship which made the bomb so useless as a missile. The projectile goes straight to its mark with an ever increasing rate of speed and strikes within a few seconds, even from so great a height as 15,000 feet.

"The projectile, weighing four and a half pounds, has a point as hard and sharp as a cold chisel and lands with a striking impact of fourteen tons. It will pierce armor plate and then explode inside."

Fast Fliers With Zeppelins.

Mr. Macmechen also predicted that in the near future Zeppelins will be equipped with light one man Fokker aeroplanes slung under the carriages.

"The great trouble with the light, rapid types like the Fokker is their low fuel capacity, giving them a small radius. The Fokker is the storm petrel among air craft. It can dive or tumble hundreds of feet and right itself again and can climb and fly far faster than the heavier British machines. Soon in a raiding fleet of two squadrons of five Zeppelins each about ten Fokkers will be carried, and daylight raids on London will be made with impunity. The superior Fokkers, launched from long rods slung under the bodies of the Zeppelins, will easily dispose of the slow British air craft, while the Zeppelins will rain down destruction with their torpedo tubes.

"After fighting off the British airmen the Fokkers would have enough fuel to fly back to Belgium. An air battle rarely lasts longer than twenty or twenty-five minutes."

Terrific Battle Foreseen.

When the German fleet comes out, as it will shortly, Mr. Macmechen said, a conflict so terrific in its ferocity as to defy imagination will result. High in the air the Zeppelins will rain armor piercing torpedoes upon the British fleet while German and British air craft contend. On the surface of the sea the two fleets, the British having the advantage in numbers of craft and the German with their long range guns, will strive to annihilate each other, while beneath the sea submarines will work destruction no less vigorously.

Henry Woodhouse, secretary of the Aero Club of America and a firm believer in the superiority of the aeroplane over the dirigible in time of war, said he did not think there was one chance in a million of a Zeppelin attacking London in the daytime.

Chile Improving Her Railroads.

Chile will raise $10,219,650 this year for improvements on state railways, and $22,921,215 for betterments will be raised in the next five years.

REALTY MAN TO BUILD ON NEWLY ACQUIRED LOT

C. D. Manning, the local realty man, has effected an exchange with Mrs. Mary F. Wheeler, of Boston, whereby he gives the colonial residence property on Park avenue, near Cedarbrook, owned by him, for Mrs. Wheeler's lot at Eighth street and Spooner avenue. The later has a frontage of 110 feet on Eighth srtee, running back to a depth of 275 feet on Spooner avenue.

The Wheeler lot is one of the most desirable building sites in that section of the city, as it is surrounded by many handsome homes and directly across from the former Leonard tract, which is now under process of poses to put up a fine residence on the Eighth street frontage, and perhaps two of smaller size on the Spooner avenue side. Mrs. Wheeler was formerly a Plainfield resident, but has been living in New England for a number of years.

MORRIS ISRAEL BUYS LOT ON W. FOURTH STREET

William C. Smith, of Grandview avenue, has sold to Morris Israel the lot at 728 West Fourth street, which Mr. Smith has owned for a long time. The property is located next to No. 3 firehouse on the easterly side, and has a frontage of about 40 feet. It has been used for some time by Arthur E. Smith for the storage of construction material.

Mr. Israel proposes to erect a two-family house on the lot within the next few months. It will be of the "double-decker" type familiar in various parts of the city. The lot in question is one of the last left for building purposes on West Fourth street between Park avenue and Monroe avenue. The only fair-sized tract remaining is the one of 80 feet bordering to the Van Syckle on the westerly side of No. 3 firehouse. Mr. Van Syckle has had several offers for this recently, and it will possibly exchange hands in the near future.

FINANCE COMMITTEE MEETS TO DISCUSS NEW BUDGETS

Members of the finance committee of the Plainfield Common Council met last night for a discussion of the municipal budget. Nothing definite was decided on at the meeting, and an adjourned session will be held within a short time, probably before the Council meeting of next Monday night. Members of the finance committee are Juan A. Babcock, chairman; Thomas F. Hylan, John H. Cose, A. D. Edgar, Christie P. Hamilton.

PYTHIANS ARRANGING FOR ANNUAL BANQUET

At the regular meeting of Perseverance Lodge, No. 74, Knights of Pythias, last night, further arrangements were made for the annual banquet under the auspices of the organization. It will be held early in March, and an effort will be made to surpass last year's affair, which was one of the largest in local Pythian history. The committee arranging the details is composed of Chancellor Commander Clarence B. Rittenhouse, George Keen, Kenneth McCullough, David Allen and John J. Bicknell. Prominent speakers from various parts of the state have already been asked to be present.

In the business session last night, the lodge completed arrangements for an entertainment to be held in the Castle Hall, Friday night, February 18. Professional talent has been engaged for the occasion, and the affair will be for the members and their friends. In the initiatory work last night, the first and second ranks were conferred on two candidates.

TABS NOSE OUT ST. JOES.

The Tabs defeated the St. Joseph's Club on the T. A. B. Club court last night, 17 to 16. The boroughites were one point in the lead at the end of the first half. The Tab seconds were defeated by the St. Joseph's seconds.

BEATS MEN RATED HIGHER.

George York won two matches last night in the Elks' Club pocket billiard tournament. He defeated Frank R. Emmons (90), 80 to 66, and John Ardern (100), 80 to 62.

J. C. COOPER WITNESSED BIG FIRE AT ISELIN

John C. Cooper, of Willow avenue, the borough, was one of the many spectators who witnessed the destruction, by fire, of the school building at Iselin, near Woodbridge, yesterday afternoon. The blaze was one of the worst the place has had in many years, and only through the efforts of the Woodbridge fire department a disastrous conflagration was prevented. The town hall and other adjacent buildings were saved by a hard fight.

The fire occurred only a short time after the children had been dismissed for the day, possibly averting a loss of life. One of the few articles saved was a handsome piano that had only recently been placed in the school. Mr. Cooper chanced to be in Iselin through his attendance at a funeral earlier in the afternoon.

FIRST M. E. CHURCH CHOIR TO SING ORATORIO "RUTH"

The quartet choir of the First Methodist church will sing the oratorio "Ruth," by Arthur B. Gaul, at the service tomorrow evening. The service will be entirely musical and no doubt many will avail themselves of this opportunity of hearing this beautiful work. The choir comprises Laura E. Gustafson, soprano; Ethel G. Kinnaman, contralto; Alexander MacGowan, tenor, and Edgar A. Cole, baritone. Clifford A. Braider, organist and director. The public is cordially invited to attend this service.

GRACE M. E. CHURCH REVIVAL WILL CONTINUE

The special services at the Grace church will be continued during the coming week. The interest displayed in the meetings as attested by the large attendances is the reason for their being continued. At the regular morning service tomorrow the pastor, the Rev. E. C. Gillespie, will preach on "The Greatest Love Song." At the evening service his subject will be "The Prodigal Son." At the latter service there will be special singing by the members of the Men's Bible class. The regular choir will assist with the singing which will be led by Robert Boyd, the singing evangelist.

—The Woman's Relief Corps will hold an entertainment in Reform Hall on Friday evening, February 11. Refreshments will be served.

—The weekly reception conducted by "Doc" Doyle and "Mac" McCormick last night was another success. Sixty young people enjoyed dancing until a late hour. Prof. Squier's orchestra furnished the music.

PLAINFIELD, NEW JERSEY, FEBRUARY 5, 1916.

On Saturdays the editorial columns of the Daily Press are conducted by citizens who are free to express their own views. The contributing editor for today is Former Assemblyman S. S. Swackhamer.

For six thousand years the rulers of the race have stood in the rear at a safe distance and have forced the common soldier upon the point of the sword.

For six thousand years the military experts have said: "In time of peace prepare for war."

For six thousand years men have worshiped the god of force and today one half of the human race stand lip deep in blood.

Prior to the European war the military experts and the war lords said, "Preparedness will insure peace," and they piled up the war tax until the Foreign Secretary of Great Britain said, "If this thing goes on there can be only one of two possible results, either Europe knee-deep in blood or bankrupt European nations." But the war party insisted on preparedness as the price of peace and the English Parliament swelled the war budget to the breaking point.

In view of such a fact is it any wonder that Lord Rosebery in his speech last November at the London University said: "I know nothing more disheartening than the announcement recently made that the Uited States—the one great country left in the world free from the hideous, bloody burden of war—is about to embark upon the building of a huge Armada.

It means that the burden will continue upon the other nations and be increased exactly in proportion to the fleet of the United States.

I confess that it is a disheartening prospect that the United States so remote from European conflicts should voluntarily in these days take up the burden, which after this war, will be found to have broken, or almost broken our backs."

For one hundred and forty years the people of this country have been looking across the Atlantic at the people of Europe, armed to the teeth, staggering under a crushing weight of taxes, each workman with a soldier on his back, and so sure of peace that he fights for it all the time.

For one hundred and forty years the people of this country have refused to strap on the burden of militarism.

Now with the European policy smeared with blood, and the American policy without a scratch on it; with the doctrine of preparedness exploded forever on the battlefields of Europe, and with the steady confidence of the American people in the respect of the world fully vindicated, on what ground is it urged that the past policy of this country should be abandoned and that the nation should increase its armament?

President Garfield said: "We need no large standing army in this country. In the United States of America government rests upon the hearts and hands and homes of the people."

General Weaver, chief of coast artillery, according to Claude Kitchen, said that our sea coast armament is adequate for all defensive purposes, and according to the same authority Admiral Fletcher said that we have a navy superior to that of Germany or any other nation except Great Britain.

"Prior to the European war we spent more money for military purposes than any other nation on earth.

In the two years of Wilson"s administration the naval building program authorized is twice as large and costly as the last two years of Taft's administration and larger and more costly by eight million dollars than the entire four years of Roosevelt's last term and practically as large and costly as the entire four years of Taft's administration.

There is today over fifty per cent more construction going on for our navy than on the first day of March, 1913, or at any other time in the history of our country."

Then why this cry of anguish: "Hannibal at the gates?'

Well, since the nations of Europe have bled themselves white, plunged themselves into hopeless bankruptcy, shot off five millions of their best men and crippled as many more, so that an order has gone out for fifteen million dollars worth of wooden arms and legs to replace those torn off in battle, some people fear that the widows and orphans and cripples will attack us if we don't put out a billion dollars or so for war preparedness.

Militarism has been denounced as the bane of the world. In the Declaration of Independence Jefferson three times inveighed against military establishments. Europeans have fled from conscription in the old world and made their home with us, and yet there are men who, in this Republic, in a time of profound peace, with no enemy in sight, would appropriate vast sums for extra army and navy purposes, subject American citizens to enforced military service and turn this country into an armed camp in time of peace. Many honest people suffer from groundless fear. Is Europe's war a new thing that should scare us? Why Frederick The Great said, "running over the pages of history I see that ten years never pass without a war." The difference is that now all the nations are fighting and there are none left to fight us if they wanted to.

A disturbing feature of the proposed war preparedness is the fact that the means suggested are fit for offensive as well as defensive purposes. If national defense is the only object would not mines and submarines suffice to shield our shores from any attack of any foreign foe, if such a foe existed. Of course in reality no nation could invade us, for when she got her fleet in mid-Atlantic her mortal enemies at home would break through her borders while she was away.

"The bulk of the English and French fleet is now, and has been, within less than a day's run of the German coast. If England could bombard or land on the coast of Germany on the North Sea or on the Baltic sea, the war would end in sixty days. Germany would have to withdraw from France to protect her own soil.

Why does not the fleet of the Allies, nearly four times as strong go in and destroy the little fleet of Germany, bombard her sea-coast at once, and land an arm, etc.? Certainly not because of a little German fleet already bottled up, one-fourth as large, but because of mines and submarines. Mines and submarines would manifestly guard us against invasion.

The public treasury is hungry now. Taxes weigh like lead. Sixty per cent. of all public revenue goes for military uses and we now pay one thousand dollars a minute to feed the war lord in this country.

If we change our policy and prepare for war, how much shall we prepare? As much as any other nation? How can that be ascertained? Did any two prize fighters, however well prepared and trained ever exactly match, or did one always whip the other? Could Belgium have prepared against Germany? If we make a murder machine today will not a new invention put it on the junk heap tomorrow? To those who asked whether they should enclose Sparta in walls, Lycurgus said: "That city is well fortified which has a wall of men instead of brick." If we prepare for war will we not fight as Europe did? There is nothing so conservative as a bull with his horns knocked off. He is ready for arbitration.

The boundary between Canada and the United States is three thousand eight hundred miles long without a gun or a fort to guard it.

If we undertook to fortify it now, what would England say?

The common man has been forced or fooled too often into fighting for some one higher up.

I would take the power of bringing on war away from kaisers and kings and congressmen and submit the question to the vote of the taxpayers and bread winners who have to pay the bill and shoulder the muskets and stand in the trenches.

In the meantime let us remember that "a nation must live by righteousness or the sword," and we are commanded to put away the sword.

You canpot talk peace with your belt full of pistols.

"The soul grows in the direction of its attention."

The American people must decide whether they will put their trust in Christ or a Krupp gun.

On the Spur of the Moment

by Roy K. Moulton

I Remember.

I remember, I remember,
When courtin' Sal I went;
The parlor where so many Delightful hours were spent;
The good old horsehair sofy,
The crayon portraits, too;
The what-not in the corner
Filled up with ancient junk;
The stuffed owl on the mantel,
Who listened to the bunk.
I peddled just like you did,
When courtin' of your gal,
And life was simply heaven
When I was courtin' Sal.

I remember, I remember,
How I marched up the aisle;
The knot tied by the pastor
Has held for quite a while.
The horsehair sofy's missing,
The crayon portraits, too;
We're living in apartments,
With modern stuff clean through.
The stuffed owl is not with us,
Perched up above the grate;
We have no corner what-nots,
For we are upto date.
I remember, I remember,
I married Sal, you bet,
The landlord and collectors
Will not let me forget.

A Latter Day Romance.

The gas was turned low in the conservatory and the strains of the orchestra music floated in from the adjoining room. Clarice, the millionaire pork packer's daughter, was a dream that night, and Harold knew that the psychological moment had arrived. Tenderly he leaned over the divan and whispered in her shell-like ear (she had two ears, but he used only one): "Darling, will you be mine?"

"Are you sure that you can keep me in the manner to which I have been accustomed?" she replied coyly, yet sadly.

"It's a pipe," he replied.

"Can you afford to let me have an egg for breakfast every other Sunday morning?"

"Yes."

"Can we have roast beef at least once a month?"

"Probably."

"Then take me, Harold, for I am your'n."

And he took her, but he had lied to her most shamefully.

A Wholesale Victory.

It really took a lot of sand to ask for Araminta's hand.
I had stage fright so bad I shook just like an aspen leaf.
Thought 'twas a job requiring nerve I did not let my purpose swerve,
Because the way I loved that gal was quite beyond belief.
Her father was a misanthrope by reputation and no hope
Was offered me by anyone who knew his crusty ways.
He looked so fierce my face got hot and I got scared and quite forgot
The speech that I had practiced on so faithfully for days.
I stutered and stammered till the old man though I had a chill,
And seemed inclined to help me on and have the matter done.
Before I could quite understand, he'd grasped me warmly by the hand.
And then I knew, or, joy of joys,
that I at last had won.

He really loosened up and smiled just like a happy child.
It was the first time he had done a thing like that in years.
He was so very gracious that I thought that I could smell a rat.
I'm not a superstitious man, but he gave me some fears.
The wedding bells rang gaily and the presents were just simply grand.
I'd won my Araminta and the world seemed glad and gay.
It was not like my luck a bit. I thought there was some catch in it.
It didn't seem as though it could be any other way.
Then the awakening was due. I'd won my Araminta true,
But it seems that I'd also won her father and her mother.
They're living with us in our flat for good and then, not only that,
But we have also with us now her sister and her brother.

AND THE WORST IS YET TO CO ME--

AT LARGE

∴ Plainfield Theatre ∴

Bert Swor, with Al G. Fields' Minstrels, at the Plainfield Theatre, Thursday, matinee and night, Feb. 10.

Peter S. Clark offers his Rosey Posey Girls to the patrons of the Plainfield Theatre next Monday, matinee and night. This will be an entirely new show this season and is said to be bigger and better than ever, offering many novelties. "The Redemption Club" is the title of the original two-act musical piece, which was written especially for this attraction by Walter Pearson. It is a delightfully pleasing plot, replete with catchy comedy bits and bright musical numbers. The large chorus has been carefully selected, nearly all of the young and pretty women having been with big Broadway productions. Among the principals is Miss Mamie Mitchell, the classic prima donna, who is in a class by herself. Other principals include Harry Bentley, Clare Evans, Harry S. La Van, Walter Pearson, Billie Davies, Madeline Whitney, Gates and Gates and Sherlock Sisters. Costumes, scenery and electrical effects are all that can be desired.

Would-be humorists endeavor, in an exaggerated way, to ridicule folks who are inspired by band music. That their self-styled funnyisms fall flat is answered by the fact that all persons gifted with any degree of intelligence are charmed with the enlivening strains of a good band. Band music not only entertains the masses, but inculcates patriotism in armies and navies. The duties of camp and field are lightened when brightened with the music of the band.

England, Germany and France endeavored to recruit their armies by newspaper and posting advertisements. Numerous bands paraded the streets of London. Banners bearing inscriptions were carried behind the bands, such as "Join Now," "When Are You Going?" "What About You? We're Going," "Rally 'Round the Flag," "No Khaki, No Kisses," "We Are Both Needed To Fill Up the Ranks." One banner bears the picture of a man sitting with a little boy and girl on either knee looking up into the man's face. The boy asks, "Papa, what did you do in the great war?" As the band marches, rendering popular and patriotic airs, men fall in line behind. Al. G. Field was the originator of the observation, "A brass band and a crowd were never seen going in opposite directions." The crowds seem to follow the band, hence the minstrel band has become an institution. That the crowds follow the band is evidenced by the audiences that the Al. G. Field minstrels attract. PROCTOR'S THEATRE

The Triangle and Fox photoplays, together with the vaudeville entertainment booked by the management of Proctor's local theatre for the first half of next week, are exceedingly attractive, and feature stars occupying the foremost positions in the photoplay firmament will appear. The dramatic feature on Monday and Tuesday is a Griffith production entitled "Let Katy Do It," and has as the leading characters, two of the most popular stars in filmdom, namely Jane Grey and Tully Marshall. Sam Bernard, the popular Broadway comedy star, is another favorite who has entered the moving picture field, and appears on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday in a funny Keystone comedy entitled "The Great Pearl Tangle." Bernard assumes the role of a designer in a fashionable modiste shop. On Wednesday and Thursday an extraordinary attraction has been booked in the form of the latest William Fox feature, entitled, "A Parisian Romance." This was the late Richard Mansfield's greatest success on the speaking stage. Cooper Cliffe, one of the greatest of English character actors, is the star and is ably assisted by Dorothy Green and a superior cast. The vaudeville to be presented the first half of the week includes The Tripoli Girls, a mammoth musical comedy revue in which good singing and clever dancing are introduced; Kern & Spot, showing the remarkable intelligence of a canine comedian; Lucille Savoy & Co., in a novel song and posing offering, and Marie Donohue, an eccentric comedienne in a refined skit. "The Red Circle," will be presented Friday as usual, and the toy matinee will take place for the children on Saturday. "The Strange Case of Mary Page," a powerful production with Henry Walthall and Edna Mayo as co-stars, will soon make its appearance at Proctor's.

Daddy's Bedtime Story—

How a Little Boy Saved His Playmate's Life.

Then Strong as Anything He Pulled.

DADDY took both his children on his knee. "Now I am going to tell you the true story of a little boy only five years old who saved the life of his playmate, who is three," he told Jack and Evelyn. "They both live in Pennsylvania, and you must please imagine a deep hollow in a clump of trees standing in a big lot where six children had gone to play. In the middle of this hollow, with beautiful still snow lying over the frozen ground, is a pool covered with a thin sheet of ice."

"Just like Uncle Ben's pond!" cried Jack.

"The three-year-old, Davy, ran to the very edge of the pool, and just beyond his reach was a nice branch sticking up out of the ice. Davy wanted it to play with, so before any of the older children could stop him he ran right out on to the thin ice and tried to pull the branch out. Oh, but the thin ice wobbled, swayed, snapped, cracked, broke, and little Davy went right down out of sight into the cold, cold water. A six-year-old boy reached for him, but when more ice snapped and cracked he turned and ran off, crying. But five-year-old Ivan saw Davy's little head bobbing up and down in the water and, without even knowing what a little hero he was making of himself, with a clear mind that any man might be proud of, slowly, surely crept his way out across the fatal ice, hung on to the branch with one hand and reached the other down into the icy water till it grabbed Davy's. Then, strong as anything, he tugged and pulled till he fetched the sopping, frightened, drowning little three-year-old safely back to land!

"By this time all five of the children were crying, and their cries brought a bigger boy who happened to be going along the road near by. This big boy took Davy in his arms and ran home with him. So his mamma put Davy in a hot bath and petted and loved him back to comfort and happiness."

"And what happened to Ivan?" shouted Jack.

"Oh, Ivan is the little hero of the Pennsylvania town," said daddy. "When people ask him to tell how he saved his playmate he just says, this brave, heady little five-year-old: 'I was standin' on the bank when Davy went fru. So when Gene, Davy's brother, began to cry I just crept out by the branch and hung on to it wif one hand, and all the time Davy was bobbin' up and down I just reached out my other hand and grabbed his.'"

"Were Davy's mamma and his papa glad?" asked Evelyn.

"Rather!" cried daddy, giving his own children a huge hug.

"And did Davy catch cold?" the children wanted to know.

"No, not even sniffles," said daddy.

Marrying for Money

BY MRS. EVA LEONARD

Nothing But Financial Ruin Will Stop the Wife's Spending.

Ortrude Townsend was sitting in the porch swing when her husband and the children came home from the store. Dudley and Marian passed on to their rooms, but Jacob dropped into a chair near her.

"J. C., I am thinking of going to Kansas City tomorrow to buy a runabout. What make of machine do you think is the best?" It was dark, so Ortrude could not see her husband's face.

He did not reply, and she continued:

"You probably have some preference as to where you would prefer to have me trade."

"Ortrude, it will be next to impossible for me to get a machine this year. You see, all the ready money had was used up building and furnishing this house. Then the expense of the home upkeep has been heavier than I ever dreamed it could be. Next year I hope to have accumulated a little reserve——"

"Oh, it will not be necessary to pay for it this year. People buy machines every day and run in debt for them," said Ortrude cheerfully. "Besides, I do not plan to get anything very expensive. I shall not ruin you in one fell swoop." Her laugh rippled out on the evening air. Jacob had always admired her laugh, but now it grated on his nerves.

"My dear, you do not understand business."

"No, so don't try to explain it to me; it would bore me. It is nonsense to try and make me believe that a rich man cannot afford a machine. Why, everybody has a machine nowadays." Ortrude had the air of quieting an unreasonable child.

"Ortrude, let me beg of you to listen to me. I am not a rich man in the sense that you use the word. When you said that you expected to spend money I had no idea that you would insist on spending money that I could not afford to have spent; that you would insist on crippling your future." Jacob's tone was very serious.

"You said the business could stand up under my demands, and I think six or seven hundred will not entirely wreck us financially. I simply must have some way to get about. There is not a decent thing to be hired, and I have endured that vulgar, ignorant Mrs. Jaynes all these weeks because I had no other way to go. You simply will have to make some arrangement."

"Do you mean that you will insist on having what I tell you plainly I cannot afford to get?" Jacob spoke slowly and distinctly.

"Since you put it that way, I do," she replied coolly.

"Are you so selfish that you care nothing for what I wish?" he asked, speaking with an apparent effort.

"Really, Mr. Townsend, I cannot see that my affection has undergone much change. I am a very constant person. I began by telling you that I wanted money and lots of it. You promised me everything. It is you who have changed. We have been married only a few months and this is the second time you have asked me to economize. Something I flatly refuse to do. I have had twenty-eight years of rigid economy and I do not propose to take a post-graduate course in it." Ortrude leaned forward and looked fixedly in her husband's face.

"Who could have dreamed that a woman could be like this," said Jacob half to himself.

"The trouble seems to be that you had no imagination; that you supposed that I would be satisfied with a few dollars a week, as most of the women in this town are. I am sorry you did not understand. I tried to make my meaning clear."

Jacob buried his face in his hands and said nothing. He heard the soft swish of her dress as she passed him and went up to her room.

The spot-light of full publicity, turned on a store, reveals all places in that full light a store's defects—if it have defects. For example: If high prices prevail, or lines of goods are not kept up to date, the reader of the store advertisements knows it. It follows that advertising "pays" the store that renders real service—and would not pay the other kind of a store.

If you are a student of the "ads" you KNOW WHAT IT OUGHT TO COST.

Ideas for the Clever Needleworker

The woman who is handy with a needle need not lack employment, and if she is clever in catching artistic ideas she can make so much more money in a pleasant occupation. There is much work to be done aside from regular dressmaking, millinery and knitting.

For instance, the vocation of dressmaking is as old as the beach sands, but many old time occupations which are distinctly new have evolved themselves from the seamstress' tasks.

Makes Buttonholes.

There is a woman in one town who works buttonholes. For many reasons she could not do regular dressmaking, but she takes in many a penny in the course of a year. People who do their own sewing but dislike the buttonholing bring the garments to her for this finishing, and even the village dressmaker often sends in a bundle of various garments to be "buttonholed" in a time of rush.

From the easy buttonholes in lingerie blouses at one cent each her prices range to two cents each in woollen dresses and motorcoats, and to five cents a hole in coats. She charges according to material and the time and skill required. She does no other kind of sewing. She has found it profitable to buy by the dozen buttonhole twist and thread of the right size in a variety of standard colors, the price of which is included in her charges. Buying by the dozen she gets the material cheaper.

The Retoucher.

There are many women whose employment denies them time for fittings and to whom ready made clothes are distasteful. Here is the opportunity for the retoucher of ready made garments. She makes a specialty of adding individual touches. It may be the substitution of a fur collar and cuffs on a coat, or a few leather bandings stitched on a skirt. A suit may need different buttons to improve it.

Ofttimes a nice fur or corduroy coat is bought cheap and you discover the manufacturer made the price possible by putting in a cheap lining. You take it to Miss Retoucher and she transforms it into a luxurious garment by the insertion of a lining worthy of the outside. Again, she substitutes ornamental braid loops and fastenings for the tailored buttons on a coat.

A leather collar and cuffs make of a strict tailored suit a chic affair. She knows how! She has a practical sense of the artistic in relation to dress and may advise a little braiding on coat and skirt, or fur buttons on a long cloth coat. She takes a plain tailored blouse and embroiders tiny bowknots or flowers on the front and cuffs, scattering them at intervals till the blouse resembles an imported one. A one piece dress may need only new collar and cuffs or a different belt to distinguish it.

Fitting and Basting.

Then there is the woman who specializes in remodeling old garments. Many dressmakers will not touch old goods, and so the woman who would not have confidence to cut into other people's new goods finds ready custom when she hangs out her shingle. Remodelling sleeves, changing the length of skirt or adding belt, collar or vest is a comparatively simple matter, but complete remodelling takes more time. The remodeller charges 20 cents an hour. In some localities 25 cents an hour would be reasonable.

Another woman who could not find time to do dressmaking in its fulness cuts, bastes and fits garments for her patrons who do their own finishing. Practice has made her adept at manoeuvreing a pattern and utilizing short lengths. In many instances the successful hang of a skirt is due to the proper cutting according to the weave of the material and the careful basting. Many women who cannot afford to have a dress made are glad to get this much done.

Plaid top coat of wool velour, all lined with silk, silk velvet collar; 3 pockets; white pearl buttons; fulness held in by cross straps under arms; raglan sleeves; in tan and black or green and black, $42.50.

Twitching or Blinking Eyes

If the eyes suddenly blink at a light, or the eyelids start twitching convulsively, you may be sure either you are run down in health and overworked, or that you need spectacles. If the former, take your general health in hand at once. It is probably anaemia, and an iron tonic and, unless you are a teetotaller, drinking sound Burgundy or red wine will be the best remedy.

Sleep is also a great beautifier of the eyes. The eyes of a good sleeper will always be creamy and deep in color, and the eyelids will fold back calmly, without that nervous rapid blinking which is so irritating to watch. If the eye suddenly twitches, and an oculist pronounces glasses unnecessary, it would be advisable to go in for massage or electric treatment. A doctor should be consulted.

It sometimes is the precursor of a nervous breakdown or shingles—a horribly painful malady. To tie a green ribbon round the eyes at night is excellent for resting the eyes and keeping them calm and still.

Outdoor Games Are Excellent

Delicate people should try to take their outdoor exercise between the hours of eleven and three during the winter. Before eleven the night damp is still in the air, and after three, the cold and dark of the evening come on very quickly indeed. Invalids and delicate children should be given a hot drink of some kind—a cup of hot milk is best—immediately before the walk. This gives strength as well as warmth, and prevents any feeling of exhaustion.

Children should always, if possible, be given some outdoor game to take with them—a hoop, a skipping rope, or a doll's pram. This keeps them occupied and happy, and generally causes them to run about and take far more exercise than they would otherwise do.

Besides, the little girl who has no toy out of doors with her always envies the one who passes with a doll, and envy and discontent—besides being morally bad—depresses the vitality and puts the child into the very condition which renders her most likely to take cold.

Weaning the Baby

The principal object in preparing food for the baby, in the process of weaning, is to keep it as much like breast-milk as conditions will permit. Any abrupt, pronounced change in the composition of modified milk disturbs a baby's digestion. What then is the condition of this delicate organism when a mother withdraws the life-giving breast-milk and supplies half-raw cereals, heavy gravies or soups, mashed potatoes and fresh bread with butter?

The Tests.

The important tests of baby's digestion are weight and bowels. After a baby is one week old and until he is 6 months of age, he should gain six ounces a week. Between 6 months and 12 he gains more slowly, about four ounces each week.

Weaning from breast to bottle is a simple, safe, natural process, if intelligently conducted. No mother need dread it, if she will follow the foregoing simple directions and will heed the following warnings:

Wean gradually; feed regularly; feed more lightly in hot than in cold weather; give "plain milk," diluted with boiled water and sugar; buy pure, clean milk and keep it clean and cool; never give baby tastes of other food.

TO HANDLE A MATTRESS.

If the mattress is full length, tie in three places with a stout cord, then insert three bundle handles (such as all housewives should keep), and it can be handled very easily.

If in two pieces, tie the larger part twice, insert handles and move with ease.

STOVE POLISHING.

To keep the stove radiantly bright, keep a piece of hard soap in the blacking dish.

After wetting dauber, rub lightly over the soap before putting in blacking; or in liquid blacking dissolve in a tablespoonful of hard soap in a very little water and thin blacking with it. The result is a brilliance after polishing.

Suggestive.—"Does your wife favor useful gifts?"

"Too much," replied Mr. Meekton. "Last Christmas she bought me a nice, new snow-shovel."

Net afternoon dress; 2 foundation skirts of white net; rose or blue over-skirt; white flounces beaded with embroidery; colored net part way or bodice, edging of cuffs, and collar; black velvet run through beading trims collar and cuffs; 3 button finish colored net girdle, $32.50.

Care of Baby's Skin

The delicate skin of a baby requires very careful handling to preserve it from injury. Far more tender than the skin of a grown person, it is subject to frequent irritations, to chafing, eruptions and scaling. These ills are not only unsightly but are irritating to the child and make it nervous, peevish and fretful, and sometimes actually ill.

Washing and drying should be done gently, with no rubbing and with as little friction as possible, and all the toilet aids necessary should be selected with the utmost care. An impure soap or powder will make mischief that it may take months to undo.

The universal aseptic for babies is boric acid. A solution of this should be on every baby's toilet table. It has numerous uses. The rubber nipples for the baby's bottle should be soaked or dipped in the solution before every using. Boric acid cleanses the baby's mouth and washes out any pus in the baby's eyes. If applied on soft linen or absorbent cotton to chafed parts, it acts as a soothing wash. It acts as a disinfectant for scratches or cuts.

SIMPLE INSOMNIA TREATMENT.

Should you be a restless sleeper, should sleep come to you only at fits and starts, try simple remedies, and do not plunge into narcotics or stimulants—at least not until the others have failed.

A famous English physician is quoted as saying: "I can cure the worst case of insomnia in this manner: When the patient has retired, give her a heaping bowl of bread and milk, with just a dash of salt to season it. This will draw the blood from the head to the stomach, it will quiet the nerves and put the entire body in a healthy glow, and in ninety-nine cases out a hundred the patient falls into a healthy, restful sleep."

TO SOFTEN WATER.

Labor and soap may both be saved in the laundry by the use of soft water, and even the hardest of water may be easily softened without the addition of chemicals.

Three or four days before it is to be used, draw sufficient water for the washing and expose it in tubs, etc., to the action of the sun and air. The trouble is only that of a little forethought, and is well repaid.

SAVING THE DRIPPING.

Put the dripping into a clean saucepan, let it boil for a few minutes over a slow fire. Be careful to skim it well let it stand to cool a little; then strain it through a piece of muslin into jars for use.

Beef dripping is preferable to any other for cooking purposes, as with mutton dripping there is likely to be a tallowy taste and smell.

The Big Things In Our "Big" Sale of Silks

—as the people call it.

For the opening day we listed all of the offerings in this Special Sale—57 distinct lots, embracing practically every kind of wanted silks.

For Monday we particularize on some of these groups, of which there are large quantities, showing their qualities and many uses.

$2 Spring Taffetas, $1.35 Yd.

Good quality, soft and brilliant, giving excellent wear. Comes in the new Spring shades—rainbow and pastel—and will make charming afternoon frocks—either a frilly gay affair or a quaint demure old-fashioned one.

$3.50 Imported Charmeuse, $1.85 Yd.

Made in Switzerland and dyed with Swiss dyes which give a clarity of color because of the snow water used in their preparation. With a soft dull yet lustrous finish, this fabric is wonderfully adapted for dresses and linings and will give good wear. Charmeuse has now become as staple as satin or taffeta. The width is forty inches.

$1.50 Negligee Crepe, 95c Yd.

Heavy enough for summer dresses but largely used also for negligees and lingerie. Thirty-eight inches wide and in a full range of light Spring colors.

$3 Faille Sublime, $1.85 Yd.

A silk-and-wool weave—the wool scarcely shows, yet it gives weight to make the fabric heavy enough for proper draping yet retaining its soft rich lustre. A staple fabric sold all over the country at $3, but here for $1.85 because we have taken the manufacturer's broken lines. Forty-four inches wide, in several dozen shades.

White Habutai—65c to $1.50 Yd.

Grades that we sell regularly for 85c to $2—thirty-six inches wide. Habutai is the strongest of all silks for weight—the $2 quality which we are selling for $1.50 has been used in some of the giant aeroplanes now being made, where lightness and strength are required. In this collection are grades suitable for blouses, underclothes, summer dresses and men's shirts.

Chinese Pongees at Half

50c to $1.50 for $1 to $3 grades—thirty-three inches wide. Used separately or in combination with other silks they are seen in many of the new spring frocks. Some of these grades are heavy enough for sports suits or for men's summer suits.

Fancy Silks, $1.35, $1.68, $1.85 Yd.

$1.35 yd. for $2.50 and $3 forty-inch satin and crepe brocades, two dozen spring colors. Used for all sorts of purposes, from dresses in and linings and negligees to wall draperies.

$1.68 yd. for $4 forty-inch silk-and-wool fancy cords, for spring suits and linings for evenings wraps.

$1.85 yd. for $3.50 fifty-two-inch satin crepe border Ninon—unusually wide as you see—has a graduated border effect and the satin stripe is of a fine lustrous quality, making it well adapted for dance dresses and afternoon frocks with satin and taffeta underneath.

$1.50 Black Satin, $1 Yd.

Heavy enough for evening dresses and also good for linings. Has a sort of charmeuse finish with not too high a lustre.

$2 Black Taffeta, $1.25 Yd.

Cheap black taffeta is always an extravagance. Poor quality does not wear. It splits. The grade is heavy enough to give good wear. A black taffeta afternoon frock should be in every woman's wardrobe. Combined with blue serge black taffeta is never ordinary and always serviceable.

$2.25 Black 40 inch Charmeuse, $1.35 Yd.

This quality has a good heft, but is not loaded down and has a fairly dull finish; excellent for dresses that require wear. Women who live more or less formally at home and entertain a great deal always have a charmeuse dress of this kind—especially large women with a certain dignity yet who wish to retain youthful interest and charm.

$2.50 Black Novelty Taffetas, $1.50 Yd.

New favorites for spring dresses, especially the old-fashioned kind of the 1830 period. A soft brilliant fabric that will give good wear. Thirty-six inches wide.

$3, 44-in. Black Crepe Poplins, $1.85 Yd.

A silk-and-wool fabric that will wear wonderfully well; good weight; especially adapted for dresses for older women.

$5, 40-inch Black Duchess Cashmere, $2.85 Yd.

Heavy and fine, for spring suits or summer evening wraps; a dull finish without lustre but very rich in appearance.

Silk Rotunda and Main Aisle, Old Building.

A Week of Wonderful Furniture Buying Has Gone

Another Begins Monday

18 Buying Days Remain in the February Sale of Furniture

Wonderful as the week has been, stocks will be full on Monday. Reserves are ready. They come in as fast as the sold furniture goes out. There is still more furniture to choose from—every piece at a special price than you will find in any other two stocks in the city. And it is all good.

Each kind of furniture is grouped by itself. Prices are plainly marked on the tag—our regular price to identify the grade, and the February Sale price. You know how much you save if you buy.

It Is a GREAT Sale

Does your home need furniture? Have you looked it over? Is it as comfortably furnished as you would like it to be? Is the influence of its furniture good, upon you, after a busy day; upon your family, all day and every day?

The February Sale Offers You the Opportunity to Make Your Home What You Would Like It to Be—at Saving of 10 to 50 Per Cent., Averaging 30.

9-piece bedroom suite is in black enamel, decorated in blue, by our Artists in Our Workrooms. February Price $252.75

This 9-piece bedroom suite, during February, is 10 per cent. below our year-round price.

We will take orders to duplicate this set at this price, in gray enamel with black decorations, cream with pink and blue decorations, or any color enamel with any desired decorative scheme; delivery in four weeks. The finest—in our judgment—cabinet-maker in America will make the suite; with mahogany panels and drawer interiors, and birch tops, fronts and posts, because birch is a very durable wood and takes enamel well.

Thursday night—Imperials at Tabs.

Rooters of the local Eagles' bowling team were a happy lot last night, and they had good reason to be. The Birds won three games from the Imperials, and went from third to first place in the City League standing; they broke the high individual record of the league, and busted their own high score team mark. Their night's average was 903.1

It is the first clean sweep recorded in the league. The F. O. E. men outclassed the boroughites in all three engagements, taking the first game by 41 pins, the second by 67 and the third by 114.

Harry Radin put up the score that gave the league record a boost. Harry hit 239 in the second game. The former high mark was 227, also held by Radin.

There was more rooting on the sidelines than has been seen at the Second street alleys this winter. The new wood bothered the pinners, the uninitiated pins falling hard as usual, Jim Mahoney was bothered most to death by the bottles and bowled only 182, 200 and 202, his average of 194.2 being the best of the night.

George Gates shot 190 and 203 in his first two games. Tuts Jaeger wound up with 214.

BASEBALL NOTES

The Cleveland Indians may be purchased by a syndicate of four Chicagoans, it was reported yesterday in the Windy City. John V. Burns, a friend of Charles Comiskey, and Patrick T. Walsh, connected with street railway affairs in Cleveland, are two of those interested.

Members of the former Baltimore Feds are expected to be declared free agents within a day or two. This decision was reached by the board of directors after a long session.

Bill Donovan reports that the grounds at Macon, Ga., where the Yankees will train this year, are in good shape, and that hotel accommodations are also the best.

Hi Brewer, Eastern representative of the Feds last year, is to take over the ownership of the Worcester Club, of the New England League.

Portland, Buffalo and Detroit are said to be after Bobbie Vaughn, former Newark Indian, who played with St. Louis Feds last year.

Christy Mathewson will leave early for Marlin, Tex., the Giants' spring training camp, with a string of twenty young players. The famous twirler intends to leave about February 25 from New York.

K. C. POOL FINAL WILL BE THREE-CORNERED CONTEST

The final of the Columbus Club rotation pool tournament will be played Monday night between three teams—Tom McInerney and John T. Caulfield, H. P. Greenwood and George E. Howe, and T. J. Meany and Frank Reardon. They will play three frames, total points to count.

Last night McInerney and Caulfield defeated John McCarty and Jules Parent in three straight games, and Greenwood and Howe won three out of five from Bill Coyle and Joe Tobin.

BARRINGER SWIMMERS AT P. H. S. MONDAY AFTERNOON

The Plainfield High School swimming team will get in action Monday for the third time this season, meeting the team from Barringer High School in the local school pool. Lorenzo Brower is depended on to be the mainstay of the locals in the 50 and 100 yard swims, and will be a member of the relay team. Fitch, Snyder and Condit will probably be the other three in the relay. Brownlee will go in the dives, while every one will enter the plunges. Barringer's swimming team will have Barnley, Barling, Williamson and G. Gregory forming the relay team. S. Gregory will take part in the dives, and Cooper and Condit will be two of the men to go in the swims at various distances.

Some of the indoor records are sure to go, for a classier collection of athletes was never seen at the Boston meet.

P. H. S. SIX IS BUSY SQUARING ACCOUNTS

Avenges Early Season Beating by Trouncing the Roselle Parks.

For the second time in succession, the girls of Plainfield High School yesterday got revenge in their return meeting with another basketball team. Last Saturday it was the Bloomfield High School that they trimmed, after a bad defeat earlier in the season, and yesterday they handed the girls' team of the Roselle Park High a bad defeat by a 13 to 5 score, after taking a bad trimming from the same team last December. The visitors did not make a single field goal, owing partly to the excellent work of the Red and Blue guards, but garnered all their points from the foul line.

Elsa Palmer was the first one to break into the scoring column when she made a pretty field goal. Mary Simmons made two fouls during the half, while Miss Palmer caged two more baskets, all on pretty shots. Miss Broome did all of the scoring for the visitors, and then only made two foul shots. The second period was better played, but even at that, Roselle Park was outscored on account of a basket made by Miss Simmons. Both teams broke even on the fouls, at three apiece.

The locals showed more improvement over their last start and displayed some pretty teamwork. Miss Irma Good, the P. H. S. captain, was out of the game, and Jennie Bremble played only one half; but the improvement has been so noticeable of late that a victory is looked for in the next game for the city championship.

Today—Yale vs. Rutgers.

One basket in the Rutgers-Yale basketball game of the P. H. S. College League yesterday afternoon kept Yale from tying Rutgers for first place, and it again gave Rutgers a comfortable lead. Yale players were tied with Cornell and Harvard for second place, but the loss of the game shoved them back into fourth place.

Yale led at the end of the first half by four points, and after putting up the brand of game they displayed, it looked as if they would increase it. But after being held scoreless all through the first period, Snyder uncorked a shooting streak that couldn't be stopped by the whole Yale team, and tied the score at fifteen all when there was only a few seconds to play. A foul gave Clarkson a chance to put his team a point in the lead, but just as the whistle blew, Markey grabbed the ball and made his first basket of the game.

It was the best played game yet shown in the league, and it is evident that the two teams are really the best of the lot. The players are getting better at every start, and a few are already good enough to move onto one of the class teams.

WHERE WILL PAID TOSSERS GO NOW?

Baseball Men Who Formerly Played Here No Longer Welcome in Warren Co.

WANT LOCAL TALENT

Towns That Were in the Tri-County League Having Same Experience the Central New Jersey League Had—One Club Made Five Cents.

The history of semi-professional baseball in this section is being repeated up in Washington, Hackettstown, Newton and Dover, to which towns the stars who formerly played here migrated when the Central New Jersey League disbanded. Now the fans of that section, which had a fast league last season, are clamoring for local talent, the same as the fans here did, and 1916 will probably see the passing of the paid talent from Warren County.

Advocates of amateur ball will place their views before the Washington Baseball Association at a meeting to be held February 15. The same old arguments, presented here in years gone by, will be put up to the Washington officials by the leaders of the movement to restore amateur baseball. The cry that more pride and support is aroused by players who live in the town they represent bids fair to be the death knell of the former local pros who went from this field to the Warren district.

The experience some of the clubs had in finding it necessary to hold benefits at the end of the season to make up deficits is another strong argument against hiring out-of-town players. In their rivalry, the little towns went beyond their depth in trying to get players better than the other teams had. The Washington club finished with the munificent sum of five cents in its treasury.

ELIZABETH CHURCH FIVE AT HOPE CHAPEL TONIGHT

Another spicy game is promised basketball fans at Hope chapel tonight when the home team lines up against the Greystone Presbyterian church, of Elizabeth, on the West Fourth street court. LIEUT. BERG'S EXPLOIT CALLED BRILLIANT; CAPTURES GOVERNOR

Lieutenant Berg (foreground) and members of crew at Norfolk; Sir Edward Merewether.

In command of the captured British passenger steamer Appam when she dropped anchor at Hampton Roads was Lieut. Hans Berg of the German naval reserve, and to aid him were twenty-two members of a German raider. Berg is the hero of one of the most fantastic and thrilling tales of sea lore. From off the Madeira Islands, where the capture took place, he made his way across the entire Atlantic unmolested by the many British and French warships which crowd the seas, and arrived safely at Norfolk, Va., with the German naval ensign flying from the ship. Among the many prominent British officials whom he captured was Sir Edward Merewether, governor of Sierra Leone.

THEY CANNOT DIE IN PLAINFIELD

Italian Who Attempted Suicide is Escorted Out of Town.

HUNG SELF IN A CELL

Hated to Leave His Girl and Go Back to Fight for Country—Is Sent to Brother Who Will Care for Him.

"Go out of town and kill yourself. You can't die around here. Plainfield don't want to bury you."

With these words as his good-bye, Tony Patito, a tweny-four-year-old reserve in the Italian army, boarded a train at the North avenue station this morning and left for New York.

In addition to being crossed in love, Tony has other troubles. He has been told that he will soon be forced to go back to Italy and fight for his country, and he loves the girl who refused him so much and his country so little that he preferred death to leaving her and visiting it.

Tony attempted suicide in the police station last night, where he was locked up on a charge of assaulting his "love" with his fists upon her refusal to marry him. He hung himself in his cell with a belt, and but for the timely action of Captain Flynn, who cut him down, he would have died there. Tony was far from repentant over his action. He was released by Mayor Calkins this morning when arraigned in police court, after promising to leave town at once. He left because Captain Flynn escorted him to his boarding house and remained with him until all arrangements for the departure had been made.

"I no wanta leave girl. I no wanta fight for countree," Tony said over and over again this morning. "I no fight. I die somewhere. Might as well die here." All efforts to explain to Tony that he could not be forced to go back to Italy and join the army proved fruitless. Chief Kiely called the young Italian in his office and reasoned with him for many minutes, but in vain. He told Tony that the United States was a free country, that no nation could draft its soldiers from this land, but Tony "knew better." He reiterated his desire to die, but before he left he asked whether or not he would be prosecuted on the disorderly conduct and assault charge in case he should change his mind and come back to Plainfield later. Chief Kiely stated emphatically that he would.

The Italian was arrested on complaint of Jennie D. C. Nofio, of 366 Cottage place last night. They boarded at the same house, and Tony recently fell in love with the girl. He attempted to force his unwelcome attentions upon her, and when she refused to marry him, he beat her with his fists, she said. When the case was tried in police court this morning, she asked that her charge be dismissed. She did not want Tony jailed. She just wanted him to let her alone.

When a Press reporter asked Tony about his attempted suicide, the Italian said, "Bad job. Better me die. Sometime I do better. But not here. I go away and die." The Italian was sent to a brother in Connecticut, who will care for him.

MISCHA ELMAN GENIUS OF THE PRESENT AGE

Have you purchased tickets for the Mischa Elman recital to be given in the Plainfield High School Auditorium, Wednesday night, under the auspices of the Cheerful Workers' Circle, of the City Union of King's Daughters, for the benefit of the Day Nursery. If you are among the dilatory ones, you can still get seats at Miller's drug store. This Russian violinist is unquestionably the genius of the present age among instrumentalists.

His European performances amazed the critics of Berlin, Petrograd, London and other musical centres. A mere youth of sixteen, Elman played with a maturity and independence of conception almost unbelievable.

BIRTHDAY PARTY.

Carl Henry Haurand, son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Haurand, of 66 Somerset street, was given a party in honor of his tenth birthday anniversary yesterday afternoon. Besides the lad's parents his grandmother, Mrs. Sophie Vordermeir, and aunt, Mrs. Peter Delgyer, were present. Carl received many nice presents, among which was a complete violin outfit. He reciprocated by rendering an excellent solo on his new instrument. A number of selections were rendered by a phonograph and the afternoon was passed in a general social way. Refreshments consisting of cake and coffee were served during the course of the afternoon.

FIREMEN TO REQUEST AN INCREASE IN PAY

Department Men Work Twenty-four Hours a Day and Consider Salary Small.

When the Plainfield Common Council holds its meeting tonight, it will be called upon to consider a petition framed by members of the local fire department, requesting an increase in pay. At the present time the fire fighters are receiving $1,100 a year, and the demand is made for $1,200.

The agitation for a boost in salary has been a long-standing one in the department, and the men have appointed a committee to take charge of their interests. It is understood that several of the city fathers are favorable to meeting the demand, and little difficulty is anticipated in swaying the entire body.

Among the reasons cited by the firemen in their request are the long hours and the comparative pay received by firemen and policemen. The latter have a nine-hour schedule to work on, while Chief Doane's men are on call twenty-four hours each day. They get less money than the "coppers" and have longer hours. Probationers' pay for the fire department is $60 for the first six months.

WILL HEAR EXPERT ON AERIAL NAVIGATION

G. Douglas Wardrop to Talk to Cresent Avenue Church Men's Club Tomorrow.

G. Douglas Wardrop, editor of the Aerial Age, and one of the greatest authorities in this country on the subject of aeroplanes and dirigibles, will be the speaker at the dinner to be given tomorrow night by the Men's Club of the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church. Mr. Wardrop will take as his subject "Aircraft and War and Their Influence on Social Reconstruction," and will illustrate his talk with a number of slides, showing all modern methods of aerial locomotion. Beause of the great interest in the subject, it has been arranged that friends of the members of the club of both sexes may attend the talk at 8:15. The dinner will begin promptly at 7 o'clock.

It was only a few days ago that Mr. Wardrop addressed the students at the West Point Military Academy, and much space was given to what he had to say in the metropolitan newspapers, so that the Crescent Avenue Club officers consider themselves fortunate in being able to procure his services. There are a few reservations still available, and men from other churches who may wish to attend the dinner can reserve places by telephoning O. Chester Johnson, 741 Kensington avenue, tonight.

MRS. O'DONNELL NAMED TO HEAD Y. W. C. A. BOARD

Members of the board of directors of the Plainfield Y. W. C. A. held their annual meeting in the association rooms this morning and elected the following officers to serve during the ensuing year: President, Mrs. William C. O'Donnell; first vice president, Mrs. Frederick W. Goddard; second vice president, Mrs. Frederick G. Mead; secretary, Mrs. Charles L. Hyde; treasurer, Mrs. Elliott T. Barrows.

Mrs. O'Donnell succeeds Mrs. Mead to the presidency, the latter having made a special request that her name be omitted from the list in the election of a president. Mrs. Mead has served in this capacity since the organization of the Young Women's Christian Association here and has been active and influential in Y. W. C. A. work locally. Her successor is also well qualified to accept the leadership and Mrs. Mead will be associated with the directorship in the capacity of second vice president.

REV. DR. EATON RESIGNS PULPIT

PLANS A LITERARY LIFE

Well-Known Divine Will Aid in Fight for National Preparedness—Will Continue to Live on Farm at Watchung.

Relinquishing a pastorate which pays the highest salary with one exception of any of the denominations in the United States, in order "to help straighten out the world's present tangle," the Rev. Dr. Charles A. Eaton read his resignation as pastor of the Madison Avenue Baptist church, at Thirty-first street, New York, yesterday morning.

The act came as a complete surprise to the congregation and there are rumors that it may not be accepted at the annual congregational meeting, which will take place tonight. After the service last evening scores of parishioners loitered and begged Dr. Eaton to reconsider his step.

Dr. Eaton went to New York seven years ago from the pastorate of the Euclid Avenue Baptist church, Cleveland, O., of which John D. Rockefeller is a member. Dr. Eaton and Mr. Rockefeller are warm friends and have played golf together for years.

Since coming here, Dr. Eaton has raised a $300,000 endowment for the downtown edifice, which will enable it to stay anchored to its present site. He also has organized many institutional classes which use the big Lori-

"KITCHEN SHOWER" GIVEN FOR MISS ETHEL BARNARD

In connection with the dance held Saturday night in the Harrison avenue school, in honor of the North Plainfield High school basketball team's victory over their Plainfield opponents earlier in the afternoon, pupils of the borough schools turned out in large numbers to tender a "kitchen shower" to Miss Ethel Barnard, a German teacher in the North Plainfield High school.

The affair was a most delightful one and a complete surprise to the young woman, who is one of the most popular instructors in the borough. The shower was arranged under the auspices of the Parent-Teacher Association. Miss Barnard was the recipient of many useful kitchen utensils. Her marriage to Wilbur Dunning, of Mountain avenue, will probably take place in the early summer. During the evening the attendants enjoyed refreshments and dancing until midnight.

CLERICUS MEETS TODAY.

The members of the Plainfield Clericus are today the guests of Rev. Dr. John F. Fenton, of St. Luke's Episcopal church, Metuchen. Rev. W. S. Bayer, of Trinity church, Elizabeth, will read a paper, after which lunch will be served. Rev. C. H. Mallery, of the Church of the Heavenly Rest, is among those attending the meeting.

$50 FOR THE RED CROSS.

The Plainfield branch of the German Red Cross held a meeting at the home of Mrs. Anna Keller, Friday evening, at which time the members turned over the funds collected by the means of books to the treasurer, Mrs. Henry Haurand. The moneys turned in totaled about $50. This is very good, considering that the books were only out four days.

MISSIONARY TO SPEAK.

The Women's Foreign Missionary Society of the Crescent avenue church will meet tomorrow afternoon at 3 o'clock, when Mrs. D. J. Fleming, a missionary from India, will speak.

CHARLES TROTTER DIES IN 52ND YEAR

Well Known Resident of the Borough Passes Away After a Long Illness.

Charles Trotter, aged 52 years, of 155 Duer street, North Plainfield, died yesterday at Dr. Cooley's sanitarium, where he had been under treatment recently for what was thought to be lead poisoning. He had been ill for the past six months, during which time everything possible was done to stay the progress of the disease.

Mr. Trotter was born at South Bound Brook, his birthday anniversary occurring on Saturday. He had lived here about thirty-five years, during which time he followed his trade, that of a painter. He was employed by Charles Conover, of Elmwood place, for seventeen years, and during the past year he was in business with Lester Marsh, of this city. For a short time he was in the employ of the New York Painting and Decorating Company, formerly of Plainfield.

During the early days of the volunteer fire department, Mr. Trotter was a tillerman for the Zephyr Hook and Ladder truck, and at the time of his death was a member of the Exempt Firemen's Association.

Mr. Trotter was well-known as an expert billiard player, having won a number of notable victories in this section of the State. Several years ago he met Sexton, who was known as the "Boy Wonder," and defeated him eleven out of twenty-one games. At one time he was known as the local champion.

Beside a wife, Mr. Trotter leaves five children: Miss Jennie Trotter, Charles Z., Theodore R., George W. and Albert H. Trotter, all living home. He is also survived by five sisters and five brothers, as follows: Mrs. George W. Trotter, of Jersey City; Mrs. Elizabeth Weeks, of Los Angeles, Cal.; Mrs. Jacob Wise, of Bayonne; Mrs. Louis Burd, of German Valley; Miss Phoebe Trotter, of Brooklyn, and Albert Trotter, of Bridgeport, Conn.; Eugene T., Trotter and Ernest Trotter, of Brooklyn; William Trotter, of Richmond Hill, S. I., and Clifford Trotter, of Newtown, L. I.

The funeral will be held at the late home tomorrow afternoon at 3 o'clock, and the burial will be in Hillside cemetery.

WILL LECTURE ON "SCHOOL GARDENS"

Henry G. Parsons to Interest Local Women in Project for This City.

The lecture on "School Gardens for Children," to be given by Henry Griscom Parsons, of New York, under the auspices of the Monday Afternoon club and Alumnae of the Plainfield Seminary, in the Parish house of the Congregational church, Wednesday afternoon, will begin promptly at 3:30 o'clock instead of 4, as previously announced. Mr. Parsons comes to Plainfield to speak on a subject with which he is entirely familiar and one which will interest members of the Monday Afternoon club, the Seminary alumnae and others in the proposed purchase of a tract of land in the center of the city suitable for public gardens for the school children, the tract to be in the form of a memorial for the late Miss Elvira E. Kenyon, principal of the Seminary for many years and also the founder of the Monday Afternoon Club.

The lecture Wednesday afternoon is absolutely free to the public, and will be held for the purpose of organizing a committee to proceed at once with the plans in view in the purchase of the six acres of land and further details. School gardens are not a new venture, the scheme having been tried in many cities of larger and some even of smaller size than Plainfield, and meeting with genuine success wherever tried. Three tried in New York city, namely, the DeWitt Clinton Park, the Jefferson Park, and the garden attached to the New York University, are all excellent ones and are instrumental in a large degree in the building up of the character of the youthful gardeners. Students are taught nature study and the cultivation of vegetables and flowers on an economic scale.

SUMMONED TO APPEAR.

Charged with exceeding the speed limit on Somerset street Saturday, Wesley Saunders, who drives a delivery auto for Edward A. Laing, has received a summons to appear before Recorder Hand in the borough court tomorrow morning. Chief Weiss, who makes the charge, alleges that Saunders was driving the car at a rate of about twenty-five miles an hour.

LIFE OF LINCOLN SERMON THEME

Rev. F. L. Greene Extols the Virtues of the Martyred President.

WAS A BORN LEADER

By Special Invitation Members of the Reminiscent Club of West End Attend Service at Hope Chapel and Enjoy Interesting Discourse.

An admirable sermon on the life of Abraham Lincoln and the manner in which he handled the critical situation in the days of the Rebellion was delivered at Hope chapel last night by Rev. Frederic L. Greene, the pastor. It was heard by a large congregation, which included a delegation from the Reminiscent club, of the West End, which had received a special invitation. During the service the choir sang a number of appropriate hymns, and a solo was rendered by John Sorah. The congregation united in singing "America" at the close. Mr. Greene's address, in part, was as follows:

"A noble manhood, nobly consecrated to man, never dies." Thus our late martyred president, McKinley, summarized the life of Abraham Lincoln. Ex-President Taft, in speaking of the life of Lincoln, recently said, 'In patience and long-suffering and kindness, there is no superior that I know of save in the life of Jesus of Nazareth.'

"On two tragic occasions, at a century's distance, the fate of this country has trembled in the balance. Would it be a free nation? Would it continue one nation? A leader was needed on both occasions—a very different one in each case. This boon from above was granted to the American people; a Washington, when a Washington was needed; a Lincoln, when a Lincoln could save them.

"Here the speaker traced some of the molding influences of the early life of Lincoln and, continuing, enumerated some of the qualities that made the character of the man. He said Lincoln had a sense of responsibility. No man more so. The relation between himself and his God was one clearly defined in his own mind. He recognized that to the Supreme Being he was responsible for every thought, word and act. There is a vast difference between a man who is trying to conform to an opinion about God and the man who is trying to approximate his living to a high standard; a world of difference between a man who is trying to do right when he thinks the people are watching him and the man who tries

DODGE WAR AT HOME, BUT WANT TO START ONE HERE

They don't have "black lists" in Italy. Proof of this was given this morning, when five former natives of the Sunny Southern European land, who are over here pending the settlement of a difficulty between their ruler and a neighbor, ran headlong into the "no whisky to drunks" regulation that is religiously enforced in Plainfield. The five Italians went into the Kensington Hotel this morning and asked for five drinks of whisky. They had money, were in a free country and wanted liquor. The bartender politely explained that they were already under the influence of the inebriating extract of rye, tobacco juice and fusel oil, and refused to serve them, whereupon the unwarlike citizens of a country at war started to give battle in a peaceful land. They threatened and cursed, but just as they were going into action an expeditionary force in the shape of Lieutenant Higgins and Patrolman Welsh arrived. The Italians were taken to the police station, still uttering threats, or at least they sounded like threats. An armistice was declared until they could become sufficiently sober to tell their names, and tomorrow they take their grievances before Mayor Leighton Calkins, who, in this case, will impersonate the Hague Conference.

JUDGE DEMEZA MEETS A FRIEND IN JACKSONVILLE

Friends of Judge William De Meza this morning received cards from him mailed last week in St. Augustine, Fla. Judge De Meza, who is on a Southern trip, accompanied by his wife and daughter, met Edward Carty, of Orchard place, at the Hotel Mason, in Jacksonville, early last week, and as Mr. Carty was also on his way to Cuba, they are traveling together.

WILL INSTALL OFFICERS.

The Woman's Auxiliary of Saergerbund aHll will hold its installation of officers tomorrow evening.

MOTORISTS RID OF "HOLE IN WALL"

Somerset County Roads Will Also Be Improved During the Year.

Motorists of this section will no longer be vexed by the notorious "hole-in-the-wall" under the Pennsylvania Railroad at South Amboy, if the plans of the Middlesex Board of Freeholders bear fruit. It is planned to widen the roadbed from 14 to 50 feet, and give it a height of 14 feet. A modern roadbed will replace the deep ruts, which have been there for many years. The idea is to finish the work by June 1.

It is proposed to spend $39,000 on the Somerset county roads this year. The expenditures are apportioned as follows: Van Doren Mills road, $15,000; Union avenue, $4,000; Kingston and Franklin Park, $4,000; Peapack and Gladstone road, $2,500; Basking Ridge and Millington, $1,000; Plainfield and Stirling road, $1,000; Neshanic road, $2,000; Millstone and New Brunswick road, $2,000; Blackwells Mills and Finderne road, $1,000; Warrenville road, $1,000; Liberty Corner, $2,000; Belle Mead and Stoutsburg, $2,000; Mountain avenue road, North Plainfield, $1,000; South Bound Brook road, $500.

STABBED BOY FOR THROWING SNOWBALL

Italian of Plainfield is Locked up in the Newark Jail.

Throwing snowballs in Newark resulted yesterday in the stabbing of Frederick Poultney, of 34 Shipman street, who is in a critical condition in the Beth Israel Hospital with three knife wounds in his left side. His alleged assailant, Nicolo Belcore, 25 years old, of 183 North avenue, Plainfield, is under arrest. Held as witnesses are Michael Frantole, 42 years old, of Plainfield, and Herman Sussenbach, of 110 William street, Newark.

According to the police, Belcore and Frantole were passing Shipman street and Branford place where a crowd of boys were throwing snowballs. A snowball struck Belcore and he started back after the boys. All ran except Poultney, who stood his ground, and a fight followed in which he was stabbed. Sussenbach told the police that he saw Belcore with a knife in his hand.

Following the stabbing Belcore ran away and was caught after a chase of several blocks. He denied the stabbing and said that Poultney had the knife. At the hospital Poultney identified Belcore as the man who stabbed him.

DR. CADMAN TO LECTURE.

Dr. S. Parkes Cadman, of Brooklyn, will lecture on "The Modern Babylon" this evening at 8:15, at the Congregational church. The lecturer needs no introduction to a Plainfield audience, and many are looking forward to an evening of pleasure and profit. The great centers of population as we find them today, with their many tongues and customs, gives the inspiration for Dr. Cadman's discourse.

ENDEAVORERS IN CHARGE.

The Christian Endeavor Society will have charge of the midweek prayer meeting at Trinity Reformed church Wednesday night. Miss May A. Randolph will be the leader.

Germans Ready for a New Offensive With Poisonous Gas Machines.

KITCHENER TO QUIT?

London Paper Predicts Big Shake-up in British War Staff—Lusitania Case is Settled, Says Senator Wm. J. Stone.

Amsterdam, Feb. 7.—A new machine for the transmission of poisonous gases has just been devised and installed in the trenches on the west front by the Germans. Improvements have also been made in the artillery which makes special training necessary for the gunners. It is believed that the Germans are waiting for a strong east wind before beginning an offensive with clouds of poisonous gases from their new apparatus.

MISS MARY NUGENT BRIDE OF MAURICE F. REILLY

The marriage of Miss Mary C. Nugent, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Patrick Nugent, of West Third street, and Maurice F. Reilley, of Philadelphia, took place in St. Mary's church last night at 6:30. Owing to the illness of the bride's mother, the marriage was quietly solemnized and attended only by the immediate relatives of the couple. Rev. B. M. Bogan, pastor of St. Mary's church, performed the ceremony.

Miss Anna C. Reilley, sister of the groom, and Daniel B. Nugent, brother of the bride, acted as maid of honor and best man, respectively. A reception to the immediate families followed the wedding and was given at the home of the bride's parents. For the present Mr. and Mrs. Reilley will reside with the bride's parents. MRS. W. T. PIDDINGTON, JR. IS SEVERELY INJURED

Mrs. William T. Piddington, Jr., of 523 Whittier avenue, had a bad fall down the cellar stairs of her home Friday afternoon. She had stooped to pick up some newspapers on the top step and was in the act of turning around to go back in the kitchen when she either slipped or lost her balance and fell head foremost to the cellar bottom. Her forehead struck against a water pipe at the foot of the stairs, inflicting a gash, and she landed on her right side, spraining her right arm and sustaining bruises about the body and face.

Mrs. Piddington's niece, Miss Irene Mattox, who lives with her, was fortunately home at the time. She heard the commotion and, hurrying to the bottom of the steps, she found her aunt lying in a semi-conscious condition. She succeeded in reviving her and assisted her upstairs and to bed. Dr. T. H. Platt was summoned. Yesterday she was able to leave her bed. Mrs. Piddington will probably be unable to use her right arm for sometime.

EUROPE CONSERVES HER BEER SUPPLY

THE following is an excerpt from an editorial published in the New York Evening Journal on Dec. 22, 1915:—

"The German Government takes the tax off beer supplied to men in hospitals and in the trenches, and compels each brewer to supply a certain amount of beer to the army.

"And France at the same time forbids the exportation of light red wines from France, in order to make sure that the soldiers shall have enough."

THE NATIONS AT WAR REALIZE THE IMPORTANCE OF ADEQUATE NUTRITION FOR THEIR SOLDIERS, AND THEIR FOOD EXPERTS FULLY APPRECIATE THE FOOD VALUE OF BEER.

Good, pure beer, used intelligently, is a constructive agency; it gives vigor, strength and endurance to the body.

Because of the positive knowledge that the moderate use of good, pure beer is beneficial to the human race, we recommend

"Fitness to Purpose"

The above is a phrase much used by the artist true to his calling—whether he is painter, sculptor, landscape artist, designer of gowns or houses or other objects.

The idea is that everything the artist embodies in his picture or design should have a reason for its being there, should serve some earnest purpose.

This idea is one we are keeping in mind constantly in assembling merchandise for you from which to make your selections.

SERVICE is what we demand of merchandise that enters this store.

Take women's suits, for instance.

We study your needs, then when we are selecting suits for you we ask ourselves as we look at one new model and then another, "Is this smart? Does it conform to good taste in dress? Is it wearable? Is the finishing well done? Can we price it fairly? WILL IT FIT THE PURPOSE which it should serve?"

And so with Furniture, with Shoes, with Gloves, Linens and other merchandise in this big store.

That is the basis on which we are conducting this business.

That is the basis on which we invite you to visit this store to take advantage of the many shopping opportunities there are here for YOU.

This is "The Store Helpful."

LIFE OF LINCOLN THEME

to do right because he believes the eye of God is ever upon him.

"Lincoln had self-control. The man who would govern others must first govern himself; and when he has learned to govern himself, he has taken a long step toward meeting the responsibilities of high positions.

"Lincoln had humility. Few men so great have been as humble as he. Humility is a difficult virtue to cultivate. If a man has great wealth he is apt to be proud of his possessions. If he has great learning, he is apt to be proud of his education. If he has had distinguished ancestors he is proud of his pedigree, and humility is so hard to cultivate that if he really become humble he may be inclined to be proud of his humility. But Lincoln's favorite poem was 'Why should the spirit of mortal be proud.' Lincoln understood how little of any man's greatness is self made greatness. He understood, as few of us understand, how much we owe to those who have gone on before us.

"Lincoln had courage. Courage to face any kind of opposition, to meet any kind of criticism, to disregard any kind of ridicule. And why? Because he had another virtue, faith. Only those who believe do great things, and Lincoln believed. He had patience, and only those who have faith have patience; only those who can see that there is a triumph coming have patience to wait its coming. There were men around him who could not wait; men who wanted to see today the things for which they toiled and worked, but Lincoln knew that it takes time to accomplish great things.

"Lincoln had fidelity. The people knew that they could trust him because his fidelity stood out and shone out and embraced all who came in contact with him and then he had an understanding of the development of government and civilization. And now, if we should inquire as to some single light that led his feet along the hard pathway of life, we should speak with justice. The single impulse that throbbed his brain in the darkest night was justice, the single prayer that put in whispered words the meaning and meaning of his soul was justice, in every word that fell from him in touching speech, there was the sad and sober appeal for justice. The time in which he lived was made the test of the nation's life. He turned to New England for help and had his gentle spirit stung into silence by the honest zeal and unjust reproach of Phillips. He turned to New York and the North for help, and the appeal was lost in the noise and noise of the market place. He turned to the West for help, and found a struggling soldiery ready to do indifferent service. He turned to the South and saw the combined strength of brain and blood marching to the music of disunion.

"Politicians ran away in humiliating haste and took their stand just out of reach of either side and close enough to claim identity with either. Treason, wrong, injustice, crime, grew a thousand wrongs added to the burdens of this melancholy spirit. Yet, with all the wrongs and curses that were hurled upon this gentle life by unworthy men, you will find that he never uttered one word meant to break the character or spread the sorrow of his fellow men. Worn in body, in mind, he fled from the fury of the storm. He saw with sorrowing heart the blazing empire of Virginia and he felt the awful sadness of the slumbering armies. Beneath it all he saw the strained muscles of the slave, the broken spirit of the serf, and the bondage of immortal souls; and beaind this picture he saw the lonely family altar upon which was offered the incense of tears coming from millions of broken hearts; and looking still beyond, he saw the battlefields where silent slabs told of the death of those who had died in deathless valor.

"He saw the South, with its smoking chimneys, its deserted hearthstones, its maimed and wounded, trudging back to their homes, there to want and to weep and to struggle and to build up again. He saw the North recover, if and to start away to unite the arteries of commerce that had been cut by the cruel sword of the war. Concluding, the speaker likened the life of Lincoln to that of Moses, who was privileged only to see the promised land, but never entered."

Buying for the home cannot be done wisely and economically unless the "buyer" is a student of the advertisements—no more than a store may be made prosperous without advertising.

"I've been sorry ever since I bought it" is not the plaint of the student of the "ads"—but you've heard women say it, probably a great many times.

The housewife is the "official buyer" for the home—in almost all families. She is, consequently, the official "ad reader" for the home.

ENGLAND FACING A HARD PROBLEM

Adoption of Conscription Bill Recalls Draft Riots in 1863.

DISORDERS NOW EXPECTED.

Great Britain, After Months of Delay, Finds It Necessary to Compel Citizens to Join the Fighting Forces—What Lincoln Said in Days of Civil War, When Similar Steps Were Taken.

In England they call it "conscription," in America "draft." But the parallel between the conditions under which compulsory military service was adopted in the United States and the circumstances in which it becomes effective in Great Britain is quite complete.

In the sixties the United States was fighting for the preservation of the Union.

Half a century ago the United States adopted conscription as a method of obtaining recruits at a time when volunteering had almost entirely ceased, owing to the poor success of the Union commanders in the war with the south; England today requires more men for the successful prosecution of the war than ordinary methods of appeal have secured—more men by far than extraordinary efforts, including the Derby campaign, have won for the colors—and the "slackers" are unwilling to enlist in part because the prestige of victories in the field belongs largely to the enemy's arms.

In this country in 1863 there were large numbers of ablebodied men who were eligible for military service; in Great Britain in 1916 there are great numbers of eligible men who of their own accord do not come forward to enlist.

Also in the time of the civil war the government at Washington tried to avoid resort to extreme measures, but adopted conscription at last, while in England there was a long period of hesitation, and at last obligatory service is adopted.

The Draft Riots.

And finally in this country there were serious riots when the draft began operations, and in England the possibility of serious disorders has had the grave study of the premier and his advisers. Also in both countries a process of registration of all citizens eligible for service preceded the inauguration of conscription.

There are many persons who remember well the terrible days in mid-July, 1863, when the streets of northern cities were full of rioters, and the disorders had to be quelled by force of arms.

In New York the rioting lasted four days, in which the loss in killed and wounded men was nearly 1,000, and the damage to property, public and private, was estimated at more than $1,500,000.

The disorders were not so serious in other cities. In Boston there was one riot, which threatened to assume formidable proportions, costing at least seven lives and the wounding of a score of persons. There was trouble in Portsmouth, N. H.; rioting occurred in Troy, N. Y., and there was a deal of commotion in Holmes county, O.

This is the story of the draft and the riots which it occasioned, with a minimum amount of attention to the big riot in New York and a rather full statement of the troubles in Boston.

When the elections of 1862 were over the party of the administration was defeated in such important states as New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Ohio, Indiana, Illinois and Wisconsin. The adverse verdict against the party of Lincoln was a protest against the sacrifice of such vast amounts of life and treasure without the accomplishing of very great military results.

In some states the draft directly had been put in operation, but as a small measure, to secure men for the army. In Pennsylvania and Wisconsin there was open violence against it in August 1862.

By 1863 volunteering had almost ceased. The efforts by the states to use the draft were not satisfactory and at length a conscription act was passed by the national congress and approved on March 3 of that year. This draft operated directly upon the people of the nation instead of through the states as intermediaries.

In the south a conscription act was rigidly enforced. President Lincoln refused to suspend the draft or to delay it while waiting for a supreme court decision upon its legality, saying: "We are contending with an enemy who, as I understand, drives every ablebodied man he can reach into his ranks, very much as a butcher drives bullocks into a slaughter pen. * * * My purpose is to be in my action just and constitutional and yet practical."

The words of Lincoln apply to the situation across the water today and state the case for conscription almost as Lord Northcliffe himself would put it. With conscription it will be interesting to watch events and see what forms opposition may take and how stern that opposition may be. Human nature is a good deal alike on both sides of the water and does not alter much in a half century of "progress."

RECTORY AND PARISH FOR ALL SAINTS' CHURCH

All Saints' church is making a determined effort to raise $10,000 for a rectory and parish house. Two new societies are being formed. One meeting every two weeks comprises what was formerly known as the Guild, and also the young women who were not members. This society is named All Saints' Guild. It will work actively for the rectory fund and will hold various social functions. A cake sale is to be held by the members soon. All the women, married or single, not members of the Ladies Aid Society, are cordially invited to join by giving their names to Mrs. Harry Pradt Robinson.

A second society was formed last Saturday under the direction of Mr. Charles H. Beal. It is called the Junior Auxiliary of the Woman's Auxiliary to the General Missions Society, and takes in the older girls and young women of the parish. The meetings are monthly. Names of members should be sent to Mrs. Beal.

The Reverend Oscar Stewart Michael, rector of All Saints' Protestant Episcopal Church, preached yesterday to an unusually large congregation on "The Presentation of Christ in the Temple." The lesson was the need of God's power in the affairs of men and of man's acknowledgment of it. It was shown that in every phase of Israel's history the nation triumphed—and sometimes marvelously—when the people trusted in God. They failed, often calamitously, when they acknowledged only their own power.

QUARTERLY CONFERENCE.

The fourth quarterly conference will be held at the First M. E. church, on Sunday, February 20, with Rev. F. J. Hubach, the district superintendent in charge.

PASTORS EXCHANGE.

Rev. J. Y. Broek, of Trinity Reformed church, exchanged yesterday morning with Rev. Harold E. Green, of the Reformed church, Bound Brook.

—"MOONSHINE" IN PENITENTIARIES—

WHERE WHISKY WAS SMUGGLED to CONVICTS

Indications that whisky is being smuggled into the Eastern Penitentiary in Philadelphia or, what is more probable, "moonshined" within the prison walls have caused a great sensation in that city. Pennsylvania women are up in arms over the alleged discovery.

The charge that Warden McKenty, himself a Prohibitionist, has been unable to enforce prohibition within a prison is causing amusement. It is said by police officials that "moonshining" is a common practice among convicts almost everywhere and that it is almost impossible to stamp it out.

One well-known Pennsylvania chief of police explained that on going through the kitchen of a certain penitentiary, he noticed potato peelings nicely cleaned and separated in a pile. A convict, whom the chief knew, explained that the potato peelings were distilled for the purpose of supplying the inmates with whisky.

Expose of the illicit traffic in the Eastern Penitentiary was made by Mrs. Elizabeth Derby, of Naraberth, state president of the King's Daughters. The facts, as she had reported them, have been laid before the Parent-Teachers' Association, of Lancaster. Mrs. Derby tells of her discovery as follows:

"While performing work, a prisoner remarked to me he would never touch liquor again, whereupon I told him this pledge was easier to keep within prison walls than outside. The prisoner then said he could get all the liquor he could pay for. In response to my request, he brought me two one-pint bottles of whisky and a large box of morphine. These I took to Warden McKenty, as he had remarked to me previously that only proof counted. He received me with indignation, directed at the prisoner and myself.

"Three months later, finding that liquor and morphine were still being smuggled to prisoners, I asked the warden what he proposed to do toward preventing the practice. He told me it was none of my affair and that my business was teaching the prisoners religion.

"I finally sought counsel of George Wharton Pepper, of Philadelphia, who directed me to Doctor Hart, secretary of the prison board of inspectors. The doctor reprimanded me vehemently for broaching the matter to Attorney Pepper, and remarked that he did not know how Mr McKenty would forgive it. I replied that the forgiveness of McKenty made little difference, for my sole purpose was the betterment of the prison."

Mrs. Derby declares she will spread the story of her discovery all over the state.

Referring to Mrs. Derby's charges, Warden McKenty said, "What she said about the whisky and dope discovered here is true—that is to a certain extent. We learned that some one was bringing these two things into the prison and we had several traps set. We knew that three or four of the prisoners were getting this stuff and we started an investigation.

"Do you think if whisky were obtainable that men here would drink hair tonic? They did, and two of them died."

Plainfield, N. J., February 7, 1916.

"PROSPERITY DAY."

If an idea that has been widely suggested in this country is carried out February 29, 1916, will be generally celebrated as "Prosperity Day." That day is a gift to all the people—an extra twenty-four hours thrown in on the year by Father Time and its revenues to every business man or laborer are in addition to the regular annual income. It is suggested that stores have "Prosperity Day" sales, that newspapers and orators celebrate the day by explaining to the public how and why the United States is the most favored nation in the world, that civic and commercial associations hold get-together prosperity meetings and that every man, woman and child in the country forget the trying times through which the world has passed and talk, think and feel prosperity. The idea is a big one, and if properly carried out will mean more to the American people than they can ever realize. It was insisted by students of economy that the recent financial depression of the country was but a state of mind and that no "hard times" ever existed. If the people can bring on such a condition by fear and worry they can also make the present state of prosperity greater and more generally felt by celebrating a "Prosperity Day." Many other cities will get in line with the movement and will realize from it and Plainfield should not neglect this opportunity to make a better business for the coming year.

WE'RE ON OUR WAY.

The Daily Press moves on Saturday of this week. A large corps of workmen in all trades have been busy for the past three weeks, and will continue right up to Saturday night with the extended alterations being made in the building at 193 North avenue, which will become the new home of this paper on Monday next. The big new 16-page Scott press is ready to run, and today machinists are completing the installation of the sterotyping plant. An additional typesetting machine is on the way from the factory and will be in operation by Friday night, and the office now being used already shows many visible evidences of the great task that will be completed between noon on Saturday and seven o'clock Monday morning. We expect to encounter many perplexing problems that would try the patience of persons who are accustomed to even more changes and excitement than those incident to the publication of a daily newspaper. We suppose that in the next two weeks there will be many times when our readers will be vexed, and probably justly so, but we shall make every effort to complete the transfer with the least possible confusion and delay to our service. We hope that all will bear in mind, however, that all of the changes are for the purpose of putting out a bigger, better and newsier paper, and will bear patiently with us during the period of the change.

Henry E. Bowen, one of Plainfield's oldest and best known residents, has just completed a series of articles for the Editor and Publisher, about some of his many experiences as an advertising man with the New York Herald. While what Mr. Bowen has written is perhaps not of great interest to the general public, it is especially entertaining for all who follow the newspaper game, and know or know of the men about whom he writes. The articles show a keen understanding of human nature, and indirectly tell just why Mr. Bowen has been so successful. It was only a few months ago that Mr. Bowen decided to retire from the Herald, and he did stop for a short time, but the Herald found that it could not get along without him, and he found that taking life easy was not half so pleasant as it had been painted, and is once again in the harness developing business for that great newspaper.

Full of all sorts of information invaluable to the public man and to every editor in the State, Fitzgerald's Legislative Manual for 1916 has been received by the Daily Press. Prepared by Thomas F. Fitzgerald, the dean of Trenton newspaper man, who has continuously compiled the volumes for thirty-eight years, the book contains a history of the State from the time of the Civil War, biographies of all the principal office-holders, the census and election figures of last year, the Governor's annual message, the Constitutions of the nation and State, Declaration of Independence, list of all newspapers printed in the State. This year's issue fills 650 pages, and it is with pleasure that we welcome it for our library, which contains every copy since 1890. Fitzgerald's Legislative Manual and Who's Who in America are the two books which are most essential for reference to every up-to-date newspaper office in New Jersey.

When the crew of an English trawler left twenty-six members of a German Zeppelin crew to drown in the North Sea they were repaying German hate with a vengeance. To kill in the heat of battle, or on orders from superior officers is the duty of a soldier, but to ignore the dying calls of helpless men because they belong to the army of the enemy is to set a new standard of barbarism even for warfare. The English were probably actuated by hate. They knew that the Zeppelin crew was returning from an air raid on London where it dropped bombs that killed women and children and they refused to aid the Germans because they believed them "murderers." By this act they avenged the innocents who were killed in the aeroplane raid—an eye for an eye, a crime for a crime—and Germans and English became barbarians together.

Congressman Charles N. Fowler's new book, "The National Issues of 1916," has just been issued by his publishers and is being distributed. In it the New Jersey statesman vividly recites national and international events of the past few months that are to have a bearing on the national government during the present year, and he explains issues that are now before the people. It is a book that every voter should read. Congressman Fowler says that true national preparedness consists of potential citizenship in character, intelligence, physique, patriotism and of economic efficiency in men, production, commerce, banking and of efficient government which guarantees equal opportunities, equal justice, and adequate defense.

New York police uncovered a plot to blow up the subway yesterday morning. Another case of the long-suffering worm turning.

Germany's latest reply to the United States demands on the Lusitania question is all that could be asked for, and there is no longer any reason to fear a diplomatic break as a result of this controversy.

On the Spur of the Moment

Mother's Pumpkin Pie.

Some folks prefer the fancy grub they serve at swell cafes,
And cookin' by a foreign chef is really quite the craze.
The bill of fare, in fancy French, they like to take in hand,
To demonstrate that they can make the waiter understand.
They order up a hightoned meal that may be very fine,
But when it comes to eatin' good, I want no French in mine.
I like the good old-fashioned meal,
not the kind you buy.
It ends with a great big slice of mother's pumpkin pie.

They talk about the joys of wealth and how to live in style,
But I am glad that I must live the old way for a while;
There's no dyspepsia in the house
when mother's on the job;
No indigestion, dizzy spells or gout a raising hob;
The meals are always served just right in winter, spring and fall;
I like the whole year's bill of fare,
but one thing best of all—
When I am through with earthly things and take my place on high,
It won't seem just like heaven without mother's pumpkin pie.

Our Beauty Hints.

Cynthia—Removing wrinkles from the face is really a cinch. It isn't necessary to wear a mask, although you can do this if you think it will improve your looks to any great extent. The simple way is to grasp the skin firmly an inch or two northeast of the wrinkle and pull it taut where it wrinkles and iron with a hot flatiron for several minutes. The method is the same as that used by tailors in pressing trousers. When the wrinkle appears again the operation should be repeated.

Lulu—We hardly know what to say to you, Lulu. If nature has placed a wart upon your nose, nature probably knew what she was doing, and you had better leave it alone. The only sure way that we know of to remove a wart on the nose so that it will not come back is to hold the nose under a dried beef cutter. Of course, if you consider your nose a valuable asset to your personal appearance, this treatment would be rather expensive and drastic, but if you don't care much about your nose, try it.

The Codfish.

The codfish is a handsome bird,
With plumage fair to see;
He is a true and steadfast friend
And makes a hit with me.
He lingers round the grocery store,
His odor is immense.
To meet him once is but to feel
His presence decades hence.
He is a stranger in the land,
His home is far away
Amid the ocean's breaking waves
And headlands' foamy spray.
He's not only an ornament,
But has a mission here.
He is a constant friend in need
When other grub is dear.
How often, in the frosty eve,
How often, O, how oft,
Have we hied to the corner store,
And in a whisper soft,
Requested to be shown our friend
And clasp him to our breast
And force him to go home with us
And be our honored guest.
He's been at our home quit a lot
At mealtime, don't you know.
He is the only bird for us,
We've learned to love him so.
He's bound to stay with us a spell,
At least a month or so,
Until the weather moderates
And stops the cold and snow.
We would enjoy a change of fare,
But can't make it quite,
While we must pay out all our dough
For naught but anthracite.

Those Good Old Days.

Workmen recently uncovered the skeleton of a mammoth, and while they were standing open-mouthed marveling at the heroic size of the prehistoric monster, one of those long-whiskered boys who is always telling how cold it was during the winter of '46, horned his way into the crowd, took a look and said: "Yep, she was purty big, but when I wuz a boy down in old Varmount, Jeb Perkins, our nighest neighbor, had a cow bigger'n her."

BAD MIX-UP OVER COUNTY LICENSES

Lavity in Office of Clerk Leaves Records in Uncertain Condition.

Elizabeth, Feb. 7.—As a result of the laxity and irregularity which characterized the conduct of the affairs of the county clerk's office in the past two years or more, there are many hotels and saloons throughout the county which are operating today apparently without a license, despite the fact that the proprietors have paid their license fees to the county clerk regularly. In regard to the liquor licenses, there appeared to be no system at all and, in the past two or three years particularly, many license-holders have not even been supplied with their certificates of license. Those who paid their fees in cash have not even a receipt for their money to show that they are properly licensed.

Many of the license-holders made it a custom to pay their fees by check and, in these cases, the returned check is sufficient proof that the money has been paid. Even in these cases, however, the certificates have not been distributed and appeals at the county clerk's office proved futile.

Closely allied with the failure to send around the certificates of license, which the law provides must be sent out in thirty days, is the failure of the late county clerk to turn over to the various municipalities their respective shares of the license fees collected at the court house. While it would seem that in those cases the municipalities should have themselves taken steps to see that the license moneys were turned over, according to City Treasurer John J. McGrath, of Elizabeth, such action was not to be expected.

The money due Plainfield was $895.50; for the Elks, two licenses of $298.50 each, and the Moose for $298.50. The amount due the county collector was $16.50.

"CHURCH DAY" OBSERVANCE.

"Church Day" will be observed at the First M. E. church tomorrow, when all the women's societies will meet the Woman's Home Missionary Society at 11:30 o'clock in the morning. Lunch will be served at noon, and in the afternoon the Ladies' Aid Society and the Woman's Foreign Missionary Society will meet. There will be a roll call of the member.

AND THE WORST IS YET TO COME--

ONLY ABOUT 1,461 DAYS TO WAIT

- Proctor's Theatre -

At Proctor's Theatre, Wednesday and Thursday.

The Keystone comedy attraction appearing at Proctor's the first three days of this week, starting today, is entitled "The Great Pearl Tangle," in which Sam eBrnard, the beloved comedian of Broadway, makes his debut into the motion picture field of entertainment. The dramatic Triangle offering appearing at Proctor's today and tomorrow is a delightful story of love and adventure. It is entitled "Let Katy Do It," featuring Jane Grey, the far-famed comedienne, and Tully Marshall, who scored such a decided hit by his work in "The Sable Lorcha," which appeared at Proctor's some time ago. Another feature that makes this production in a class by itself is the prominent part played by seven little curly-headed Triangle kiddies. An extraordinary William Fox feature will be seen at Proctor's for two days only—Wednesday and Thursday. It is entitled "A Parisian Romance," in which Cooper Cliffe, the eminent English character actor, and petite Dorothy Green, the Fox favorite, are co-stars. The vaudeville offered for the first half of the week, starting today, includes The Tripoli Girls, a wonderful musical comedy revue, with femininity predominating; Kern & Spot, showing a canine comedian in a series of difficult stunts, Marie Donohue, a dainty singing comedienne, and Lucille Savoy & Co. This is an extremely interesting novelty, introducing classical poses and dances. "The Red Circle" will appear on Friday as usual, and the Toy Bazaar for the kiddies will take place Saturday afternoon. The management of Proctor's has arranged to present the wonderful new Essanay serial, "The Strange Case of Mary Page," in the near future. This is a mammoth production, costing over $250,000 to produce, and containing the highest-salaried cast appearing in a photoplay production. Henry B. Walthall, the hero of Griffith's "Birth of a Nation," is ably assisted in the leading role by Edna Mayo, the fashion-plate of picturedom.

Bert Swor with Al. G. Fields' Minstrels at the Plainfield Theatre, Thursday, matinee and night, February 10.

∴ Plainfield Theatre ∴

With more than one hundred burlesque attractions on the road this season, it would seem a difficult task for a manager to offer anything out of the ordinary, but Peter S. Clark, in his Rosey Posey Girls Company, which will be the offering at the Plainfield Theatre today, matinee and night, has succeeded.

"The Redemption Club," or "She Sins Again," is the title of the two-act piece, in which the entire company of fifty will be seen. This was written especially for the Rosey Posey Girls, and is said to be replete with bright comedy, catchy musical numbers and a wealth of scenic and electric effects. The plot of the piece is interesting enough to hold the attention of the audience from start to finish even if there was not more than thirty pretty girls to liven things up. "The Redemption Club" is from the pen of Walter Pearson, one of the most successful playwrights in the country. Among the well-known entertainers in the cast are Mamie Mitchell, the classic prima donna; Harry Bentley, Clare Evans, Harry S. La Van, Walter Pearson, Gates and Gates, Billie Davies, Madeline Whitney, and the Sherlock Sisters (Flo and Ollie), society singers and dancers.

One of the most interesting and romantic cities of all America is New Orleans, which Al. G. Field has chosen this year to make the opening scene of his Greater Minstrels, to be seen at the Plainfield Theatre, Thursday (matinee and night), February 10. The city was laid out in 1718 by the French and named in honor of the Duke of Orleans, then Regent of France. In 1722, New Orleans became the capital of the French territory around, and was at that time a miserable place in a marsh, with a few small houses and apparently no future. In 1762, France ceded all of Louisiana to Spain, but the people of New Orleans, with that independence characteristic of all American colonists, irrespective of nationality, expelled the Spanish governor who came to rule over them.

Daddy's Bedtime Story — The Beaver Boys Beat Their Friends Bobsledding.

"ONE wintry, snappy, cold, clear night," began daddy for two eager children, "Teddy Muskrat and his friend, Johnnie Meadowmouse, decided to go bobsledding down a mile long hill that ran past Farmer Snoopingdyck's old red barn. Now, neither Teddy nor Johnnie had very much money to buy pleasures. Neither did they have any hammer and nails to build bobs with. So you must please try to understand how long, how very long, it had taken them to save up pennies to buy their two shiny new red bobsleds."

"How did they earn their money, daddy?" asked Jack, who had a bargain with his mother to earn 3 cents every morning he swept off the back veranda floor.

"Well," said daddy, "Teddy earned his pennies by daily helping to clean out his mamma's mud kitchen. Mud kitchens, you see, just naturally get very dirty, and as Teddy's mother had rheumatism in her left great toe she often paid her son to clean house for her. And Johnnie Meadowmouse earned his pennies lugging grains of wheat from Farmer Snoopingdyck's field. My dears, you would weep if all through the fall when other young things were playing and having a good time you could have seen Johnnie Meadowmouse all loaded down with wheat grains for his mamma to stow away for winter dinners. She had a large family of children, you see. But the very happy point is that both Teddy and Johnnie by their own long efforts really had earned enough pennies to buy themselves bobsleds."

"The sleds didn't have to be very big, did they?" grinned Jack.

Daddy smiled. "Well, the snappy cold winter night came at last, and when Teddy Muskrat and Johnnie Meadowmouse got to the top of Farmer Snoopingdyck's long hill that ran past his old red barn what do you think they found?"

Jack and Evelyn guessed and guessed.

"They found the whole huge family of Beaver boys sliding downhill on their tails" daddy cried. "All the beavers, you know, have broad, flat tails about a foot long. They just tuck them under, stand on them and—hooray! off they dash, coasting the whole mile of Farmer Snoopingdyck's hill. 'Huh!' sniveled Teddy Muskrat as he stood and watched his rivals merrily spinning past, taking up so much of the hill that he hardly had room to put his little red bob down. 'I don't see why I should save up my pennies to buy bobs when the Beaver kids come along and beat me coasting on their tails.'"

"Oh, tell it again, daddy!" cried Jack.

But daddy only kissed him good night.

Marrying for Money

BY MRS EVA LEONARD

Even Clothes Can Not Be Pleasantly Discussed at the Townsend's.

"If you are going up to Kansas City this week, let me beseech you, in the name of all you hold dear, to go to a good tailor and have yourself measured for a suit of clothes. You have not a decent suit to your back." Ortrude looked her husband up and down critically.

"My wedding suit is not three months old. That was a very expensive suit, and, according to my notion, should be good enough for any man." Jacob Townsend evidently was annoyed at his wife's criticism, especially as it was made before a tableful of people.

"That wedding suit! I never saw thing fit worse. The cloth is good, but the lines are not right. It pinches you under the arms for one thing——"

"It does not!" flamed Marian, looking belligerently at Ortrude.

"It gives him a waist line like a woman," Ortrude continued, not noticing the interruption. "I nearly disgraced myself by laughing at the wedding." Ortrude's face was wreathed in smiles as she recalled the impression.

"A wedding is a very solemn occasion," remarked Mrs. Orland, Jacob's widowed sister who lived on a farm near Fairport. "I should think it would take more than clothes to make one want to laugh."

"Oh, I don't know. Toggery and weddings are pretty intimately connected in most people's minds." Ortrude seemed to take delight in shocking the staid, old-fashioned woman. Dudley wondered if it was to prevent his aunt from coming to the house again.

"Some people put too much emphasis on clothes." Mrs. Orland looked fixedly at the dancing eyes and laughing face of the young wife. "Such thoughts are too trivial to occupy the attention of the serious minded. They are too transitory and passing."

"Yes, styles do change rapidly," replied Ortrude, drawing her face down solemnly.

"The catechism reads that the chief end of man should be——"

"The revised catechism would read, 'Serve clothes and enjoy them forever,'" said Marian, bursting into the conversation.

"Why, Marian!" exclaimed Aunt Myra.

"I should say creed instead of catechism; at least clothes are what some people live for." She looked defiantly at Ortrude.

Dudley noticed that his father was eating no dinner and looked distressed at the jarring notes in the conversation and he determined to come to the rescue.

"Can't we talk of something besides clothes?" he asked cheerfully. "As far as Daddy is concerned, we have always been satisfied with the way he looked. Of coure we are just plain country people and are not as competent to judge perhaps as those who have been accustomed to wealth and society."

Ortrude's face flushed at this shot from an unexpected quarter. Dudley had always been scrupulously polite to her.

"How are the calves, Aunt Myra? It is almost as good as going to the zoo to see your live stock," and Dudley proceeded to smooth the ruffled plumage of the guest. Jacob breathed a sigh of relief as the conversation was steered into safe channels.

When she rose from the table Ortrude said:

"I know you will cheerfully allow me to go to my room for a nap so that you can visit with your relatives."

Mrs. Orland made her a stiff bow, and Marian dropped a mock courtesy and kissed the end of her fingers and blew a kiss after her retreating figure, a look of fierce hatred on her face. She had never enjoyed Aunt Myra's visits, but she realized that she was "down on the bride," so there would be a new bond between them from now on.

"Well, Jacob, I must say——" began the sister, but the compulsion to speak died out when she looked at her brother's face.

"Well, Dudley, I think we had better be getting back to the store. Good-bye, Myra. You'll stop into the store on your way home, I suppose." And the men left the room.

Household Hints..

THESE RELISHES TASTY WITH WINTER MEATS

In place of the old-fashioned piccalilli this year try making a relish of green tomatoes from which the seeds have been removed, add six red and yellow mangoes, cut up and salt the tomatoes, and run through a food grinder. In quantity have six mangoes to a gallon tomatoes. As tastes vary in spicing, individual taste likes will govern the use of brown sugar, vinegar and spices in cooking.

Tomato Relish—Use three dozen ripe tomatoes, ten onions, twelve sweet peppers, one teaspoon salt, one teaspoon celery seed, one-half teaspoon cloves, allspice, cinnamon and nutmeg, three cups best vinegar, one and one-half dozen tablespoons sugar. Boil two hours and thicken with half cup dissolved flour. Scald and peel tomatoes. Grind onions and peppers. Add all the other ingredients except sugar, which is added when it boils well. When ready to remove from fire add the dissolved flour.

Beans and Tomatoes and Cabbage Piccalilli—One peck green tomatoes sliced and salted, put in a basket and let drain over night. If the flavor of onions is desired take eight, four green peppers cut in small pieces, one peck green or yellow beans cut fine, put in granite or porcelain kettle and cover with vinegar which has been diluted with water, add one pound dark brown sugar, one tablespoon of each kind of spice, put into a muslin bag; stew slowly about an hour or until the beans are soft. Put in airtight jars and they will keep all winter.

Chili Sauce—Eight quarts tomatoes, three cups of peppers, two cups of onions, three cups sugar, one cup of salt, one and a half quarts vinegar, three teaspoons of cloves, same of cinnamon, two teaspoons each of ginger and nutmeg. Boil three hours. Chop tomatoes, peppers and onions very fine. Bottle up and seal.

CANNING AND PRESERVING

Spiced Peaches—One peck peaches; peel, and boil ten minutes, lift out carefully and place in jar. Make syrup of four pounds light brown sugar, one quart vinegar. Tie up cloves and stick cinnamon and boil with syrup twenty minutes, then pour over peaches in jar. For nine mornings pour off this syrup and reheat. After syrup has been reheated and poured over peaches the nine mornings, peaches are ready to be placed in jars.

Green Grape Chutney—Mix two quarts seeded green grapes, two quarts pared chopped apples, two cups raisins, one pint sugar, one cup lemon juice, one cup vinegar, one tablespoon salt, one teaspoon paprika, one ounce each of mustard and ginger; let stand all night in earthenware dish, then cook slowly in double boiler five hours. Bottle hot. This is a delicious condiment with game or cold meat.

Mincemeat Pickles—Chop fine one-half peck green tomatoes, drain and add one tablespoon each of salt, cloves, cinnamon and allspice, one pound cleaned currants, one pound seeded raisins, one-fourth peck peeled, chopped, tart apples, three pounds brown sugar, one-half cup cider vinegar. Cook all slowly two hours, then can hot in glass jars. Serve with meats. Put between slices of buttered bread, makes a nice sandwich.

Pickled Walnuts—Wipe fifty walnuts, prick with a large needle, and put them into a jar, sprinkling, as you lay them in, with the following spices, mixed: One-half ounce each of cloves, allspice, nutmeg, whole pepper, and sliced ginger, one-fourth pint mustard seed, two cloves garlic, one-half stick horseradish; add one tablespoon salt, and boiling vinegar to cover. Cover jar; tie closely.

RECIPES

Baked Tomatoes—Six tomatoes, one cup cooked cabbage, one cup cracker crumbs, one cup soup stock, one teaspoon salt, dash of pepper. Cut top from tomato, scoop out pulp, remove seed from pulp, add to pulp cabbage chopped fine, salt, pepper, cracker crumbs. Stuff tomato with this mixture. Put into baking dish, pour soup stock over and bake in a moderately hot oven eighteen or twenty minutes.

DR. EATON RESIGNS PULPIT

mer Memorial Parish House that adjoins. One feature is a playground on top, which is open the year around.

He has lived all these years in Plainfield, where he has a big tract which he farms and makes self-supporting. Some have felt he lived too far from the church, but he always explained he did this for the health of his large family. He did the same in Cleveland.

The only other Baptist clergyman who receives as high a salary as Dr. Eaton is the Rev. Dr. Cornelius Woelfkin, of the Fifth Avenue Baptist church. Both receive a salary of $10,000.

Dr. Eaton said that the way in which he intended to "help straighten out the world's present tangle" was by writing, lecturing and preaching throughout the country. "I want to help reduce the burden of war," said Dr. Eaton. "I want to aid in getting more Christianity into the churches."

He said he felt he could do this better by laying down the administrative work of the Madison avenue church. He will have an office in New York. At present he makes his metropolitan headquarters at the Union League club.

"With me it is the duty of helping all I can the other workers of the world to straighten out the awful tangle caused by the European war," said Dr. Eaton. He stated it was his intention to continue to live on his farm at Watchung and to superintend the farming of the place as a side issue. The resignation of Dr. Eaton is dated to take effect February 29.

From the pulpit, Dr. Eaton in the morning said his resolve to resign was due to a desire to participate in the sharing of "the new Americanism, the new Era of Christianity which must inevitably follow the European war."

He is an adherent of preparedness and contends that Americans are drifting today in a haphazard fashion and that some strong men should undertake the task of piloting the people into the channels of proper thinking and acting.

He stated that the running of the church, with the myriad of details involved, had tied his hands for the larger work he feels impelling him. He said he wished to discuss the preparedness programme of President Wilson, with which he is thoroughly in accord. There must come, however, he added, a status for the people of the countries where arms are stacked that will not surround them with militarism.

"If my life is spared it is my purpose, after a brief rest, to devote myself by voice and pen to the great work of spiritual and social reconstruction, which is made necessary and must follow the present world war, and in which our beloved country must play a large part," said Dr. Eaton.

PARK CLUB TO PRESENT TWO ONE-ACT PLAYS

The Park Club stock company, a newly organized thespian organization, formed for the purpose of giving amateur plays, will present its initial entertainment at the Park Club Auditorium, Monday evening, February 21. The program will consist of the presentation of two one-act plays, "The Bracelet," by Alfred Sutro, and "The Red Lamp," by Hilliard Booth, which will be followed by a dance.

The members of the cast chosen for the productions are Park Club members only, but among the number are several members of the Plainfield Comedy Club, who have appeared in nearly all of the successful productions of the latter club. Among the number are Miss Elizabeth McGee, Mr. and Mrs. A. M. Abbott, Mrs. F. E. DuBois, Hugh S. Jarvis and Harry L. McGee, all familiar to those who have attended the club's performances in the past. Rehearsals are well under way under the direction of Norman Lee Swartout, of New York. Tickets are now on sale, and can be obtained from the steward at the Park Club. The plays and dance are open to the public.

URGES EVERYONE TO QUICKLY GET ON WATER WAGON

Drink glass of hot water before breakfast to wash out poisons.

To see the tinge of healthy bloom in your face, to see your skin get clearer and clearer, to wake up without a headache, backache, coated tongue or a nasty breath, in fact to feel your best, day in and day out, just try inside-bathing every morning for one week. Before breakfast each day, drink a glass of real hot water with a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate in it as a harmless means of washing from the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels the previous day's indigestible waste, sour bile and toxins; thus cleansing, sweetening and purifying the entire alimentary canal before putting more food into the stomach. The action of hot water and limestone phosphate on an empty stomach is wonderfully invigorating. It cleans out all the sour fermentations, gases and acidity and gives one a splendid appetite for breakfast.

A quarter pound limestone phosphate will cost very little at the drug store, but is sufficient to demonstrate that just as soap and hot water cleanses, sweetens and freshens the skin, so hot water and limestone phosphate act on the blood and internal organs. Those who are subject to constipation, bilious attacks, acid stomach, rheumatic twinges, also those whose skin is sallow and complexion pallid, are assured that one week of inside bathing will have them both looking and feeling better in every way.—Adv.

FIND SCORE IS TIE, AFTER GAME IS OVER

Hopes' Contest With Elizabeth Five One of the Best of the Season

A tie game was played between the basketball teams representing the Greystone Presbyterian church, of Elizabeth, and Hope Chapel, on the local team's court Saturday night, the contest, which was one of the best of the season, ending with the score 27 to 27. The deadlock was not broken by playing an extra period, because the tie was not discovered until some time after the players had left the floor, the scorer, by mistake, having posted the score as being 28 to 27 in favor of Hope Chapel when the second half ended.

A packed gallery witnessed the match, more than forty rooters accompanying the visiting team. The trip was made in a large auto bus. The Greystones, who stand well up in the Elizabeth church league, were older and bigger than Jack Martin's youngsters, and on another court would probably prove to be the locals' superiors.

Albert Porter accounted for six of the Hope's nine field goals, and also chucked in five fouls. He was high point man. Kylish led Elizabeth with five goals and two fouls.

N. P. H. S. EVENS SERIES WITH P. H. S. FOR SCHOLASTIC TITLE

Townley's Excellent Shooting Gives Boroughites 27-24 Victory on Their Own Floor—Game a Characteristic Nip and Tuck Struggle All the Way—Coudray Stars for the Losing Side.

Intense excitement prevailed in Saengerbund Hall, Saturday afternoon, when North Plainfield High School and Plainfield High School met in the second contest for the local scholastic basketball championship, the boroughites winning, 27 to 24. A deadlock now prevails, necessitating a third contest, which will be played on Washington's Birthday, the court being decided by a toss of a coin.

The match on Saturday had all the characteristics which always mark games in which these two schools meet to fight for a title. The boroughites had the better of the argument, although the score was close, both contingents displaying fine form and playing with bulldog determination throughout both periods.

A large crowd thronged the hall. Both institutions had a large number of cohorts rooting desperately, making deafening noise with their horns, bells and voices.

The Red and Blue representatives registered the first point when "Bus" Dunham shot a foul, being followed by Townley, who also scored from the 15-foot line. Another foul was shot by the P. H. S. player, but Townley also contributed a free throw, which was followed by a basket by Coudray. "Toot" Dance broke into the scoring column with a basket, and as he was fouled while shooting, the boroughites added three points to their collection, giving them a lead which they never relinquished.

Four fouls by Dunham, and another basket by Coudray and one by Whelan, completed the visitors' scoring of twelve points during the first session. A basket by Kirch and Townley, coupled with four fouls by the latter, gave the homesters a 13 12 lead.

The second period was faster and fouls were less frequent, giving opportunity for more teamwork and basket shooting. It was after the first five minutes of play that N. P. H. S. started a spurt which carried the home team well in the van. A fast pace was set, which was interrupted only when Kirch received a severe jolt in the head when he ran into a grandstand. During this short period the Canadians tallied four field goals, giving them a sufficient lead which they maintained the remaining ten minutes.

In the waning minutes of play, Coach Patch sent in McDowell to relieve Dunham at forward, in an endeavor to start a rally. The winners then played defensively for the remainder of the game and guarded their lead, although the Plainfielders drew up to within two baskets of them.

Warren Townley was the biggest factor in the N. P. H. S. victory. He made 23 of the winners' 27 points, getting six of the eight field goals.

The P. H. S. team's strength was in Sheldon Coudray, who tallied five baskets, two of them being very spectacular.

Joe Byrne, of West Orange, refereed the game, and did his work well.

EACH SCHOOL HAS MADE 117 POINTS IN LAST FIVE MEETINGS.

How close P. H. S.—N. P. H. S. basketball games are is shown by the fact that in their last five meetings, the two teams have totaled the same number of points—117. The first two games last year were decided by one point, one of the battles requiring an overtime period. Almost invariably, the championship is not decided until three close games are fought.

"THE GREAT HYMN OF LOVE," THEME OF SERMON

Rev. Charles E. Gilkeson, pastor of the Grace M. E. church, preached yesterday morning on "The Great Hymn of Love," the first sermon in the series of a different character. The church was crowded with people and profited. Yesterday was decision day in the school, and the important question was placed before the scholars in a most practical way by Dr. H. K. Carroll, the pastor, and Superintendent Conroy.

All were prepared to decide the question and many came forward in response to the invitation. After the school session, the men's and women's Bible classes met. In the evening the pastor preached on "The Prodigal Son." The subject was delivered in a powerful sermon and was followed by a strong appeal for men who had not as yet done so to come out on the side of Christ. Services will continue every night this week with the exception of Monday and Saturday nights.

THE COAL SITUATION

The coal situation is commanding serious attention. Many of our customers are anxiously asking our opinion from day to day.

We do not pretend to know more than the other fellow, but we do not intend that our customers shall suffer if there is a coal shortage, and we are therefore keeping our bunkers filled to overflowing with the domestic sizes of coal.

This is only another evidence of our desire and ability to serve our patrons.

PROSPERITY DAY PLANS BEST EVER

Local Merchants Anticipate Record Breaking Sales on February 29.

WILL CANVAS SUBURBS

Business Men's Association Boosting Big Event—Annual Dinner of Association March 9—Force Takes a "Crack" at Committees.

Plans discussed at last night's meeting of the Business Men's Association relative to the Prosperity Dollar Day to be held on February 29, indicated that the coming event will be one of the greatest of its kind ever held in this vicinity. The proposition will be developed on a higher and more extensive scale this year, and the merchants who will co-operate will be representative of practically all of Plainfield's business interests.

On behalf of the committee in charge, Albert La Rock and Feorge Finger reported considerable progress and outlined the steps already taken by the association. J. J. Varley, the chairman, was unable to attend the meeting, owing to a sudden attack of illness.

The plan of having a horse-drawn vehicle carrying a canopy Prosperity Day advertisement "cover" the suburban sections will again be used. The members, at last night's meeting, placed the stamp of approval on this scheme, which was tried last year, and it is probable that two days will be consumed in touring the suburbs.

Mr. Finger reported that March 9 had been set as the date for the annual dinner of the association, and it will be held this year in Columbus Club auditorium. The music for the occasion has already been engaged, and it is expected that 200 diners will be entertained. No caterer has been selected, and price of the dinner has not been agreed upon.

During the course of the evening, Mr. Force took occasion to "jack up" the Publicity committee for its failure to give proper publicity to the association's new emblem, and also claimed that the "bottom had fallen through" a contest idea discussed at the January meeting. According to Mr. Force, plans were published at that time for an essay contest for shoppers, in which three money prizes were to be awarded for the three best stories on the subject, "Why We Should Shop in Plainfield." He urged the holding of this event and President Schwed instructed the Publicity Committee to "get busy."

A committee, composed of Howard M. Marchant and Paul Bennett, representing the Credit Association, appeared at the meeting with power to act for their organization in the merger plans. It was agreed to unite the two bodies and to engage Martin Stutsman as counsel at an annual salary of $25, plus his dues. Mr. Stutsman was formerly associated with the Credit Association in the same capacity, and the committee representing the latter organization insisted that he be retained after the merger was made.

E. C. STOKES WILL SPEAK AT BANQUET

Accepts Invitation to Attend Business Men's Association Affair on March 9.

Former Governor E. C. Stokes has accepted an invitation extended by the local Business Men's Association to be a speaker at the annual banquet of the organization which will be held in the Columbus Club auditorium March 9. Harry B. Salter, secretary of the Trenton Chamber of Commerce, will be one of the other speakers on the program. It is expected that Mr. Salter will discuss conditions as he found them in Plainfield while engaged in canvassing for members for this body.

The committee in charge, of which George Finger is chairman, has communicated with a number of other well known speakers and it is expected that the program will be even better than the one offered last year.

FRELINGHUYSEN FOR THE SENATE

Makes Formal Announcement of His Candidacy Before Republicans.

IS FOR PREPAREDNESS

Believes in Protection Through Tariff Revision, Privately-Owned Merchant Marine and Laws to Help the Farmer.

Joseph S. Frelinghuysen today announces his candidacy for United States Senator from the State of New Jersey. He makes his appeal to the Republican voters of the State and outlines a platform covering all state and national issues in which he favors protection through tariff revision, a privately-owned merchant marine, the promotion of agriculture and education by legislative enactment, and in a red-blooded American preparedness.

Mr. Frelinghuysen's announcement follows:

"I desire to be your candidate for United States Senator, and for that reason will seek your votes at the primaries to be held next September.

"I am a Republican, a believer in the integrity of the Republic, the permanency of its institutions and the development of its commerce and industries and their protection.

"Protection is and has been the keystone of the Republican party. It was the Republican party under Lincoln that protected and preserved the nation. Under that party and protection the country has grown and prospered.

"I am a protectionist to the extent that it is necessary to safeguard our industries and our labor from undue foreign competition. When the European war is over some of the nations engaged in it will be well-nigh if not wholly bankrupt, and they will struggle to gain our markets. We cannot afford to let industries which

RUSHMORE WINS HIS PATENT SUIT

Is Given Priority of Claim on All Electrical Devices of Bosch Company.

Through a decision of the United States Patent Office handed down Wednesday of last week Samuel W. Rushmore is given priority of claim on all electrical patents formerly owned by him and recently disposed of to the Bosch Magneto Company, also of this city. This settles a long-fought controversy on patents under which the Bosch Company is now doing business. The priority of claim of Mr. Rushmore to these patents was contested by the Bijur Motor and Lighting Company, of New York, but it was proven that Mr. Rushmore had been using patents more than eight months before the other company sought to establish its claim. The patent rights that were freed by this decision are valued at $1,000,000.

The Public Recreation Committee of Plainfield was given permission, if it desires, to organize the community center work in the Harrison avenue school.

The old private telephone wire between the Somerset and Watchung school was ordered taken down. Thomas Hardy was given the contract at a price of $7.00.

REV. DR. CADMAN ON 'THE MODERN BABYLON'

Gives Graphic Description of Life in London and Other Large Cities.

"The Modern Babylon" was the subject of an interesting lecture given by Rev. Dr. S. Parkes Cadman, of Brooklyn, at the Congregational church, last night, in which he gave a graphic description of life in London as contrasted by that in New York and other large American cities. His remarks were based to a large extent on the development of city life and the building of great cities.

Dr. Cadman said that city life was really the growth of civilization, and as it progresses the large cities will attract men to them in preference to the country. The speaker said that while he did not believe in Socialism, he felt compelled to give it credit, because it evidenced a strong passion for humanity which is one of the crying needs of the present day.

Political and business methods of today were contrasted with those of a half century ago, and the development of the people who inhabit the world was noted in an interesting way. Dr. Cadman referred to the great war in Europe in a casual manner, maintaining a neutral attitude.

The lecture was given under the auspices of the Men's Club, the Tuckahatchee Bible Class of the church, and was well atended by members of the church and congregation.

ATTACKS 10 HOUR LAW FOR WOMEN

A. E. Force Insists 12-Hour Day is Not Too Much in Stores.

WILL URGE REPEAL

Local Merchants Indorse His Position and Plan State-Wide Campaign—New Advertising Feature is Agreed Upon.

A. E. Force took the initiatfve at last night's meeting of the Business Men's Association to place an agitation on foot for a repeal of the act making it unlawful to work a female clerk more than ten hours a day, which may result in State-wide activity on the part of civic organizations and individuals vitally interested in the proposition. Mr. Force, in placing the matter before the meeting, declared that twelve hours' work in a Plainfield store was not too much for any girl or woman clerk, and cited reasons to substantiate his argument that business in local stores was seriously hampered by the short day law passed by the Legislature of 1913.

The issue came in for hearty endorsement on the part of several other merchants present, and it was finally agreed to communicate with secretaries of other associations with a view to awakening a State-wide interest and placing the matter before the Legislature, with concentrated backing.

In introducing the subject Mr. Force said that it was absolutely essential to have female clerks in stores at all times during business hours, inasmuch as certain trade demanded women or girl clerks for service. He said that the formation of shifts from 8 to 8 on Saturdays or from 10 to 10 was unsatisfactory, because it left the store without female help either during the early morning hours, between 8 and 10, or between the night rush hours, between 8 and 10.

Mr. Force classed the law as a merchant's hardship, and declared it an unjust measure. He further stated that 75 per cent. of the shopping women would be in favor of having female help in stores during the entire twelve hours on Saturdays if the issue were put to a vote.

President Schwed endorsed Mr. Force's remarks, and contrasted the conditions in Plainfield stores with those in New York, and concluded by declaring that the measure in question was designed for larger cities, with business houses where girls and women are kept constantly on the "jump."

He added that conditions in local stores were so adjusted that the clerks were ideally taken care of, and that twelve hours' work in Plainfield was equal to only ten hours, or less, of work in many New York business places.

The concensus of opinion indicated that the association was strongly in favor of fostering a movement to gain reconsideration of the act and, if possible, a repeal. It was also suggested that the law might be remedied by the addition of an amendment excluding Saturday from the ten-hour restriction.

The association authorized the publicity committee, composed of Albert La Rock, chairman; Samuel Rothberg and August Lang, to draw up a suitable advertisement, containing the names of the business men on the rolls, and it will be inserted in a double page space in the booklet, the cost to be $100. This step was taken to get around the clause in the bylaws which prohibits members of the association from advertising in anything but newspapers going through the mail as second-class matter. Although the manager of the booklet will have the right to solicit among individuals in the organization, the members will probably be governed by the action of the meting last night.

COMMUNITY CENTER REPORTS PROGRESS

Enthusiastic Meeting is Held When Committee Chairmen Are Named.

There was a large and enthusiastic attendance at the monthly business meeting of the West End Community Center in the Washington school auditorium last night. Reports presented by the various committees were very encouraging and showed clearly what activities the organization has undertaken and how they are proving successful. President John J. Carroll occupied the chair. He gave an account of the center's last social affair and also encouraged the various officers.

The following chairmen were announced to serve at the head of the various committees during the ensuing year: Municipal dance, Joseph E. Edgar; Dunbar dance, Edward Hadden; dramatic club, Henry Crofut White; public speaking forum, A. B. Jones; pool tables, Fred J. Dixon; music, Mrs. Joseph Edgar; sewing, Miss Scarborough; roller skating, W. W. Gallaway; entertainment, Edward Hadden; extension of work, T. C. Vail. TO MAKE SURVEY OF DEPARTMENTS Taxpayers Association Will Furnish Funds for Important Work.

COUNCILMEN ACCEPT

East End Civic Club Makes Plea for Storm Sewer—Other Business of City Fathers Transacted Last Night.

An offer of the Plainfield Taxpayers' Association to make a partial survey of municipal departments, as recommended by Mayor Calkins in his annual message, was accepted by members of the Common Council by formal resolution last night, and heads of departments were instructed to cooperate in every way possible with experts of the New York Bureau of Municipal Research, which will undertake the work.

The survey is to be made at a cost of approximately $1,200, which will be paid by the Taxpayers' Association. This amount is in excess of the total received froc contributions and memberships of the association, and must be paid out of other funds.

The proposed survey will include the following: 1) A complete survey of the department of finance, covering an examination of accounting, auditing and purchasing systems, and recommendations for such changes, if any, as are needed to square Plainfield's methods with the best modern practice; (2) a survey of the more important phases of police administration, and, in particular, expert advice as to headquarters' equipment, the fixed post and flash-signal system, etc.; (3) a survey of the principal problems affecting the care of streets, with special reference to permanent pavements, as outlined in Mayor Calkins' annual message, and (4) possibly, in addition, advice and suggestion as to the administration of the fire department.

FOUND GUILTY OF STATE VIOLATION

Dunellen Concerns Are Fined for Not Using Duplicate Slips in Delivery.

The Dunellen Lumber and Stone Co. and M. T. Moynihan, Inc., were both arraigned before Recorder Campbell this morning by officers from the Department of Weights and Measures, and charged with delivering coal and feed without the duplicate net slips as required by the new law. The recorder fined each concern the minimum fine of $10.00, which is fixed by law.

Assistant State Superintendent Swartz, of Elizabeth, announced that under the new law each bag of grain containing 100 pounds or more must be distinctly marked, giving the net contents of the bag, and that each delivery of grain must be accompanied by a duplicate slip showing the total net weight of the load rather than the number of bags, as was the custom heretofore.

The recorder held that, while ignorance of the law was no defence, he felt that the dealers had not been informed of the details of the law sufficiently and suggested to the commissioner that inasmuch as the law was to be enforced rigidly throughout the state, it was no more than fair that the dealers in every community should be supplied with a copy of the new statute in this matter.

U. S. WILL ACCEPT GERMAN APOLOGY

Cabinet Meeting Today Results in a Complete Settlement of Lusitania Case.

WILSON IS ELATED

British and French Cruisers Scour Seas for German Raiders and Submarine Bases—England Would Compromise on Blockade.

Washington, Feb. 8.—Secretary of State Lansing declined to make any statement after the Cabinet meeting held today, but there were unmistakeable indications that the terms of the Lusitania settlement have been reached and that an announcement will be forthcoming in the near future. Secretary Lansing expects to see the German Ambassador, Count von Bernstorff, this afternoon, at which time it is understood he will convey to the envoy the acceptance of the latest German communication by the United States. It is believed that a complete settlement will be agreed upon at this conference. President Wilson is described as being elated over the turn that events have taken, and is confident that the terms of settlement will be satisfactory to the nation.

London, Feb. 8.—An editorial in the Manchester Guardian today suggests that Viscount Bryce or A. J. Balfour be sent to the United States with full power to adjust the blockade controversy.

Cruisers Seek Sea Raiders.

Rome, Feb. 8.—Fast British and French chuisers are scouring the Mediterranean sea and the East Atlantic steamship land for German submarine bases and for German commerce traders which are believed to be at large in the vicinity. The cruisers that are patrolling the Atlantic off the Canary Islands, the Azores and the Portugese and Spanish coasts are making careful search for submarine bases, as well as supply stations for German commerce traders.

Sugar Shipments Restricted.

London, Feb. 8.—The government today announced a restriction of the importation of sugar because of the lack of freight ships.

REFUSES TO ACCEPT HIS RESIGNATION

Rev. Dr. Eaton's Congregation Votes Against His Giving up New York Pastorate.

The congregation of the Madison Avenue Baptist church, New York, at a meeting last night, voted by a large majority not to accept the resignation of Rev. Dr. Charles A. Eaton, as pastor. Only ten persons voted against the resolution, and there were three hundred present. The ten persons were said to be members or close friends of two families.

Dr. Eaton's resignation, which was presented on Sunday, caused much surprise. Only a few knew that in the board of trustees there was a minority who have opposed Dr. Eaton for some time. The pastor did not attend the meeting, but appeared afterward when all but a few had gone.

In reply to a question, Dr. Eaton said that he was not prepared to say whether he would withdraw his resignation, as the matter had not been presented to him officially. The impression is that he will accede to the request. Mrs. Eaton and her two eldest children were present. They hurried for a train to their home here. The meeting was adjourned until the evening of February 28. Dr. Eaton's answer is expected at that meeting, which is held the day before his resignation is to take effect.

It seemed to be the concensus of opinion of those present at the meeting that Dr. Eaton's retirement would be disastrous to the church, and a majority expressed a willingness to allow him sufficient time for literary and other work if he would continue as pastor.

FUNERAL OF MRS. WILLETT.

The funeral of Mrs. Susan Willett was held this afternoon at her late home, 436 West Front street. The private service was conducted by Rev. Frederic L. Greene, pastor of Hope chapel, and interment was made. Burial was in the North Plainfield cemetery.

The Christian Endeavor Society of Trinity Reformed church will have charge of the mid-week prayer-meeting at the church tomorrow night, and a full attendance is desired.

Mayor Latham Reads Annual Report of Borough's Condition for the Year.

At last evening's regular monthly session of the Mayor and Common Council, the Carpenter Audit Company, of New York, submitted its report on the books and accounts of the borough for the year ending December 31. The report was read by Mayor Latham, who made comments as he went along. Afterwards it was placed on file.

The balance sheet, showing the financial condition of the borough, is as follows:

Chairman Neighbour, of the sidewalk committee, reported that 5,500 feet of sidewalk had been cleared of ice and snow up to last evening. Street Commissioner Smalley was present, and Mayor Latham asked him whether any property-holder had objected to the enforcement of the snow ordinance. Commissioner Smalley said that they had not. He added that a lot of people come out and get ehead of his men in cleaning the walks.

Chairman Williams, of the hall committee, was authorized to advertise for bids for the contract of putting a new roof on the Borough Hall, the material to be either slate or rubberoid. The cost, it is estimated, will be about $125.

He reported that Harry Dodwell, the injured sewer inspector, was getting along well in Muhlenberg Hospital, and that he will probably be able to return home in two weeks.

Improvement certificates aggregating $7,100 were authorized issued to meet current collecting sewerage bills and the flotation of a demand note for $1,121.87 to meet bills incident to the construction of the North avenue drain was also authorized.

About two hundred relatives and friends from New York, Brooklyn, Jersey City and Perth Amboy were present. The bride received many gifts, and after a short honeymoon the couple will reside at the home of the bride's parents. Mr. Petrigillie is employed by the Lehigh Valley Railroad Co. as a section foreman at Jersey City.

The Old Capitol Building.

The structure in Washington city known as the "Old Capitol building" has a memorable history. It was erected in 1800 and was originally designed as a tavern or boarding house. On account of poor management the tavern was closed after a few years. During the war of 1812 the British captured Washington and burned several of the public buildings, including the capitol. The government then purchased this tavern building for the use of congress, and here both houses met for several years. Within its walls two presidents were inaugurated, and in it John C. Calhoun died.

How a Meaning Changes.

"Cheat" is a word that now has a very ugly sound. To cheat a man is to defraud him. Originally the word conveyed no such meaning. The old word "escheat" referred to the dues that fell to the crown. It came from the French echoir (Latin, excadere). The modern meaning that attaches to the word tells a sad tale of the extortion and greed that must have been practiced in collecting the dues.

GIRL LEAVES SICKBED TO BEG LOAN TO BURY MOTHER

Far From Friends, She Seeks to Keep Body From Potter's Field.

In Milwaukee, Wis., alone and penniless in a poorly furnished room, Mrs. Maud McGraw fought pneumonia, brought on by lack of proper care.

In Kokomo, Ind., Mildred McGraw, eighteen years old, lay critically ill.

So the days slowly passed in pain for the two women in the little rooms so far apart. They could not even comfort each other. And then another day dawned—the girl was a little bit better, but the older woman was dead.

To the sick girl in Kokomo two days later there came a letter with the name of the Milwaukee county coroner's office in the corner.

Her mother was dead, she read. What was almost as great a horror to her, the letter said the body would be buried in the potter's field unless money was provided for funeral expenses.

Mildred didn't cry as much as she wanted to. She didn't have time. She had to force herself out of that sick bed. She had to somehow get to the homes of friends and borrow money to go to Milwaukee. In spite of pain and weakness and sorrow she did those things and arrived there—destitute again.

She was told at the morgue that the money to bury her mother must be raised by next day. She knew no one there, so she went to a newspaper office.

"Don't you think there is some one in all this city who will loan me enough money to bury my mother?" she asked after she had told her story. "There must be at least one, if only they can be told. I don't want my mother buried in the potter's field. I've loved her so long! Surely we have suffered enough now. That won't be asked of me, will it?

"I'll pay the money back. If I was strong enough to work I wouldn't ask a penny, but there is no other way."

The girl's appearance—she was thin, pale and haggard—indicated that she is too weak to do any work.

TO EXCEL THE FOKKERS.

American Airship Now Being Built Will Be Six Times as Large.

G. Douglas Wardrop, editor of the Aerial Age, member of the Aero Club of America and American Society of Aeronautic Engineers, told the cadets and instructors at West Point that the United States is developing a machine of the air that will be more powerful than the Fokker machine recently built in Germany.

"We are developing a machine that will represent the greatest achievement of men in aerial transportation," said Mr. Wardrop. "It will be six times larger than any yet tried. It will carry enough fuel to give it a cruising range of 600 miles at seventy-five miles an hour. It will be propelled by seven motors, six of 160 horsepower and one of forty.

"The machine will carry eight passengers and possibly thirty with the decrease of a cargo of explosives. It can carry more than ten tons. It will carry a new gun which has no recoil and which will throw a three and one half inch shell. This is achieved by having a double shot with a single explosion. One load will go in one direction—the shell; the other of sand will go in the opposite direction, neutralizing the recoil."

WITHOUT HAT OR COAT.

West Virginia Man May Found a New Health Cult.

A new health cult may be founded in Wheeling, W. Va., following the great success achieved by Joseph Bleifus, who has not worn a hat in two years and has not had even the semblance of a cold in that time. Bleifus has not only gone hatless for two years, but he has also gone coatless. In all kinds of weather he has gone about without hat, coat or overcoat, and he has not been sick during that time.

Bleifus is a big strapping fellow not yet out of his teens and with his brothers conducts a meat market. He is regarded as one of the finest specimens of physical manhood in the city. Bicycle riding induced him to shed surplus clothing. He found hats and coats cumbersone and superfluous, got out of the habit of wearing them and then passed them up altogether.

11,300,000,000 STAMPS LICKED IN ONE YEAR.

Postoffice Also Used Enough String to Encircle Globe Three Times.

The annual report of Mr. James A. Edgerton of New Jersey, purchasing agent of the postoffice department, showing that the adoption of up to date business methods in purchasing postal supplies saved the government approximately $1,000,000 during the last fiscal year, was made public by Mr. Edgerton the other day. It points out that although the prices on many supplies were very high on account of the war, a policy of early advertising and of securing the widest possible competition enabled the department to make this large saving.

Postmaster General Burleson in his annual report for the postal service for the fiscal year ended June 30, 1915, paid the following compliment to the work of the purchasing agent:

The purchasing agent, who has supervision of the purchase of the vast quantity of supplies used in the postoffice department and the postal service, deserves great credit and cannot be too highly commended for the improved business methods which have resulted in the saving of such a large amount of the public money.

The magnitude of the business transacted by Mr. Edgerton's office, as shown by his report, is apparent from the following purchases made during the fiscal year in question:

Fifty-four carloads, an entire train, of facing slips. These slips are 3¼ by 5 inches in size, cut from manila paper and are used as labels by clerks in postoffices and the railway mail service.

For tying packages of letters in the 44,000 postoffices throughout the United States and on every railway mail car 1,612,000 pounds of twine were purchased, measuring 1,450,800,000 yards, a sufficient length to encircle the globe more than three times.

Two hundred carloads of cardboard, out of which 1,015,850,000 postal cards were manufactured.

Eleven billion three hundred million postage stamps of different denominations were purchased and distributed to the postoffices throughout the country during the year.

Five hundred thousand canvas mail sacks, each with an average capacity of two and one-half bushels.

Forty-five thousand quarts of writing fluid and 30,000 pounds of canceling ink, a quantity sufficient to convert an ordinary lake into a Black sea.

Eight hundred and twenty-five thousand pounds of paper, different grades, enough to cover the surface of an entire state.

Eighty-five milion tags, a number adequate to tag every person in the United States.

In addition to the above, there were purchased 600 typewriting machines, 65,000 dozen lead pencils, 300,000 dozen steel pens, 20,000 typewriter ribbons, 150,000 rubber and steel stamps and a thousand other articles, including letter boxes, scales, baskets, blank books, canceling machines, maps, carriers' satchels, motor vehicles, leather, iron, brass, copper, hardware, flags, packing boxes, duplicating machines, penholders, files and binders.

Condescension.

"Isn't the style of music you have been playing rather lacking in classic quality?"

"Oh, yes," replied the highly accomplished girl. "But one must show some consideration for the tastes of one's parents."—Washington Star.

Dad's Portion.

"I notice an eastern paper runs an attractive mothers' department headed 'Frocks and Frills.'"

"Some of these papers," growled the old man, "ought to run a fathers' department headed 'Shocks and Bills.'"—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

HAVE DARK HAIR AND LOOK YOUNG

Nobody Can Tell When You Darken Gray, Faded Hair With Sage Tea.

Grandmother kept her hair beautifully darkened, glossy and abundant with a brew of Sage Tea and Sulphur. Whenever her hair fell out or took on that dull, faded or streaked appearance, this simple mixture was applied with wonderful effect. By asking at any drug store for "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound," you will get a large bottle of this old-time recipe, ready to use, for about 50 cents. This simple mixture can be depended upon to restore natural color and beauty to the hair and is splendid for dandruff, dry, itchy scalp and falling hair.

A well-known downtown druggist says everybody uses Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur, because it darkens so naturally and evenly that nobody can tell it has been applied—it's so easy to use, too. You simply dampen a comb or soft brush and draw it through your hair, taking one strand at a time. By morning the gray hair disappears; after another application or two, it is restored to its natural color and looks glossy, soft and abundant.—Adv.

RENGO BELT

Reducing Corsets

Models with and without "Steelastic" webbing. The exclusive "Steelastic" in these corsets will be found to possess superior strength and wearing quality when extra flexibility and added support is needed. The double watch-spring steels are guaranteed not to break.

They are but one indication of the great wearing quality which medium and stout women must have in their corsets. Without strength, support and the RENGO BELT reducing feature, these garments would have no claim for the special consideration of stout women. They would fail to hold their shape, and would break down and prove most unsatisfactory. Prices—

PLAINFIELD ~NEW JERSEY~

Frelinghuysen Is Candidate for U. S. Senator From New Jersey

The Hon. Joseph S. Frelinghuysen.

Former Senator Joseph S. Frelinghuysen who today enters the campaign for the United States Senate, is a native of Somerset county, having been born at Raritan, near where his home is now located.

Mr. Frelinghuysen has been prominently identified with the Republican party in New Jersey ever since he cast his first ballot. He is fond of all outdoor sports, and in business his knowledge of insurance underwriting, which he followed ever since he left school, has placed him at the head of several large insurance companies in New York City.

Mr. Frelinghuysen's ancestors were among the founders of the Reformed Dutch church in New Jersey; his great-grandfather served in the Revolution, and he had many other male relatives who gained distinction in that contest. It is a current belief in the Frelinghuysen family that Colonel Rahl, the Hessian commander, surrendered his sword at the battle of Trenton to Colonel Hugh Mercer, one of Mr. Frelinghuysen's progenitors General John Frelinghuysen, his grandfather, served in the war of 1812 and his father, Frederick John Frelinghuysen, was a prominent lawyer in Somerset county where he, Joseph Sherman Frelinghuysen, was born at Raritan, on March 12, 1869.

Mr. Frelinghuysen was the nominee for State Senator in Somerset county in 1902, but was defeated by Samuel S. Childs. Nothing daunted, he made a fight for the same office in 1905 and was elected over Senator Childs, and in 1908 was re-elected, defeating Judge Nelson Y. Dungan. While in the Senate, he served as floor leader for his party, and in 1909 he was elected to fill the unexpired term of President Robbins, and in 1910 he was chosen to fill the same position.

During the two years from 1910 to 1912 he served as acting governor at different times in the absence of Governor J. Franklin Fort. The livestock commission was organized after he had the bill passed by the Legislature. He was identified with the work of the appropriation committee while in the Senate; and he was chairman of a special commission which investigated the school system of the State, after which he drafted a score of bills which were passed and resulted in the thorough reorganization of the school system. The work was centralized and its efficiency increased.

In addition to being president of the State Board of Education and State Board of Agriculture, he is a member of the United States Chamber of Commerce, New Jersey State Chamber of Commerce, the Merchants' Association of New York, Down Town Association, Union League, New York Yacht Club, Adirondack League club, Military Order of Foreign Wars, Squadron A. club, and is a Mason and an Elk. He is a member of the Patrons of Husbandry.

During the Spanish-American War, Senator Frelinghuysen served in the Cuban and Porto Rican campaign as an officer of Troop 3, Squadron A., of New York, and was recommended by General Henry for brevet first lieutenant for conspicuous service. He was the personal aide on the staff of Gov. E. C. Stokes, during his term, and in that capacity was his military advisor

WIFE OF AMERICAN CONSUL TO CHINA

Mrs. Lester Maynard.

Mrs. Lester Maynard is one of the beautiful and talented women who have made the affairs of the diplomatic set of Washington particularly brilliant this season. Mrs. Maynard is the wife of the American consul to Amoy, China, and is spending the winter in Washington with her husband, who is on leave of absence from his post.

FRELINGHUYSEN FOR SENATE

we have developed be ruined by the competition of labor in foreign lands.

"I am in favor of the revision of the tariff so that the industries will be protected and so that our army of workers shall not be thrown out of employment. I favor, however, the establishment of a permanent body whose duty it shall be to carefully and scientifically study all tariff questions and report thereon to Congress: a body so constituted as to be free from partisan influences; a body whose sole object will be to work for the greatest good of all the people, and the protection of the industries and commerce of our country.

"I favor a merchant marine by private enterprise with government assistance, if necessary. For many years the great need of our commerce has been an outlet. Today we have an opportunity to find an outlet, but we lack the vessels. We have been dependent on ships flying foreign flags, and now that so many of them are being used for military purposes there is congestion at many of our big ports. A recurrence of this trouble would be avoided with the proper development of our merchant marine.

"I believe that agricultural development is an important province of government; therefore, I will seek to energetically promote such federal legislation as will assist our farming industry. Wherever the federal government can properly aid in vocational training, thereby benefiting our industrial life, and wherever the advancement of education can be promoted by federal laws, particularly in those sections of the country which have not been properly developed in this regard, I shall favor such legislation as will encourage the attainment of so important ends.

"I believe in exhausting every means to maintain an honorable peace. I have profound respect for its advocates. I do not believe that the exemption or absence of war, however, should lead us into a false state of tranquility and calm. The ideals of world-wide peace and universal disarmament have been shattered. Modern warfare has brought unexpected conditions, and we are menaced by new dangers. It is our duty with proper foresight to protect our homes and our civilization against such an unfortunate calamity as war. It is a problem which has caused great anxiety for many months.

"The Republic became such as the result of the War of the Revolution. Its integrity was maintained by the Civil War. The terrible conflict which is now rending Europe from end to end is positive proof that we cannot disregard such a danger.

"If we wish to continue free and independent and to grow and prosper, we must prepare to repel any onslaught by others, who perhaps impoverished, yet powerful, may look with covetous eyes on our great wealth and seek to rehabilitate themselves, if possible, at our expense. I believe, therefore, that it is the duty of this country to place itself in a position where it can protect itself.

"If I am right in my assumption that we may be attacked, no section of the country is more exposed than New Jersey. Its occupation by a hostile force would strike at the heart of our industrial and commercial life, bring untold suffering to our people, and open the portals of the greatest municipalities of the eastern states to an enemy.

We should have an adequate navy as the first and most important means of defense not merely for our coast, but also for the protection of our possessions. We should have aircraft second to none. We should increase our army, but not to such an extent that its maintenance would be a burden to the public. We should maintain a supply of munitions sufficient to equip a large force and to maintain it for at least six months.

"We should increase our facilities for the education of military and naval officers. We should use our excellent militia as the basis for a reserve force. We should not, however, become a military nation, but we must place ourselves in a position where we can protect ourselves in the event of need.

"I believe this government should protect its citizens and their property in foreign lands, providing they observe the laws and customs of the country in which they are living, if only temporarily. This is a principle of government older than the Monroe doctrine, and until recently it never was disputed. No government can exist that views with complacency the murder of its citizens. I believe in protection—protection of our industries, protection of our commerce and the protection of our people against invasion.

"My record in the service of the State can readily be ascertained. If the honor of this high office should come to me, it will be my desire to serve with all the ability and energy I possess."

PLANS FOR SCHOOL GARDENS ENDORSED

Monday Afternoon Club Will Assist in Estalishing Memorial for Miss Kenyon.

The Monday Afternoon Club held its annual meeting yesterday afternoon in the parish house of the Congregational church. The annual reports submitted by the secretary and treasurer showed the club to be in an active and flourishing condition. The offices to be filled were those of three vice-presidents and a treasurer. The voting resulted in the election of Mrs. John M. Whiton, Mrs. Frank O. Herring and Miss Emelyn B. Hartridge as vice presidents, and Mrs. William C. Hubbard as treasurer.

An interesting discussion regarding the proposed memorial for Miss Elvira E. Kenyon, the founder of the Monday Afternoon club, followed and resulted in the adoption of the following resolution: "Resolved, that the Monday afternoon club give $300 from its treasury this year to the Kenyon Gardens' Association as a memorial for iMss Kenyon, and that it recommends that each year, $200 be given for the maintenance of the gardens."

Much enthusiasm was shown in the matter and the members look forward with interest to the lecture to be given tomorrow afternoon at 3:30 o'clock by Henry Griscom Parsons director of the department of school gardens at New York University. The lecture, which will be illustrated, will be held in the parish house of the Congregational church and will be free to all. After an animated discussion of the program for next year the club adjourned.

OBITUARY

Within two days after the funeral of her daughter, death came last night to Mrs. Marie C. Terry, widow of Samuel C. Terry, of 331 East Third street. She had been ill for a long time and at the time when her daughter, Mrs. Zachariah Wilson, of Elm place, passed away, she was not told of the fact. Mrs. Wilson's funeral was held Sunday.

Mrs. Terry was born at Baskingridge seventy-five years ago, and but for two years in Delaware, spent all her life in New Jersey. She has been a resident of Plainfield a long time. She is survived by three daughters: Mrs. Albert Brower and Mrs. G. L. Ackerman, of Newark, Mrs. A. J. Noylan, of New York; one son, Pierre H. Moore, of this city; fourteen grandchildren, two grandchildren and one sister, Mrs. Elizabeth Titus, of New Market. Mrs. Terry was active in many local organizations for the past twenty years being a member of the local lodge Daughters of Rebekah, and its Past Noble Grand association; Washington Council, Daughters of America, the Daughters of Liberty, Women's Relief Corps to Winfield Scott Post, Howell division No. 97, Sons of Temperance. She attended the Temple Baptist church, where she was a member of the Sunday school.

The funeral will be held in Temple Baptist church, Wednesday afternoon at 2:30, and will be in charge of Rev. E. C. Conover. Interment will be in Evergreen cemetery.

WILLIAM H. RAYNOR.

William H. Traynor, a native of Scotch Plains, widely known in Plainfield, died yesterday morning in St. Barnabas' Hospital, Newark, following an operation for appendicitis. He rallied after undergoing the ordeal, but peritonitis developed. Mr. Traynor was thirty-five years old, and has recently been living in Westfield, where he was the proprietor of a lunch wagon cafe. His business was prosperous and only a short time ago he placed an order for one of the largest lunch wagons yet turned out. He was a blacksmith by trade, having learned the blusiness in Scotch Plains. He worked for a number of Plainfield Smith, and the last time he was employed at the trade he was with William H. Dougherty. He leaves one brother, Grover, Traynor, of Newark.

TROOP D WILL PERFECT A CIVIL ORGANIZATION

A meeting of Troop D to perfect a civil organization for the adoption of by-laws, and for the election of civil officers will be hled at the headquarters on Putnam avenue this evening at 8 o'clock. All members are required to attend, and it is suggested that all possible recruits be brought to this meeting that they may have the advantage of participating in the original enrollment of the civil organization.

An election for three corporals will be held at the headquarters tomorrow evening. Captain Rockwell, U. S. A. inspector-instructor, makes his next visit to the Troop on Thursday February 17, and in consequence the mounted drill scheduled to be held at the Squadron Armory, Roseville avenue, Newark, on February 24, is advanced to February 17 in order to permit of Captain Rockwell's attendance.

PLAN TO ADVERTISE CITY'S ADVANTAGES

That Plainfield will be well advertised during the annual convention of the New Jersey Letter Carriers' Association, on May 30, was evident from the plans presented at the meeting of the Business Men's Association last night. Albert La Rock, the manager appointed by the Citizens' Committee to assist in the publication of a souvenir book designed to boost Plainfield's advantages as a city for home and business purposes, submitted a lengthy communication to the association embodying his outline of work, and also personally explained the object of such an issue. Mr. La Rock and A. E. Force both voiced the opinion that it would be the greatest advertising medium that Plainfield has ever had.

The souvenir book will in many respects resemble the publication of the Charter Day Committee, and will contain articles written by various wellknown citizens, including Mayor Leighton Calkins, City Treasurer William F. Arnold, William G. Besler and others. It is the aim of the committee to have 3,000 of the books published for dirtribution, an eight-page program being included in this edition. The committee then proposes to have 3,000 or more printed without the program, and a large number of these have already been contracted for. The various civic organizations and commercial bodies in the city will beapproached for in the city will be approached for the municipality. It is also proposed to set aside a liberal number for distribution among visiting letter carriers.

There will be approximately 2,000 mail carriers in Plainfield during the convention, about 1,000 of which will come from New York city as special guests. The metropolitan corps will bring its own band of forty pieces and, together with the 700 New Jersey carriers, will parade through the principal streets of the city. The delegates will be entertained in Plainfield by a Citizen's Committee, with funds raised through the elaborate souvenir edition and voluntary contributions.

At last night's meeting the Plainfield letter carriers came in for considerable commendation voiced by Mr. Force and other speakers, who explained the Federal law which prohibits carriers from soliciting funds to support an affair of this kind. The speakers classed the mailmen as a type of public servants who rarely seek public aid in any of their endeavors, and urged the association to do all it could to place the convention before the public in the right light, and to boost the advertising end of it as much as possible.

"MRS. JARLEY'S WAX WORKS" ENJOYED BY ENDEAVORERS

Christian Endeavorers from Plainfield and vicinity to the number of about one hundred enjoyed a social at Trinity Reformed church last night. A farce in one act entitled "Mrs. Jarley's Wax Works," caused much laughter and was well received. The Dutch Arms orchestra furnished music during the evening. Games and a social time followed after which refreshments were served by the social committee.

$27,061,000,000 SPENT IN EUROPE

After Eighteen Months No Decisive Blow Has Been Struck.

LOSS ABOUT 15,000,000 MEN

This, of Course, Includes Those Killed, Wounded and Prisoners—Bankruptcy Menaces Great Nations Engaged in Struggle—Neither Side Will Consider Peace.

The European war has lasted eighteen months—the blackest eighteen months known to the modern world!

What has been accomplished?

No European country has been benefited, nor has human liberty advanced at any point, nor has any great moral principle triumphed in any place or on any battlefield.

The net result has been 2,990,000 men in the very prime of life killed, more than 2,200,000 made prisoners and more than 9,830,000 wounded and maimed, many crippled for life.

This measureless bloodshed and suffering, making millions widows and many more millions orphans, have been the heaviest toll of the war.

Next, the money loss—$10,862,000,000 borrowed for war by Germany, Austria and Hungary; $16,190,000,000 borrowed for war by France, England, Russia and Italy; a grand total of $27,061,000,000 spent in making war.

Waste of Money Stupendous.

The mind cannot grasp such stupendous figures or such wastage. It means twenty-seven times the total national debt of the United States incurred in 139 years of history, including five wars.

It means a sum equal to the entire savings or increase in capital of the entire world for ten years.

It means a debt of about $300 for every family in all belligerent countries—more than the total income of a year of every European peasant family or unskilled laborer in Europe.

It means tax burdens for this generation and for generations yet unborn that will make the burdens of life greater than ever before for all.

Economic Crash at Hand.

In short, as Mr. Diamant, an expert in foreign exchange, wrote, bankruptcy is so menacing in all the warring countries that "if political economy does not soon make an end of the war the war will make an end of political economy."

What has been accomplished?

The allies have failed utterly to penetrate or even seriously to weaken Germany.

Germany has failed utterly to strike a decisive blow at any of her four chief enemies.

The Franco-Prussian war was fought in forty-seven days, when the French army surrendered at Sedan and the Emperor Napoleon was made prisoner.

Now, at the end of 547 days, there are two battle lines, 1,950 miles long, deadlocked at every point. Nowhere a decision. All the nations bleeding to death, none able to strike a decisive blow.

The Germans have shown a power of organization at home and a military power in the field that the combined armies of Britain, France, Russia and Italy cannot break.

England has the command of the sea. And in all history sea power has never yet been beaten.

Will Not Think of Peace.

"Bulldog" England has lost many battles in 200 years, but has never acknowledged a defeat. Brave France has shown a gallantry, a unity and, above all, a steadiness and endurance in this war worthy of her noblest traditions. Both nations are unwilling even to discuss peace at the present moment, because as long as Germany holds in her armed possession nearly four-tenths of industrial France, nearly all Belgium, Servia and Poland and part of the richest industrial section of Russia she is in better position to negotiate for peace than England, France or Russia.

"MOTHER" CHANGES HIS MIND

Youth in Recruiting Office Hears Band Playing Song and Leaves.

When the sweet strains of the song "Mother" played by a street piano wafted through windows kept wide open because of the balmy, springlike weather of the last few days a Cumberland (Md.) recruit for the United States marine corps burst into tears and left the recruiting station of the "sea soldiers" in the custom house building, Baltimore.

The recruit had not yet been enlisted, and the recruiting officers made no effort to prevent his leaving.

"The sound of a bursting shell in battle might have conveyed the same sort of idea to that young fellow, and it is perhaps just as well," remarked one of the recruiting sergeants when the recruit motherward bound left the office.

His House Was Stolen.

Pete Petroniky of Indiana Harbor, Ind., rented his little cottage to his friend Andy Sendke. Then he went to Chicago. When he came back a month later he was unable to find his house or any trace of it or the trees around it. The police say the house has been stolen.

Y. W. C. A. MILESTONES OR CONTRASTING YEARS

FORTY YEARS AGO.
1876—1886.

Forty years ago gymnasium work of today was unknown, but calisthenics—which was more training in grace of movement than in healthful bodily vigor—was first taught in 1877 by a boarder in the Boston boarding home.

In 1884, Boston opened the first Association gymnasium for women in America in their building on Berkeley street.

Boston led the country in establishing cooking classes and domestic training in 1879.

In 1883, Boston gave the first series of emergency lectures.

Heretofore there had been practically unrelated local Associations. In 1884, State Associations made up of the various local Associations were formed in Michigan, Ohio and Iowa.

TODAY.
February 8-14, 1916.

There are today 58,462 members enrolled in classes of the physical education department.

Today 197 Associations have well equipped gymnasiums.

Cooking class members now number 8,623 in 125 Associations.

In 1915, hundreds of certificates were issued for examinations passed in the Red Cross Manual and First Aid classes.

The United States is now organized into eleven fields, each field grouping several states.

A REAL CANDIDATE.

The platform of the Hon. Joseph S. Frelinghuysen as a candidate for United States Senator is one that all Republicans in the State of New Jersey can indorse. Mr. Frelinghuysen speaks frankly on most of the important issues of the day and his courageous individuality is shown in his whole-hearted advocacy of a policy of preparedness for the nation, which has been commonly accepted as a pet platform of Wilson's. Senator Frelinghuysen has been in public life for some time and everything in his record, both as an official and a citizen, indicates that he will conscientiously carry out every thought advanced in his announcement. He is one of the strongest figures before the people of New Jersey—a descendant of a long line of illustrious ancestors who has added to the honor of the name and who has arrived at his present position of honor entirely through his own efforts. As a Senator from Somerset county, as president of the State Board of Agriculture and president of the State Board of Education he has been aggressive in reforms and successful in almost every movement he has undertaken. He makes every moment of his time count, throwing every ounce of his power into any matter at hand, whether it be business, politics or sport, and as he is now launched on a campaign for the United States Senate he will be a potent factor in all State matters until the result is finally determined.

BOYS AS CRIMINALS.

Within the last week ten or more boys have been arrested and brought before the police court in Asbury Park charged with stealing. The boys admitted, in most instances, they had been taking away copper, brass and all kinds of metal from different houses and places in the city and had disposed of them to junk dealers. The junk dealers protest they did not know the metal was stolen. That the practise should become so general and popular as to corrupt so many young boys in Asbury Park shows to what it may extend if the rewards are made sufficiently alluring. We are of the opinion the junk men who countenance and encourage this sort of petty theft and participate in the sale of the loot can be prosecuted under existing laws if the police exert themselves. That ten boys are rounded up in a single week in Asbury Park is a sad commentary on the quality of the rising generation. —Asbury Park Press.

In resigning from his pastorate in New York city that he may help "straighten out the world's present tangle" and "aid in reducing the burden of the war," the Rev. Charles A. Eaton is preparing to perform a real service for the world. Whether or not his work is to be done at a sacrifice is of little moment. It is enough that he leaves a place of influence and position to wage an independent campaign for the betterment of a people sorely in need of leaders who have not come to the front through political activity. Dr. Eaton is well qualified for the task he has undertaken. Leadership is his birthright. He is mentally and physically equipped for a campaign in favor of a new Christianity for the nation and the world and he is the type of man that would naturally be selected for such a work. Dr. Eaton's ambition as outlined in his sermon Sunday morning is the Godlike vision of a dreamer, but he is a man of action and he will make of it a reality if human intelligence and effort is capable of the accomplishment.

"A 585 pound Georgia man is running for Congress," says a news article. "Running" seems just a little stretch of the imagination; waddling would come nearer an accurate use of English.—Memphis Commercial-Appeal.

Whatever he is doing he has a pretty good chancce of being elected for this is Georgia's idea of a great man.

Speaker Clark yesterday took the floor when a preparedness bill was presented to Congress and demanded some authentic information in regard to the military affairs of the nation. Strange to relate his questions went unanswered. With all our expert advocates of preparedness we have no experts on how to prepare.

U. S. ASTOR THEATRE

Charles Richman, a prime favorite among Plainfield theatre-goers, appeared last night for the first time at the U. S. Astor Theatre in the engrossing Vitagraph drama, "The Heights of Hazard." It shows the talented Mr. Richman at his artistic best, and the supporting cast, too, is quite up to the regular high Vitagraph standard of excellence. "The Heights of Hazard" contains thrill after thrill, and really is one of the most gripping subjects projected on the Astor screen this season. Mr. Richman, of course, dominates the action throughout. Wednesday and Thursday the principal attraction at the Astor will be "The Girl of Yesterday," starring Mary Pickford. As the Astor is the only theatre in Plainfield where Little Mary may be seen on the screen, crowded houses are anticipated those days. Friday and Saturday Marie Doro, another favorite among Plainfielders, will appear in the "White Pearl," a very interesting and instructive Paramount production.

NEW YORK AMUSEMENTS.

Every week seems like a holiday period at the Hippodrome, where Charles Dillingham's joyous pageant of delight amuses crowds twice daily, but this week, which ends with Lincoln's Birthday, will be a particularly active one. Several large theatre parties will adde to the gaiety, with the employes of the American Telephone and Telegraph Company and the Guarantee Trust Company being entertained Friday night. R. H. Burnside secured a fine effect this past week by indicating the movements of President Wilson in the Ballet of the States. Each night the girls representing the State in which the Chief Executive was being entertained carried tiny American flags. One night it was the Wisconsin girls, then those from Iowa, another night the Illinois girls, Kansas, etc. Seats are now on sale to March 18, including those for St. Patric's Day.

His style seemed on a different plan

Join in the pleasures of the dance!"
He said, "I don't know how."

"Perchance you play or maybe sing,
Or toy with cards or dice."
Said he, "I never do a thing
That hits of petty vice.

Yet, moping, I complain;
It is a lonely thing to be Completely safe and sane!"

"My kid said the funniest thing the other day. You oughta use it."

A Safety First Sermon That is Going the Rounds.

WHO AM I?

I am more powerful than the combined armies of the world.

I am more deadly than bullets, and I have wrecked more homes than the mightiest of siege guns.

I steal in the United States alone over $300,000,000 each year.

I spare no one, and find my victims among the rich and poor alike; the young and the old; the strong and the weak; widows and orphans know me.

I massacre thousands upon thousands of wage-earners in a year.

I lurk in unseen places and do most of my work silently. You are warned against me but you heed not.

I am relentless. I am everywhere; in the home, on the street, in the factory, at railroad crossings and on the sea.

I bring sickness, degradation and death, and yet few seek to avoid me.

I destroy, crush and maim; I give nothing, but take all.

I am your worst enemy.

I am carelessness.

TWO ARRESTED FOR A MURDER IN OHIO

Italians Living at Bound Brook Charged With Killing for Robbery.

Somerville, February 8.—Patrolman Stanley Branton, of Bound Brook, and County Detective George C. Toten Saturday night arrested Sclick Nyznyska and John Czuboy at the home of Trofila Szlayka, in Bound Brook, on a charge of murder. The men are wanted in Trumball, O., for killing S. S. Parker there on the night of January 29. One admits that he was in Ohio at the time of the crime, but the other denies he has been out of New Jersey for months. Both men had plenty of money, and Nyznyska and a young Italian girl at Bound Brook had made arrangements for their wedding, which was to have taken place this week. The men will be taken to Ohio for trial.

AND THE WORST IS YET TO COME--

NAWSTY WINTER WEATHER

- Proctor's Theatre -

The theatre-goers of Plainfield should be grateful to the management of Proctor's Theatre for providing such an exceptionally well-balanced and refined photoplay and vaudeville entertainment for such a small price of admission. Nowhere else can amusement seekers find a theatre presenting such an array of photoplays and high-class vaudeville at so low a price. Mr. Proctor has the advantage of a large number of theatres throughout the country and is thus enabled to divide his expenses over a larger territory. The far-famed Fox features also have been booked for every Wednesday and Thursday, and the wonderful serial, "The Red Circle," is also added for good measure. Not content with this stupendous photoplay entertainment, the management also presents a high-class vaudeville show, consisting of the same calibre of refined and entertaining acts as appear at all the "big time" houses throughout the country. In the near future the mammoth serial production now appearing in all of your favorite magazines, "The Strange Case of Mary Page," is soon to make its appearance at Proctor's. Henry B. Walthall, the hero of "The Birth of a Nation," and Edna Mayo, the fashion plate of filmdom, are co-stars. A big toy bazaar for the kiddies is provided by the management every Saturday matinee, when hundreds of presents are given away to the children absolutely free. Today, Jane Grey and Tully Marshall appear for the last time in that dainty Griffith Triangle offering, "Let Katy Do It," and is succeeded tomorrow and Thursday by Richard Mansfield's greatest success, "A Parisian Romance," the first of the Fox features to be presented here, and starring Cooper Cliffe and Dorothy Green. Sam Bernard will continue today and tomorrow to create storms of laughter by his comic capers in "The Great Pearl Tangle," a Keystone de luxe, spicy comedies.

But few persons will glorify the wars now raging in Europe, but many will grieve that so many Americans have permitted themselves to ape European manners and customs, to explore foreign countries, remaining ignorant as to the beauties of our own America. How many of the effete East will view the mighty Mississippi for the first time, the magnificent Rockies with their canons and peaks? It is estimated that eight million Americans will view the wonders of the West this year. When one stops to consider that at least $500,000,000.00 will be spent by these sightseers, it will be seen where the European war is beneficial not only in a pecuniary way, but also from an educational viewpoint.

To accomodate this increased travel, the Pullman Company has ordered two thousand additional sleeping cars. To travel comfortably is the one great desire of all Americans. In these days, private cars are more numerous than ever before. Al. G. Field, the minstrel manager, has received from the builder a splendidly constructed train for the accommodation of his company on their tours. Sleeping, dining and baggage cars go to make up the train. Furnished with every safety appliance and all modern conveniences, they will compare with any privately-owned cars.

Plainfield Theatre, Thursday (matinee and night), February 10.

∴ Plainfield Theatre ∴

Beef Trust Billy Watson and his Big Girlie Show is the title of the attraction billed for appearance at the Plainfield Theatre on Monday (matinee and night), February 14, and patrons of this popular amusement palace are assured of a treat by witnessing the coming performance of the above well-known comedian and an exceptionally strong supporting company, including such well-known artists as Frank Bramard, Jean Leighton, Margaret Newell, Kathryn Pearl, Annette Walker, Frankie Farrell, Grace Sachs, Billy Swan and other well-known stars of the burlesque profession. The attraction also boasts of a large and well-drilled chorus, whose members display a wealth of costumes and add materially to the success of the performance by their clever singing and dancing. The vehicle used for amusement purposes are a new edition of "Krausmeyer's Alley," and "The Bashful Venus." Taken in its entirety, Beef Trust Billy Watson and his big Girlie Show affords amusement to the higher class patrons and is strictly in the marked improvement scored in burlesque attractions since the Columbia Amusement Company became a ruling factor. Something unique in attractions is bound to please the patrons of the Plainfield Theatre as it has done everywhere else.

The big feature act for the first bill of the week at the Plainfield Theatre will be "A Chinese Cabaret," carrying fifteen people and a whole carload of scenery. In addition to plenty of comedy, songs and chatter in unique settings, the act is especially attractive because of the fact that it offers the quickest change of scenery attempted on the stage today. The change comes in the shift from a Chinese laundry to a Chinese restaurant. The big company gives a forty-five minutes' sketch of high and low life in Chinatown.

Wednesday night will be the usual feature entertainment in the way of awarding prizes to lucky holders of seats. The oriental atmosphere will be carried out with a Japanese effect and a goodly number of handsome prizes have been purchased for the evening.

Other acts on the bill are Turner and Grace, with a juggling pantomime specialty; Raymo and Hoyt, comedians; Roberts and Fulton in "Some Old Maid," and Loretta Taylor and company in "Who's Boss?"

In addition to the vaudeville bill, there will be the usual offering of photo-plays, carrying out the new policy of the Plainfield—in short,

Billy Watson and His "Beef Trust" at the Plainfield Theatre, Monday, Matinee and Night, Feb. 14.

CALLED GERMANY'S GREATEST DIPLOMAT

Prince von Bulow.

This is a new picture of Prince von Bulow, Germany's greatest diplomat, taken during his recent visit to Lucerne, where he consulted with representatives of other powers regarding peace. As German ambassador to Italy during the last months of 1914 and early 1915, Prince von Bulow was assigned the difficult task of keeping that power out of the war. He was successful for many months.

The King and the Creatures.

Daddy's Bedtime Story — How a King of The Philippines Lost His Diamond Ring.

"I HAVE told you stories about almost every country under the sun," daddy said when two children climbed on his lap, "and now I'll tell you one about the Philippine Islands, which, you know, belong to the United States." Jack and Evelyn wiggled with joy, and daddy went on: "In the Philippines there seem to be millions and millions of fireflies. When little children see them twinkling through the evening air they ask their daddies, 'Where do the fireflies get their lanterns?' And then their daddies tell them how in this story:

"Many, many years ago, before men came to live on these islands, there was a king who was very big and very wise and very proud. All the little creatures were afraid of him, and when he gave a command they all obeyed him at once. Some even said that if anybody refused to do his bidding off came a head.

"Now, this king had a beautiful diamond ring. He was so proud of it that he never sat upon his throne without twirling it to make it sparkle. But one day he glanced down at his finger—and 'twas gone! He flew into a dreadful temper and turned his jewel box upside down. But he could not find his ring.

"Then he grew terribly cross. He drew his kingly robes around him and settled his crown firmly upon his head. He ordered every little creature on the islands to come before him. And they were so afraid about their heads that every single one came. Then he stood up on his throne and looked so big and wise and proud that all the little creatures trembled even before he spoke.

"'My diamond ring is lost,' he began terribly. 'I have looked for it in my jewel box and on my finger, where it belongs, but I cannot find it.' He paused and then thundered, 'It must be found!' And all the little creatures shivered again.

"He waited for them to understand and then added, 'To the one who finds it'—and they all stood breathless to listen—'I will grant any favor he may ask.' Again they breathed. 'Now go and search!' he shouted.

"And away all the little creatures scampered—butterflies, mice, beetles, snakes and birds. The beautiful little black and green butterflies flew up to search among the bushes and tall grasses that grow in the Philippine swamps. An army of mice scampered off to hunt through mountains of rice kernels piled high as a house. The beetles began to dig through the barks of beautiful palm and date trees. Little snakes wiggled off through the green mosses, and lovely hued birds sailed off to search the clouds." Then daddy looked at the clock.

Marrying for Money

BY MRS. EVA LEONARD

Ortrude Townsend's Defeat Leaves Her in Bad Humor.

Ortrude looked in vain for any sign of the portable garage she had ordered when she drove up to the house, and Mrs. Tupper assured her no one had been there.

She telephoned but remembered that it was after business hours when she got no answer to her call.

"That is like the business of a little town," she snapped and resigned herself to a drive to the garage at the foot of the street.

As she was walking slowly back through the warm twilight Jacob overtook her.

"I hope you were not kept waiting long for your machine," he began pleasantly. "The girls were gone a little longer than they expected; they had a lovely time."

Ortrude looked straight ahead and made no reply.

"Marian thinks you allowed her the privilege of riding this afternoon. I hope you will not correct the impression. There is so much need of oil in the running gear of our family machine." Still Ortrude said nothing.

"Another thing," continued Jacob after a pause to give her an opportunity to reply, "I countermanded your order for a portable garage."

"You did?" The answer was sharp and quick this time. "That was thoughtful of you to say the least." There was withering sarcasm in her tone.

"I wonder that you were willing to have so cheap an affair on the place. It would not be in keeping with anything else. You are usually a stickler for looks."

"There are some things that I prize more than looks. I would know when the machine was out of the garage was in sight. I would not be humiliated by having to be told that you had ordered me to wait till your daughter returned before I took my ride. I told you plainly that I intended to ride this afternoon."

"Well, you had your ride, though you do not seem to have been put in a very good frame of mind by it. There is no use going over this thing again; once was unpleasant enough. As long as you forced me to get this machine when you knew I could not afford it, I intend that other members of the family shall enjoy it besides yourself." There was a ring in her husband's voice that she had not heard recently. She wondered what it meant.

The two walked along in silence for a time, then Ortrude asked:

"Did Mr. Giles call up about the garage or how did you know about it?"

"No, Mrs. Tupper called up to know where it was to be placed."

"I told her distinctly, and left a pole on the ground where the front was to come." Ortrude showed signs of increasing anger.

"The dog had dragged the pole away," was Jacob's laconic answer.

A contemptuous snort was followed by silence. She turned and looked searchingly at her husband.

"Is Tupper in your employ as a spy upon my actions? The whole family are in league against me, and you are with them. Are you trying to make my life a burden to me?"

"God forbid, Ortrude. Why will you insist on such senseless accusations? Can't you be made to believe that I mean well by you? If you could only come to some sort of living agreement. I am willing to do anything in reason to make you happy. I can't neglect my children's happiness and well being, and no right minded woman would want me to."

"Oh, don't be so beastly virtuous. You really are more tiresome than is necessary when you take that role." Ortrude was usually self controlled, but she realized that she had been defeated and it was too much for her good humor.

They entered the house in constrained silence.

NEWS AND VIEWS
Conducted by THE W. C. T. U.

The old notions we have entertained concerning the "wild and woolly West" must be revised, for in the greater part of the section of the country so designated the saloons closed their doors for the last time on the stroke of midnight, December 31, and on the morning of January 1 the sun rose on an almost wholly dry west. Even in Butte, Montana, sentiment must have changed, for those who knew say that the city would go dry of itself should prohibition come to a vote. Certainly the contingent from that old-time "city of the slums" in the recent Montana legislature stood largely for the best things.

Not only are the people who lean our way pondering over the prohibition problem, but the saloon-keepers, also, seem desirous of hearing both sides of the question. Never has this writer had in her audiences so many representatives of the traffic as in Montana. Sometimes, night after night, every saloon in a town has been represented. Not infrequently these men have spoken right out in meeting, and sometimes in not especially respectful tones. Usually, however, they have been among the most earnest listeners. The conditions they face are, to them, grave ones, and they mean to understand the fortifications of the enemy.

From many private conversations with them it is clear that they all agree that the life of the saloon is short and, for the most part, that the state is in the final battle. More than once officials of liquor concerns have been present and seen to take notes nO several occasions they have answered arguments through the press paying for the space at advertising rates. The fact that they consider an answer needful is proof that our ammunition hurts and the weaknes of their contention helps our cause.

A saloon-keeper once came out into the street and, accosting me, said with very evident wrath: "They say you women are going to put all of the saloons out of Montana." I answered, "Yes, that is our intention." "Do you think you can do it?" he asked. "Oh, yes, we are sure of it," I answered. "And you will ruin my business?" "Yes, sir." Pointing to his saloon near by, he voiced the great question that agitates these men not only in Montana but all over the nation.

"You see that building," he said "That is all I have in the world. I worked hard to build and equip it There I earn the food and clothing for my wife and babies. You women say you are going to put me out of business. That will ruin my property. How am I to support my family?" I thought of the many families that his business was making hungry and unhappy, but I said nothing of this, for there was to me pathos in his plea and to him it was a very real problem. In the seven states that recently went dry there are thousands that meet the same conditions. They are cast adrift upon a wholly uncharted sea and they see nothing beyond.

I answered: "My friend, when Montana goes dry, and as sure as you and I live Montana is going dry, that lot will remain just where it is. Unless there is a fire, and against that you can continue to protect your property by iinsurance as you are doing now, your building will remain where it is. Just lower your bar and make a counter of it. Put in some more windows, at a slight expense and sell tea, coffee, sugar, flour shoes—any commodity—to the very same people who patronize you now and receive in exchange the same kind of dollars. Perhaps, my friend you have not thought that Mr. Brown over there who now comes to your place nightly and spends his money may come in and buy a pair of shoes for his little Mary, who sadly needs them. This purchase on his part will not unfit him to earn another day's wage tomorrow to buy something needful for his small son, Jimmie And then perhaps he will come in the next night and buy a sack of flour, taking it home to his wife to use in making bread. As for Mr Brown himself, he will go to bed and get a good night's sleep.

A complete story of campaigning in Montana would read like a romance. The varied industries and large population of the state make it extremely perplexing (though very interesting) territory in which to work. With its gold, silver, copper, iron and coal mines, the state has mining territory as large as Pennsylvania. It has also in its mines precious stones, notably the Yogi sapphire.

OLD-TIME COLD CURE—DRINK TEA!

Get a small package of Hamburg Breast Tea, or as the German folks call it, "Hamburger Brust Thee," at any pharmacy. Take a tablespoonful of the tea, put a cup of boiling water upon it, pour through a sieve and drink a teacup full at any time. It loosens the bowels, thus breaking a cold and cure grip, as it opens the pores, relieving congestion. Also is the most effective way to break a cold at once.

It is inexpensive and entirely vegetable, therefore harmless.—Adv.

Three streams empty into the street, according to Captain Peterson, and a large amount of water is poured into it through Fanwood Cut. He told of numerous dates when residents along the street were unable to get to their homes, and declared that during heavy rains those living there were forced to ride the street cars to Plainfield and board trains here because they were unable to get to the Netherwood station. The report of the district court clerk, showing a balance of $166.90, was received and ordered filed.

Chairman Hylan, of the City Hall building committee, reported progress on the work before that body, and asked that members meet with Mayor Calkins after the Council meeting.

The bid of the Courier-News of $246 for the printing of 1,000 copies of the annual municipal report was accepted.

BASEBALL MOGULS DEFER ELECTION

City League Men Decide to Have Circuit Again This Year.

TWO TEAMS UNDECIDED

Hope Not Represented, and Saurer Mills Not Have Team—To Build a Grandstand at Netherwood—Duncan Patterson Manager of Baptists.

Plainfield will have a baseball league composed of city teams again this year. That much was decided at last night's reorganization meeting of the City Baseball League, representatives of five of the six teams that comprised the league last year gathering in the Daily Press offices to make plans for the 1916 season.

Election of officers and other business usually transacted at the annual meeting, was deferred until Wednesday night, February 16, when the league will hold its next meeting in the new home of the Daily Press, at 195 North avenue.

Stray pieces of baseball gossip picked up at the confab included the information that Eddie Bergen, former Per and Saurer catcher, will play with the Clinton Avenues this year; that the Netherwood club intends to erect a grandstand on its field; that Dan Randolph will not be affiliated with the First Baptist team, which will be managed by Duncan Patterson; and that Pop Martin is going to bat higher than Benny Kauff.

Hope Chapel was not represented at the meeting, but it is believed the Fourth street boys will be on deck again this summer. The Saurer men also reported that it was not a certainty that Saurer would have a nine this season. Manager Jones, of the Plainfield A. A., was on hand to take a franchise in the league from any club that wanted to drop out.

The delegates present were John Coughlan, of the champion Netherwood club; Tom Apgar, of Clinton Avenue; James Monahan, of the Tabs; Britt Martin, of Saurer; and Dan Randolph, of First Baptist.

One thing discussed at the meeting was the advisability of having not more than three fields for the league encounters, so that each field will be the scene of a game every Saturday. Sentiment seems to be in favor of selecting the three best diamonds, and if this plan is followed, the Tabs' field out Woodland avenue will not be used, as it is claimed it is located too far away from the center of the city. The fields which will probably be used are the Netherwoods' Emerson avenue grounds, the soccer field in South Second street, and the Myrtle avenue field.

BARRINGER SWIMMERS WIN IN P. H. S. TANK

Only First Places Locals Get Are in Dive and 100-Yard Race.

Plainfield High School's swimming team received another trimming yesterday afternoon in the local school tank, the Barringer team from Newark getting a 35 to 18 verdict. P. H. S. secured only two firsts out of the six events, one in the dive and the other in the 100-yard swim.

The form displayed by Brownlee in the dives earned him first place by quite a margin, and after swimming below form in two other events, Brower the local captain, came through in the 100-yard swim and hit the tape with several yards to spare. Barringer men captured first place in the relay, plunge, 40-yard and 20-yard swims.

The judges in the dives were: Patch, P. H. S., and Pritchard, B. H. S. In the other events, Parvin, Allen, Brownlee and Searles were the judges.

The summary:

160-yard relay race—Won by Barringer (Barling, Barney, Gregory, Williamson); Plainfield (Johnson, Fullerton, Snyder, Brower). Wednesday—Princeton vs. Cornell.

Yale got a little nearer to the lead in the P. H. S. College League basketball race yesterday afternoon by handing Harvard a handy trimming, 24 to 13. Columbia emerged from the cellar for the first time since the league started, and by so doing pushed Princeton into the hole by beating the Tigers, 13 to 2. Both of the winning teams had easy times gaining the verdict.

Yale started in scoring as soon as the whistle blew, and by the end of the half had the game practically won, but kept right on getting points in the second session. Clarkson was again responsible for the majority of the winner' score. Fawcett did good work for the losers for a few minutes at a time, but could not win the game by himself.

Columbia is putting up a pretty good game, now that it has a strengthened line-up, and had little trouble in defeating Princeton, which is the weakest aggregation in the league. After losing four straight games, the Columbias are beginning to climb toward the top of the heap, and near the finish will likely be fighting for an upper berth. They held Princeton to one basket in the first half and did not allow them to score at all in the second session.

The scoring was pretty well distributed among the winners, with Keating leading, and the lone Princeton tally was made by McDonough on a long shot from guard.

BURMA'S COLOSSAL BUDDHA.

This Statue Is Said to Be the Largest in the World.

The largest monument of the human form existing in the east today, if not in the world, is the great reclining statue of Buddha near Pegu, in Burma, around which the government erected a building with lattice steel pillars to protect it from the elements. This colossus was brought to light during the construction of the railway that runs northeast from Rangoon to Mandalay.

While the permanent way was being banked up to protect the lines from occasional floods the engineer in charge required for the purpose of his work a harder ballast than the alluvial deposit over which the line was running could give him. Less than a mile away was a tree clad mound, and here, it was thought, suitable material might be found. The task of clearing away some of the trees took but an hour or so, and then shafts were sunk to find the needed stone. Before the diggers had gone down more than a yard they struck an enormous and fairly preserved figure of Gautama.

In actual length the statue is 180 feet and fifty feet high at the shoulder. The figure and its pedestal are of brick, covered with plaster. Since its discovery the plaster has been removed and painted over, the lox at the head and the finger nails gilded and the headdress decorated with glass jewels. The statue is thought to be about 500 years old, but no one knows its history, no reference whatever being made to it in Burmese legends or traditions.—Wide World Magazine.

Ruddy Mars.

There seems to have been no reason other than its suggestive color for the selection of the planet Mars as the celestial symbol of the war god. Yet it was universally so regarded in ancient times.

If we could tell why Mars is red we might hit upon the whole secret of that strange planet. Its color is probably due to some peculiar quality of its soil. It may be principally composed of material resembling our red sandstone, or it may be stained red by an abundance of iron in its rocks.

Suits to a T.

The clause "It suits to a T," meaning it fits exactly, is as old as the familiar instrument, the T square or T rule (so called from its resemblance to the letter T), used by mechanics and draftsmen for making angles true and for obtaining perpendiculars. The expression was in common use in the time of Dr. Johnson, who is quoted by Boswell as saying of Warburton, "You see they have fitted him to a T."

The Sophomores put up a great scrap in the P. H. S. Interclass League yesterday in an effort to break the tie with the Juniors and jump in the lead, but the third year men spurted and won, 43 to 30. The Sophomores kept trailing about two points behind until a few minutes before the end of the second half, when the Juniors started dropping in basket after basket.

Noonan, who was high scorer for the Juniors, started off the scoring, and nearly every one then took a hand in it, Smith being the only man on the floor not to register a point. Daniels played his first game for the winners, and caged five baskets from all angles, while Alpaugh, although playing guard, was all over the court and did quite some tallying on his own account. CHANGED IRON TO COPPER.

Curious Transformation Wrought by Nature's Alchemy.

Not so very long ago a curious find was made in one of the copper mines at El Cobre, Cuba. These mines, once among the richest in the world, were abandoned for a long time on account of the insurrections in Cuba against the Spanish rule. In 1868 the coal supply was cut off by the insurgents, and consequently pumping became impossible, and the mines became filled with water.

After the Spanish war an American company bought the mines and proceeded to pump out the water. In one of the shafts thus made accessible was found what once represented an iron pickax as well as some crowbars. The metal in these implements had, it is said, turned to copper. Extraordinary as this may appear, it can be scientifically explained.

The water, filtering through the rock and the copper ore veins dissolved some of the copper, the solution containing sulphate of copper. As soon as the sulphuric acid in this solution touched the iron it at once dissolved that metal and deposited copper in its place, for sulphuric acid has a greater affinity for iron than for copper. In the process certain impurities which had existed in the iron were left behind undisturbed. The wooden handle of the ax was in good condition. The metal was porous and irregular in shape, but in the general outline preserved the form of the ax, somewhat enlarged in size.—Washington Star.

Heads of Cerberus.

The most famous of dogs is Cerberus, who watches the entrance to Tartarus. He has three heads, but Hercules dragged him to earth, and Orpheus put him to sleep with his lyre. The original dog cakes were given to Cerberus by the sibyl who led Aeneas through hell. They were made of flour and seasoned with poppies and honey. He must have been an opium fiend, as the celestial drug is made from poppies. A "sop to Cerberus" was one of these cakes given to the monster by Greeks and Romans as a bribe to let them in without molestation.

THE COAL SITUATION

The coal situation is commanding serious attention. Many of our customers are anxiously asking our opinion from day to day.

We do not pretend to know more than the other fellow, but we do not intend that our customers shall suffer if there is a coal shortage, and we are therefore keeping our bunkers filled to overflowing with the domestic sizes of coal.

This is only another evidence of our desire and ability to serve our patrons.

GIRLS OF PAST AND PRESENT DAY

Y. W. C. A. to Present a Pageant at the High School Auditorium.

A HISTORICAL PICTURE

Will Show the Growth and Development of Association Work for Fifty Years—Complete List of Those Who Will Take Part.

The second demonstration in connection with the jubilee celebration of the fifty years of Young Women's Christian Association work in America will be in the form of a pageant, to be given by the local association in the High School Auditorium, on Tuesday night, February 22. The presentation, which will begin at 8:15, will be absolutely free to the public. "Girls of Yesterday and Today" is the title of the production, which historically portrays the association life from its infancy up to the present day, namely, the beginnings, something of its growth through the years, and its present work. The pageant has but two speaking characters, "the "Girl of 1866," taken by Miss Marguerite Ritchie, and the "Girl of 1916," taken by Miss Hazel Selby. These characters will represent to the audience the needs of their day, interpreting the action on the stage, but do not themselves take part in it. The pageant consists of four parts: The prologue; scene one, beginnings; scene two, the procession of years; scene three, the present day.

In the prologue, the Girl of 1866 soilloquizes on the new and strange conditions which women of that day were facing, and to illustrate these conditions groups of girls beginning to earn their living cross the stage. Scene one, the beginnigs, is the answer to this need. A group of women, encouraged by the success of a Young Women's Christian Association in Boston, are meeting to organize a similar work. Scene three, the procession of years, reveals each year's service of the association and the growing membership of the association down to the present day. Scene three, the present day, suggests some of the activities of the association today and introduces some of the many kinds of girls who have a part in its life. At the close, the early scene is again shown, recalling the faith and courage of those who made possible the beginning of the association.

The following Y. W. C. A. members will take part in the pageant. Misses Marguerite Ritchie, Hazel Selby, Margaret Ewart, Mildred Brown, Kathleen Finckle, Marian Reed, Doris McCarrick, Marian Doughty, Estelle Homain, Ellen Doughty, Mary Heidt, Mary Sedlacek, Ruth Wean, Clara Bush, Mary Mair, Ruth Martin, Mildred Caleen, Dorothy Auten, Ethel Blazier, Cornelia, Christoferson, Emily Coriell, Marian Englehardt, Anne Smith, Clara Hallard, Virginia Sminck, Nettie Steiner, Mabel Townley, Emily Pleydell, Beatrice Gardner, Arline Chandler, Julia Garbera, Mary Hoinak, Hannah Lassen, Helen Bosko, Gladys Larrabee, Ethel Hazel, Gladys Albert, Delia McNnulty, Mary Hunt, Elizabeth and Marie Cruthers, Luga Fox, Viola Monday, Helen Roseberry, Alma Allegar, Bessie Gourlay, Caroline Baker, Myrtle Fedderman Alma Fisher, Mabel Douglas, Henrietta Englehardt, Marion Avery, Mary Doughty, Mary Heidloff, Florence Hicks, Alice Hicks, Evelyn Tennyson, Eleanor Sminck, Dorothy Dallas, Marian Chipman, Gertrude Mair, Ella Coddington, Corrine Tennyson, Flora Krausse, Georgia Ricker, D. WANT SCHOOL NAMED FOR LATE TEMPERANCE LEADER

The Board of Education at its monthly meeting last night fixed Monday night, February 28, as the time for receiving bids for the new East End school. It was announced that the plans have been approved and are now on file at the High School where they can be seen by contractors who wish to submit estimates. The cost of the building and furnishings will be about $30,000.

The Board received a communication from the local W. C. T. U. requesting that one of the new schools be named the Frances E. Willard in honor of the woman of that name who was for so many years national president of the union. The matter was referred to a committee. It will be the duty of the board to give a name to the Evergreen avenue school as well as the one in the East End of the city.

MAKE ZEPPELIN FIGHTERS HERE

London Depending on Plainfield for Protection From Air Raiders.

AIR EXPERT IS HEARD

He Tells of Modern Feature of Local Sloane-Day Tractor Which Makes It Most Formidable Anti-Dirigible Craft Known.

London, looming big, bulky and helpless in the night, when viewed from the fighting cabin of a Zeppelin, is depending upon Plainfield for the protection of her men, women and children from these murderous attacks from above, according to G. Douglas Wardrop, editor of the Aerial Age and one of the greatest aeronautical experts in all the world.

Mr. Wardrop spoke to members of the Men's Club, of the Crescent avenue Presbyterian church, at a dinner given last night in the church parlors. His subject was "Aircraft in War and Their Influence on Social Reconstruction," and he gave a complete history of the heavierlthan-air machine from its birth in the workshop of the Wright Brothers to its bloody records of today in the battlefields above the clouds that hover over Europe's struggling armies. He also told of a vision of the aeroplane of the future, and made his prophesy, not as a dreamer, but as a matter-of-fact engineer, when he said that only a few years would see every city, every town and every village in the United States a refuge for the air traveler and his machine, as every crossroads now holds a garage for the motorist.

The most interesting part of the talk of Mr. Wardrop was that in reference to the aerial fighting. He showed wonderful pictures of aeroplanes and dirigibles in action in Europe. Most of his hearers were astounded when he compared a modern Zeppelin with an ordinary city block, and they found that the great dirigible was longer than two full sections of an ordinary city street. Mr. Wardrop explained that there was little defense from the attacks of a Zeppelin because of its remarkable ability to rise quickly. This, he said, would soon be offset by an aeroplane that will rise almost as quickly. The French are experimenting with one that they hope will prove

LADIES' AUXILIARY INSTALLS OFFICERS

Entertainment and Supper Features of Affair Held at Saengerbund Hall.

The Ladies' Auxiliary of the Gesang Turn Verein installed officers in Saengerbund Hall last evening as follows: Mrs. Charles Schantz, president; Mrs. Herman Klinsman, vice-president; Mrs. Caroline Mentzenbach, financial recretary; Mrs. Carl Felber, corresponding secretary, and Mrs. Fred Frick, treasurer. The officers and the members of the singing section of the Gesang Turn Verein were present with their wives.

A pleasing program of entertainment was given in connection with the installation, the committee in charge being Mrs. Charles Meyer, Mrs. John Retzer, Mrs. George Richter, Mrs. Adolph Barry and Mrs. Leopold Kuntz. From 8 until 10 o'clock the time was pleasantly spent in bowling singing and playing cards. At 10 o'clock a sumptuous supper was served. The tables were handsomely decorated with flowers. The new officers, each of whom wore a carnation, had a table by themselves.

Following the supper, Mrs. Schantz, the new president, reviewed the work of the Gesang Turn Verein during the past year. She was followed by Henry Haurand, the treasurer of the society. Mr. Haurand spoke for President A. W. Hauck, Jr., who was detained at home by the illness of his wife, in behalf of the singing section and the society iin general. He lauded the members of the auxiliary for the work which they had done during the past year. August Wolf, the financial secretary, also made a speech of commendation, which was greatly appreciated by the women. After the speechmaking, there was dancing until 2 o'clock.

WATCHUNG TROOP ASS'N ORGANIZED

Civil Body of First Squadron, Cavalry, is Now Established Here.

OFFICERS ARE CHOSEN

Three Corporals Elected to Meet the Growth of the Troop—Captain Borden Names Trustees for Three Years.

The Watchung Troop Association, incorporated under the laws of the State of New Jersey, a civil organization of Troop D., N. G. N. J., was formally established last night at a meeting of the troop members at their headquarters, 1120 Putnam avenue. The trustees named in the articles of incorporation—Albert G. Borden, captain of the troop and ex-officio president of the Association, Lieutenant Daniel Runkle, Sargeants Brown Rolston, James M. Charles Arthur G. Ransome, Sherman Joost and Corporal Robert H. Cox—were selected to constitute the first boarc of governors.

After the adoption of the by-laws of the Association, three more corporals, demanded by the growth of the troop, were elected: Robert H. Cox, Marston Butfield, formerly lance-corporals, and William B. Tyler. Three new recruits: Warren Avkerman, Reginald Ralli and Lucius T. Coons—were then sworn in

The foundation of the Watchung Troop Association was the expression of a wish long entertained by the members of the troop that some appropriate method be found by which they could be brought together in other than a purely military way; and the purposes and activities of the Association are suggested by the committees named in the by-laws—the admission, athletic, finance, house, historical, recruiting, horse and rifle and pistol committee. According to the by-laws, two members of the Board of Governors, other than the president, hold office for three years, two for two and two for one. Captain Borden named Messrs. Runkle and Rolston for the first pair, Messrs. Charles and Ransome for the second, and Cox and Joost for the third.

At the first meeting of this Board of Governors, held at the end of the evening, Lieutenant Runkle was elected vice-president, Harvey Fisk, secretary, and William B. Tyler, treasurer.

The next drill of the troop will take place in Plainfield as usual on Thursday night, dismounted, but on the following Thursday a full mounted drill will be held at the Roseville armory in Newark.

The question of the name for the civil organization of the troop was a matter of a great deal of discussion; but everyone was satisfied with the name adopted, "Watchung Troop Association. It was felt that no other name could so appropriately and definitely stamp the troop with its locality as would the name of that range of mountains which is Plainfield's most conspicuous and most beautiful natural feature.

MANY FEATURES PLANNED FOR MASQUERADE BALL

A feature of the masquerade ball to be held Friday evening in the Hartridge auditorium, will be the music which will be furnished by two orchestras from New York city. The Eureka Quintet of colored artists is well-known here, as well as McKee's orchestra, both having played at many brilliant society functions in New York City. The ball will commence at 9:30, the committee in charge being composed of Messrs. Thomas M. Day, 3rd; Kenneth J. Browne, Roger D. Mellick, Murray Rushmore and John C. Martin. Late in the evening a supper will be served by a Newark caterer.

ESTABLISH OFFICE AT THE Y. M. C. A.

All Information About Biederwolf Revival to Be Obtained at the Association.

Headquarters for the coming Biederwolf meetings have now been established at the Y. M. C. A. An office has been fitted up in one of the rooms where all data regarding the campaign will be on file for ready reference by the several committees. The office will be open daily from 9 a. m. to 10 p. m. Mrs. Marion Coutts has been retained as office secretary and will be on duty from now until the close of the campaign, about June 1. Mrs. Coutts will be on duty from 10 a. m. to 6:30 p. m. every day except on Sunday. All correspondence may now be carried on from headquarters which should be a great convenience, especially to the different chairmen.

Organization of the various committees continues, those of the finance, building, press, entertainment, music and canvassing being completed. The preparatory work of a number of these committees in itself will be worth while, especially that of the canvassing committee, of which Rev. E. C. Conover is chairman. This committee has divided the city and borough into seventeen districts, each one will be in charge of a committee, the head of which will be known as a supervisor, and this committee will take a religious census of each district, visiting every family within that territory. This will give the canvassing committee a vast amount of data, the permanent value of which is hard to estimate. This committee will meet next Sunday afternoon at the Y. M. C. A. building at 4 o'clock, when details regarding this census will be decided upon.

The first session of the class in personal evangelism, under the leadership of Rev. Dr. B. S. Hudson, chairman of the personal workers' committee, will be held at the Y. M. C. A. building, Monday evening, February 14, at 8 p. m. The purpose of this class is to train personal workers with special reference to the Biederwolf campaign, and the course will run from six to eight weeks, the sessions being held weekly.

A very important meeting of the devotional committee will be held at the Y. M. C. A. building tomorrow afternoon at 3:30 p. m. All memberrs of this committee are urged to attend.

SCOTCH EVANGELIST BEGINS A REVIVAL

Services to Be Held Every Night in the German Reformed Church.

Rev S. A. Renicks, the Scotch evangelist, preached his first of a series of sermons at the Germon Reformed church last night under the auspices of the Christian and Missionary Alliance. His topic was "Believers' Inheritance in Christ, showing what has been bequeathed to the children of God in the will of Christ, some of the things mentioned being peace, joy, friendship, power and rest. The message was inspiring and helpful.

Mr. Renicks has just closed a series of meetings at a Baptist church in New Britain, Pa. He is a man of wide experience in evangelistic work in this country, as well as abroad. For the past twenty-five years he has been conducting revivals in Scotland, Ireland, Canada and the United States, having crossed the Atlantic Ocean eleven times.

The evangelist will preach every night except Sunday, February 13, for at least ten or twelve nights. He will also speak at afternoon services on Friday and Sunday at 3:30 o'clock. His subject tonight will be "The Greatest Need of the Church." Those interested in the Biederwolf campaign are urged to hear this sermon.

KENNEL CLUB'S SHOW WILL BE HELD IN CO. K ARMORY

It was announced today that the Plainfield Kennel Club's open match show to be held on March 4 will be staged in Co. K's armory and the hall adjoining, the two halls which were used last week for the Co. K fair. This will give 7,200 square feet, more than ample room to provide for the number of dogs to be shown.

The premium lists will be mailed about February 21. The judges will probably be announced next week. More than fifty trophies have now been put up, and the club membership has gained nine more in the last ten days.

LONGER HOURS ON SATURDAY ONLY

A. E. Force Favors Change in Law Regarding Women Clerks for But One Day.

REASONS ARE GIVEN

Customers Demand That Girl Clerks Be Present to Wait on Them all Day Saturday and Change is Proposed Only for Accommodation.

Some misunderstanding has arisen among Plainfielders as to the remarks made by A. E. Force at the meeting of the Business Men's Association on Monday night, which were reported in last night's Daily Press. The headlines of the article created the impression that Mr. Force favored the repeal of a law now in force which forbids the working of female clerks for more than ten hours a day. Mr. Force's remarks were directed exclusively to the subject of working hours on Saturday, as was plainly stated further down in the article in question.

In discussing the matter this morning, Mr. Force stated that his clerks worked but eight a a half hours daily, except on Saturday, and that it was principally to accommodate his women customers, who wish women clerks in the store from 8:30 on Saturday morning until 10 in the evening, that he urged the necessity for a change in the law to apply to that day only. Mr. Force has never favored long hours of employment, except on Saturday, and then only because of the demands of the public that the store remain open until 10 o'clock. He was the first merchant to suggest that Plainfield stores try the plan of closing at noon on Saturdays during the summer months, as is done in some of the big city stores, but the plan did not meet with favor with a majority of the merchants when it was brought up in 1914. His is the only store in Plainfield that opens at 8:30 a. m. throughout the year.

In the same article it was stated that Herman Schwed, president of the organization, approved of Mr. Force's remarks. Mr. Schwed's statement also applied only to Saturday employment. While the mater was set forth clearly in the article in question as to the stand taken by the members of the Association, there was room for doubt as to the intentions as expressed in the headlines, and the Daily Press willingly prints this statement to set the members right.

It has been suggested that in order to comply with the present law that the women clerks be worked in shifts, that the store might remain open 8:30 a. m. to 10 p. m., but this has proven unsatisfactory, as if some of the clerks are required to come in at 8:30 they will necessarily have to go home at 8:30 in the evening, thus reducing the working force at the busiest time of the day. It has also been tried to grant them an hour extra time at their luncheon and supper hour to offset this, but by so doing it reduces the force until there is not sufficient help to care for the trade in these hours. It is true that extra employes could be engaged for Saturdays, but Mr. Force contends that such action would increase the cost of merchandise to the consumer.

VAN ARSDALE'S MID-WINTER SALE WILL START TOMORROW

Details for Van Arsdale's annual mid-winter shoe sale appear on another page of this issue, announcing that all discontinued lines of men's, women's, misses', children's, boys' and youths' shoes will be sold at reduced prices, as well as some regular lines in men's and women's classes. Van Arsdale's semi-annual clearance sales to make way for new stock are well known to Plainfielders, and many have been awaiting this opportunity to supply themselves with footwear.

The public in general is familiar with the manner in which these shoe sales are conducted by the well-known East Front street merchant, and it is needless to say that every effort will be made to satisfy customers in price and quality.

FUNERAL OF JOSEPH BOHL.

Many relatives and friends from this city, Newark and other places attended the funeral of Joseph A. Bohl, held this afternoon at his late residence at 437 West Fifth street. Rev. Dr. C. M. Anderson conducted the service. The floral tributes included a handsome set piece from the Borden Milk Company's Employes' Benefit Association, of which Mr. Bohl was a member. Six of the Borden route salesmen acted as pall bearers. Interment was made in Hillside cemetery.

INSPIRING TALKS FEATURE MEETING

Mid-winter Endeavor Conference of Local Union is Largely Attended.

METHODS DISCUSSED

J. T. Sproull, State President, A. C. Estes and J. Duer Randloph Are Among the Speakers—Netherwood Society Get Banner.

Inspiring addresses following a conference-supper were features of the mid-winter mass meeting of the local Endeavor Union held at the First Baptist church last night. There were more than 200 Endeavorers present and the meeting was marked by unusual interest and enthusiasm. The supper was served at 6:45 o'clock under the direction of Miss Dolly Bolsterle. There were nine tables in charge of the chairmen of the various committees and at each there was a discussion of methods.

Following the supper there were two-minute addresses from these heads of committees: Lookout, T. W. Day; prayer meeting, Miss Mabel Cronce; missionary, Miss Mary Mortimer; good citizenship, Clarence B. LaRue; music, Horace J. Martin; officers, Robert Butler; social, Miss Dolly Bolsterle; finance, George Hoagland, and publicity, Nathan S. Wardner. These proved helpful to the Endeavorers.

As president of the local union, Robert Butler was in charge of the meeting, and after the devotional exercises conducted by Rev. Dr. Philip B. Strong, there was the roll call of societies by Miss Hahn for the purpose of determining which one was to receive the attendance banner. The society from the Netherwood Reformed church with an attendance of 79 per cent. secured the banner.

Other high percentages were: Warren chapel, 76; First Presbyterian, Dunellen, 60; Wilson Memorial church, Watchung, 53; Evona chapel, 50, and First Presbyterian, Plainfield, 44. James Carson, of the Netherwood Reformed church society, accepted the banner on behalf of the society.

Then followed the addresses of the evening, J. Duer Randolph, of Elizabeth, the county president, being the first speaker. He said that it was just thirty-three years ago that he was converted in the First Baptist church during a revival conducted

WHITE GIRL HID IN ROOM OF NEGRO

Wayward Miss Shows Possibility of Reformation and is Sent to Good Home.

After having been missing from her home since Saturday afternoon, Victoria Vanarski, a seventeen-year-old Polish girl, was found late last night in the rear of the store of Walter Hankerson, colored, at 1016 East Second street. The negro who kept her from her parents for two days and nights and two young men who were with the girl during the time she was away," were arraigned in police court this morning and fined by Mayor Calkins.

The girl will be sent to the Good Shepherd home. She admitted that she alone was to blame for leaving home and visiting the store of the negro, and confessed to Chief Kiely and Mayor Calkins. They did not care to force a charge against her, and believed that she was still young enough for reformation, so through the kindly aid of Father Bogan they arranged for her reception at the Good Shepherd home and she will be sent there tomorrow and given a home until she is able to take care of herself in the world.

Joseph Santabaraba and John Hoffmaster, two Polish boys, were arrested for having taken the girl to the negro store. They were given a good lecture by Mayor Calkins and he fined each of them $15. The boys are to pay the fine in fifteen weeks, and each Saturday evening at 8 o'clock they must report at police headquarters with a dollar. This plan was put into use by the Mayor so that a watch could be kept on the boys.

Walter Hankerson, the negro store keeper, was fined $20. He was also charged with disorderly conduct. Because of the confessions of the girl, who admitted that she went to his house of her own free will, he was given a light fine and a warning.

The girl was located by Patrolman Wicht after her parents had been looking for her since Saturday. The father reported to the police Monday morning that his daughter had disappeared and the officer found her in the store of the negro while making his rounds late at night.

PREMIER VIOLINIST TO APPEAR TONIGHT

Mischa Elman to Be Heard in Concert at the Plainfield High School.

Holders of tickets for the Mischa Elman concert, to be given in the Plainfield High school auditorium tonight, under the auspices of the Cheerful Workers' Circle of Kings Daughters, for the benefit of the Day Nursery, are urged to be in their seats promptly at 8:15, when the first number on the program will be rendered.

Without a question, the greatest sensation in the violin world was the series of concerts given by Mischa Elman eight or nine years ago through Europe. A youth of 16 he was at that time, and he suddenly stood before the entire world as the most phenomenal genius of the violin that had been known in many generations. The young Russian boy simply swept audiences off their feet; critics threw up their hands at the magic command he had over his instruments and his listeners.

Interest in the recently organized Men's Forum, that holds Sunday afternoon meetings at the Parish House, is such that the Rev. J. Between seventy-five and a hundred dinners were served at the annual Southern supper held in the Parish House last night, under the auspices o' the Ladies' Aid Society, of the Methodist church, and the affair was one of the best ever conducted by the society. The gymnasium floor was filled with tables and attractive decorations added a pleasing effect. The entire supper was prepared in the Parish House kitchen by a number of women members, and another committee acted as waiters. Various ones present entertained on the piano during the evening, and the affair turned out to be a splendid success.

Tomorrow night the Parish House boys' junior basketball team will line up on the local court against a pick-up quinete from the Plainfield High School. Saturday night the girls' team will play the girls' team from the Westfield Methohdist church, while the boys' first team will play a Plainfield team styling themselves as the Delta Phis.

The Thursday Afternoon Bible Class will meet at the home of the Misses Kyte, of Martine avenue, when it is expected that Miss Elizabeth Mopkins, of the New York Bible Training School, will be present.

Miss Hazel Gardner entertained the members of the Tuesday Afternoon Bridge Club at her home, on Martine avenue, yesterday afternoon. Several tables were in play, and later 5 o'clock tea was served by the hostess.

IT'S SURPRISING

That So Many Plainfield People Fail To Recognize Kidney Weakness.

Are you a bad back victim?

Suffer twinges, headaches, dizzy spells?

Go to bed tired—get up tired?

It's surprising how few suspect the kidneys.

It's surprising how few know what to do.

Kidney trouble needs kidney treatment.

Doan's Kidney Pills are for the kidneys only.

Have convinced Plainfield people of their merit.

Here's a Plainfield case; Plainfield testimony.

Kidney sufferers hereabouts should read it.

Thomas Haskard, 927 South Second street, Plainfield, says: "Doan's Kidney Pills, procured at Randolph's Drug Store, have relieved me time and time again when I have been suffering from kidney trouble, and I owe a great deal to them. I never hesitate to endorse Doan's Kidney Pills, for I well know of their merit."

TWO LOCAL CONCERNS ARE INCORPORATED

Frederick Harrington Co. and C. R. Maltby Co. File Papers in Co. Clerk's Office.

Elizabeth, Feb. 9.—Two Plainfield business concerns filed papers of incorporation in the county clerk's office yesterday afternoon. They are The Frederic Harrington Company, a leather goods concern, and the C. R. Maltby Co., of New Jersey, which will deal in teas, coffees and spices. The Harrington Company has $100,000 capital, $60,000 of which is paid in. There are 1,000 shares at the par value of $100 each. Its offices are at 1840 North Front street, Plainfield. Its incorporators are Frederic Harrington and Ambrose P. Daly, both of Plainfield, and Joseph H. Delaney, of New York city.

The Maltby Company's office is room 304, Babcock building. Wilburt S. Maltby, one of the incorporators, is the agent. The capital is $20,000, of which $10,000 is paid in, and the shares, of which there are 200, are valued at $100 each. The other incorporators are Sophie L. Maltby, of Plainfield, and John W. Gathard, of Valley Stream, Long Island.

MAKING ZEPPELIN FIGHTERS

successful, and England has adopted the Sloane-Day tractor, made in Plainfield. Because of its peculiar ability to attain a high altitude quickly, it is the most formidable Zeppelin fighter in the world, said the expert, and it will soon be pitted against the big German craft that cross the Straits of Dover with their incendiary bombs to be dropped on London homes and business houses.

Mr. Wardrop bemoaned the neglect of American officers, who refused to provide army and navy with aeroplane auxiliaries. He said that the United States fleet recently manoeuvred in South Atlantic waters for weeks without the aid of a single aeroplane, while the British navy has more than 1,500 in daily use, and that United State coast artillery practiced for more than two months a short time ago without air 'scouts when news reports were proving daily that the artillery was almost obsolete in actual warfare unless aided by aeroplanes.

Mr. Wardrop called aeroplanes the "eyes" of the army and navy, and said that while a few years ago the vision of a navy or army commander was between six and eight miles, it had been increased to 150 miles by the development of heavier-than-air flying machines.

He flashed a picture of Napoleon on the screen, holding an aeroplane in his hand and wondering "What would I have been able to do had I these?" The expert said that the United States was today in the position of Napoleon, come back from the grave with his "Grand Army" and pitted against the modern German army of efficiency. He declared that the aeroplane equipment of the United States army and navyy was the smallest of any nation in the world, of any size worth mentioning, and that instead of an appropriation of $5,000,000, as has been recommended by the heads of the two branches of the war department, it must have an appropriation of $20,000,000 if it is to be placed on an equal footing with England, France and Germany, or an appropriation of $17,000,000 if it is to be placed on an equal footing with Austria, Spain and ccuntries of that size.

Preceding the address of Mr. Wardrop, dinner was enjoyed by members of the Men's Club and their guests. Leslie R. Fort, president of the class, asked for suggestions for the speaker for the April meeting, but none were offered, and one will be selected by the executive committee.

OUCH! LAME BACK, RUB LUMBAGO OR BACKACHE AWAY

Rub pain right out with small trial bottle of old, penetrating "St. Jacob's Oil."

Kidneys cause Backache? No! They have no nerves, therefore cannot cause pain. Listen! Your backache is caused by lumbago, sciatica or a strain, and the quickest relief is soothing, penetrating "St. Jacobs Oil." Rub it right on your painful back, and instantly the soreness, stiffness and lameness disappears. Don't say crippled! Get a small trial bottle of "St. Jacobs Oil" from your druggist, and limber up. A moment after it is applied you'll wonder what became of the backache or lumbago pain.

Rub old, honest "St. Jacobs Oil" whenever you have sciatica, neuralgia, rheumatism or sprains, as it is absolutely harmless and doesn't burn the skin.—Adv.

"DOC" COOK IS BACK; WANTS VINDICATION

Dr. Frederick A. Cook, photographed a few days ago in Washington.

Dr. Frederick A. Cook, mountain climber and Arctic explorer, who leaped into prominence a few years ago by announcing he had discovered the North Pole, is in Washington to demand of congress an investigation of his claim and vindication in the eyes of the world.

HE COULD PLAY CHESS.

And He Proved That Fact In a Most Emphatic Manner.

In Austria-Hungary some years ago there was a marvelous chess player, whose name and residence were unknown, but who every now and then displayed his remarkable skill in the game. The last story of him was told by James H. Hyatt of Philadelphia, who had then just returned from Budapest.

"I was playing chess with a friend in a cafe," said Mr. Hyatt, "and plainly saw my defeat, when a little bit of a shriveled Pole with a tray of cheap jewelry stood in front of us and offered his wares in most persuasive tones.

"'Go away,' I said.

"'You can beat him,' answered the peddler, whose attention was on the game.

"'What do you know about it?' I asked.

"'May I tell him?' he inquired, looking at my opponent.

"'Certainly. Crack away,' came the reply in a tone of assurance.

"'Take his knight,' said my self appointed instructor. I did so to humor him, though I lost my queen by the operation. But, much to my surprise, I found that the very next move gave me the game.

"'Let me play with you?' asked the peddler. 'I mate you in the moves you say and where you say.'

"'If you do I will give you 10 florins,' I answered. 'Take the white men. Mate me on my queen's fourth square in twenty-two moves if you can.'

"We started in, my friend keeping account of the moves, and moved rapidly. After about a dozen moves I had the advantage of a bishop and a pawn and was assured I would defeat my aggressive little opponent. When he let a castle go by an apparently careless play I was sure of victory. Then came a sudden change in the situation, and I had to move my king out of check. I was on the defensive and in rapid retreat.

"'Twenty-one moves,' said my friend as the little peddler put me again in check with his knight.

"'Mate!' cried my opponent as he swung his queen across the board.

"My king was on the queen's fourth square.

"I gave him 10 florins, and he walked away shaking his head and hands with infinite satisfaction."—New York Herald.

It Pays to Secure a Tenant Who Pays.

The uncertain sort of tenant is easy to find. He is always answering the call of the window sign of "To Let." He is easy to please. Even a rather high rental does not frighten him away.

But the Stay-and-Pay tenant is not so easy to secure. He is surer of what he wants. He does not take the first house, or apartment, or store that he finds. He watches and answers "To Let" Ads.

And to secure him for your tenant is a good day's work—a good week's work.

Property that is advertised adequately in the Plainfield Daily Press is rarely rented injudiciously.

DR. EATON MAY NOT PRESS RESIGNATION

Popular Pastor Believed to Be Willing to Remain With Church.

Dr. Charles A. Eaton will probably reconsider his action in resigning from the pulpit of the Madison avenue Baptist church, of New York, submitted to his congregation last night. This is the opinion of leaders in the church and it is partially borne out by a statement made by Dr. Eaton Tuesday in New York.

Dr. Eaton said that inasmuch as the church had not formally presented its refusal to him he could not with propriety state what his action would be, but he made it plain he would give weighty consideration to an almost unanimous action of this sort from its membership.

"DOC" LAYTON PASSES AWAY AT MUHLENBERG

Charles Layton, colored, of Scotch Plains, died in Muhlenberg Hospital this morning following a long illness. He had been under medical treatment at the institution since December 8. Layton, who was seventy-four years old, has been a widely known character in the Scotch Plains section for many years. He was always called "Doc" and because of his quaint ways gained friends by the hundreds.

Layton was a veteran of the Civil War, and when pressed could relate numerous interesting anecdotes about the great struggle. His home for many years had been on the Meyer place opposite the Scotch Plains fur mill. He is survived by his wife, Elizabeth Layton. Arrangements for the funeral have not yet been made.

Y. M. C. A. ANNUAL DINNER TO BE GIVEN FEBRUARY 24

The annual meeting and dinner of the Young Men's Christian Association which was postponed from January 21, will be held at the Association building on Friday evening, February 24. This should be an inspiring and helpful meeting because of the success of the year just closed, reports of which will be submitted.

The guest of the association on that occasion will be Fred B. Smith, who needs no introduction to Plainfield men.

NEARLY $4,000 SUBSCRIBED TO JEWISH RELIEF FUND

The Plainfield branch of the American Jewish Relief Committee at its meeting this week reported that thus far $3,400 had been received in cash and $360 in pledges for the Jewish relief work abroad, and the treasurer was authorized to send a check at once for $3,000 to the American Jewish Relief Committee in New York.

It was decided to continue the work here until the $5,000 goal is reached. The officers and sub-committees appointed by the executive committee will strive to get the required $5,000 at the earliest possible date. The committee gave a vote of thanks to the ministers of the city including Rev. Dr. C. M. Anderson, Rev. J. Y. Broek, Mayor Leighton Calkins, Dr. DeSola Pool, the Plainfield Daily Press, the Courier-News and Laggren and Green.

PUT CREAM IN NOSE AND STOP CATARRH

Tells How To Open Clogged Nostrils and End Head-Colds.

You feel fine in a few moments. Your cold in head or catarrh will be gone. Your clogged nostrils will open. The air passages of your head will clear and you can breathe freely. No more dullness, headache; no hawking, snuffling, mucous discharges or dryness; no struggling for breath at night.

Tell your druggist you want a small bottle of Ely's Cream Balm. Apply a little of this fragrant, antiseptic cream in your nostrils, let it penetrate through every air passage of the head; soothe and heal the swollen, inflamed mucous membrane and relief comes instantly.

It is just what every cold and catarrh sufferer needs. Don't stay stuffed-up and miserable.—Adv.

CITY CAN PUBLISH ALL DELINQUENTS

New Bill Gives Right to Make Public Owners of Personal Property.

The bill passed in the house of the Assembly at Trenton, Tuesday, known as the Runyon bill for Plainfield, gives to this city and others in the second class of municipalities in the state the same rights concerning collections of taxes as are enjoyed by first class municipalities. The principal authority invested in Plainfield by the bill, which has not been enjoyed before, is that of publishing the names of delinquents on personal taxes. In the past the officials have published delinquents on realty taxes but have not been permitted to publish those who do not pay their taxes on personal property. It is believed that this bill will result in the saving of many thousands of dollars each year to the city.

PARENT-TEACHER ASS'N ENJOY DANCING EXHIBIT

During the meeting of the Parent-Teacher Association of the Irving-Jefferson schools, held yesterday afternoon, in the Irving School Auditorium, Miss Mildred Brownlee, dancing instructor in the schools, demonstrated to the parents and friends the ability of the youthful artists. The numbers rendered by the boys and girls included: Dance of "March," by the sixth and seventh grades; dance, "The Cresten Hen;" one-step; Danish Dance of Greeting, by the litle children; Ribbon Dance, by members of the fourth and fifth grades; Waltz, by the older children; Kinder Polka, by the little children; Swedish dance, by the fourth and fifth grades; one-step; Hungarian dance.

Miss Brownlee was congratulated for the splendid results she has attained with the youngsters in a little over two months' drilling. A short business meeting followed the dancing, and refreshments were served. The latter were served by Mrs. John Dunn, assisted by Mrs. Hazelton.

MAYOR FROWNS ON STREET DISORDERS

Will Assess Fine in Every Case Before Him, He Tells Offenders.

"I am going to impose a fine in this case, and in every other case where a young man gets too much liquor and then creates disorder on the streets of Plainfield," declared Mayor Leighton Calkins, sitting as judge in police court this morning in the case of Harry Goff, charged with being disorderly and fighting on Front street, Saturday night.

Two other men, Samuel Waifenfel and Richard McGarby, were arrested with Goff. McGarby was released on his promise to appear in court, and did not show up. He will be arrested as soon as found. Goff was fined $10 or twenty days, and Waifendel was fined $5.

A heavy fine was assessed in the case of Goff, because of a former record in police court. The three men were arrested by Patrolman Kelly after they had attracted a crowd near the corner of Front and Somerset streets by a loud argument. No blows were struck, according to the evidence given in court, but Mayor Calkins frowned on the practice of settling quarrels on public streets and promised that he would assess a fine in every case that came before him while he was on the bench.

LARGE GATHERING AT FUNERAL OF MRS. TERRY

The funeral of Mrs. Marie C. Terry, widow of Samuel C. Terry, whose death occurred at her home on East Third street, Monday night, was held in the Temple Baptist church at 2:30 this afternoon. The service, conducted by Rev. E. C. Conover, was attended by a large gathering of relatives and friends, many of whom were present at the funeral of Mrs. Terry's daughter, Mrs. Zachariah Wilson, of Elm place, held Sunday afternoon. In addition to the prayers and scripture readings by Mr. Conover, a solo "Nearer My God to Thee" was sung by Miss Bessie Carson, the church organist. Mrs. Charles W. Griffin acted as accompanist.

Delegations were present from the numerous organizations to which Mrs. Terry belonged. These included the Daughters of Rebekah, the Daughters of Liberty, the Daughters of America, Howell Division, Sons of Temperance, Women's Relief Corps, and the various societies of Temple Baptist church. All contributed flowers, and many other handsome pieces were sent by friends.

Burial was in Evergreen cemetery, the pall bearers being as follows: U. B. Crane, Valentine Utzinger, Edward Baker, representing the Temple Baptist church, and Captain William Hand, J. Worth Coddington, Edward Vanderweg, representing Winfield Scott Post as affiliated with the Women's Relief Corps.

PLANS COMPLETE FOR THE PREACHING MISSION

The Central committee of the Episcopal Mission is making every preparation for the accomodation of large congregations at the opening services at Grace church on Sunday. The church is absolutely at the services of the public and no seats will be reserved. The ushers will be on duty at 10 o'clock; the doors will then be opened and applicants seated as they come. It is of importance that members of all four Episcopal congregations should be in good time, otherwise they may find inadequate or no accommodation.

Bishop Woodcock will arrive via Pennsylvania railroad at Elizabeth on Saturday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock. By courtesy of the railroad, the fast train from the west will stop at Elizabeth for his convenience.

DRESS WARM AND KEEP FEET DRY

Rheumatism is no respecter of age, sex, color or rank. If not the most dangerous of human afflictions, it is one of the most painful. Those subject to rheumatism should eat less meat, dress as warmly as possible, avoid any undue exposure, and, above all, drink lots of pure water.

Rheumatism is caused by uric acid, which is generated in the bowels and absorbed into the blood. It is the function of the kidneys to filter this acid from the blood and cast it out the urine; the pores of the skin are also a means of freeing the blood of this impurity. In damp and chilly, cold weather the skin pores are closed, thus forcing the kidneys to do double work; they become weak and sluggish and fail to eliminate this uric acid, which keeps accumulating and circulating through the system, eventually settling in the joints and muscles, causing stiffness, soreness and pain called rheumatism.

At the first twinge of rheumatism get from any pharmacy about four ounces of Jad Salts; put a tablespoonful in a glass of water and drink before breakfast each morning for a week. This is said to eliminate uric acid by stimulating the kidneys to normal action, thus ridding the blood of these impurities.

Jad Salts is inexpensive, harmless and is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and is used with excellent results by thousands of folks who are subject to rheumatism. Here you have a pleasant, effervescent lithia-water drink which overcomes uric acid and is beneficial to your kidneys as well.

GIRL SWIMMERS OF P. H. S. WILL HOLD FIRST TRYOUTS

The girls of the Plainfield High School will get their first start in aquatics this year when they hold a meet in the school pool tomorrow in order to give the swimming instructors a chance to get a line on material for a school team. Two teams composed of those who have expressed a willingness to take part will compete against each other, led by Miss Taylor, as captain of one, and Miss Emily White as captain of the other. The events include the 20-yard swim, 40-yard swim and 100-yard relay. Each relay team will be composed of five girls, each one swimming 20 yards. The dives, both back and front, and the plunge for distance, will make up the remainder of the program. The number of events each one may enter is limited to two.

Last year, although it was the first time P. H. S. girls had a team, the school had a crack team and made an excellent showing. Even though the Peacock girls and several others have left school, Miss Taylor, Emily White and others should form the nucleus for another strong team.

SNAPPY NOTES COVERING WIDE VARIETY OF SPORTS

The waiters have been tipped off to figure gastronomic averages of the baseball moguls who sit down tonight in New York to celebrate the fortieth birthday of the National League. Like fielding and hitting there will be two figures, covering food and liquid refreshment.

Over 200 five-men bowling teams are entered for the International Bowling Tournament which gets under way at Minneapolis tomorrow. The Twin City experts will meet some of the best pin-hitters in the middle west and northwest.

The rules for horse racing come up today for revision at the meeting of the National Trotting Association at New York. The radical changes made in 1914 have met with much criticism, but it is not believed that the organization will undo the work of the last biennial.

Final adjustment of the affairs of the International League were announced today, and the reorganized league will begin its playing schedule on April 26, with 140 games for the season.

Somebody who claims to have kept careful count says that 943 persons lost their lives in sport during the past ten years. Baseball is blamed for 284 fatalities, which would figure low in proportion to the number of persons playing the game and the time they consumed in playing. Football was next with 215. Golf caused fourteen deaths, and even bowling is blamed, with a total of nine fatalities.

Herbert Volmer, the college swimmer who recently broke all records for the 150-yard distance, is going after the world's record of 2 minutes 25 2-5 seconds for the 220-yard event, at the New York A. C. aquatic meet a week from Friday.

The East is all up in the air over Joe Stecher, the Kansas ploughboy, who is dropping the native and European wrestlers as fast as he can smoke them out of their lairs. The young Hercules has revolutionized the wrestling game, and everybody is trying to copy his winning scissors hold.

Tuxedo tennis opens its king-pin event of the winter season tomorrow with the gold racquet championship tournament. This meet is always the keenest of the winter for the Eastern tennis experts. Play will be under way until Sunday, when the finals will be played.

Gus Christie, of Milwaukee, is matched with Jeff Smith for a ten-round bout at Fond du Lac, Wis., on Friday night. This is the same Smith who won from Les Darcy in Sydney a year ago, and held George Carpentier to a draw.

WILL USE ONLY ONE LINE IN GIRLS' GO

New Way of Marking Basketball Court to Be Tried at Columbus Hall.

The High street Presbyterian church basketball team of Newark will come to Plainfield tomorrow tomorrow night to oppose the Plainfield Five girls on the Columbus Club court. The game promises to be a thriller, inasmuch as the exhibitions will be played with but one line dividing the court, the forwards and guards staying in their respective halves, while the centers are allowed the privilege of running all over the floor. This method of playing is entirely within the rules, but is seldom played on regulation courts. The Newarkers, however, have been playing in this fashion all season, and will undoubtedly have a slight advantage over the locals.

Between the halves of the girls' game, the Columbus club will line up against the Plainfield A. A. The latter attraction will furnish plenty of excitement for the fans, the occasion being the second meeting of these two teams, the initial game resulting in the defeat of the Plainfield A. A. Dancing will follow the games.

The two girl teams will line up as follows:

Plainfield Five. Newark H. S. Ch.
Helen Hummel ..... Ida Fernie
Helen Bryniarski ..... Lillian North forwards.
Theresa McCullough .. B. Berengenc center.
Mildred McAuliffe ..... Helen Watts side center.
Clara Smith ..... L. Peits
Ellen Doughty ..... M. Maddams guards.

by Dwight L. Moody, and he had never forgotten that event in his life brought fresh to his mind at this time. He expressed his pleasure over the interest, enthusiasm and good work of the county societies.

General Secretary A. C. Estes, of the local Y. M. C. A., gave a stirring talk in which he referred to the approaching Biederwolf evangelistic campaign which he said would offer exceptional opportunities for work on the part of the young people. He urged the Endeavorers to make full preparation for the revival and to lend their service in every way possible. He said that scores of personal workers would be needed to make the meetings a success. He said that he did not doubt for one moment but that if the President of the United States should issue a call for volunteers to defend the country everyone who could would respond and in this case he thought the response should be just as general among Plainfield people. He called attention to the fact that cottage prayer meetings are to be held in all parts of the city and he urged co-operation in this work.

The last speaker of the evening, J. T. Sproull, the State president, brought a helpful message to the Endeavorers. He reviewed briefly the important features of the Chicago convention, emphasizing this year's slogan "The Million Campaign," during which it is hoped to increase the membership and enrollment in all departments. He thought the coming revival in Plainfield would enable the Endeavorers to do great work in winning souls to Christ and he made a strong plea for personal work. He thought that every member should pray as much over the success of a social as a prayer meeting and he urged more sociability on the part of everyone.

One of the pleasing features of the meeting was the singing of Miss Etta Raybert, soprano soloist at Trinity Reformed church. She sang two solos which were well received by all present.

Plainfield, N. J., February 9, 1916.

AN UNFAIR TIRADE.

The Committee on Industrial Relations is to be suppressed!

Because it told the truth about Youngstown and the shameful exploitation of immigrant workmen by the United States Steel Corporation, "The Iron Trade Review," official organ of the steel industry, in its issue of January 27 demands that the Administration at Washington drive the committee from the National Capital.

In a long tirade, this organ of exploiting corporations suptters and fumes over the showing of facts contained in the report on the Youngstown riot by George P. West and the accompanying discussion of conditions in the steel industry at large by Basil M. Manly, director of the committee, and director of the investigation conducted by the United States government into conditions of labor in the steel industry in 1910.

Liquor was the sole cause of the Youngstown disturbance, we are told.

"Any attempt to make the terrible affair an outgrowth of a labor difficulty is a deliberate attempt to deceive," continues the editor. He goes on to meet cold facts with abusive adjectives through a column of reading matter. Not a fact is denied or controverted. And he concludes with this advice to President Wilson:

"We believe that enough has been shown thoroughly to discredit the tirades issued by Manly and West It is high time for the administration at Washington to suppress this mischief-making coterie, which has no legal existence and ought to be driven from the national capital."

Fortunately the gunmen, detectives and subsidized officials with which the Steel Corporation governs its steel towns and suppresses organization and free speech have not yet extended their rule to Washington, and the ravings of the "Iron Trade Review" are doomed to futility.

THE POVERTY OF POLITICS.

A Congressman who has held office continuously since 1902, tells his experience in the February issue of the American Magazine. He writes anonymously, but the list of members of the present Congress is not long, who have been re-elected at each election since 1902. His account shows that a Congressman's career is not a financially profitable one. It has cost him, he claims, a comfortable law practice which netted him $4,000 a year. He finds that this income in a small town was a far better means of support than his present Congressional salary of $7,500 in Washington.

He notes the high cost of living in Washington, that land values and rents are disproportionate to the size of the city, and that among its inhabitants are many idle rich drawing unearned incomes, who look with snobbish contempt on all who live by doing something useful. He would like to get away from this. But he realizes that opportunities to earn a living are now closed. He feels that sooner or later he must fail of re-election, and pathetically closes his narrative with the confession that he does not know what to do. He has served his country and his people well and has not served himself. It is the usual tragedy of an honest public official.

None who heard the address of G. Douglas Wardrop before the Men's Club of the Crescent Avenue church last night but went away convinced of the absolute need of the United States Army and Navy for aeroplanes that could be used in case of war. The speaker, and he is a man of prominence in aviation, showed by pictures and statistics that warfare has been revolutionized by the use of air machines and that it was the superb air fleet of the German army that made the drive to the very gates of Paris possible in the early months of the war. He insisted that this country should have an appropriation of at least $25,000,000 for aeroplanes for the coming year, which is placing the figures pretty high, but not many of those who heard him would favor the reduction of a single cent in his recommendation if they thought there was any real danger of war in the near future.

The local optionists have not yet won their fight. Because their bill was passed by members of the Senate of the State Legislature Monday night there is no cause for hope that it will be passed in the lower house and become a law. The Anti-Saloon League and its supporters won a victory when they forced a vote in the Senate and their victory was one for good government, because of the bitter fight made by members of the "Boss" controlled Dalrymple gang to prevent a vote in the upper house. This was done because at least two members of that body sought to sidestep the issue on local option, preferring to go before the people as candidates for office in the fall without having taken a positive stand so as to draw votes from both sides. They cannot be given credit for sincerity in their vote, but probably many who helped make up the majority in the Senate really desire the passage of the bill.

Already America has given more than $2,000,000 for the relief of the starving Jews of Europe, according to figures given out by the committee in New York city, and contributions are coming in daily. It is estimated that each dollar means a life, and munition makers can go back to their work with a better conscience now.

The Cuban Congress has appropriated $25,000 for the entertainment of Theodore Roosevelt, "who shed his blood in Cuba." We know people who would give more than that if he would shed a good little amount here and now.

Peace—1916 Model

Look! When ye build a shrine to me—
That peace toward which ye dream
Making fond foolish offering to my name—
Put no sweet statue of a meek faced saint,
With trailing garments and with waving branch
To decorate a ponderous facade,
But 'neath its pillars.

Staggering with a weight undreamed,
Place me a warrior with blunted sword,
Who hacked a fervent way
Through flesh and bone to righteousness!
Him, in whose drumming heart
The hot blood rushed;
Him, in whose famished lungs
The hot breath strove;
Who, not content to dream
Of peace through languorous days,
Or prate her speech
Of big mouthed words,
Flung to the fight his all.
His battered body gave
To guard the hell rent ramparts
Where he fell!

On the Spur of the Moment

by Roy K. Moulton

The Handy Man.

Bill Sims was quite a handy man at any sort of trick;
Could tinker up a balky watch or fix
a windmill quick;
Could whittle fancy ornaments or doctor up a calf,
Or shoe a horse with lightnin' speed or run a photograph.
An artist, too, with chalk or brush, quite wonderful was he.
The only thing Bill couldn't draw was just a salary.

Bill Simms could make a dandy
churn that surely did the work;
Could build an automobile that would run without a jerk;
Could make a set of bobsleighs that would always run as slick as grease;
Could cut a pair of trousers that would always hold their crease.
But one thing that Bill couldn't make at all to save his life—
He couldn't make a livin' for himself and kids and wife.

Bill Simms could play the violin and almost any horn;
Could imitate each bird or beast that ever had been born.
The folks kept him busy doin' odd jobs and all sich;
He had not time to settle down in order to get rich.
His neighbors all asked favors, and he never turned one down;
And Bill spent his declinin' years in livin' on the town.

Uncle Abner

Every time a see a woman kissin' a pug dog I get more respeck fer one that smokes a pipe or dips snuff.

It is gradually gettin' so the bank presidents dot's wear celluloid collars and red neckties like they used to.

There is only one thing more dangerous fer a gal than marryin' a feller and that is goin' out in one of them cranky canoes with him.

Miss Amy Pringle says that every feller who sends her a love letter written on a typewriter queers himself forever, so fur as she is concerned.

This Maid Gives Excellent Advice.

A modern dude with narrow-striped clothes, saddle-colored shoes, a loud necktie, hair parted over his nose, and smoking a cigaret, addressed his best girl thus: "If you was me and I was you, what would you do" She unhesitatingly said, with a smile. "I would take off that hideous it, put that cigaret in the stove, part my hair on the side, then pray for brains."—Portland Review.

Consolation

When the world seems dark and gloomy,
And you're feelin' mighty blue,
And you think that old Dame Fortune
Has the Chinese Curse on you,
It will bring a lot of comfort,
Though the pessimist may scoff,
To consider some poor feller
Who's a hundred times worse off.

If your finances are droppin'
In a dismal sort of way,
And you owe someone five dollars
That you think you ought to pay.
While you may think you surely
Are the most forlorn of men,
You're exactly twice as well off
As the feller who owes ten.

The saddest sight on earth is that of a widow who is foolish enough to buy a second husband with the money she saved by feeding her first husband on half portions and ragouts.

- Proctor's Theatre -

Today, for the last time, Sam Bernard will appear in that uproariously funny Keystone comedy, "The Great Pearl Tangle." This comedy proved a hit with local film fans, and Sam's antics were so grotesque and comical that he had the spectators in a continual uproar. Today and tomorrow an extraordinary film production will appear at Proctor's. It is a William Fox feature that will appear at Proctor's every Wednesday and Thursday. It is "A Parisian Romance," Richard Mansfield's greatest success when he was one of the greatest stars in the theatrical world, and adapted to the screen in a lavish and extremely interesting manner. H. Cooper Cliffe, the far-famed English character actor, was especially engaged to play the leading role in this feature. Miss Dorothy Green, the Fox favorite, plays opposite Mr. Cliffe and performs in an exceedingly graceful and finished manner. "A Parisian Romance" is one of those photoplays that are an exceptional treat. On Thursday, and continuing the rest of the week, one of the greatest Keystones released, entitled "Fatty and Mabel Adrift," will be shown, in which those two popular favorites, Roscoe Arbuckle and Mabel Normand, are featured. The vaudeville entertainment presented for the latter half of the week includes Romanoff, Frank and Company, consisting of seven people in a gorgeous singing, dancing and comedy revue; Dorothy Kenyon, who is a wonderful performer on the banjo; The Great Johnson, one of the greatest of magical mystifiers, and Illa Grannon and Victor Stone, two charming entertainers who offer an act that is both versatile and pleasing. Don't forget "The Red Circle" on Friday. On Friday and Saturday, the management will present an emotional production entitled, "The Corner," in which Willard Mack and George Fawcett will be featured. On Saturday the children will be given a treat in the form of the regular weekly toy bazaar. The management have made arrangements whereby in the very near future they will present Henry Walthall and Edna Mayo, two of the most popular and famous stars in filmdom, the former being the hero of "The Birth of a Nation," and Miss Mayo being recognized as the fashion plate of the screen, in Essanay's new and wonderful serial masterpiece, entitled, "The Strange Case of Mary Page."

FRUIT GUILD MEETING.

The Plant, Flower and Fruit Guild will hold its monthly meeting in the Friends' Meeting House, Watchung avenue and Third street, Friday evening, February 11, at 7:45 o'clock. The Young People's Society of Christian Endeavor of the Congregational church, led by James McClymont, Jr., will conduct the opening devotional services. Rev. D. B. F. Randolph, pastor of the Monroe avenue Methodist church, will deliver a short address; Miss Kathleen L. C. Phillips will sing "The Rosary." The instrumental music will be in charge of the Guild orchestra, led by Mrs. John C. Evans. All are cordially invited to attend.

AND THE WORST IS YET TO COME--

THE DELUGE

∴ Plainfield Theatre ∴

"Beef Trust" Billy Watson, Plainfield Matinee and Night.

Those who have visited the Plainfield Theatre during the first half of the week are almost unanimous in declaring that it is one of the best balanced bills yet offered for the season at that popular playhouse and are loud in their praises of the entertainment, especially the feature act. The bill is closed by "A Chinese Cabaret," which carries fifteen people and a great deal of special scenery. One of the quickest changes of scenery ever made on the stage is accomplished in this act, when almost in the flash of an eye a Chinese laundry becomes an oriental cabaret with gaily-gowned women and men at the tables. The act gives a true impression of high and low life in China town and is one of the few really different offerings in vaudeville that is permitted to get outside the big New York houses.

Tonight will be Japanese night. The usual number of valuable presents, all of oriental nature, are to be given way to holders of lucky seats and those who attend will see a whole show in this feature.

An entirely new vaudeville bill, with new photo-plays, will be offered at the Plainfield for the remainder of the week, beginning with Thursday matinee. Friday night the customary country store that has proven so popular here, will be given.

The coming attraction at the Plainfield Theatre, Monday (matinee and night), February 14, Beef Trust Billy Watson's Big Girlie Show, has established a reputation of being one of the most unique offerings on the circuit this season. There are so many unique features about the coming attraction that it would be impossible to begin to enumerate them all with in a given space, but suffice to say that those who pay a visit to the Plainfield Theatre next week will be accorded a rare treat. Beef Trust Billy Watson appears at the head of his own company and this inimitable comedian has surrounded himself with a cast of exceptional magnitude and ability. Working opposite to Bill Watson is Frank Bombard, one of the leading comedians in the vaudeville ranks, while the female contingent is headed by Jean Leighton, Margaret Newell, Kathryn Pearl, Annette Walker, Frankie Farrell, Grace Sachs, and a host of others well known in the theatrical world.

TESTIMONIAL SHOW FOR "DAVE" ROGERS

The afternoon and evening of February 29th the theatregoers of Plainfield will be given an opportunity to evidence appreciation of a season of courteous and kindly treatment and at the same time see a good show, all for the price of one admission.

The date is the one fixed by the management of the Plainfield Theatre for a testimonial performance to Dave Rogers, the genial and efficient treasurer of that playhouse.

The engagement will be filled by "The Golden Crook Extravaganza Company," with the ever-popular Billy Arlington at its head. This is one of the brightest of the burlesque offerings that has attracted attention at the Columbia Theatre in New York city, and it is said to far excel those that have appeared here this season. Because of the popularity of Mr. Rogers and the excellent attraction offered, Mr. Shannon has arranged to put seats for the two performances on sale in advance of the regular time and they can be reserved now. The company is one of the brightest on the road, and Arlington has made a big success in his chosen profession. Seventy persons are included in the cast.

THE FORUM

Editor of the Daily Press: How many people of Plainfield realize the opportunity at hand to hear one of the greatest living violinists?

Do they know that there are about as many great violinists as there are fingers on both hands?

Everyone interested in music should avail themselves of the treat in store for them this evening. The violin will be heard as it should be played—artistically, gracefully and with ease. The greatest difficulties will sound and appear as if very little effort is necessary. It will be seen that physical contortions, hair-flying antics and the like are not needed to produce results; such actions being left to those that need something for effect and lacking in technical equipment.

It is seldom that a man of Mr. Elman's ability can be induced to play in so small a city as Plainfield, so I advise everyone—especially those with limited time, and others that find it troublesome to take the trip to New York, to hear this fine artist.

Opportunity knocks.

CARRAR FIRE LOSS SETTLED.

Through the offices of the Frederic A. Martin Company, of North avenue, settlement in full was made today for the insurance on the home of Frank Carrar, located on Mountain boulevard, and totally destroyed by fire on January 21. Mr. Carrar was paid $3,000 on the building and $1,000 on the furniture, while an additional $1,200 was paid for furniture belonging to Mr. Carrar's son, Leonard Carrar. These sums were the totals carried on insurance policies although they do not fully cover the complete loss. The damage occasioned by the fire, which was one of the most spectacular in this vicinity in several years, was about $10,000. A portion of this sum was on clothing and jewelry not covred by the policies, while a daughter of Mr. Carrar's had about $200 in savings burned up.

Daddy's Bedtime Story—

How a Firefly Found a King's Diamond Ring.

"It is right on top of your crown."

"WHEN a king of the Philippine Islands lost his diamond ring and ordered all his little creatures to find it, off they all dashed to hunt," daddy told his children. "The birds darted off to search their empty nests, rooftops, the clouds and all high places where earth things could never go. 'Perhaps the king dropped it on the ground,' said a little snake, with his sharp eyes among the grasses. 'It may be a thieving magpie carried it off,' said a yellow bird, peering into a rotted tree stump. Just then a lot of fishes joined the hunt. They dived down into the beautiful deep-sea caves all blue and cool. 'Perhaps the king lost it out of his boat.'

"But while thousands and millions of little creatures were rushing wildly about, with their eyes glued on the ground, one tiny little firefly stood still, right in front of the king. And, oh, how he trembled, left there all alone! The proud big king watched with satisfaction as all his creatures scampered, but when he looked down on the floor and saw the firefly, oh, how he frowned! 'What are you doing here?' he thundered.

"'Oh, most gracious king,' stammered the poor little firefly, 'I did not go with the others because already I have found your ring.'

"'Where is it?' shouted the proud, wise king.

"'Oh, most gracious king,' murmured the poor little firefly, 'it is right on top of your crown!'

"The king snatched off his crown, and, sure enough, right in plain sight caught upon one of its golden points, was the diamond ring. The big, wise king gaped at it in huge surprise and then slipped it on his kingly finger. 'How did you come to notice it?' he asked.

"'Perhaps because I have so many eyes,' mumbled the firefly.

"'Because you used your eyes,' contradicted the king. 'But I promised to grant a favor to whoever found my ring. So now tell me what in all the wide, big world you would like most of all.'

"The poor little firefly almost lost his breath in the excitement of having all the world's treasures thrown at him. Then he flew up on the arm of the big, wise, proud king's throne chair and whispered right in his kingly ear, 'Oh, I would like most of all to have a lantern to carry with me when I fly about after the sun has set. These Philippine swamps are full of terrible things to meet, and sometimes the midnights are fearful and dangerous to a creature of my size. But if I had a little lantern to find my way I should like that best of all, most gracious king.'

"'I will give a lantern to every member of your family,' said the king. So fireflies carry lights to this very day," daddy finished.

Marrying for Money

BY MRS. EVA LEONARD

Jacob Townsend, the Worm, Begins to Turn on His Wife.

"What were you intending to do this afternoon, Ortrude?" asked Jacob Townsend as he rose from the dinner table.

"I do not know; why?" Ortrude looked up in some surprise, for this was the first question of the kind her husband had ever asked her.

"If you are not going to use the machine, Marian would like to take it." Jacob looked uncomfortable.

"Marian knows nothing about running a machine." There was genuine surprise in Ortrude's tone.

"Marian does not intend to run it. A friend of hers who is visiting here from the east would like to go out with her. She runs a car all the time at home."

"Really, J. C., I am surprised that you mention giving that machine over into the hands of just anybody that happens to want to run it. I have been very careful and nothing has happened to it, and I do not want anything to happen." Ortrude rose from the table.

"I will be responsible for anything that happens to the car." Jacob's tone was impatient. "Marian has not done anything to entertain this friend and——"

"Why hasn't she, pray? Isn't the table set in a manner that suits her ladyship, or what is the matter?" Ortrude gazed at Marian's vacant chair as if addressing the girl.

"The atmosphere of the home leaves something to be desired when it comes to entertaining friends." Jacob's tone was bitter.

"Of course I am the one to blame for that atmosphere." A scornful curl of the lips lessened the beauty of Ortrude's face.

"We will not enter into the cause of the unpleasantness. The fact remains. The girl does not feel free to invite her friends here. I would like to give the child a little pleasure before she goes away, and she very much desires this ride. Besides, you cannot fail to see that it will afford a fine opportunity to do the child a favor and so pave the way for better relations."

Ortrude twisted the diamond on her finger and said nothing.

"I ask therefore that you express your willingness to have her use the machine. I ask it as a special favor to me."

"I have decided to go out myself this afternoon," said Ortrude coldly.

"Ortrude, you have never since our marriage granted me one favor, never done one thing that I wished you to do because I wished it. Can't you see that our relations can't always go on this way with you demanding everything as your right and brushing all my wishes aside as worthy of no consideration. If you had planned anything definite for this afternoon I would not have said a thing, but you are planning to use the machine to keep Marian from having it." Ortrude turned to go, but Jacob put himself in front of the door.

"Ortrude, for the sake of peace, grant this little favor," he pleaded, laying his hand on her arm.

"You are the one who is disturbing peaceful relations, not me," she said, and swept by him.

Jacob stood looking at the carpet for a few minutes after she had gone. Marian, hearing her stepmother go to her room, stole downstairs to learn the result of the negotiations.

"What about it, Daddy? Is the verdict favorable?" Marian stole her hand around his neck.

"Get your things on and come with me to the garage. I will have the man drive you over to Grace's at once. As it is early you can have a ride while Mrs. Townsend takes her nap. No, you needn't hurry back. I think she is in no hurry to go out." Jacob's lips were set. Marian ran delightedly up the stairs for her wraps.

"I received the sample of Imperial Granum which you so kindly sent. I am nursing my baby girl, and find that by taking your splendid food myself it increases both the quality and quantity of my milk. I am also giving it to my baby, and she is thriving very well on it. My first baby was fed on sweetened condensed milk and got very fat on it, but when he had his first spell of sickness, he got so frail and thin, we thought we were going to lose him. FORTY-EIGHT DEATHS IN THIRTY-FIVE DAYS

Of This Number Reported by Health Board Eighteen Were Due to Pneumonia.

In the thirty-five days since the year's records were closed forty-eight deaths have occurred in Plainfield among our own residents and eleven among non-residents. Of the forty-eight resident deaths, eighteen, or 37.5 per cent., were due to pneumonia. One case was complicated by measles; one by typhoid fever; one by bronchitis, and six by the grip. Three deaths from other causes were complicated either by the grip, influenza or bronchitis. The deaths from pneumonia, according to ages, were as follows:

2 years and under	4
20-40 years	3
50-80 years	11
Total	18

When it is remembered that infection may be largely avoided by the observance of a common rule of politeness, this loss of human life seems more than every unnecessarily great. It is believed that the spray ejected from the mouth during sneezing or coughing and the discharges from the nose and throat, contain the active agents which spread the diseases manifesting themselves by such symptoms. Of course these diseases include a long list beginning with a common "cold" and often ending in pneumonia and tuberculosis. Among them may be mentioned measles, whooping cough, influenza, the grip, diphtheria and scarlet fever, in addition to pneumonia and tuberculosis. The importance, then, of shielding the mouth when sneezing or coughing, and the proper care of handkerchiefs, cannot be overestimated.

The organization of the Plainfield Board of Health for the ensuinig year is as follows: Dr. Harold D. Corbusier, president; Dr. Charles B. Lufburrow, secretary; Steven H. Voorhees, treasurer; Elliot T. Barrows, Isaiah L. McVoy.

The explosion of a bomb shell would not have caused greater consternation at Palm Beach, the Florida winter resort, than the publication of a story by a New York newspaper to the effect that Jean Harold Edward Saint Cyr, respected in high society as the husband of the wealthy widow of James Henry (Silent) Smith is none other than "Jack" Thompson of Waco, Texas. This newspaper declares that no later than 1907 Saint Cyr, who since has been the husband of two very wealthy widows, one of whom is dead, was employed as a clerk in a New York department store.

POND TOOL WORKS INSTALLS UP-TO-DATE TELEPHONES

One of the most complete private telephone systems in this section of the state has just been installed in the plant of the Pond Machine Tool company by the New York Telephone company. A switchboard located in the main office has connections with thirty stations in all parts of the big works, thus enabling calls from the outside to be transmitted immediately to any building on the grounds or to the heads of the many separate divisions. The system is a remarkable time saver and adds greatly to the efficiency of the plant.

In connection with calls being sent to the main factory building, the machine shop, an idea has been used to bring the particular man wanted directly to the 'phone without first having someone take the name. The idea originated with Henry E. L. Stacy, one of the executive staff, and consists of a compressed air whistle stationed alongside the telephone instrument. All the foremen in the shop have an individual number of blows and when they are wanted the signal is sent from the main office. A whistle is used because the noise of the shop machinery would drown out the sound of the bell. The private exchange was arranged and installed under the direction of John J. Carty, local sales manager for the New York Telephone Company.

How Many Happy Hours You Will Spend With Them

These Two Great Magazines with the Daily Press

We have just completed a very important contract with the publishers of the American Magazine and the Woman's Home Companion.

Our readers can now secure either or both of these two nationally famous publications for but little more than they now pay for their paper alone.

Woman's Home Companion is the great home magazine of this country. Tomorrow night—Rahway at Paterson; Elizabeth at Hoboken.

Newark Elks gave a classy exhibition of bowling on the local Elks' alleys last night, and completely outclassed the Plainfielders in all three games.

The visitors averaged 965.2 to Plainfield's even 900. They went four pins over the thousand mark in the first game, when the homesters put up their best fight, but in the last two games the pennant-seekers were not pressed, and were satisfied with totals of 949 and 944.

Plainfield rolled good and bad by spells. The locals' spare bowling at times was very bad, a total of twenty-six misses being charged against them, ten in each of the last two games. Jack Speary, one of the prettiest bowlers that ever appeared in Plainfield, was regular as a machine, and shot scores of 224, 242 and 204 for an average of 223.1. Neither he nor Weingarth had a miss all night. Van Ness had one, Captain Waldorf two, Blatz and Wagner three each, Kiely and Erler four apiece, Vail eight and Causbrook nine.

In the opening game Newark passed Plainfield in the second frame and kept ahead all the way. Speary started with 9, heaped on four strikes and finished with a double, all his teammates giving a steady exhibition and covering their spares well.

Plainfield led until the fifth inning of the second game. Van Ness made the 4-7-10 in this game. Speary put together a string of strikes, being stopped only in the fifth, and hung up 242. Plainfield was never in the running in the last game.

TABS OUTPOINT HIGH SCHOOL BASKETEERS

Opinions Differ on Score of Girls' Game, Despite the Little Scoring Done.

The Tabs defeated the All-Stars, a combination of high school basketballists, on the T. A. B. S. court last night, to the tune of 24 to 19. It was a fast, well-played game and the score was close throughout. Kyle and Lawton, for the Abstainers, and Mills and Vaughan, for the Stars, were the heavy scorers of the night. The Social Club-Sunshine Weavers' contest ended in a dispute as to the correct score. As the Plains' girls' scorer was the only one keeping score, her result was finally taken, which gave the Weavers the victory by the score of 7 to 6.

NORTH PLAINFIELD GRADES WINS GAME AT WESTFIELD

The North Plainfield Grammar Grades' basketball team journeyed to Westfield yesterday, where they defeated the fast Methodist team by a close score of 25 to 24. The game was nip-and-tuck from the start, and kept the spectators in excitement throughout.

A spectacular shot was made from the side of the court by Feaster. The first half ended with the score 8 to 8. When the second half started, both teams fought hard for the lead. Five minutes before the half ended the score was 15 to 14 in favor of North Plainfield. Then Clay rang up a two-pointer and a foul and field goal were made by Scarborough. The half ended with the score 17 to 16 in favor of North Plainfield. Dunning refereed the game.

LOCAL KNIGHTS SHOOT AT PATERSON TONIGHT

Plainfield Columbians will bowl on the Entre Nous alleys in Paterson tonight in a K. of C. League engagement. The Silk City Knights are showing the way in the "Kaysey" procession, and as they won two games from the locals on the Plainfielders' own drives, the Queen City representatives will have to be in their best mood to register a victory tonight.

Sport lovers in Massachusetts are making their annual attempt to break the iron rule of the preachers to the extent of allowing golf, tennis and baseball on Sunday afternoons.

PLAINFIELD A. A. IN SERIES WITH CO. M

A home-and-home series between the Plainfield A. A. and Co. M. of Somerville has been arranged. The first game will be played Saturday night, in the Somerville armary, and the second contest will take place in this city some night next week.

Charley White and Matt Wells will meet in Kansas City tomorrow night for a ten-round bout. The Chicago lightweight will have his hands full, for the Britisher is reported at his best.

Twenty cities will be represented at the next meeting of the National Amateur Baseball Association, to be held in Louisville next Saturday.

BOROUGH SOPHS COME FROM BEHIND AND FINISH AHEAD

The Sophomore team of North Plainfield High School defeated the High School team of the Y. M. C. A. yesterday, 15 to 12. The first half ended 8 to 2 against the Sophomores.

Burner, for North Plainfield, proved to be the leading point getter, securing three baskets, while Brownlee, for the losers, held even honors with the same number. The game was interesting and very rough, many fouls being called on both sides, but the foul shooters could not take advantage of free throws to help their score.

The High School team defeated the Sophomores on Plainfield High floor a short while ago, and this makes the series even. The third game will be played within a short time and the interest is keen, as the captain of the Y. M. C. A. team is a Sophomore in the North Plainfield High School, and he is out to defeat his classmates.

TRAPPING A PYTHON.

The Monster Is a Victim of His Own Greedy Appetite.

The python's weak point is its stomach; it is a glutton. Not satisfied with a full supper, it will start at once on next week's breakfast if by chance that future meal happens to be within easy reach.

A python generally lives in a hole in the ground or a hollow in a tree, but if it can find an old ruin in the jungle—and there are many old ruins in India—it likes to take up its sleeping quarters there, because even in the heaviest rains the water runs off the ruins quickly, whereas a hole in the ground is likely to be flooded. The python needs to eat only once a week, and to get that meal it lies flat along the bough of a tree near a stream and waits for its prey to come to drink.

When the natives see the long trail that the python's body makes near the bank and find a heap of ruins near by they make a hole in the ruined wall just exactly big enough for the python to get through. Then they tie a pig to a stake near the hole on one side of the wall, and on the other side of the wall opposite the hole they tie another pig to a stake. They also tie a wire to the leg or the tail of the near side pig, and as evening draws on they twist it from a distance, and the pig squeals. As the python comes home to bed it hears the squeals.

So the python comes along merrily and seizes its supper at a single bite. Down goes the pig into the big snake's throat, sucked in slowly by sheer muscular action. In about half an hour the pig has passed completely down the long neck, and in another half hour it is down a couple of yards farther into the python's stomach.

Most animals would go to sleep right away after a gorge like that. But meanwhile the second pig on the other side of the wall has realized its unhappy brother's woeful fate and has set up a most distressing noise. The python puts its head through the hole and sees it.

"Ah!" it says to itself, "Here's my next week's breakfast."

And instead of waiting for next week to come that greedy python swallows the second pig too. The wily natives wait until the second pig is well on its way down the python's body; then they have the snake caught. Pig No. 1 prevents it from advancing, and pig No. 2 prevents it from retreating. The natives lasso the python around the neck, break down the wall and pass a colt of rope between the two lumps of pig before they can amalgamate. Then they bear away the python to captivity.—"Wonders of the Jungle."

Interviewing a Humorist.

"Good morning, Wagge. What's on the carpet today?" asked Bingleton.

"Dust," said Wagge.

"Clever boy! But I mean what have you on foot?"

"Shoes," said Wagge solemnly.

"Oh, come off, Wagge. What are you up to these days?"

"Date," sighed Wagge.

"I'll give you just one more chance, you poor frivol, you. What are you doing now?"

"Everybody," said Wagge.

"As usual, eh?" said Bingleton as he shoved the remains down the nearest available coal hole.—New York Times.

—When discontent reaches a certain point, the furnished room advertisements become very interesting to some people.

Start Tomorrow and Keep It Up Every Morning

Get in the habit of drinking a glass of hot water before breakfast.

We're not here long, so let's make our stay agreeable. Let us live well, eat well, digest well, work well, sleep well, and look well. What a glorious condition to attain, and yet, how very easy it is if one will only adopt the morning inside bath.

Folks who are accustomed to feel dull and heavy when they arise, splitting headache, stuffy from a cold, foul tongue, nasty breath, acid stomach, can, instead, feel as fresh as a daisy by opening the sluices of the system each morning and flushing out the whole of the internal poisonous stagnant matter.

Everyone, whether ailing, sick or well, should, each morning, before breakfast, drink a glass of real hot water with a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate in it to wash from the stomach, liver and bowels the previous day's indigestible waste, sour bile and poisonous toxins; thus cleansing, sweetening and purifying the entire alimentary canal before putting more food into the stomach. The action of hot water and limestone phosphate on an empty stomach is wonderfully invigorating. It cleans out all the sour fermentations, gases, waste and acidity and gives one a splendid appetite for breakfast. While you are enjoying your breakfast the water and phosphate is quietly extracting a large volume of water from the blood and getting ready for a thorough flushing of all the inside organs.

The millions of people who are bothered with constipation, bilious spells, stomach trouble; others who have sallow skins, blood disorders and sickly complexions are urged to get a quarter pound of limestone phosphate from the drug store. This will cost very little, but is sufficient to make anyone a pronounced crank on the subject of inside bathing before breakfast.—Adv.

Our Mid-Winter Shoe Sale Begins Tomorrow

Feb. 10 and will run to Feb. 26

All discontinued lines of Men's, Women's, Misses', Children's, Boys' and Youth's Shoes will be placed on sale--as well as some regular lines in Men's and Women's.

You are all quite familiar with the way we conduct our semi-annual Shoe Sales. There are no shoes bought for the occasion, neither do we PRETEND to reduce everything, or CLAIM ALL SIZES and widths; but we do claim to give you genuine bargains in Van Arsdale Footwear.

You also know (as we have told you in our previous sales) that our only reason for holding these annual clearances is to reduce our stock, and get the cash, and to make room for Spring and Summer stocks, and for that reason our terms are the same as all sales conducted in the past.

STRICTLY CASH, NO EXCHANGE or refunds. 4

Insist on trying on both shoes to insure a proper fit, and the earlier you come the better the selection.

THE COAL SITUATION

The coal situation is commanding serious attention. Many of our customers are anxiously asking our opinion from day to day.

We do not pretend to know more than the other fellow, but we do not intend that our customers shall suffer if there is a coal shortage, and we are therefore keeping our bunkers filled to overflowing with the domestic sizes of coal.

This is only another evidence of our desire and ability to serve our patrons.

DEATH COMES TO G. A. CHAPMAN

Well Known Plainfielder Succumbs to Long Illness with Heart Trouble.

END WAS NOT EXPECTED

Prominent in New York Cotton Brokerage Circles for Firty Years Brokerage Circles for Forty Years field Country Club.

Following an illness that had been apparent for the past two years, George A. Chapman, one of Plainfield's best known residents, died this morning at his apartments in The Seminary, 123 West Seventh street. Heart failure is ascribed as the cause, the deceased having been afflicted with cardiacal troubles for a long time. Mr. Chapman had been able to be about, however, and his death was unexpected among his wide circle of friends.

George A. Chapman was born in New York city, and after completing his education entered the business world in the downtown financial district. When a young man he became a cotton broker, following this line of trade until four years ago at which time he retired. He had been the senior member of the firm of Chapman, Selter and Allen, which was dissolved at the time he went into retirement. This concern had a country wide reputation among the cotton trade. Mr. Chapman was a member of the New York Cotton Exchange for forty years and affiliated with kindred organizations in various parts of the United States. He enjoyed the confidence of all his business associates and had the reputation of being an expert in his particular business.

Mr. Chapman came to Plainfield thirty-five years ago and for practically all that time had resided on Stelle avenue. His removal to the Seminary was of recent date. Although he took no part in civic affairs or fraternal organizations, Mr. Chapman was a devoted worker in the First Baptist church. He was a trustee for a number of terms and for many years taught the Women's Bible class in the Sunday school department. He was an enthusiastic golfer and enjoyed the game when it was first introduced in Plainfield by the Hillside Tennis and Golf Club, the predecessor of the Plainfield Country Club. Mr. Chapman was one of the charter members of the latter organization and served as its president in its early years.

Surviving Mr. Chapman are his wife and one son, Percy A. Chapman, residing in this city. There is also one brother, Walter S. Chapman, of St. Petersburg, Fla. The funeral will be held in the First Baptist church, Saturday afternoon at three o'clock and will be in charge of Rev. Dr. Philip B. Strong. Interment will be in Hillside cemetery.

RAILROAD IMPROVEMENTS AT DUNELLEN ARE REMOTE

In an interview with a Daily Press reporter today, Joseph O. Osgood, of Myrtle avenue, chief engineer of the New Jersey Central, was emphatic in his declaration that the story printed in another newspaper last night that the railroad was to elevate its tracts and build a new station at Dunellen was entirely premature. As head of the department which arranges these matters for the company, Mr. Osgood said that he would undoubtedly know about such a proceeding, but it was news to him that anything was to be done in the near future, or in fact for years to come.

"There are many pressing improvements which are engaging the attention of the New Jersey Central," said Mr. Osgood, "and until they are disposed of no further track elevation or station building will be considered. The Dunellen matter has been talked over in the natural course of events, and will undoubtedly come about some day. That is so far off, however, that it is hardly worth talking about."

The Central officials are at the present time finishing plans for important elevation work in Elizabethport and on the Long Branch division. From the beginning of plans until the actual work is completed it requires frequently several years, so that Dunellen's chances of track elevation or new building, as told of in the story of last night, are exceedingly remote.

SUED ON A NOTE GIVEN TO FRIEND

Somerset County Court Refuses to Authorize Its Collection.

Somerville, Feb. 10.—Judge Silzer and a jury tried a suit brought by one Van Arden against the estate of John C. Shaw in the Circuit Court yesterday.

The suit was to recover $1,000 on a note bearing the date 1906. John C. Shaw was said to have given a note for the above sum to Alexander Henshaw and the defence was that Shaw never received any consideration for it. Henshaw wishing to raise some money induced Shaw to give him his note which he said, he would get a friend to discount and out of the proceeds pay Shaw what he owed him for mony loaned. Shaw gave him the note, but Henshaw was unable to get same discounted and never paid Mr. Shaw any money. A few days later, when Mr. Shaw asked him for the note Henshaw said he had destroyed it. After Mr. Shaw's death, Henshaw offered to sell the note to Fred Shaw, a son of the deceased man, for $75. Fred Shaw told him to tear it up as it was no good.

He then presented the note to Fred H. Pope, the attorney for Shaw estate, but Mr. Pope refused to honor it. Henshaw then sold the note to Van Arden for $75, who brought this suit. The jury found in favor of the defendant, no cause for action. W. J. DeWitt, of Newark, was counsel for plaintiff and F. A. Pope, of Somerville, and J. S. Frank, of New York, for defendants.

MISCHA ELMAN CHARMS AUDIENCE

Ovation Given Famous Violinist Upon Appearance at High School Auditorium.

It is a question whether any concert artist has ever been received in Plainfield with such enthusiasm as Mischa Elman, the genius who was at the Plainfield High school last night, under the auspices of the Cheerful Workers' Circle of the City Union of Kings Daughters. Every seat in the spacious auditorium of the school was occupied and seats had to be placed on the stage to accommodate the audience. The recital was for the benefit of the Day Nursery.

Every number on the program by the young violinist was followed with lengthy applause, and several encores were given. Elman swept the vast audience before him. The exquisite silky smoothness and sweetness of tone fell upon the ear like a caress. From start to finish his contributions were pure unspeakable delight. His big-voiced Stradivarius spoke in the most incisive tones and again in tones of the most beautiful and plaintive simplicity. Schubert-Wilhelmj's "Ave Maria," played by request, completely captured the entire audience, and those who were present last night will never forget the great ovation he received at the conclusion of his rendition. In every number his tone was inimitable, full-blooded and seductive; his technic was flawless and astounding and his interpretations abounded at all times with a freshness and fine insight found in no other performer ever heard in this city. The name Elman itself, speaks volumes to all who have heard him.

Elman was accompanied by Walter H. Golde, a young American pianist, whose ability in framing masterly and artistic backgrounds for the violinist's solo performances won much praise

KENYON GARDENS ASS'N ENDORSED

Committee is Named to Draft a Constitution and Articles of Incorporation.

OBJECT OF MOVEMENT

Members of Monday Afternoon Club and Alumnae Association of the Seminary Enjoy Illustrated Lecture Given by Henry G. Parsons.

Action taken after the lecture given in the parish house of the Congregational church yesterday afternoon by Henry Griscom Parsons, director of the New York University department of school gardens, on the subject of "School Gardens for Children," resulted in the following women being named on a committee to draw up a suitable constitution and articles of incorporation for the Kenyou Gardens' Association, which will be formed in this city to keep alive the memory of Miss Elvira E. Kenyon, founder of the Monday Afternoon club and a principal and founder of the Plainfield Seminary: Mrs. James W. DeGraff, Mrs. Allan Cowperthwait, Mrs. Henry D. Hibbard, Mrs. Frank J. Hubbard, Mrs. Eugene H. Hatch. The committee will announce a date for a general meeting of the Monday Afternoon club and the Alumnae Association of The Seminary in the near future, when definite steps will be taken and the tract of land for the proposed gardens acquired.

During the talk, preceding the stereopticon views of the gardens in New York city, much interest was manifested in the courses provided for the children in the cities. Mr. Parsons dwelt on the purpose of the Children's School Farm League of New York, which aims to promote and unify a world-wide interest in children's gardens. This declaration of purpose is accomplished by assisting in starting children's gardens in suitable parks and vacant lots; by assisting in starting gardens in connection with schools, until Boards of Education become convinced of their value and take over their maintenance; by assisting in starting gardens in connection with hospitals and institutions, for children who are mentally or physically weak or deficient; by urging the employment of teachers trained for children's garden work; by establishing an all-year training school for such teachers; by exhibiting models and pictures of the work for the information af the public and by maintaining a bureau of information and advice on how to start and conduct children's gardens.

One of the principle functions of the school gardens is the development of character in the child and increasing its capacity for expression. Probably in no other way is the youngster of eight and twelve years as capable of expressing its thoughts as during those four years, and the purpose of the school gardens is to give these children the opportunity to make things they find an enjoyment in doing, under proper supervision. The children are also taught to be courageous and free from all affectation. Each youthful gardener is assigned a small plot of ground in the "Garden of a Thousand Gardens," and thereafter a short talk on how to proceed in the development of that plot of ground is given the necessary utensils and seeds and proceeds to go to work. Not only are the children given the first rudiments of good citizenship, but they hold a keen enjoyment in all they do at the same time getting healthful exercise from the engagement.

DUNELLEN OFFICIAL IS TREATED RUDELY

Gets Little Satisfaction From Public Service Head When He Asks for Service.

Councilman Richard M. Ryan, who represented Dunellen at the hearing before the Publicity Utility Commission in Trenton last week on the matter of the appraisal of the property of the Public Service Company, the object of the appraisal being to ascertain whether the company's return on its investment indicates that its rates are excessive, has, upon request, delivered a report of the hearing for publication.

"I appeared before the Public Utility commissioners as a representative of this borough with data relative to the value of the company's property in Dunellen. The meeting was held at the State House and the various municipalities were represented, some through their representatives and others by the New Jersey State League of Municipalities. Thomas N. McCarter, with several of his aides, represented the Public Service Company. Representatives from Bergen, Passaic, Mercer, Gloucester, Camden, Hudson and Middlesex couties were present.

Mr. McCarter, for the Public Service Company, asked that the hearing be postponed, claiming that he was not prepared and sufficient notice had not been granted to him. He was reminded by the chairman that the company was notified on Jan. 7.

"The Chairman could not see that the objection was sufficient to delay the proceedings and called upon Mr. Jackson, of Jackson & Jackson, who was employed by the committee, to give his testimony as an expert and to examine into his qualifications for the position.

"During the recess I introduced myself to Mr. McCarter in the interest of some of my constituents who applied to the company for gas service. I told Mr. McCarter of how they had been refused and how the Council had also taken up the matter and were refused in turn on the plea that the extension would cost the company too much money. Mr. McCarter turned on me and asked me how Dunellen could expect anything in the face of the fact that the investigators were probing for a reduction in rates. 'I have no sympathy for you or your friends,' he said. 'You, by your presence here, representing the little suburban village of Dunellen, aid this investigation and strengthen the hands of the investigators.'

"I told Mr. McCarter that I had not approached him to argue with him as to the merits or demerits of the investigation, but to present a fact to him in the interest of my friends, and that his company's methods of individualizing branches instead of taking them as a part of the whole plant was part of his trouble. The tilt ended by Mr. McCarter telling me that if I wrote him a letter on the subject he would investigate it."

THE FORUM

Editor, Plainfield Daily Press:

It seems an injustice to the fair-minded merchants of this city that such prominence should have been given to the alleged attack of A. C. Force on the ten-hour law for women. I wish particularly to call attention to the paragraph in which Mr. Force is said to have stated that "Seventy-five per cent. of the shopping women would be in favor of having female help in stores during the entire twelve hours on Saturday if issue were put to a vote." It seems to me that every woman that I know in Plainfield would vote "No" on such a proposition, and I certainly wish at the earliest possible moment to place myself on that list.

EAT LESS MEAT IF BACK HURTS

Take a Glass of Salts to Flush Kidneys if Bladder Bothers You.

Eating meat regularly eventually produces kidney trouble in some form or other, says a well-known authority, because the uric acid in meat excites the kidneys, they become overworked, set sluggish, clog up and cause all sorts of distress, particular backache and misery in the kidney region; rheumatic twinges, severe headaches, acid stomach, constipation, torpid liver, sleeplessness, bladder and urinary irritation.

The moment your back hurts or kidneys are troubling you, or urine bother you, get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any good pharmacy; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then be fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to flush clogged kidneys and stimulate them to normal activity; also to neutralize the acids in the urine so it no longer irritates, thus ending bladder disorders.

Jad Salts cannot injure anyone and makes a delightful effervescent lithia water drink which millions of men and women take now and then to keep the kidneys and urinary organs clean, thus avoiding serious kidney disease.

DRINK HOT TEA FOR A BAD COLD

Get a small package of Hamburg Breast Tea, or as the German folks call it, "Hamburger Brust Thee," at any pharmacy. Take a tablespoonful of the tea, put a cup of boiling water upon it, pour through a sieve and drink a teacup full at any time. It is the most effective way to break a cold and cure grip, as it opens the pores, relieving congestion. Also loosens the bowels, thus breaking a cold at once.

It is inexpensive and entirely vegetable, therefore harmless.—Adv.

MY TIRED FEET ACHED FOR "TIZ"

Let your sore, swollen, aching feet spread out in a bath of "Tiz."

Just take your shoes off and then put those weary, shoecrinkled, aching, burning, corn-pestered, bunion-tortured feet of yours in a "Tiz" bath. Your toes will wriggle with joy; they'll look up at you and almost talk and then they'll take another dive in that "Tiz" bath.

When your feet feel like lumps of lead—all tired out—just try "Tiz." It's grand—it's glorious. Your feet will dance with joy; also you will find all pain gone from corns, callouses and bunions.

There's nothing like "Tiz." It's the only remedy that draws out all the poisonous exudations which puff up your feet and cause foot torture.

Get a 25-cent box of "Tiz" at any drug or department store—don't wait. Ah! how glad your feet get; how comfortable your shoes feel. You can wear shoes a size smaller if you desire.

BE PRETTY! TURN GRAY HAIR DARK

Try Grandmother's Old Favorite Recipe of Sage Tea and Sulphur.

Almost everyone knows that Sage Tea and Sulphur, properly compounded, brings back the natural color and lustre to the hair when faded, streaked or gray; also ends dandruff, itching scalp and stops falling hair. Years ago the only way to get this mixture was to make it at home, which is mussy and troublesome. Nowadays, by asking at any drug store for "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound," you will get a large bottle of this famous old recipe for about 50 cents.

Don't stay gray! Try it! No one can possibly tell that you darkened your hair, as it does it so naturally and evenly. You dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning the gray hair disappears, and after another application or two, your hair becomes beautifully dark, thick and glossy.—Adv.

A Galley o' Fun!

THE SCORE FIEND.

Now that base ball is abroad in the land, it is apropos to speak briefly of the score fiend.

The score fiend is to be found both in the grand-stand and on the bleacher. Not so vociferous as the rooter, nor so tormenting as a woman, he is worse than the two put together.

The genuine score fiend is a quiet, patient individual, with a stubby lead-pencil and an anxious frown. When you have set next to him once, you will recognize him next time and shy off.

His is the stern resolve to tabulate for each player in each inning, on the score card, assists, put outs, errors, base hits, and all the rest of these vastly important facts. Then, when the game is ended, he tears up the card.

All through the game he is in a state of watchfulness; his strained attention and his mental struggles showing in the wrinkles of his forehead.

Brilliant plays matter not to him. At a critical stage in the contest a man lines out a hot one to short-stop, who misses it. The crowd is on its feet, yelling like mad. The score fiend cheers not. No; not he! He inquires, earnestly:

"Did the short-stop touch it? Think not? Ah! that's a base hit, then."

Thereupon he sinks back in his seat, inscribes a hieroglyphic sign to the northeast corner of the diamond opposite the batter's name and patiently awaits for something to place in the southeast corner.

The bases are full, and a batter of the local team brings everybody in, himself reaching third. Pandemonium!—but with the score fiend and his brother score fiends cold as icicles.

"That was only a two base hit. Error for center," he remarks, and his little pencil records these marvelous items.

Second jumps high into the air, and gobbles, with one hand, a ball that was going like a streak. The score fiend rewards this brilliant by saying, sotto voice:

"That ought to have been a safe hit," and he impassively makes a note of it.

The score fiend never gets excited—save when he is unable to decide whether that was an error, or this was a base hit, or something else was an assist. He never shouts, "Kill the umpire!"

If the umpire should be killed, the score fiend would, of course, conscientiously enter the incident on his score card, in the proper place.

And, as I have said, when the game is over the score fiend, his labors finished, destroys the product of his afternoon.

HIS OBJECTION.

"Moneygrub is apprehensive of the tendency to organize Trusts in all lines of business."

"He is? Why?"

"Why, he fears that after a while the Trusts will be engaged in cut throat competition."

RIVAL SUBURBAN EXHIBITS.

"We got red porch-chairs, just like Jones'."

"Well, Jones' cook says their cook says the whole Jones family were mad, staid up all night to paint their chairs bright green."

IN THE OLDEN TIME.

"Ah! The barrister is on his way to court. A great lawyer, forsooth! Hast ever seen him cross-examine?"

"Yea; oft have I seen him make a witness look like two shillings and six-pence!"

A GOOD IMITATION OF PRIDE.

Osmond—Guy struts like a man in his first dress suit.

Desmond—Well, hardly that;—he struts like a man in his first rented dress suit.

MIGHT HAVE HAD IT.

Nodd—I made enough money in Wall street last week to buy a yacht.

Todd—You didn't do it, did you?

Nodd (gloomily)—No; but I wish I had now!

FELT LIKE IT.

"By the way, how much is a mark?" asked the other man, casually.

"Thirty cents!" was the positive reply of the party who had recently been sold a suburban home.

CHILDREN PRESENT INTERESTING PROGRAM

Bryant-Lincoln Parent-Teacher Ass'n Meeting is Largely Attended.

The monthly meeting of the Bryant-Lincoln Parent-Teacher Association, held at the Lincoln School yesterday afternoon, attracted an unusually large number of parents and others interested in this work. During the afternoon, Miss Addie Parker Jackson, physical director of the high school, gave an interesting and helpful talk on "The Growth of the Body."

The afternoon's program was presented by the children of the Lincoln school, after which there was a social hour and refreshments. The program follows: Song, fifth grade, (a) "Whispering Hope," (b) "Lullaby!", recitation, "Which?" MINSTRELS OF TRIPOLI.

Mysterious Musicians Who Flit From Place to Place at All Hours.

The strange music and mysterious musicians heard and seen in Tripoli are described by Mrs. Mabel L. Todd in her book, "Tripoli the Mysterious:"

"The children are possessed of wonderful mental quickness. They acquire languages without effort, and the street urchins use easily French, Italian and all the languages that are current in their narrow streets. The strange music of the city, too—the weird chants, the cymbals, flageolets and queer stringed instruments—deeply impresses the American visitor.

"Sometimes at dawn, when roofs and minarets were dazzlingly white against the sapphire sky, while yet the labyrinthine streets at the bottoms of stucco canyons lay in twilight gray, strange men from the desert would stalk by, making uncanny music.

"One of them, very tall and blacker than most, was dressed in a low necked, short sleeved garment, greatly abbreviated as to skirts, playing melodies in a minor mode unknown to the west, and his stride was full of a dignity well nigh appalling.

"The instrument slightly resembled a Scotch bagpipe decorated with barbaric strings of shells and beads, an inflated skin with a primitive mouthpiece and at the opposite end two pointed projections like horns. His companion beat upon a curious little tomtom and now and then sang a bloodcurdling chant.

"Black boys followed, jumped, shouted, danced like wild creatures, excited beyond all bounds by this oddly compelling music as the rhythm penetrated and seized their imagination. Although these men of mystery generally passed about sunrise, they sometimes went by in the night. Once or twice the weird performance took place about 2 o'clock in the morning. The minstrels always walked with peculiar swiftness, intent upon the serious business in hand."

FIRE LOSS IS BILLIONS.

Canada's Parliament Buildings Cover Four Acres on Top of a Hill.

The parliament buildings at Ottawa recently damaged by a fire believed to have been started by a bomb, are the chief attraction of the city, especially the buildings on Parliament hill. The library of parliament, which contains upward of 200,000 volumes, crowns the boldest promontory that juts into the Ottawa river. It is topped by a gothic tower which dominates the quadrangle of government buildings.

The buildings are entirely gothic, the parliament building, 470 feet long and 40 feet high, forming the main front, with the Victoria tower rising 180 feet above the principal entrance.

The parliament building contains the senate chamber and house of commons, the dimensions of these halls being the same as those of the house of lords, 80 by 45 feet, electrically lighted. The whole building is constructed of light colored sandstone, the walls and arches being relieved with cut stone dressings of sandstone and red sandstone. Two departmental buildings, each with a 375 foot frontage stand back from the main building a distance of about 100 yards.

The entire group of parliament buildings was erected between 1859 and 1865 at a cost of $5,000,000. The cornerstone of the main building was laid by the then Prince of Wales in 1860. The buildings altogether cover about four acres.

Edward C. Searing, foreman of the Plainfield Daily Press composing room, who has been detained at his home on Park avenue by illness, is improving slowly.

C. O. S. HAS MANY CASES "UNDER CARE"

Although There is Less Distress the Need for Help Among Poor is Great.

The report of the Charity Organization Society for January shows that, notwithstanding improved conditions in Plainfield, the society is still called upon to give considerable relief. The report follows:

"With the report of the Charity Organization for January the first third of the year ends, and a decrease is shown in the receipts over last year. This is probably due partly to the idea that is prevalent, and which, to some degree is correct, that conditions in Plainfield this winter are greatly improved, there being fewer unemployed than a yeyar ago, and therefore less distress; and partly to the calls for help from abroad which cannot be denied, and which, perhaps, deflect some per of tht society's income. But while the distress is somewhat less acute, we are feeling this winter the aftermath of a hard year; it takes time to rehabilitate a family, and there are always the incompetent and sick to plan and care for. For these reasons the expenditures are of necessity heavy, more so than in a normal year. In giving generously to aid the suffering across the seas, do not forget the just as urgent call from neighbors here in Plainfield.

"The job the society has to handle is twofold. It exists for the purpose of giving good advice; it is not so much for the purpose of doing something for people as it is for the purpose of doing something with them, and of putting them in a position to help themselves, which is the only permanent way of bettering them, and to give material relief. During the month 165 cases were 'under care,' of which 157 were resident and eight homeless. In addition to this number 370 cases were investigated for out-of-town agencies, four for local agencies, and there were thirty-five cases where a letter or interview only were necessary. Of the 165 families, 75 needed material relief in addition to the working out of and planning for their particular problem. Four hundred and eight-two dollars were spent on these cases in food, fuel, clothing, etc. In thirteen families the male head of the family was dead, twenty-two incapacitated and twenty-one non-supporting. For this last class it is hoped that a workhouse will some day be established which will in some degree be a remedy for this evil, where men would rather go to jail, where they can be able, than work and support their families. Fifteen prescriptions were filled and second-hand clothing was given to eleven families. The demand for second-hand clothing is always greater than the supply, and donations of this character are put to immediate use.

"Don't forget the concert which is to be given by the Musurgi Sixteen on March 21, for the benefit of the society, handicapped, but too hope it of the people of Plainfield to handically."

DENTAL SOCIETY HEARS PAPER BY DR. HILLMAN

Members of the Plainfield Dental Society held their monthly meeting in the Homestead on Washington avenue last night, one of the features of the evening's program being a paper read by Dr. Guy Hillman. The meeting followed the usual dinner and was attended by a representative delegation of members.

Topics of interest to the profession came in for a share of the discussion at Dr. Hillman's paper, and all were subjects of vital interest to dentists.

Easy is the Resolution, Difficult the Execution

Two hundred and fifty years ago there lived in the city of Cremona a little, weazened old man, who said, "Other men will make other Violins but no man will ever make a better one."

And Stradivarius was right; no man has, even unto this day!

On March 30th, 1912, when I first opened my store, I too, resolved that although other men will conduct other Clothing Stores, no man will ever conduct a better one.

Nor has one, even unto this day!

I look back upon the short stretch of years with a feeling of pride and pleasure, and as I resolved then, so do I resolve today, that—

The spirit of commercial righteousness which has slowly transformed this store into one of the best of its kind in this city, will go on and on, and on, as long as I lend this business the dearest of all earthly possessions—my good name.

DEPENDING ON GOODNESS OF OTHERS HAS NOT HELPED ARMENIA, DECLARES GARDNER, IN PREPAREDNESS PLEA

(Congressman Augustus P. Gardner of Massachusetts is the leading advocate of preparedness in the Republican party. In the following article, written for this paper, he sets forth some of the reasons why he favors a better army and a bigger navy.—The Editor.)

By Hon. Augustus P. Gardner.

Mr. Bryan exclaims that it will mark a change in this nation's policy if we arm ourselves to defend our rights. Just so it will be a change, precisely as it was a change in our policy when we purchased a third part of this great country from Napoleon and precisely as it was a change in our policy when we destroyed slavery by force of arms. Are we to understand that this nation must never change its policies? Does Mr. Bryan deny the countless waste of lives and treasure which in our previous wars has resulted from our defencelessness and does he shrink from a new policy which would prevent that waste?

Hon. Augustus P. Gardner.

Because the thought of war is indigestible for the pacificist, is that a good reason for flying in the face of history and human nature? Undefended America is indeed a dainty morsel but where does history or fable tell us of a hungry wolf respecting the defencelessness of an unprotected fold?

Armenia or Ireland—Which is Happiest?

"But," says Mr. Bryan, "if you arm for defense you will pick a quarrel with your neighbor. Arm a man with a revolver and he will long to shoot someone." Well, Mr. Bryan himself was armed with a revolver in the Spanish war. Did he long for a human mark on which to display his prowess? Did his forefinger itch to pull the trigger and send some mother's darling boy to an untimely grave? We arm our police force with revolvers. Does that circumstance tend to encourage homicidal mania among patrolmen? Oh, this degeneration of idealism, this persistent refusal to face the facts of existence, this flap doddle fancy that soft answers will placate savages and that vacilities will satisfy vampires. If Carnegie and Ford were right in their fantasies, Armenia today would be a land flowing with milk and honey. The policy of the Armenian has been the policy of Mr. Bryan, the policy of peaceful persuasiveness. The policy of the Irishman has been exactly the opposite. He has been far outnumbered by the Englishman, but he hasn't taken much stock in pudgy, pacificist platitudes and he has always been conciliatory. On the contrary, for a thousand years or so he has followed a fairly consistent plan of raising particular Gehenna when he didn't fancy the way things were going. The result is that no one that I know of displays any especial alacrity to tread on the tail of the Hibernian coat.

Treaties often "Scraps of Paper."

But nowadays we are told that the true solution of international difficulties in the future will lie in the direction of arbitration treaties.

I used to believe that great nations would observe treaties even when they desire to break them. It is not so. If Belgium had put more faith in preparation for war and less faith in that treaty now known as the "scrap of paper," the invasion of France would have taken place along the Verdun-Toul line, and today Belgium would probably be free from the invader's heel, just as Switzerland is free from the invader's heel. Treaties in the Balkan states are apparently regarded in the same light in which Germany regarded her guarantee of Belgium's neutrality, and Greece's sense of her obligation to Servia did not stand the acid test of danger.

The fact of the matter is that Uncle Sam himself has not always toed the mark in the matter of living up to his treaties. To be sure, the other parties to our broken treaties were only Indians and Chinamen, but heaven knows that Indians and Chinamen were always wily enough even before we set them this example in wiliness.

If we are going into the business of arbitrating our difficulties with foreign nations, let us look the field over and see what sort of questions we shall be called upon to arbitrate.

Chinese Exclusion.

Take for instance the laws and agreement under which Chinese and Japanese are excluded from this country. Ask the next labor man you see or ask any man from the Pacific coast whether he will consent to arbitrate the question of Chinese exclusion and risk a decree from some International Court admitting into this country hordes of Chinese and Japanese. Just ask him and hear what he says. Ask the editor of this newspaper whether he would care to advocate the arbitration of the Monroe Doctrine.

It is no use under heaven to establish an International Court just to arbitrate questions which we never would fight about anyway. We can settle that kind of difficulty by diplomacy or by special arbitration tribunals without creating an International Court to govern the whole world.

EVANGELIST TELLS OF "GREAT NEED OF CHURCH"

"The Great Need of the Church" was the theme of Evangelist Renicks in his discourse at the revival at the German Reformed church last night, the sermon being taken from Luke's Gospel and the Acts of the Apostles. The evangelist declared that the church has everything but the power of the Holy Ghost. He said that she has education, culture, refinement, beautiful singing, costly edifices, 20 per cent. of the world's money in her hands, and, in the language of the Laodicean church, "we are rich and increased with goods, and have need of nothing," but God's estimate of her is, "wretched and miserable and poor and blind and naked."

Mr. Renicks said that Christians should be upright, downright and all right. There is no infidel platform today, he said, but the infidelity is among professing Christians. The subject for tonight will be "The Holy Spirit in the Life of Christ." There will be a service every evening except Sunday, with afternoon meetings tomorrow and Sunday at 3 o'clock. There is a song service at 7:30, followed by preaching at 7:45 o'clock.

How Paul H. Burns Made the Best Use of His Spare Time.

The Telephone Review, in the current issue, contains the following story of interest concerning Paul H. Burns, formerly local manager for the New York Telephone Company, who still resides in Plainfield:

"Another instance of the unusual results of intensive use of spare time is seen in the career of Paul H. Burns, attorney of the company. Mr. Burns was in the commercial office in Plainfield, N. J., and not content with his duties of commercial nature, he undertook to study law in the evenings. It is an ambitious thing to try to become a lawyer when one already has his days well filled with work, but Mr. Burns accomplished it, and passed his bar examinations. Presently things came about. "Heaven helps those who help themselves." Never was there a truer saying. The general attorney's department of the New York Telephone Company was being formed. An assistant was needed. Who should it be? A trained lawyer? A telephone man? Certain qualities of both were required, but only one man was needed. What was the answer? Mr. Burns. Here was a man who was both a telephone man and a lawyer; his years of practical telephone experience were valuable for the work of the new legal department. To find, added to this good foundation of practical telephone knowlege, the necessary acquaintance with the law, was a consummation which could hardly have been hoped for. Mr. Burns was taken over to the legal department and later became an attorney for the company.

"The experience of these two men bears witness as nothing else can to the possibilities of spare time. If we make it count for something of permanent value, the results will be worth while.

"If the line of least resistance lies toward the work in which we are engaged, it is often possible to reach higher attainments in our own departments than in other fields, by the same degree of intensive application; or if we are better qualified for success in some other department, the Telephone Company affords wide fields in which to develop in the work for which we are best fitted."

Plainfield, N. J., February 10, 1916.

TO A DUNELLEN FRIEND.

In our mail today was found a scathing letter from one who hides behind the signature "Dunellenite," and who claims to be a friend of the Press. Never did such language come from the mouth of friend before and the wrathful "Dunellenite" must have used the fiery pen of a Brann dipped in the ink of prejudice.

Here is a part of his letter—that part which is so worded that we can print it without blushing:

The Plainfield Press:

Whom are you serving: The people or the coal hogs?

Hope when you go to your new home you will stop blowing about the Press and tell the truth.

What a joke! A coal dealer fined for selling grain.

We thought you pepole were brave, not sheep, like some other people. They called it coal—the News did. Which was it?

Do you think only fools read newspapers? Throw away your mask when you move. Tell the truth. Serve the people.

DUNELLENITE.

Dear friend of Dunellen, the Press told the truth, the whole truth and nothing but the truth about the case that you have in mind. It was not for us to go behind the legal action of state officials and make the charges that you imply. Both coal dealers were arrested for a technical violation of a law which requires that duplicate slips be delivered with all grain and coal. Do not blame the Press that the officer picked out a grain case. Do not blame the Press that the state inspector failed to make legal charges comprising the illegalities which you declare existed. He would have made an arrest if he could have proven this. He did not. If these charges are true, you have the right to make complaint, and when you bring the matter into court, or he brings it into court or it becomes a court record in any manner, we will print the case and print it fairly.

You point out that another story of the cases mentioned by you did say that it was "coal" instead of "grain." Subsequent developments have proven that charges made elsewhere had to be retracted. Sometimes when newspapers are not careful to print the truth and nothing but the truth, a certain law is invoked which causes regret.

There are times when it is hard to separate the truth from wild rumors or opinions; when a newspaper can get the truth only after careful and patient investigation, and this was one of the cases. The Press hopes to tell the truth about everything, but it also aims to tell nothing but the truth; for to put into print the foolish chatter of prejudiced persons is to assume responsibility for their utterances—and that is not one of the duties or the Fourth Estate. Our friend in Dunellen would have us be fair with our readers, which is all the excuse we have for existence; but to single out an individual or a company for unfair treatment is to stray from this principle. Oftimes it is hard to be fair when popular opinion demands unfairness, but the Press will strive to be truthful even when it is in the minority, and that is the real test of honesty in journalism.

"I couldn't watch her all the time," a sobbing mother told the Chief of Police in Plainfield yesterday in explaining why her seventeen-year-old girl went wrong. The big-hearted policemen, who has fought against temptation of the young of this city for more than a quarter of a century, knew that she had done her best and failed through no fault of her own, and she knew the police had done their part to protect the girl. Who is responsible? Not the two young men arrested with her, for they were tempted by her. Not the negro storekeeper in whose room she was found, for she knocked at his door and asked for admittance. There is a guilty party somewhere in the background, and he has not been touched. His name did not come out in the trial of the little girl and he is still free to tempt other little girls. The police are helpless because they have no evidence and no legal grounds for action. There is no punishment that fits the crime except social ostracism, and such a sentence is not within the authority of the police court judge.

The Rev. "Billy" Sunday devoted several minutes of his time the other day to a prayer for the newspaper reporters on duty at the meeting and others at work over the city and state. While more than 6,000 people bared their heads, "Billy" asked for Divine guidance and strength for the men who gather the news of the world. There are an awful lot of preachers in the world who will admit that newspaper men need prayer, but most of them are afraid that it would be a waste of breath.

In imposing stiff fines on those who create disorder on public streets Mayor Calkins is striking at the most flagrant violation of law and the misdemeanor that causes the most inconvenience to decent citizens. A few examples in police court will serve to break up the habit of loud talking and sometimes cursing on the streets and will force men to take their private troubles to a private place for settlement.

Press reports of yesterday carry stories of anarchy in Portugal, which probably means that Spanish hate has begun to make itself felt in the little sister country. Soon we may expect to see two more European countries busily engaged in the modern pastime of destruction.

Prince Oscar is reported fatally wounded again; the Kaiser's illness is said to be serious; stories from England tell of the fear entertained for the recovery of King George from his recent accident. These European rulers are stirring up an awful lot of trouble for men so near the grave.

In addition to patriots and ex-presidents, Mexico now has typhus

Old Doc. Cook is demanding vindication. Does he want the entire United States to go to the pole and examine his records.

London had to call on Plainfield for protection against the Zeppelins.

WHO WILL OFFER HOMES?

The Biederwolf devotional committee, of which the Rev. Dr. Philip B Strong, pastor of the First Baptist church, is chairman, is very desirous to learn as speedily as possible the names of those who will open their homes in the various parts of the city for cottage prayer meetings, either Tuesday or Friday evening of each week, beginning with next week and continuing until the campaign opens. Such parties are requested to send their names at once to their several pastors, who will report to Dr. Strong. It is desired to have as many fair-sized prayer meetings as possible, rather than fewer very large ones. These meetings will be brief, not exceeding forty-five minutes in length.

On the Spur of the Moment

Ode to Our False Teeth.

Our set of false teeth is a prize,
We're able now to Fletcherize;
And we are not confined to soup.
We do things now we couldn't do
Before. We can be biting, too,
When to sarcastic talk we stoop.

It ain't no fun to go and sit Down to a banquet, not a bit,
When you have no way fer to chaw.
It makes a feller jealous, quite,
To see the others fellers bite—
The jealousest you ever saw.

Our false teeth make quite a hit
With us. There's not a doubt of it.
They're very handy things to own.
We take 'em with greatest ease
And wear 'em just when we durned please.
Quite fond of them we've really grown.

They are a very pretty sight;
When they are in the glass at night
I love to sit and watch 'em shine.
They have a warm place in my heart.
I tell you what, I'll never part
With them there shiny teeth of mine.

It almost moves a man to tears
When he's been gummin' it for years
To know he's found a friend at last.
That he kin up and be quite rash,
And order steak instead of hash,
And that his gruel days are past.

Just before the curtain rose on a performance of "Hamlet" in a small Michigan town one night, one of the actors turned confidently toward another who had just joined the troupe. "Our leading man, Jones,' he said in a whisper, "is a little timid about appearing tonight."

"What in the deuce is the matter with him?" wonderingly demanded the other. "He shouldn't have stage fright; he has been on the boards for years."

"Yes, I know," answered the first, "but this is the first time that he has ever been billed for two night in one town."

U. S. ASTOR THEATRE

Mary Pickford in "A Girl of Yesterday," in which she achieves the artistic triumph of the season, will be the attraction again today at the U. S. Astor Theatre, where it was shown the first time yesterday afternoon. As the Astor is the only theatre in Plainfield in which "America's little sweetheart" may be seen on the screen, a large attendance is anticipated tonight and the management urges patrons to come early if they desire to have seats. "A Girl of Yesterday" affords Mary Pickford opportunity to be all kinds of Mary Pickford. One sees her in a gay mood a sad mood and every other mood in the gamut of human emotions. Her piquancy and her remarkably expressive features have made Mary Pickford beloved by thousands and she shows plainly in this subject why she is so popular. "A Girl of Yesterday" cannot be commended too highly. Tomorrow and Saturday another popular stage and film star will be seen on the Astor screen, when dainty Marie Doro will appear in the Famous Players' production of "The White Pearl," an engrossing tale of Japan, in which Miss Doro does quite the best work of her career.

"A PARISIAN ROMANCE"
WILLIAM FOX PRODUCTION
At Proctor's Today.

"A Parisian Romance," the famous William Fox production, will be presented at Proctor's for the last time tonight. Dorothy Green and Cooper Cliffe are co-stars and are both artists of big reputation. The production itself is taken from one of the biggest successes of America's foremost tragedian, the late Richard Mansfield. It is in five parts and the beautiful photography and splendid settings are in keeping with the well-acted story. By special arrangement with the Triangle Corporation, the management of Proctor's is offering for the latter part of the week, starting today, those two Keystone favorites, Roscoe Arbuckle and Mabel Normand, who appear in a novel Keystone feature entitled "Fatty and Mabel Adrift." This production is entirely different from those usually released under the Keystone brand, and is treated in a new and novel manner by the producer, Mack Sennett. A powerful dramatic and emotional screen production will make its appearance at Proctor's for the two last days of the week, Friday and Saturday, entitled "The Corner," starring Willard Mack, the versatile Triangle favorite, and George Fawcett, the renowned character actor. The vaudeville entertainment presented for the latter half of the week includes Romanoff, Frank & Co., consisting of seven talented artists, who present a whole show on a small scale; The Great Johnson, a magician whose work is heralded with that of the greatest in his line; Dorothy Kenton, a charming miss who will entertain with several difficult banjo selections, and Ilia Grannon and Victor Stone, who sing, dance and serve good wholesome comedy in their refined offering. Tomorrow the latest episode of "The Red Circle" will be shown as an added attraction, and on Saturday afternoon the children will receive handsome toys from the management. Don't forget about "The Strange Case of Mary Page." You will see it shortly at Proctor's Theatre. Watch for it!

∴ Plainfield Theatre ∴

When the restaurants on the Great White Way turned their dining rooms into dance halls, and this sort of thing ran riot for a time, many predicted the dancing fad would be of short duration. But there is another phase that was not taken into consideration: namely, that dancing is one of the refined modes of healthful exercise. It is a pleasant and companionable diversion, the refinement of grace and action. In all the ages of the world, dancers have held high places in the affections of those who admire gracefulness.

Dancing received its first impetus in this country from the minstrel stage, and the minstrel still stands for the model of certain kinds of dancing greatly admired by all who are at all partial to dancing. Al. G. Field has devoted more of his program than ever before to dancing as gram than ever before to dancing acts, and about everything that can be done with the feet in the way of dancing is presented in the various dancing numbers originated by Dennie O'Neil and participated in by more than twenty dancers who have won fame for the excellence of their work. The high-class dances of the day, all the novelty dances, the prettiest of ball-room number and the roly-poly medley of dances of the plantation kind are featured in the minstrel program. NEWARK AMUSEMENTS

It was indeed a happy occasion for theatregoers when Joe Weber induced Henry Blossom and Victor Herbert to again unite their talent for writing of musical comedy, if but half of the many complimentary things which were said regarding their newest joint writing, "The Only Girl," which will have its production next week at the Shubert Theatre, Newark.

Among the many charms of this delightful work is the fact that it is distinctly original in its construction and at every point insists on getting out of step with that interminable line of entertainment called musical comedy, whose chief aim seems to be that it shall not differ in any conspicuous way from the others that have preceded it. The librettist, who is not exactly a woman-hater, for he has as his friends a soubrette and some of the chorus girls from his last show, but has no idea of giving his love to one woman, expects to meet a young man, but the writer of the music turns up in a very pretty young woman.

The entire New York cast, which includes Wilda Bennett, Vivian Wessell, Louise Kelley, Olga Roller, Leona Stephens, Thurston Hall, John Findlay, Ernest Torrence, Joel Prouty, Richard Bartlett and the others, will be seen in the production in this city.

Daddy's Bedtime Story

How a Little Boy, Icarus, Tried to Fly to the Sun.

The Sun Melted the Wax of His Wings.

TWO children perched on the arms of daddy's chair after supper, and this is what he told them: "The bird wings that a Greek father made for himself and his little son to escape from a king's punishment carried them safely over three Greek islands, when suddenly the boy began to forget his father's command to fly low. Icarus looked up into the beautiful fluffy clouds and, sure now of his strength, decided to try to fly up to visit the sun. 'I am tired of flying so near the earth with daddy,' he said to himself. 'I want to skim the sky and see what the sun is made of, and then I want to dip down into the sea like the gulls do. There is no more fun near the earth.' So he spread his little wings and, taking a deep breath, soared far above his father, up, up into the deep gold of the sunlight."

"Did his father see him fly away?" asked Jack.

"Wasn't he a least bit afraid?" cried Evelyn.

"But the intense heat of the sun melted the wax on his wing feathers, and off they came. Icarus went on moving his arms, but they were now bare. He fluttered about a moment and then began to fall, and as he fell he shouted wildly to his father to save him. When the father, Daedalus, saw feathers floating about on the water he called: 'Icarus, Icarus! Where are you?' Just then his little son plunged headlong into the sea."

"Oh, dadd," cried both children.

But daddy seemed not to hear and went on with the story:

"Then the sea nymphs, who had watched with wonder and delight this flight of the bird man, were touched with pity for the crazy end of the boy. As he fell into the sea they held a bed of crimson seaweeds to receive him and hurried it pearly and lustrous from the deep. When they heard Daedalus moan for his lost son they set the bells on their coral reefs ringing and the voices of the [illegible] wailed out [illegible] 'I'll remember!' Soon as Daedalus heard the bells he [illegible] for he thought, 'Icarus wants me to know that he has learned the lesson of disobedience, which caused his death, and here for his sake I will warn all who'll listen.'

"So he sailed back to Athens and found his little son. Then he named the land Icaria in memory of his boy. Then on, on to the beautiful Italian island of Sicily he sailed, where he hung up his own wings in Apollo's temple. But from that day to this, when the sea waves sweep over the coral reefs and stir the shells that lie on the wonderful floor of the sea, bells softly murmur: 'I'll remember! I'll remember!'"

"Oh, what a lovely story, daddy," cried Evelyn. "Let me give you two kisses for it."

Marrying for Money

BY MRS. EVA LEONARD

Ortrude Townsend Talks of Manners—in a Slightly Unmannerly Way.

The day had been hot and stifling in the store, and every listless movement Jacob Townsend made told of utter weariness. He was ready for his dessert and, leaning back in his chair, he drew up his elbows and straightened his shoulders to relieve the nervous tension in his back. Ortrude looked up and seeing the gesture paused with her cup half way to her mouth.

"J. C., I do wish you would not stretch at the table; such manners are very undignified, to say the least."

Louder than Jacob's "Pardon me" was heard Marian's strident whisper:

"Listen to the school ma'am. She still imagines she's training children."

A flush rose on Ortrude's face as she looked angrily at the girl, who serenely ate her dinner apparently unconscious of all that was passing.

"I do not propose to allow any impudence, young lady. It is a pity you had not received a little more training from some one." Ortrude rang the bell and Mrs. Tupper appeared with the tray. Marian looked down her nose and a profound silence reigned through the remainder of the meal. Marian and Dudley excused themselves at the earliest possible moment, and when they had passed beyond hearing Ortrude said in a low tone vibrant with anger:

"Do you intend to let that girl be impudent to me and not even reprimand her?"

"Ortrude, you bring these things on yourself. If you have so little tact that you will correct me before my children you can expect nothing but resentment."

"Then why do you do things that grate on me?" she retorted.

"If I do, I am sorry. Surely you could speak about these things when we are by ourselves. I assure you it grates on me to be publicly called down, and when it comes to manners it is as bad, according to my code, as stretching at the table." Jacob rose and started for the door. Before leaving he turned and said:

"Dr. Ellson invited us over to play cards this evening. Can you go?"

"Yes, indeed; anything for a change," said Ortrude, brightening.

As Jacob was going down the walk Marian ran after him, saying: "Daddy, wait a minute. Did I understand that you and—that woman were going out this evening?"

"Yes," said Jacob wearily. "Why?"

"Can I have some of the girls in for a little informal good time, the last before I go? We could not have any fun if she were in the house." Marian tossed her head spitefully.

"I suppose you can if Mrs. Tupper is willing to do the extra work," replied the father.

"Oh, Tupper is always ready to do anything I want her to." Marian smiled gaily into his troubled face.

"Don't you know you make things very hard for me when you forget yourself as you did this noon?" continued her father as they walked along.

"Now you need not expect me to keep still while she sits there and picks flaws in my Daddy, for I can't do it, so there." Jacob said nothing and she squeezed his arm.

"If she does it again why don't you propose that we have an experience meeting and each tell the others what we think is wrong with them. Maybe she'd see light." A flicker of a smile passed over Jacob's face.

"Remember, you can help most by keeping still, and I am sure you want to help, Marian. Isn't it so?"

"Truly, I'll try, dear," she whispered.

Breakfast in the Sky.

The little moon put on a bib
Made out of misty cloud,
And if she spills her share of rain,
It's just what she's allowed.

The very hungry baby stars
Arise before the day
To fill their shiny mugs of cream
From off the milky way.

The Little Dipper feeds the moon;
The big one feeds the sun;
But he is never satisfied,
For when his meal is done

He drinks the dewdrops off the grass,
And in a single hour
He empties all the breakfast cups
Held by each thirsty flower.

—GARRET N. WILFY.

"MOTHER."

After the battle that day you could not hear yourself talk any more in the trenches for the cries of the wounded. It was like one great uninterrupted wail. * * * Then, little by little, silence came, as a good many of them died. What we heard sound longest on the battlefield, from one end to the other—was the word "Mother!" It is always those who are dying who call like that; we know that now.—Letter from a War Nurse.

Federal Child Labor Bill.

The House of Representatives has passed the Owen-Keating bill, which is known to us as the child labor law. The general purpose of the bill is to prevent the employment of children under the age of sixteen in quarries and mines, and in industrial establishments or factories under the age of fourteen. The bill was opposed by the Representatives from the Southern States, where no such State laws can be secured.

The bill will now come before the Senate, where it may be held up indefinitely. It will aid the passage of the bill if you will write to your Senator at Washington asking him to vote for the bill. At their last meeting the Mothers' Association, of Plainfield, instructed their secretary to write such a letter for the association.

Certified Milk.

Certified milk is not just guaranteed milk from a certain dairy. It is milk whose purity is officially tested by some responsible authority appointed for the inspection of dairies from which comes the supply of milk for your city. It is guaranteed that the milk is drawn from healthy cows under certain rules that prevent it from infection of dust and disease; that it is strained and cooled at once, packed in sterilized bottles, and at a temperature of 50 per cent. or less until it is delivered to the customer. The water used is also examined.

Of course, all these extra precautions cost money, but if housewives would demand all certified milk this cost would be lowered, and the medical authorities shoul be aroused to the value of such inspections. Several States have recognized certified milk by law and placed a penalty upon the use of the term by dairies not so inspected.

Keep Sleeping Children Covered.

Few persons seem to realize that it is an unwise thing to drop down for a nap during the day time without using a covering of some sort for the body. The fact that one is fully or even partly dressed at the time seems to many persons sufficient grounds for disregarding the question of requiring any other covering while sleeping.

Now, facts known about the body while it is sleeping indicate that it is nature's intention that the body should rest during sleep, and that that faithful, never-ceasing worker, the heart, should be relieved of its regular work temporarily.

As a matter of fact, while we sleep the normal heart makes ten strokes a minute less than it does when we are awake, and our bodies are in an upright position.

The heart pumps with each stroke six ounces of blood, and, this being true, it lifts about 30,000 ounces less of blood during the night session than it would under normal conditions during the daytime, when a person is usually in an upright position.

These bodies of ours depend entirely upon the blood's circulation for warmth, and as the blood flows so much more slowly through the veins when one is lying down, it is easily seen that the body warmth lost in this reduced circulation needs to be supplied by extra coverings. So cover the children when they kick the covers off, and teach them to cover any member of the family who is given to throwing himself down during the daytime for forty winks, and who never gives a though to supplying himself with a covering.

Household Hints

RECIPES FOR WINTER VEGETABLES.

Baked Squash—Wash, cut into six or eight pieces, lay on top shelf of oven until you can pierce meat with a fork. Take from oven, scoop out meat with large spoon, add generous piece butter, pepper and salt to taste, and serve.

Yellow Turnips—The large winter turnips are fine pared, cut in several small pieces, steamed until tender and mashed. Season with butter, pepper and salt.

Creamed White Turnips—Slice the turnips, cover with water, add one-half teaspoon salt, cook until tender, pour off water, add one cup milk and generous piece of butter, tablespoon of flour to thicken.

Carrots are very nice prepared same as creamed turnips.

Creamed Cauliflower—Wash, cut up in small pieces, put in stew pan, cover with water, salt lightly and cook until tender. Drain off water, add cup of rich milk, piece of butter, salt and pepper to taste.

Creamed Cabbage—One small head cabbage cut up as for slaw; put in pan, nearly cover with water, cook until tender. Drain off water, put a tablespoon of lard or bacon fryings in skillet, turn in cabbage and stir often until slightly browned; add one cup rich milk or cream. Stir one tablespoon flour into milk and just before dishing up add tablespoon of vinegar.

Cabbage No. 1—Cut one small head of cabbage very fine, add two cups boiling water, one large spoon butter or lard, salt and pepper to taste. Boil fifteen minutes. Add one-half cup white vinegar, one-half cup granulated sugar; boil five minutes more. Serve hot.

Cabbage No. 2—Cut cabbage fine, boil half hour in salt water, drain; sprinkle one tablespoon flour over cabbage, stir in one pint sweet cream; boil two minutes, add one-half cup white vinegar, one tablespoon sugar, dash white pepper. This can be eaten hot or cold.

Cabbage a la Empire—One cabbage, three large sour apples, one-half cup lard or butter, twelve slices bacon, one-half cup stock, tablespoon vinegar, salt, pepper, nutmeg. Shred cabbage fine, peel and slice apples. Melt lard in pan, line bottom with half of the bacon, put in cabbage and apples, cover with bacon and little bits of butter. Bake three hours. When half done add vinegar, nutmeg, salt and pepper.

Vegetable Oysters (Salsify)—For four or five persons use six or seven of the "oyster" roots. Save the green layers about the tops of root. Scrape and slice into water to keep them from turning dark. Drop in slightly salted boiling water, boil till tender, lift out of water and mash, and if there are more than you want for soup, set aside for supper. Season the water in which they were cooked with butter, salt and pepper, one pint of cream and milk together with a little celery or celery seed, and add the mashed pulp.

Mock Fried Oysters—Take the mashed "salsify" reserved from the soup, add two beaten eggs, two spoonfuls of cream or melted butter, salt and pepper, make in cakes and fry in deep fat until both sides are nicely browned; serve while piping hot. These are delicious and taste considerably like real oysters.

THE TABLE

Custard Cornbread—Put in mixing bowl one teaspoon salt, one teaspoon soda, one cup sweet milk, one cup sour milk, one-half cup sugar, two eggs. Beat this well, then add 1½ cups cornmeal and one-half cup flour. Mix well and pour the thin batter into a good hot pan which has two tablespoons of hot melted butter in it; set in oven and pour into the center one cup sweet milk; do not move or stir the pan, but close oven door carefully. If not moved till baked it will be a perfect custard. It looks very thin when poured into baking pan, but let it go just as directed, no more, no less, and it comes out fine. Bake one-half hour in moderate oven. Do not thicken it or you spoil it.

Prune Compote—One-half pound prunes, one cup sugar, juice of one lemon, two cups water, whipped cream, nut meats. Select large prunes, remove stones, place in deep baking dish with sugar, lemon juice and water. Bake until soft. When cold heap them in sherbet glasses and serve with whipped cream and nut meats.

Buying for the home cannot be done wisely and economically unless the "buyer" is a student of the advertisements—no more than a store may be made prosperous without advertising.

THE WOMAN'S COLUMN

St. Paul.—The midwinter meeting of the Minnesota Federation of Women's Clubs will be held here Friday and Saturday, and it is expected the convention will endorse the movement to follow the California women in the matter of aiding illiterate migrant workmen. The Federation is backing the Keating-Owen bill in Congress, which aims to eliminate from interstate commerce the products of child labor. The clubwomen will be taken on various tours of the city tomorrow, and Saturday will be the day of big discussions. Dr. Thomas H. MacBride, president of the State University of Iowa, will be the principal speaker.

Bozeman, Mont.—The Bozeman Woman's Club recently celebrated its fifth anniversary, and had as guests many prominent women who were attending the short course for farmers at the state college. The ladies in the receiving line were Mrs. E. L. Houston, president of the club; Mrs. Nellie Kedzie Jones, of Wisconsin, lecturer on home economics; Miss Gertrude McChenye, of Washington, D. C., lecturer on home economics; Mrs. Dr. E. H. Riley, of Bozeman, and Mrs. Una B. Herrick, dean of women at the state college.

New Haven, Conn.—Woman suffrage in Connecticut would clean every crook and grafter out of the state, declares Miss Helen Todd, the California suffrage orator, who is touring Connecticut. She declares that rich men, illiterates, the vice interests and the man who places women on a pedestal are the four chief powers allied against equal suffrage. Miss Todd recently completed a tour, making twenty-three speeches in two weeks.

Washington.—The aristocrats of the Capital City are accepting the changed social conditions at the White House, but not without mutterings. The elite must now rub elbows with the "tradespeople" if they are to be in the society swim. Mrs. Wilson has broken the traditions of a century at Washington. The formalities of rank and prestige, which held iron sway over the various coteries, as in the capitals of Europe, are receiving hard blows. The tendency is toward democracy in society, and not only is this shown at the White House and in the cabinet set, but it extends down the line to the senatorial and congressional sets. The army and navy set stands by its guns valiantly, but condescends now and then to "mix."

Pittsburg.—Age is no bar to the unique Woman's Athletic Club of the Perrysville district of this city. Its members range from girls of 19 to gray-haired grandmothers, some of whom are over 60. The most prominent women of the district make up the membership of 75, and the women meet one evening a week for athletic drills.

Newark, N. J.—Mrs. Mina C. Van Van Winkle is following in the footsteps of the Political Union of New Jersey, announces her intention of establishing a legal residence in Kansas, so that she will be able to vote in that state at the presidential election. Mrs. Van Winkle is following in the footsteps of Mrs. Harriet Stanton Blatch, of New York, who has already made her arrangements in Kansas.

Boston.—One of the prominent Boston women who are booming the suffrage lunch room in this city is Miss Susan Brandeis, daughter of Louis D. Brandeis, who has been named for the U. S. Supreme Court. Mrs. Maud Hutchinson Page is in charge of the lunch-room venture of the suffragists, and reports the innovation a big success. Mrs. Quincy A. Shaw is a constant luncher, and other prominent women meet at the Sunflower Lunch to imbibe or disperse courage for the "cause" and incidentally partake of the bill of fare.

TAFT IS HONORED.

Philadelphia, Pa., Feb 10.—Ex-President Taft will be the chief speaker tonight at 133d anniversary of the Law Academy of Philadelphia, and will be tendered a reception after the formal exercises. The academy was organized in 1783, the year in which the Revolutionary War was terminated.

BAYONNE HIGH IS LOSER AT P. H. S.

First Basketball Relations Between Two Schools is Plainfield Victory.

M'DOWELL HAS CHANCE

Sub Starts in Forward, and is High Point Man—Dunham Pinch Shoots for Coudray, and His Fouls Account for Eleventh-Hour Triumph.

Plainfield High School's court warriors recorded a well-deserved victory yesterday afternoon on their home court, downing Bayonne High School, 23 to 20. It was the first meeting between the two schools, and turned out to be one of the best games of the season.

With a somewhat changed lineup, P. H. S. started off at a fast clip McDowell was responsible for scoring the first points on a pretty field goal. Coudray also dropped in a counter and followed up with several fouls before the visitors got started. They tied the score and all during the rest of the first session the two teams shot point for point until Coudray dropped in the last foul as the whistle blew, putting P. H. S. one point in the lead—14-13.

Helped along by two baskets nearly the length of the floor, Bayonne jumped into the lead shortly after the second period started, and managed to keep one point to the good until just before time ended. McDowell tied the score with a basket and Dunham, who had replaced Coudray, put the game on ice by caging three fouls in succession.

Coudray, while he was in the game gathered a number of points from the foul line, but McDowell did most of the shooting for the locals, making four baskets, the majority of them coming after long shots. Gibbons proved to be the mainstay for the losers, with Kamper as first assistant.

MORE MEETS PLANNED FOR HIGH SCHOOL AMPHIBIANS

The swimming team at the Plainfield High School has completed its originally adopted schedule, which called for four meets, and Manager Albert Dealman is arranging for several more meets to finish out the season. He obtained one yesterday with Boys' High School, of Brooklyn, for Saturday, February 19, in the local pool.

JESS WILLARD BUYS HOUSE IN CHICAGO; TO LIVE THERE

Chicago, Feb. 10.—Jess Willard, heavyweight champion, was recovering today from a sore throat that kept him from his training work yesterday. The champion said today that he would be on hand this afternoon to work out and spar with his partners in preparation for his battle in New York, March 8, with Frank Moran. Willard has purchased the home of L. P. Locke, on Pratt boulevard, for $13,000, and will make his home in Chicago.

BOTH GAMES END 2 TO 2.

In the Y. M. C. A. Indian League games yesterday, the Iroquois defeated the Omahas, 3 to 2, and the Wawayandas trounced the Sioux by the same score. Gates, Sill, Enande and Randolph each caged one foul.

RODMAN PARVIN IS CHOSEN CAPTAIN OF TENNIS TEAM

Plainfield High School tennis enthusiasts got an early start toward forming a team for this year, when a meeting of likely candidates was held and Rodman Parvin was elected captain. As soon as the Boys' Athletic Association appoints a manager, work will be started toward formulating a schedule.

The majority of last year's squad is left in school, and a winning team should result. Besides Parvin, there is Case, McAnneny, Carter, Todd and several others who will be candidates.

NEWARK AUTO SHOW WILL BREAK RECORD

Monster Exhibit of Many Car Models Will Open on February 19.

Newark, Feb. 10.—With entries for more than 300 passenger cars and commercial vehicles, comprising more than sixty different and distinct makes, and with an aggregate valuation of more than a million dollars, the eighth annual Newark Automobile Show, which will be held in the First Regiment Armory during the week of February 19-26, promises to be not only the largest ever held in the State, but one which will also compare favorably with the big shows held annually in New York, Chicago and Boston.

Every available foot of room in the armory, which is the largest in the State, has been contracted for. Never before in the history of the local shows has the space been disposed of at such an early date, and with but two weeks remaining before the opening of the show, the management is besieged with applications for space which they are unable to accept.

The fact that Newark is the metropolis of the State, and, in addition, draws on a wealthy suburban population of more than 2,000,000 people, makes the Newark show a particularly attractive one for the man who has cars to sell, and he is quick to appreciate the opportunity offered. Thus it is that visitors to the Newark show always have an opportunity of seeing what is latest and best in motor car construction. This includes both the passenger car and the commercial vehicle, to say nothing of the complete line of the latest wrinkles in accessories. So heavy was the demand that the space committee found it necessary to house the accessory exhibits in the balcony, in order to accommodate all who desire to exhibit trucks and passenger cars on the main floor.

There are seventeen different makes of business vehicles entered. These will embrace more than sixty different models, from the lightest delivery wagon up to the heaviest and most substantial trucks, capable of transporting from 15,000 to 20,000. Fire engines, ambulances, self-dumping coal and contractors' wagons, lumber trucks, tractors and a great variety of those time and labor-saving transportation units will be shown, in addition to the regular models

Our day is the day of "touching buttons."

A President presses a button in Washington, and a titanic explosion, thousands of miles away, weds the two great seas.

We are fond, nowadays, of accomplishing big effects with simple processes.

And so the "button-pressing" magic applies to the "little things" of life, as well as to the big episodes.

When you become a "want advertiser" you press a MAGIC BUTTON—and the influence is felt in the homes and business places of the city.

Your quest becomes of interest to the people who are able to help you accomplish it.

If you seek work, and "press the button" of Plainfield Daily Press want advertising publicity, your quest becomes one of personal interest to the people who need you. The same law operates in the working out of every "want ad task."

For classified advertising makes the whole city your market; makes the right people your audience; delivers your message to all people to whom it could have any interest or importance.

IMPORTANT ALLEY MATCHES TONIGHT

Elks Roll at Park Club—Imps at T. A. B. Club in City League Series.

TABS MINUS SKINNER

Abstainer Anchor Got a Touch of Grip—Elizabeth Elks, League Leaders, Go to Hoboken—Elks' House Tourney Match Postponed.

A number of important bowling matches will be decided tonight. The leading tilts in this city will be the first of the annual series between the Elks' club and Park club, on the latter's alleys, and the City League match between the Imperials and the Tabs, on the T. A. B. Club chutes.

The Park Club men defeated the Elks last winter. The second match of this year's series will be rolled at the Elks' club on Monday evening, February 28, and in the event of games won failing to decide the winner, total pins for the six games will count. A reception will follow the bowling and as ladies from both clubs always constitute a large proportion of the gallery, the affair may be classed as one of the leading informal social functions of the season.

The customary bedlam of rooting, characteristic of all City League matches, will not be missing tonight, and the Tabs will be out in force to root for their team. The Abstainers will probably be minus the services of Bill Skinner, who is suffering from the grip.

Elizabeth Elks, leaders of the B. P. O. E. League, will go to Hoboken and Rahway will travel to Paterson. Bayley Council, champion of the Knights of Columbus League, will visit Newark, and Jersey City will roll at Bayonne.

An Elks' Junior League match will be rolled at Jersey City, between the Skeeters and Newark. In the Westfield Sunday School League, the Presbyterian and Baptist teams will clash.

On the Elks' Club drives, the hous tournament match between the Oldsmobile and Oakland teams will not be rolled, on account of the Park Club match.

CLIMAX HOLIDAY PROGRAM.

An all-day shoot will be held at the Climax Gun Club traps Saturday, starting at 10 a. m. A meeting will also be held in the morning. A light lunch will be served on the grounds.

OUTPUT OF SHIPS LESSENED BY WAR

England's Yards Idle as Compared With Peace Times.

BUILDING SMALLER VESSELS

Number Increased, but Total Tonnage Is Greatly Decreased — Government Controls Most of the Labor and Thus the Individual Concerns Are Handicapped.

How seriously the war has affected the shipbuilding industry of the world is shown in the official statistics which have been supplied by the leading British shipbuilding firms. During the past year only 1,355 merchant vessels, representing a total of 1,671,610 tons, have been added to the mercantile marine of the world, as compared with 3,165 vessels of 3,484,171 tons during 1914.

While all the combatant nations have obviously suffered in the greatest degree, the United Kingdom has been the most seriously affected, for the figures relating to British shipbuilding show that only 517 merchant vessels were built, representing a total tonnage of 649,336 tons, as against 1,294 vessels of 1,722,154 tons during the previous year.

Output In 1914 and 1915.

The following table, which has been compiled from statistics furnished by the leading shipbuilders, shows the total output of the world during 1915 and 1914:

	1915. Ships.	1915. Tonnage.	1914. Ships.	1914. Tonnage.
United Kingdom	517	649,336	1,294	1,722,154
British dominions	183	32,937	271	67,994
Foreign combatant and noncombatant	955	989,337	1,600	1,694,023
Total	1,655	1,671,610	3,165	3,484,171

In the statistics relating to work turned out by British yards, no figures are given of warships building. Were these figures included, it is probable that the output might have been larger than in any previous year, but the totals serve to demonstrate the amount of work which has been accomplished in British yards. During the whole year ship owners have been deploring the difficulties which have lain in the way of their obtaining delivery of vessels ordered before the war broke out, and in many yards devoted entirely to war work new mercantile tonnage remains on the stocks and in the condition it was left months ago.

The Production In 1913.

During the year 1913 the total mercantile production of the United Kingdom was 1,424 vessels with an aggregate tonnage of 1,977,573, so that the output last year was less by 907 vessels and 1,328,237 tons.

The decrease in the British output has been particularly heavy in Belfast, where Harland & Wolff have for the first time in the history of the famous firm launched no merchant vessel, whereas in 1913 they launched six steamers representing 156,047 tons. Workman, Clark & Co. also did comparatively little mercantile work, for the total of the new tonnage which they turned out during the year was half a dozen with a total tonnage of 26,318, as against vessels representing 75,188 tons during the previous year.

It was early in the year that Workman, Clark & Co. completed their most important merchant steamers, the Pembrokeshire, the Carmarthenshire and the Ebro, for the Royal Mail Steam Packet company. All three vessels were practically completed at the end of 1914, and there are specific reasons why the vessels should be finished this year.

At the end of March they launched the first of a number of steamers which they have contracted to build for the United Fruit company of New York and Boston, the steamer San Mateo, a vessel of 3,310 tons. In May the steamer San Pablo was placed in the water, and this was followed in August by the steamer San Pedro. These three boats are intended for the cargo trade only and are sister ships. In October a fourth vessel for the same owners, but intended for the cargo and passenger carrying trade, was launched. Since October Workman, Clark & Co. have been engaged on work other than for the mercantile navies of the world.

Activities In Clyde Yards.

There has been great activity throughout the whole year in Clyde yards, from which 126 vessels, representing in the aggregate 215,000 tons, were launched. Many of the vessels however, were small ones, and whether they increase the number of launches, they do not add considerably to the total tonnage. Although the majority of the shipyards on the Clyde were taken over by the government shortly after the outbreak of the war, for a considerable time there was no suspension of mercantile work. There are still to be found on the Clyde several yards devoted in the main to the construction of small steamers of the coasting grade, which are not "controlled establishments," and for some months these yards were able to proceed without any difficulty with the contracts they had on hand.

It was only after the government decided upon a scheme for drawing all available labor to the "controlled establishments" for war work that these firms experienced any difficulty.

LAURELS FOR OPERATORS.

The contrast between government-owned telephone service as encountered in Europe, and the service of the Bell System is constantly being evinced in little incidents which appear from day to day. The most intimate and direct example of this that has come to our attention in a long time is a letter of thanks written to the operators of Owego, N. Y., from a lady who was particularly appreciative of their service, in the light of her European experience. The letter appears in a short article in The Telephone Review, from which we quote:

"The following letter addressed to Miss Minnie Bikely, chief operator at Owego, N. Y., was sent by a lady residing in Philadelphia, who usually spends her summers in Europe, but who on account of the war took up her summer residence this year in Owego:

I want to express to you as the head of the telephone operators in Owego my warm appreciation of the service rendered me during the summer and fall months. The operators have been without exception courteous, kind, prompt, and in every way most efficient. I have only praise for them, and would like to thank each one personally for the excellent service they have given me. It has been a real pleasure to use my telephone, and I surely have the kindest thoughts of you all.

During her residence in Owego the lady said that in all her experience in this country she had never received more satisfactory telephone service than in Owego, and it was incomparably superior to anything she had ever experienced abroad. Such a testimonial from one so well qualified to speak, and the additional courtesy displayed in the letter which she wrote, have given great pleasure and satisfaction to the operating force in Owego."

THE GIRL WE CALL "HELLO."

There's a certain kind of people, very useful, yet obscure.
Who receive small approbation from the public, I am sure.
Yet the service which they render none of us could well forego.
Still 'tis rare we kindly speak or think of the girl we call "Hello."

The public simply takes a car in one great wheel
Placed there for their convenience, to promote the common weal.
And it's rare indeed a kindness to these faithful girls we show,
But oftentimes we "cuss" aloud the girl we call "Hello."

We grasp our phone, a number give, and should there be delay
We frankly are ashamed to own the awful things we say.
We seem to think that ours must be the only call, you know,
When perhaps some forty others, quite insistent, call "Hello."

But still though "kicked" and "cussed" about, you always find her sweet.
We don't know how she does it, we confess to give up beat.
But when our days on earth are done should we to heaven go,
We sure will find a multitude of girls we call "Hello."

Just a Tribute to the "Hello" Girls.

THE COAL SITUATION

The coal situation is commanding serious attention. Many of our customers are anxiously asking our opinion from day to day.

We do not pretend to know more than the other fellow, but we do not intend that our customers shall suffer if there is a coal shortage, and we are therefore keeping our bunkers filled to overflowing with the domestic sizes of coal.

This is only another evidence of our desire and ability to serve our patrons.

VIVID PORTRAYAL OF WAR SCENES

Mme. de Rancongne Will Display Authentic and Accurate Pictures of Conflict.

FOR BELGIAN RELIEF

Young French Woman Who Has Been Giving Valuable Aid to the Allies Will Relate Her Experinece At Hartridge Auditorium.

The benefits that will accrue to the Belgians from the work of Mme. de Rancongne in this country will, it is hoped, be many. On the other hand, the people have not been slow to realize that it is a great advantage to Americans to have the privilege of listening to this girl in khaki. From every part of the country where she has spoken, North and West, come the most enthusiastic accounts of her aid from her talks. The Boston Transcript gives three columns, from which the following is a quote:

"Mme. de Rancongne speaks with unusual authority. Her father, M. Phillippe Bunau-Varilla, is in command of a regiment of engineers in Champagne. Her husband, the Vicomte de Rancongne, was captured at Lille early in the war. Her brother was made prisoner at Ludwigshaven early in the war. She herself, in 1914, went to the Belgian front—to that tragic triangle of uninvaded Belgium which gets no help from the American Commission—where all that is left of the Belgian army still holds fast. A patch of country whose non-combatant population clings with the patience of despair to its shell-wrecked villages and farms. Fifteen months ago, with two friends, she took what medical supplies she could gather together and went to see what she could do. They had no money, no organization; but they made promises and they carried them out. Their passes permit them to go everywhere. Their automobiles have been for months supplied with gasolene and oil by the Belgian motor-transport service. It has been discovered that they don't get in the way; that they can take care of themselves, that they are never indiscreet; and for more than a year, in that patch of Belgium, they have passed unquestioned."

The Belgian Relief of Plainfield has asked Mme. de Rancongne to let the people of Plainfield hear her and see her pictures before she sails again for Europe in ten days. There will be no subscription taken up; no plea for money. The tickets are a dollar apiece and the proceeds will be given to the speaker for her work. Not to see her, not to hear her—will be to miss a great experience. A few tickets for the lecture may be secured at Armstrong's drug store.

MRS. A. B. PARSELLS GIVES A STIRRING ADDRESS

Mrs. A. B. Parsells, a national lecturer for the W. C. T. U., addressed a large and appreciative audience in Vincent chapel last night on the subject of "From Shore to Shore." She appeared here under the auspices of the local W. C. T. U. Mrs. Parsells dwelt at some length on the legislative views on the liquor question, giving a resume of what has been done more recently throughout the country in getting rid of the saloon.

Mrs. T. C. Bodine of the local union was in charge of the devotional exercises, while Clifford Braider, organist of the church, directed the singing of hymns during the service.

"KITCHEN" SHOWER FOR MISS HUNTSMAN

Her Marriage to Cory Adams, of the Borough, to Take Place Soon.

A delightful and novel kitchen shower was tendered Miss Dorothy Huntsman, of East Front street, yesterday afternoon at the home of Mrs. F. I. Smith, of Netherwood avenue. Miss Huntsman's marriage to Cory Adams, of the borough, will take place in the near future.

Miss Huntsman was the recipient of many useful gifts, which were divided into lots according to the days of the week. In the first allotment came articles appropriate for Monday—washday; Tuesday, ironing day; Wednesday, silver cleaning day; Thursday, upstairs cleaning; Friday, downstairs cleaning; and Saturday cooking. For Sunday, Miss Huntsman received a handsome bouquet of flowers in a tin funnel. Accompanying each gift was an original verse instructing the bride-elect in the keeping of a home.

The color scheme in the dining room, where dainty refreshments were served, was red and white, and the idea was artistically carried out in the decorations of red hearts, cupids and white flowers.

Among those present were Mrs. R. F. R. Huntsman, Mrs. W. H. Ochs, Mrs. A. D. Honeyman, Mrs. L. Wolff, Mrs. Esther Brush, Mrs. Louis Dougherty, Mrs. Herbert Henry, Mrs. F. I. Smith and the Misses Dorothy Huntsman, Leontine Huntsman, Clara Karner, Marie Brush, Margaret Dougherty, Marguerite Lee, Helen Adams and Anna Sminck.

"POISON PEN" WRITER MAY BE DEFICIENT

Mrs. Fanny Quick is Said to Show Signs of Mental Derangement.

Somerville, Feb. 11.—Mrs. Fanny Quick, a resident of Warren township, living near Warrenville, who was indicted by the Somerville Grand Jury last September on a charge of sending "poison pen" letters to neighbors and who was placed on probation after admitting her guilt, was surrendered to the court this morning by Probation Officer John Osburn. The latter stated that his reason for doing so was that Mrs. Quick showed symptoms of mental derangement and was inclined to commit further offences. The court took the facts as presented by Osburn, and Prosecutor Beekman and named two physicians to conduct an examination. It is probable that the woman will be committed to an asylum.

During the proceedings this morning it developed that Mrs. Quick's husband had deserted her three months ago and that he was under indictment for this offense. Quick was in court, and Prosecutor Beekman asked for an immediate hearing. When placed on the stand he admitted making $15 a week, out of which he had given his wife only a small amount one time in three months. He had one child, he said, which he was willing to support. The testimony brought about a condition of affairs which resulted in the defendant and court holding a conference with Prosecutor Beekman, after which Judge Daniel H. Beekman offered to accept a plea of non vult. Quick presented it through the Prosecutor, sentence being fixed for next Friday. It is quite likely that in the meantime the matter will be disposed of satisfactorily, much depending upon the result of the examination of Mrs. Quick.

Important to Readers and Advertisers!!

In order to expedite the moving of the mechanical department of the Daily Press, the edition of tomorrow, Saturday, will go to press promptly at noon. This will somewhat necessitate the curtailing of local news, and make it necessary to refuse copy after 11.30. Promptly at twelve the work of dismantling and transporting our linotype machines to our new building at 193 North avenue will be started, so that all may be at the new location in ample time for setting Monday's paper.

The business office of the Daily Press will be continued at the present address, 105 North avenue, for two or three days next week, owing to delay in procuring some of the material for the front of the new building, but all other departments after Saturday will be located at 193 North avenue. Our telephone number will be changed to 3000.

The new sixteen page Scott press will be used for the first time for the edition on Monday. Because of possible delays in getting new machinery running properly, the forms for the Daily Press will close the first two or three days next week at 2 P. M., but the regular schedule will be resumed before the week is over.

We cannot guarantee the insertion of advertising on Saturday or Monday unless same is in our hands by 9 A. M. each day.

TUMULTY MAY BE WAR SECRETARY

Said to Be President's Choice for Vacancy in the Cabinet.

GARRISON GETS OUT

Disagrees With President Over Plans For Larger Army and Steps Out When His Plan Is No Longer Considered.

Washington, Feb. 11.—J. P. Tumulty, the President's secretary; Frank Lyon Polk, counsellor of the State Department, and F. D. Roosevelt, Assistant Secretary of the Navy, are among the many suggested as President Wilson's choice to fill the breach caused in his cabinet by the sudden resignation of Secretary of War Garrison. Of these three, Mr. Tumulty is generally given preference in the speculation.

Washington, Feb. 11.—As a result of a difference of opinion over national defense plans, Lindley M. Garrison, Secretary of War, and Henry Breckinridge, Assistant Secretary of War, have tendered their resignations to President Wilson and both have been accepted.

Secretary Garrison is known to have been dissatisfied with the President's plan for a greater army for weeks, but there was no hint of the proposed resignation until tonight, and it came as a distinct surprise. Assistant Secretary Breckinridge, who also entertained the ideas of Mr. Garrison, resigned out of loyalty to his chief.

While President Wilson has refused to comment on the resignations officially, and Secretary Garrison is in seclusion somewhere in New Jersey, it is declared that Garrison resolved to resign when he learned that his Continental army plan was doomed to defeat and that Mr. Wilson favored an army increase through the different state militia organizations, as is the plan proposed by Congress. Mr. Garrison did not believe that this federalizing of militia units would prove adequate, even if it was practical. Seeing that he and the President were "hopelessly disagreed," he followed the precedent of Bryan and stepped out.

This means that the Continental army plan is dead, because Garrison would not have resigned while there was a chance of having his idea put into use. He worked on the proposed citizens' army of 400,000 under federal control for months, aided by military experts.

DRESS REHEARSAL FOR PROBASCO CLASS PLAY

Under the direction of Mrs. G. Stuart Simons, the coach, the entire cast from the Probasco Bible Class, which is to present the French comedy, "A Count of No Account," were put through a strenuous dress rehearsal last night. The play is to be given at the Plainfield High School tomorrow night.

Mrs. Simons was exceptionally well pleased with the work of the cast and a most finished production is promised. The young men have spared no expense nor effort to make this year's production a success. They have obtained special scenery and the costumes are unusually striking. Between the second and third acts, Le Roy Clawson, of the class, will give an exhibition of Indian club swinging. The play will begin promptly at 8 o'clock. Those who have not already done so can secure tickets at Miller's drug store on Park avenue.

BLAZE IMPERILS HELPLESS WOMAN

Mrs. H. B. Parke Dragged From Flaming Home By Nurse and Maid.

THE LOSS IS HEAVY

Residence Afire From Basement to Roof Before Department Arrives—Located On Albert Street—Partial Insurance Carried.

The home of H. B. Parke, at 23 Albert street, together with its contents, was almost completely destroyed by a fire which was discovered shortly before 1 o'clock this noon. The entire fire-fighting force of the city, with the exception of the Netherwood apparatus was called into action, but the structure was a mass of flames before any of them arrived. It is possible that the loss may reach $10,000, partially covered by insurance.

Mrs. Parke was on a sick bed, having been ill for the past five weeks following an operation for mastoiditis performed at Muhlenberg hospital. When the blaze was first discovered in a kitchen pantry by a maid, the latter rushed upstairs and with the help of a trained nurse, Miss Giles, frantically dragged the helpless woman out of her bedroom and down the stairs on a mattress. On reaching the landing, Mrs. Parke attempted to aid in her own rescue and springing to her feet ran to the street garbed only in her night dress and nothing to protect her feet. She had struggled across a snow-covered lawn before intercepted by William Briggs and another volunteer, and the two men carried Mrs. Parke to the home of L. V. Tallamy, across the street, where she was put to bed. Doctor Thomas Blair, her physician, arrived in response to a hurry call, and gave treatment. Mrs. Parke was suffering both from shock and exposure.

In addition to the women already mentioned, the only other occupants of the house were two small children. They were able to get out by themselves without injury. The maid said she was unable to account for the origin of the fire. No one smelled smoke or knew that anything was wrong until the maid opened the pantry door and a burst of flame swept into her face. She maintained her presence of mind and rushed upstairs with the one thought of saving Mrs Parke. Mr. Parke is a traveling salesman and fortunately chanced to be in New York so that a telephone message reached him.

An alarm was turned in from box 18 by someone in the neighborhood and at 2:30 this afternoon the department was still at work. Five lines of hose were run in, but the flames had gained such headway that the building was practically beyond saving. The house is owned by Joseph Lufburrow, of Albert street, father of Dr. C. B. Lufburrow, and is valued at $5,500.

Although several neighbors managed to take out a few articles of furniture, the loss to the Parke family is practically complete. The flames destroyed silverware, jewelry, clothing and a large quantity of costly furniture. Miss Giles, the maid, and the children saved only what clothing they had on, while nothing belonging to Mrs. Parke could be saved.

DEMOCRATS HAVE DINNER.

Somerville, Feb. 11.—William Prout, chairman of the Somerset County Democratic Exexutive Committee, entertained about thirty-six members and friends at a love feast in the Ten Eyck Hotel, last night. Future plans for organization work were talked over.

MILITARY TRAINING FAVORED BY MAYOR

In Address at High School He Makes Plea for National Defense.

Exercises were held in the High School this morning in observance of Lincoln's Birthday. Mayor Leighton Calkins made a short address to the student body. In speaking about the present European conflict, the Mayor said that he believed that too much national patriotism had caused the world war that has more than half the world engaged. He outlined the union of people from prehistoric times, when there was family groups, up to the present national government. He also said that he thought world peace would be impossible under present existing conditions.

Mr. Calkins also made a plea for national defense and expressed the opinion that military training in the schools was a sensible proposition. He called attention to the military training given in the Newton (Mass.) High School in the '80's, when he was a student there, and said that aside from giving training for the nation's defense, it taught obedience and precision.

A short program was also rendered by the students, including the singing of a number of the national anthem.

2,000 WORKERS ON N. J. C. ON STRIKE

Track Workers and Repair Men Demand More Money and Short Hours.

More than 2,000 trackmen and repairmen employed on the New Jersey Central Railway went out on a strike this morning. The West Shore Railroad is also effected and the total of men thrown out of work by the movement will reach even higher when the strike is fully under way.

Gangs of workmen stationed along the Central near Plainfield quit this morning, soon after they reported. It is said that the strike was agreed on last night by representatives of the men who held a meeting in Jersey City, but not all affected heard of the decision to walk out until this morning. Two gangs of track repairmen went to work from the Dunellen station at the regular hour today. A delegate carried the news to them a few minutes later and every man laid down his tools and quit. There were 24 in one crew and 10 in another.

It is said that the men are demanding an eight hour day with a wage of $2. They are now working ten hours and receiving $1.75 a day.

Action of seventy-five men employed on the West Shore Railroad in quitting their jobs yesterday precipitated the strike. They had a disagreement with their employers during the day and quit before the regular time. Their grievance was taken up by the track workers along the entire road. Officials of the line refused to comment on the strike when questioned by a Press reporter today.

HOLIDAY TO BE OBSERVED BY BANKS AND POSTOFFICE

Because of the fact that Lincoln's Birthday comes on Saturday it will not be generally observed by merchants, who in the past have closed for a half-day, but some will quit business at noon tomorrow out of honor to the martyr president.

"MIDDLE WEST NOT LUKEWARM"—ESTABROOK

HENRY D. ESTABROOK

TWO PREPAREDNESS LEADERS—MAXIM and EDISON

Fear of lukewarm sentiment for preparedness in the Middle West is sending President Wilson on a speaking tour of some of the principal cities of that section. Washington has heard that the Atlantic and Pacific coasts are strongly behind the preparedness program. William Jennings Bryan, opponent of preparedness, declares the people are against the policy.

"The people of the Middle West need no reminder of their duty in the premises," declares Henry D. Estabrook, of Nebraska and New York. Estabrook, prominently mentioned as a candidate for president before the Republican National Convention, in June, declares "If Bryan's opposition to preparedness is accounted for by his occasional residence in the Middle Western states, then he misrepresents the people of the Middle West. The Middle Western people realize that they are the very heart of a mighty organism whose welfare as a whole depends upon the welfare of all its members, and I claim to represent their sentiments better than Mr. Bryan when I say to you that, in these days of growing apprehension, the men of the Middle West will give early notice to their countrymen, as far away as the Atlantic and Pacific states, that the government which in 1860 they fought to save against the aggressions of enemies from within, they stand ready at all times to defend against aggressions of any possible enemy from without.

To Fight Half-Armed Is Murder.

"To fight half-armed and with a certainty of losing would be nothing short of murder, for which you and I and every taxpayer in the United States would be measurably responsible," he asserts.

Mr. Estabrook's preparedness program, announced early in September, before the American Bankers' Association, at Seattle, and reiterated when he spoke with Hudson Maxim, at Kansas City, in November, has as its slogan, "Protection, Prosperity and Preparedness," for, he declares, "the United States cannot have adequate national defense unless we have sufficient governmental revenues, and we can get the revenues only through the protective tariff policy and the condition of national prosperity that goes hand in hand with protection.

"Preparedness means," he says, "a big navy—as big as any navy in the world—with every flying, diving, amphibious auxiliary that can add to its effectiveness, and with all the munitions and means to boot—munitions for a year's campaign at least always in cold storage. It means as many naval officers and men as may be necessary easily to operate the machinery furnished by the government.

"Insurance will cost money, but it is worth the price; and there is no other nation in the world that has so many things to insure and can so amply afford to pay the premium.

"Doc," as he was familiarly known, had resided there for the past half century. He served through the Civil War, and because of a knowledge of vetinary surgery that enabled him to be of service to local animal owners he earned the familiar name that he was known by. His wife "Aunt" Elizabeth Layton, survives him, residing on Park avenue near the township line.

Watchung.

The Pleasant Word Workers gave an entertainment in Wilson chapel last evening. "Life's Day in Old Songs" was depicted by twenty old-time songs of infancy, childhood, sport, college days, love and home, and rendered by choruses, quartets, duets and solos. The male quartet, which included the Messrs. Thomas Fetherston, Le Roy Herrman, Clarence Schmidt and John Schindler, were led by an enthusiastic leader, William H. Denler, and caused much amusement. Others who took important roles were the Misses Eslie Schmidt, soprano prima donna; Lucy Hughes and Sadie Bodenheimer, also prima donnas; Grace Titus, Clara Mobus, Adele Herrmann, Emma Mobus; Frances Newman, Daisy Schmidt and Helen Mobus. The Misses Stella Sheets, Gladys Sullivan and Theresa Schmidt entertained with old-time recitations and readings. Charles E. Spier presided at the organ during the entertainment. The rfreshments were in charge of the Misses Nora Kuntz, Clara Mobus and Frances Newman. The proceeds of the offering will go towards the flower fund for the church and sick.

Arthur H. Myers, of Roselie Park, will conduct the Christian Endeavor meeting in Yilson chapel this evening. Mr. Myers' topic will be "Christian Endeavor Fidelity and Force."

Rev. Mebane Ramsay will preach at both morning and evening services in the Wilson Memorial church on Sunday. He will preach on "Christian Stewardship" at the morning service. The Young Men's Bible Class will be conducted by Mr. Ramsay, and all young men are urged to be present for the class at 2:45 p. m.

The North Plainfield Township Improvement Society will hold its regular monthly meeting Monday evening in Improvement Hall.

Mrs. Daniel H. Ackor, of Plainfield, who has been the guest of her son, Ephriam S. Ackor, of Hillcrest road, has returned to her home.

Mrs. Charles E. Moldenke, of Villa Elsinore, is confined to her home with a severe attack of the grip.

The Watchung Public Library was closed last evening for the first Thursday evening this year owing to the fact that the librarians, Clement A. Texier and Richard D. Schmidt, are both confined to their homes with measles. Both librarians are convalescing.

FIND PRECEDENT FOR APPAM CASE

In Washington's Days Similar Case Nearly Caused War.

DIFFICULT ISSUES INVOLVED

Spring-Rice and Von Bernstorff Have Widely Different Views, and Secretary Lansing Says Nothing—Interesting Principles Are Involved—Lieutenant Berg Tells Story of Capture.

Governor Simeon E. Baldwin, former chief justice of the Connecticut supreme court and one of the leading authorities on international law in the United States, is studying the Appam case carefully and finds it analogous to a case in President Washington's administration which nearly involved this country in a war with France. Governor Baldwin says regarding the case:

"The entry of the Appam into an American port presents a difficult question in international law. She has come in to seek what is commonly called an asylum. As we are at peace with Germany, if she were a regular German man-of-war sailing from a German port, there would be no question of her status. Apparently, however, she is an English merchant ship, to which Germany has no other title than that of capture and possession. She has never been adjudicated a prize by a legitimate prize court. Our prize courts here would have no jurisdiction to adjudge her to be a prize. Some nations refuse an asylum under such circumstances.

"The matter is discussed in Calvo's work on international law, theoretical and practical. He states a principle, generally accepted, that where a belligerent brings a prize into a neutral port it cannot be sold without a judgment from a prize court and the authorization of the neutral sovereign, but he says this rule is differently interpreted in different states, and while some states refuse an asylum altogether to prizes made by belligerents others accord it without reserve and put no obstacles in the way of a sale.

"Wheaton in his work favors a liberal construction of the right of asylum. An analogous question to some of those raised by the appearance of the Appam in our waters engaged the attention of the United States during the administration of President Washington and nearly involved us in war with France."

Moewe the Raider, Says Berg.

Lieutenant Berg submitted to his first interview. It was notable chiefly for its brevity, but it was also notable for the measure of responsibility he took upon himself for the capture of the Yarrow and Author Peel.

It cast no more light upon the identity of the raider than has been thrown. Yet Berg reiterated that the raider was the Moewe and no other.

"It would be as if I should Lieutenant Berg, "for me to repeat the story of the capture of the seven British ships and their crews by myself and my men. The accounts that I have seen have been correct in almost every detail.

"After we captured six other steamships and sank them we encountered the Appam at noon, which we recognized as an Englishman from afar, notwithstanding the fact that she did not carry a flag.

"We run up the German ensign and signalled her to stop. When the captain did not heave to at once and the men at the gun appeared to load and aim we fired a warning shot, whereupon the Appam heaved to and surrendered.

Commanded by Dohna.

"Captain-Lieutenant Count Dohna sent a boat with a prize crew on board. Later on I was ordered to command the prize and was instructed to take her to the closest American harbor.

"And the next morning came further orders to leave the Moewe. We steamed off, and shortly afterward we heard the exchange of shots during the battle with the Glan Mactavish while we remained at a great distance and drew near only afterward to pick up some wounded who were sent to us in order to get them quickly under medical treatment.

"Then we pursued our journey according to orders. From the first day I was compelled to shorten rations in order to follow these orders.

"As to the raider's being either the Ponga or the Roon," Berg continued, "I say only this, and I never shall say more:

"My ship was his majesty's Moewe."

To a series of further questions as to when the Moewe was built, whether she was ever a freighter, whether plates from the old Moewe were placed on her, and as to other points that have puzzled the world since he brought the Appam to the Virginia capes in the dawn a few days ago Lieutenant Berg repeated patiently:

"She is the Moewe."

He was willing, however, to go into these further details of his trip across the Atlantic:

"Generally speaking, our trip across the Atlantic was without incident. We saw no warships, but met several merchantmen. On our arrival we were received by American authorities very nicely. Although I am satisfied to have carried out my duty, I would prefer very much to be back on the Moewe."

SOMERVILLE ELKS GIVEN SURPISE

Presented With Silver Loving Cup by Plainfield Lodge at Roll Call Last Night.

Somerville Lodge, No. 1068, B. P. O. E., received an agreeable surprise at a roll call meeting it conducted last night, when the members of the Atlantic City reunion committee of Plainfield Lodge walked in unexpectedly. Their entrance was followed by a presentation from Plainfield Lodge as a whole of a handsome silver loving cup, given in grateful acknowledgment for the assistance rendered by the Somerville members at the Atlantic City convention last September. The Plainfield delegation was awarded two prizes in the big parade, and as the Somerville contingent joined forces with this city, it was believed that something should be done to express appreciation.

The loving cup was presented by John H. Cose, who was chairman of the Atlantic city committee, and who is also district deputy for the northern part of New Jersey. The gift was received by Dr. Voorhees, exalted ruler of Somerville Lodge, who took occasion to thank Plainfield and all those who had been instrumental in arranging the presentation. Addresses were made by the Plainfielders and officers of Somerville Lodge, and also by Morris Odell, of Camden, who is district deputy of the southern district of New Jersey, which includes Somerville. No. 1068 has about 250 members, and of these 192 answered the roll call, a number highly gratifying to the officers. The regular session was followed by a banquet and general social time.

The Plainfielders comprising the reunion committee who were present last night were Dictator Charles F. Scott, Dr. C. L. Crist, Lewis A. Bellis, George W. Pope and William C. Mulvey.

PRESBYTERY HOLDS MEETING IN INTEREST OF MISSIONS

A meeting of the Presbyterians of this city and vicinity in connection with a movement by the Elizabeth Presbyery to arouse interest in home missions was held in the Crescent Avenue church last evening. Three other similar meetings were held in the Presbytery, one being held at Elizabeth, another one at Railway and the third at Pluckemin.

The speakers were; Rev. Sylvester Beach, of Princeton, and Rev R. W. Furrell, of Brooklyn. The Rev. Mr. Beach spoke on "Synodical Home Missions," and the Rev. Mr. Burrell on "National Home Missions."

JUNGERBUND SOCIETY GIVE A DUTCH SUPPER

The members of the Jungerbund of the German Reformed church held a Dutch supper in the church last evening. The place was decorated with blue and white, the Dutch colors. The young women who acted as waitresses wore Dutch caps.

The members of the Ladies' Aid Society assisted in preparing the supper. A social hour was afterwards enjoyed, during which piano selections were rendered by Miss Helen Hummel. The members of the committee in charge of the affair were: Miss Wallie Guttenberg, chairman, Miss Marie Dressell, Miss Isabelle Schnipper, George Becker and John Wirth, Jr.

FUNERAL OF MRS. VON DREELE.

The funeral of Mrs Frederick H. Von Dreele, whose death occurred suddenly last Sunday night, was held last night at 8 o'clock at the late residence, 725 East Sixth street. The service was conducted by Rev. Dr. C. M. Anderson in the presence of a gathering of relatives and friends, many of whom contributed handsome floral pieces. Burial was made this morning in Flower Hill cemetery, Weehawken.

It Pays to Secure a Tenant Who Pays

The uncertain sort of tenant is easy to find. He is always answering the call of the window sign of "To Let." He is easy to please. Even a rather high rental does not frighten him away.

But the Stay-and-Pay tenant is not so easy to secure. He is sure of what he wants. He does not take the first house, or apartment, or store that he finds. He watches and answers "To Let" Ads.

And to secure him for your tenant is a good day's work —a good week's work.

Property that is advertised adequately in the Plainfield Daily Press is rarely rented injudiciously.

TRIANGLES ALLOW FEW FIELD GOALS

Victory Over All-Stars Third In Which Opponents Get Only One Basket.

The fast Inner-Triangles, of Netherwood, took the measure of the Plainfield All-Stars in a hotly contested basketball game last night in the T. A. B. S. court, 27 to 7. The All-Stars put up a good exhibition, but once the Netherwoods got started they were never in the running.

Patterson was high man again, with seven field goals to his credit. Gullberg, playing a better game every time out, chipped in with four baskets as his share. Scruton managed to shake Poling off for the short time necessary to cage two field goals. For the Stars, Van Winkle started things off by saging a shot from the center of the floor. However, by some very good work on the part of the Triangle guards, neither forward was able to make good another shot.

Manager Lee shook up his line-up in the second half, but to no avail. This makes the third consecutive contest in which the Triangles have held their opponents to a single field goal. Barry, with two foul and Poling with three were the scorers for the Stars.

WANTS COUNTY REPORTS ALTERED

William de LaRoche Anderson Criticises Present Accounting System.

SUGGESTS NEW FORM

Cites Instances of Public Reports That Fail to Give Taxpayers a Fair Idea of What Money Was Used For.

Former Assemblyman William Delaroche Anderson made today the following criticism and plan for improvement of the present system of published reports of counties as to their administration and expenditure of public funds: "Under the present method counties, through their Boards of Freeholders, issue voluminous reports, which are published in the newspapers with the idea of conveying to the taxpayer the fact that his money has been wisely used, and that he has had value received. I have just gone over the annual report of a certain county, which took up three and three-quarter pages of a newspaper (this report, which is typical of all the counties, is only used by me as an example because it happens to be at my hand), only to find that it was absolutely impossible for anyone to determine from it whether the taxpayers had received the worth of their money. I happen to know in this case that they did, but the report did not show it. For illustration I present the following sections from this report as they are presented, first, and then in a way that would mean something to those who read the report for information. At random I take a section headed

Oiling Roads.

Standard Oil Co. oiling roads	$6,085.35
Standard Oil Co. oiling roads	252.00
	Total omitted.

From the above no one can tell whether the Standard Oil Co. got $6,000 for a very little oiling or whether it got stung by the county. I am inclined to think the latter, as nothing gets away from this county, not even Standard Oil.

"Sugested change:

Oiling Roads.

83 miles x 5 yd. wide—roads oiled 1915 at 4¼ cts. sq. yd., to Standard Oil Co.	$6,335.35

With this the taxpayer would know the service received for his six thousand.

"Under the general "Road Repairs," appears a number of subheadings, one of which I present as typical of the others:

Road Repairs.
Union Avenue.

B Brook Stone Co., material	$104.04
V. D. Beekman, carting and labor	62.46
V. D. Beekman, carting and labor	123.92
V. D. Beekman, scraping	22.00

(Other similar items making a total of about $700.00). The above shows that the county paid $104.04 for material for use. What it was, how much of it and the price per unit does not appear, so that, while we believe that we got $104 worth, the report does not show it to us. The second, third and fourth items show that about $207 was paid to a certain man for carting, labor and scraping, but does not show us how much of this service was received by oru county representatives for this outlay; from thereport it might be one man and one horse working for one day for all the report shows.

"An understandable report would be:

Road Repairs—Union Avenue.

Two miles road resurfaced and repaired gutters	$700.00
Labor—100 eight-hour days at $2	$200.00

"The reports of a great majority of the counties, and, in fact, of the municipalities, are well illustrated by the two examples presented, and clearly demonstrate the impossibility of intelligent comprehension under the present system by the taxpayers of the fullsome documents periodically put before the them. The principle of present municipal and county reporting of fiscal affairs seems to be the furnishing to the public of a list of names of people who got money from county or municipality, together with the amounts they each received, and practically neglecting the furnishing of records of what the public as a whole received in benefits for money expended. As a public official I know that this is considerably the fault of the people themselves, as the principal thing that seems to interest some of them where expenditure of public money is concerned is 'Who got it?' not as it should be, 'What was gotten for it?' It should be absolutely immaterial who gets the public money so long as it is shown that the public has received what it has purchased. When it becomes evident, through the analysis of a properly compiled report, that more is being given than is being received, then will be the time to look into the question of 'Whot is getting it?' Intelligent public financial reports are absolutely essential to inspire public support and confidence."

Mr. Anderson is a practicing public accountant who has made a specialty of political economics, and served last year as clerk of the appropriation committee of this State while that committee was engaged in remedying this State's depleted finances. Senator W. W. Smalley, who is chairman of the appropriations committee, testifies in the highest terms as to the part played by Mr. Anderson in adjusting the State's finances in such a manner that an extra State tax was evaded.

BILL WAS $326 BUT HE MADE IT $10

Watchung Policeman Modestly Charges $100 for Moral Influence.

North Plainfield township owed him $336 for work done as a special policeman, but he donated $326 out of public spirit, reducing the total to $10, and at last night's meeting of the North Plainfield Township Committee the bill was ordered paid in full.

Modest Mr. Smith—Seymour L. is the way it reads on the township payroll—has served the township as a special policeman for some time. In addition to charging for work actually performed by legs and hands, he figured that the township owed him the small sum of $100 for his moral influence, admitting that he had greatly discouraged miscreants from frequenting the neighborhood, and therefore reduced crime. The itemized bill as read to members of the Township Committee last night follows:

Bound Brook, N. J., R. F. D.,
Dec. 31, 1915.
North Plainfield Township.
To Seymour L. Smith, Dr.

4 calls for chasing fruit thieves, $2 per call	$8.00
17 voluntary calls for chasing fruit thieves, $1 per call	17.00
3 voluntary calls for chasing tree thieves, $1 per call	3.00
28 voluntary calls for chasing gunners, $1 per call	28.00
180 days patrol duty during construction of new bridge, prevented contractor from stealing dirt from the road, blocking road, and establishing unsanitary camps at $2 per day	180.00
Moral influence, discouraged miscreants from frequenting community	100.00
Total	$336.00
Donated by public spirit	326.00
Balance due	$10.00

A reward of $10 was offered to the person killing a bad dog in the neighborhood or catching him in the act of killing chickens. A most complete annual township report has been published and donated by Dr. Charles E. Moldenke, a member of the Township Committee. Each taxpayer has received the report.

FIRE LOSS SETTLED.

At last evening's monthly meeting of the Gesang and Turn Verein held in Saengerbund Hall, it was announced that a check for $256 had been received from a fire insurance company in settlement of the damage done to the hall the morning H. M. Gnatz's barn burned down. Henry Haurand, Alfred Luphman and Leopold Knutz were appointed a committee to have the damage repaired. Among other business was the reception of three new members.

CAUGHT IN COAL CHUTE, NOT HURT

Dunellen Workman Has Narrow Escape From Horrible Death.

John Doty, who works for the Dunellen Lumber and Stone Company, had a narrow escape yesterday from death. He was on top of a loaded car located on the trestle over the bins of the company. The coal was fozen and would not move through the pockets of the car to the bins below and Mr. Doty was busy with a crow-bar trying to loosen the black diamonds. He had given a mighty lunge with the bar and the iron instrument had sunk deep into the coal. While exerting all of his strength to pull the bar out so that he could deliver another blow the coal started to move from under him and he quickly sank to the bottom of the car, landing fortunately on solid bottom between the two open pockets. If he had gone through one of these pockets he would have been crushed to death by the coal falling on him as he lay on the trestle.

As Mr. Doty was sinking from sight he yelled for help. Henry S. Garretson happened to be nearby at the time and he enlisted the assistance of four of his men and hurried to the man's assistance. All that could be seen of Mr. Doty when the party arrived at the car was one leg protruding above the coal. The rescuers, realizing that they had no time to lose, fell to with a will and had Mr. Doty out of his black bed inside of a few minutes. Mr. Doty recuperated rapidly and was able to go home alone. Although considerably shocked by his experience he was able to return to work in the afternoon.

ANCHOR LODGE TO GIVE ENTERTAINMENT AND DANCE

Anchor Lodge, No. 149, F. and A. M., will give its annual "ladies' night" affair at the Plainfield High School Auditorium tonight. J. Stephen Higham is chairman of the entertainment committee and he has secured some excellent talent for the affair. The feature will be the apparance of the Master Quartet, of New York, presenting a program of quartet, solo, trio and duo selections both popular and classical. Hendrickson, the magician, will also entertain.

Following the program the remainder of the evening will be devoted to dancing. These affairs have always been largely attended and have proved most enjoyable and tonight's event it is believed will be no exception to the rule.

Honey Vinegar.

Vinegar made from honey has an exceptionally fine flavor and is not expensive. A small amount of honey furnishes a large amount of vinegar. Follow these directions: Dissolve thoroughly in two gallons of warm, soft water one quart jar of extracted honey. Give it air and keep it in a warm place, where it will ferment and make excellent vinegar.—Missouri College of Agriculture.

APPOINTMENTS AND PROMOTIONS MADE

The Boy Pioneers Are Now Grouped In a "Wigwam" With Three Tribes.

The Boy Pioneers met yesterday afternoon at the Crescent Avenue church, when twenty members were initiated. Afterward the boys played games. Several appointments and promotions were made. The boys are now grouped in a "wigwam," composed of three tribes—the Cheyenne, the Navajo and Sioux. The organization is under the following heads: Grand Sachem of the wigwam, Vinton Lawrence; Sachem of the wigwam, John Charles; first chief of the Cheyennes, Everitt Martin; second chief, John Albin; wampum keeper, Gordon Trowbridge; guide, Bruce Buttfield; first chief of the Navajos, George Quigley; second chief, Charley Hall; wampum keeper, Reverdy Johnson; guide, Rodman Parvin; first chief of the Siouxs, Gibson Buttfield; second chief, eGorge Booth, wampum keeper, Ralph Vail; guide, Rufus Searles.

The Montclair Pioneers have invited the Plainfield Pioneers to their entertainment on February 22. The boys will go by automobile, taking a picnic supper. Mr. Brooks, head of the Montclair Pioneers, expressed great surprise when he heard that the Plaingeld boys had a membership of sixty. The flag of the Plainfield wigwam has been ordered, and is expected soon.

The three Plainfield tribes have started a competition between themselves and the Montclair boys to secure the greatest number of points. Points are gained by bringing in new members, paying wampum, doing good turns, being on time at the meetings, and learning the constitution.

You Touch a Magic Button When You Become a "Want Advertiser."

Our day is the day of "touching buttons."

A President presses a button in Washington, and a titanic explosion, thousands of miles away, weds the two great seas.

We are fond, nowadays, of accomplishing big effects with simple processes.

And so the "button-pressing" magic applies to the "little things" of life, as well as to the big episodes.

When you become a "want advertiser" you press a MAGIC BUTTON—and the influence is felt in the homes and business places of the city.

Your quest becomes of interest to the people who are able to help you accomplish it.

If you seek work, and "press the button" of Plainfield Daily Press want advertising publicity, your quest becomes one of personal interest to the people who need you. The same law operates in the working out of every "want ad task."

For classified advertising makes the whole city your market; makes the right people your audience; delivers your message to all people to whom it could have any interest or importance.

—Until you have canvassed the readers of this newspaper on the matter, do not decide whether or not this may be a "poor time to sell" that property

—If your furnished room is so desirable that it will appeal to the tenant who is looking for "something better," advertise.

W. L. SAUNDERS FAVORS TARIFF COMMISSION

Says Country Would Reap Great Benefit From Investigation of the Facts.

Overwhelming sentiment in favor of a tariff commission is expressed by the business men of the country who are attending the convention of the United States Chamber of Commerce in Washington. Among those present are former Mayor William L. Saunders, of North Plainfield, who is a member of Secretary Daniels' Naval Board; former State Senator Ernest R. Ackerman, and former Councilman Richard A. Claybrook, of this city, all of whom are taking an active interest in the proceedings.

Mr. Saunders, who is representing the New Jersey Chamber of Commercce, at Washington, when asked for an opinion on the question of a tariff commission, said:

"I think everybody who knows anything about the tariff and the mistakes that have been made in the past will instantly realize the benefit of having a commission. I favor a board to investigate the facts. I do not favor a board that would attempt to make rates. That is the province of Congress, under the constitution, and, besides that, I do not believe any small board should have such power unlimited. So long as Congress must raise the public revenues, it must fix the tariff rates."

Columbians Maintain Slender Lead—Hirsch Stars for Losing Combine.

NEWARK GIRLS QUIT

Walk Off Floor in Second Half of Contest with Plainfield A. A., Claiming Unfair Treatment—Few Field Goals Recorded.

Although injecting more spirit into their playing in the last five minutes, the Plainfield A. A. tossers failed to top the lead obtained by the Columbus Club earlier in the fray, when the two rivals played their second game on the Columbus club court last night. The score at the conclusion of the contest stood 26 to 22 in favor of the Columbians.

During the first half the playing was more or less lifeless, each side caging goals only by sheer luck. Contrary to his usual quota of goals, Linke was kept scoreless during the first period, and Coyle and Wilson did the only scoring for the home team, while Rosenson and Hirsch were the pointgetters for the visitors. The second period began with Linke caging three pretty field goals, followed by one apiece from Coyle and McAfee, while Hersch again tallied three for his team and Kyle and Day each contributed one.

By refusing to finish the game, the Newark High Street Presbyterian church girls' basketball team forfeited the game to the Plainfield Five girls on the Columbus club court last night by a default score of 2 to 0. The Newark captain claimed that her team was not getting a square deal and ordered her entire aggregation off the floor shortly after the beginning of the second half. The visitors demanded the privilege of using their own referee throughout the entire game, and the elimination of one of the guards on the Plainfield Five team. The home team was well in the lead from the beginning of the game, practically all of the points being made by fouls. Only three field goals were caged, one by the Newarkers and two by the home team.

EASTON HIGH TOSSERS AT P. H. S. TOMORROW

A team new in local basketball circles will appear here tomorrow, when the quintet sporting the colors of the Easton, Pa., High School will do battle with the P. H. S. cohorts on the Ninth street court. The Pennsylvanians come here with a reputation for being fast, and if the locals keep up the work shown in the Bayonne game Wednesday, a corking good ame is assured. Monday night—Hoboken at New Brunswick.

Elizabeth Elks were dealt a crushing blow last night, when the Senior League leaders lost three games at Hoboken. Rahway won the odd at Paterson. The triple defeat puts Elizabeth in second place with a percentage of .690, Newark's per cent. being .692.

Henry Gathman, whose great work in the Junior League has made him the average leader, was taken on the Elizabeth Seniors last night to replace Joe Nolte, who has gone to Florida for a vacation. The pace setters could not solve the Germantown drives, and the Hoboes, averaging 938, won all three games, getting the second by two pins, 919 to 917.

Eddie Feihl did the best work for the Elizabethans. Dave Malone rolled 210 in the second game, Brande averaged 204.1, and Miller 200.

Hoboken is now in fourth place, the Germans passing New York.

The Rahwegians averaged 949.2.

PLAINFIELD GIRLS TO PLAY CHAMPIONS OF CONNECTICUT

The Plainfield Five girls' basketball team has received a challenge from the manager of the Susquehanna Girls, of Hartford, Conn., for a contest to be played in Hartford, Saturday, March 4.

Following a meeting of the local quintet held last night, Manager Clara Barton Smith was advised to proceed with arrangements for the game. The Conecticut girls hold the championship of that State and play a modified game of boys' rules, which the locals have not played at all, but at which they no doubt will give a good account of themselves.

Local Sport News, Views, Reviews and Interviews

AVOIDING THE ELEMENT OF LUCK.

Were there any other basketball court in town as good as Saengerbund Hall or the Plainfield High School gym, it would be entirely inadvisable to play the rubber P. H. S.—N. P. H. S. championship game on which ever of these two floors the toss of a coin decides, as is the present plan. Both of these schools win their city title tilts at home so regularly, and lose on the other team's court so regularly, that not staging the deciding contest on a neutral court seems too much like having the title decided by the luck of the toss.

NEED PLAINFIELD POULTRY BODY MORE THAN EVER.

The amalgamation of the Union County Poultry Association and the New Jersey Association for Poultry Improvement makes an organization of Plainfield and North Plainfield poultry exhibitors, advocated by many fanciers in the city and borough, more desirable than ever.

The U. C. P. A. has had its headquarters in Elizabeth, and although the N. J. A. P. I. has been more closely connected with Plainfield, the merger into one county body will naturally make this city's interests secondary to those of the county seat. The county show, held in Elizabeth before the holidays, did not excite the enthusiasm among Plainfielders that a show held here would have, and the idea of holding a local show was one of the chief things that actuated the local poultrymen when they effected a temporary organization of a Plainfield association at the recent meeting.

KEEP TRACK OF RECORDS MADE IN P. H. S. POOL.

Only a few swimming meets have been held in the new pool at the Plainfield High School, but what are the best records made so far in the school tank are unknown because in none of the meets has there been enough timers. In some instances, no one held a watch on the swimmers.

This is an oversight that should be remedied, if possible. If the competitive records made in the tank are saved, they will be highly prized in later years. Only by this method can it be learned how the abilities of the school boys one year compare with those of another.

Surprising is the fact that the Columbus Club court has become the feminine basketball mecca this season. It is only fair to expect that the class of weekly male contests scheduled on this court would make it a popular center for boys' competition, but few there were this time last year who dared venture the opinion that girls would hold forth in their present strength at this club. It is evident that the crowd that attends the games is as interested in one sex as the other, and it is generally conceded that the feminine exhibitions are equally as interesting and entertaining.

AND IF THEY DO, THEY'LL SHUT DOWN BY JULY FOURTH.

"Band" B. Johnson, official organ (wind model), of the American League, when interviewed today by a reporter for the Daily Snews, predicted that the Feds would never open their season.

SECOND P. H. S.-N. P. H. S. GIRLS' GAME TOMORROW

Saengerbund Hall will be the scene of the second game between the girls' teams of North Plainfield and Plainfield High Schools tomorrow afternoon, when these two teams meet to decide the scholastic title of the city. With one game to their credit, the borough team will enter the contest confident of annexing the title.

The Plainfield team has been improving constantly, and as the last contest was won by the small margin of three points, the score being 22 to 19, tomorrow's battle should display the same brand of close fighting.

With a record of thirteen wins and one defeat, the N. P. H. S. maidens have a record which no other team in that institution has ever accomplished, and a number of fine combinations have performed for the school. The boroughites will be greatly strengthened by the addition of Theresa McCullough in the pivot position. In the last meeting of these contingents she was missed materially, although the team was able to score the first victory.

James J. McNamee will handle the whistle again tomorrow, and the contest will begin at 3:15 o'clock.

The two teams will take their positions as follows:

Miss McCullough	Miss C. Bremble

PARKS GET ODD FROM THE ELKS

As Usual, Home Team Wins Two Games in First of Annual Alley Tilts.

SHOOT 952 IN RUBBER

Washington Avenue Clubmen Give Excellent Exhibition in Third Game, But Work on Both Sides in Other Games is Only Fair.

History repeated itself last night, when the bowling teams representing the Park Club and Elks' Club met in their first match of the annual home-and-home series, on the Park Club chutes. The rult that the home team gets two games in these matches had no exception last night, the Washington avenue pinners taking the rubber game with 952.

The pinning, for the most part, was mediocre. Monroe H. Long returned the only double century when he rolled 212 in the last game. The Parks did their best work in the final roll, every member of the team posting his highest score of the evening in this game.

The losers were charged with twenty missed spares, and the winners with one less. Quaker Vail drew seven splits, more than any other man.

The Elks took the first game by twenty-seven pins, 834 to 807. The Parks went up to 872 in the second, the Antlered tribe finishing eighteen points behind with 854. The homesters' margin in the last game was an even hundred pins.

PLAINFIELD DOGS IN NEWARK SHOW

Several Local Kennels Will Be Represented—Entry List Totals 700.

LAST RIBBON EVENT

All Coming Shows of Newark Kennel Club Will Be for Cash Prizes—Some of the Plainfield Dogs That Will Be Benched.

Many Plainfielders will be seen at the Newark Kennel Club show tomorrow. The fixture, which is the fourth annual, will be held in the First Regiment Armory, Sussex avenue and Jay street.

While not as many local people will bench their dogs as was expected, a half-dozen or so have their dogs entered. Among them are John J. O'Donohue, John A. Conway, Boreas Kennels, Georgian Kennels and Mrs. Julia Dunham.

J. J. O'Donohue will show his Kenilwyn Pennant in the novice class. As a puppy, the Airedale won the novice and winners' reserve at the New Brunswick show last fall.

Nym and Nabobelte, French bulldogs of J. A. Conway, are believed to be the only local entries in that division. Nym has never failed to score, and has won many ribbons and cups.

The unbeatable Russian Wolfhounds of Boreas Kennels are expected to be one of the features of the big show. A number of local fanciers who have been very successful at the Newark show in previous years regret very much that they will not be able to bench this year. Mrs. Katherine Abbe, who cleaned up last year, has not entered her bulldogs, but she is priming Mr. Conway's French bulls for the show. Richard J. Harrigan will not be able to bench his English bulldogs.

The number of dogs that will be shown is close to seven hundred. Boston terriers lead the list of entries, with fifty-five. Close behind follow French and English bulldogs with an entry of thirty-five each, and there is a surprising class of thirty-two beagles, the largest in ten years. German shepherd dogs also are stronger than usual, with thirty-one contestants. Nine chow-chows are also listed.

The show Saturday will be the last ribbon event that will ever be held by the Newark Kennel Club, all coming shows to be money features, with cash prizes in every class.

CHANGE DATE FOR SECOND ELKS-PARK BOWLING MATCH

It was announced to day that the second match of the series between the Park Club and Elks' Club teams will be rolled at the Elks' Club, February 22, instead of February 28, the date first arranged.

MALES WILL WEAR AS MANY BUTTONS AS THEY ARE TALL THIS COMING SPRING

Early forecasts of the spring fashions for males point out a new and interesting relation of the buttons on coats to the height of the wearers. It seems that the newest idea is to have one button on the coats of short persons or shrimps, two buttons on mediums and three or four or more on the tall ones. In this way it will be easy to tell by a glance at his buttons whether a person is tall or not. The pictures illustrate this and one or two other new ideas

BELGIANS HAVE A KUKLUX KLAN

Escaping Official Says Germans Can't Cope With It.

SPY EXECUTED BY MEMBER.

Papers Seized by Natives Reveal Work of Invaders—Heavy Fine Imposed on City Where German Was Killed—Organization Has Newspaper Organ That Can't Be Suppressed.

An official of the Belgian government who has escaped from Brussels through the German lines by the "underground railway" and has just arrived at The Hague tells some startling stories of the mysterious undercurrents by which Belgians are constantly undermining the German military authorities in Belgium.

According to this official, a great Belgian secret society, avowedly terroristic in its plans and methods and patterned after the famous Kuklux Klan, which existed in the southern states in the years after the American civil war, was organized some months ago and is constantly increasing its scope and activities, which have already succeeded in causing the German authorities much trouble.

This society is believed to have been responsible for the death of Cels Derode, the German spy who betrayed Miss Edith Cavell and who recently was shot down by an unidentified hand. The German authorities have arrested two men, a barber and an electrician, for the murder, but are said to have no real clew to its perpetrators.

Has Newspaper Organ.

The famous newspaper, Free Belgium, which is published regularly under the noses of the German officials despite all their efforts to suppress it, is supposed to be the organ of the secret society. It has stated that the death of Derode cost but one franc and that many more francs will be available for similar work.

The only reply which General von Bissing has yet been able to make for the death of his spy has been the levying of a fine of 500,000 marks (about $120,000) on the city of Brussels. It had previously been reported that this fine was levied because Derode was shot by an unlicensed revolver. The escaped Belgian official gives a different version of the affair.

It appears from his statement that after Derode had been killed a Belgian coroner's court was the first authoritative body to appear on the scene, arriving some time before any representative of the German authorities.

The court seized all Derode's papers and examined them. These papers revealed all Derode's spying activities and included reports of payments to him by the German authorities.

The Belgian officials refused to surrender these papers when General von Bissing demanded them, and for this reason General von Bissing fined the municipality.

A Galley o' Fun!

A SURE THING.

"'Tis a fight between a Roman and a Barbarian."

"And does the Roman win?"

"Why should he lose? These toys are made to sell in Rome!"

TEACHING THE YOUNG IDEA.

Mrs. Hogg—Don't you know what becomes of bad little pigs when they die?

Little Pig—What, mamma?

Mrs. Hogg—They go to a horrible place where they get thin.

FATES.

Of the three Fates, Clotho, who spun the thread of life, was for making woman to be worth her weight in gold.

But Atropos, the dread, was otherwise minded.

"Why," exclaimed Atropos, "if we make her worth her weight in gold, she probably won't do a blessed thing to reduce her flesh, and she'll just naturally get to be a sight!"

Lachesis, the fearsome third, sided with Atropos, and although Clotho resorted to about all the dilatory tactics then known to parliamentary law, she was finally defeated.

IN A LIVERY-STABLE TOWN.

A livery stable-town is usually a mile from the station—a mile of dust and mud, goats, chickens, tin cans, barbed wire, old garments, and ancient vehicles.

There are three livery stables, a blacksmith shop, and nine nickel-plated saloons; a drug and picture-post card store; and a grocery store, a furniture store, a general store, and a kind of a store.

There is a hotel in connection with a livery stable. The livery-stables are most imposing edifices—Mission style, Romanesque, and Gothic. The churches and the hotel seem to be Casloa Old Style.

Your room at the hotel is over the bar-room. This keeps you from being lonesome. If you want to take a nap so as to be at your best when you lecture in the evening, there is a youth on the sidewalk below your window whose business it is to keep you awake. He can make more difficult kinds of noises than a menagerie. Some of them are so wonderful and excite so much curiosity that you must climb out of bed to see how he does it. He hails everybody he knows and regales them extensively. When there is nobody to be regaled he whistles. When his tune is worked out, and he can think of nothing else, he rolls a keg up and down.

In the middle of the night you are awakened by a startling apparation. An old lady is standing in her nightdress, a lamp in her hand, desperately trying to hang her clothes on imaginary hooks in the air. For some reason or other she cannot locate the hooks. You have given up all idea of rest, and are ready to be entertained by this latest novelty.

She is a nice-looking old lady in gold rimmed specks. Her eyes rest upon you, lying in bed.

"Well, mercy me!" she says, and closes the door.

She evidently inadvertently mistook your room for a closet. You then proceed to sink to sleep with a smile.

HIS OPPORTUNITY.

Teller—I heartily indorse the idea of the United States Mint coining half-cent pieces.

Askington—Why so?

Teller—Because it will enable Deacon Pinchbrick to contribute to public enterprises all he wants to without risking heart-disease.

A POOR TIME TO PROPOSE.

Chimmy—Dere's Angelina, now! If yer love her why don't yer go right up an' propose matrimony?

Johnny—Wot? After she's bin a-holdin' her sister's teethin' baby for over four hours? Say! she wouldn't marry de Crown Prince uv Germany if he ast her now!

REVIEWS IMPORTANT WORK OF CONGRESS

Miss Janet Richards in Current Event Talk Presents Some Interesting Facts.

Congressional legislation occupied the attention of Miss Janet E. Richards, of Washigton, and her audience at the lecture given by the former in the Hartridge School Auditorium yesterday afternoon. Miss Richards told her listeners how all matters of legislation are turned over to a committee on that subject, who discusses the same and then grant semi-public and public hearings before the matter becomes a bill for passage in the House and Senae. The committee on naval affairs was probably the busiest of any committee, and the passage of a bill for the appropriation of $600,000 for the improvement of two navy yards, the Brooklyn and the Mare Island, is the first bill passed in connection with the program of the president for the added defense. Miss Richards cited an interesting talk she had with General Miles recently, who urge an increase in submarines and aero planes rather than battleships.

Other matters taken up Miss Richards were resumes of the Jones-Hitchcock bill for the Philippines; the treaties with Hayti, Nacaragua and Colombia. The Owen-Keating child labor bill proved of much interest to the women present, the bill providing that no child shall work in any factories in the United States under the age of fourteen years, and children between the ages of fourteen and sixteen years shall not work more than eight hours a day. Miss Richards bitterly denounced the people who opposed the measure and looked forward to the passage of the same in the near future, and thereby do away with the inhuman waste of child life.

HIGH SCHOOL NOTES.

The debating teams of the Alpha and Omega Literary Societies of the High School have been chosen, and February 19 has been picked as the day for the debate between the two teams to decide the school team that will represent P. H. S. in the Rutgers College League. William Backer is leader of the Alpha team, composed of Richard Borden, Olive Lawrance and Clarence Eder, and the Omega team, composed of Clifford Tildon, Harold Seal and Solomon Weintrob is led by Dickerman Williams. The four students on both teams making the best showing at the debate will be picked for the school team.

The debate with South Side and P. H. S. for March 3 has been changed from Newark to Plainfield and will now be held in the local auditorium on the evening of that date. The Newarkers have chosen to debate the affirmative side of the question: "Resolved, That we shall have national and state prohibition," and the negative will be taken by the local team.

The first tryouts for the second of the two sketches to be given this year by the members of the Junior Class instead of a play, will be held beginning with this afternoon and continuing Monday if necessary. Miss A. K. Miller will coach the cast for this one, as well as for the other, and rehearsing will start next week in earnest.

THE FORUM

Editor, Plainfield Daily Press:

STOP CATARRH! OPEN NOSTRILS AND HEAD

Says Cream Applied in Nostrils Relieves Head-Colds at Once.

If your nostrils are clogged and your head is stuffed and you can't breathe freely because of a cold or catarrh, just get a small bottle of Ely's Cream Balm at any drug store. Apply a little of this fragrant antiseptic cream into your nostrils and let it penetrate through every air passage of your head, soothing and healing the inflamed, swollen mucous membrane and you get instant relief.

Ah! how good it feels. Your nostrils are open, your head is clear, no more hawking, snuffing, blowing; no more headache, dryness or struggling for breath. Ely's Cream Balm is just what sufferers from head colds and catarrh need. It's a delight.—Adv.

WASHINGTON'S BIRTHDAY.

The birthday of George Washington will be celebrated a week from next Tuesday, February 22, and for more than a century the memorable event has been observed on that date, though the date on which the great American was born was February 11, 1732. Until he was twenty years old, Washington always observed February 11 as his natal day, and even after Washington had become the greatest and most famous American, February 11 was observed as his birthday, which sometimes was celebrated in different places both on the 11th and 22nd of the month.

Washington's diary for 1789 contains this note: "February 12 went with the family to a ball in Alexandria given by the citizens of it and its vicinity in commemoration of my birthday." That birthday ball in Alexandria was held on Monday, because the 11th of February fell on Sunday.

Washington's diary for 1799, the year of his death, contains this birthday reference: "February 11 went up to Alexandria to the celebration of my birthday. Many maneuvers were performed by uniform corps, and an elegant ball and supper at night. February 12, returned home."

The change in Washington's birthday date was brought about by the change in the calendar. England, in 1752, adopted the Gregorian, or reformed, calendar, which corrected the error of the Julian calendar. The new calendar dropped ten days, and events which took place from February 12 to 21 inclusive were deemed to have taken place on February 22.

It would appear that there was no observance of Washington's birthday in the Continental Army until 1781, and it is likely that that was the first observance of the anniversary by any other persons than Washington and his family. On that occasion, Rochambeau and a number of French and American officers celebrated the day with a dinner. On February 12, Rochambeau wrote to Washington "Yesterday was the anniversary of your excellency's birthday. We have put off celebrating that holiday until today by reason of the Lord's Day, and we will celebrate it with the sole regret that your excellency be not a witness of the effusion and gladness of our hearts."

The first popular celebration of the February 22 date was at Newport, R. I., in 1784. The chronicles of the event say that the bells of the town were rung, the houses were decorated with flags and bunting, and a brilliant entertainment was given. The Tammany Society of New York, in 1790, adopted a resolution that thereafter the 22nd of February be commemorated as the birthday of Washington.

THE LOYALTY OF CLARK.

If there is anything good to be handed out to loyal democrats when the present campaign is over, all of it ought to go to Champ Clark, of Missouri. After his defeat in the national convention of four years ago, when he won a majority of the delegates and then lost to Wilson, the Democratic leader calmly and quietly went to work to carry out the platform pledges of the convention. He is working valiantly and earnestly for the party as Speaker of Congress, taking the floor last week to lead the fight on the Preparedness Bill, which is a pet policy of Wilson's, and now comes the announcement that he will probably go back to Missouri and become a candidate for governor to insure democratic majorities in that state. Compare this behavior with the resentful attitude of Bryan, who is now waging open war on Wilson.

Justice Hughes has asked that his friends refrain from using his name in connection with the Republican nomination for President and disclaims knowledge or responsibility of his rumored candidacy. He firmly announces that he is not a candidate and indicates that he will not permit his name to be used. Each day events point more strongly to the nomination of Hughes, and it is hardly possible that he would refuse such an honor. There is no chance of a compromise between Roosevelt and the Old Guard Republicans. They are out to beat the Colonel, and their motto is "Anything—even Wilson." The gentleman from Oyster Bay may be in Bermuda, but he is gaining delegates each day, and when the convention is called to order it will probably be a deadlock, with Roosevelt holding strength enough to control, yet not enough to force himself on the convention. This would result in the naming of Hughes, unless another compromise candidate acceptable to the Old Guard and the Progressives can be found, and there are few, if any, who possess this qualification. All this leads to a reiteration of the statement that Justice Hughes is probably jesting, after all.

Plainfield has more cause for celebrating "Prosperity Day" than many other communities, and every man, woman and child ought to show their appreciation of the present high wages and commercial activity.

News reports that the present session of the New Jersey legislature would probably be the shortest in the history of the state, have brought no wail of protest from citizens.

The British would probably retire from Kut-el-Amar as they did from Gallipoli, but they can't get away just now.

The Kaiser has written a poem which is to be set to music and then all the people will be forced to sing it. Well, they will live there.

FREEHOLDERS OPPOSE BRIDGE TO JERSEY

Will Not Join in Connecting Link Between Manhattan and This State.

Essex county will not join in the preliminary plans for the connecting of Manhattan and New Jersey by either a bridge or vehicular tunnels. This decision was reached at a meeting yesterday of the Board of Freeholders of Essex county in Newark, when the proposal came up for final action.

Discussion on the bridge or tunnels project was started by Freeholder William Pennington, who declared that the proposition had been before the Board for a long time, and that it should be disposed of at once. He accordingly offered a resolution calling upon the Governor to appoint a commission to inquire into the advisability of constructing a bridge or tunnel conecting New Yor and New Jersey and appropriating $10,000 for expenses in the preliminary investigation.

The resolution was strongly opposed by Freeholder Richard F. Mattia, leader of the majority, who asserted that Essex county would not receive enough benefits from the bridge or tunnels project to warrant any expenditure by the county. The resolution was lost by a tie vote of 4 to 4.

There is a good deal of money in poetry. There ought to be for nobody has ever got any out of it.

It is pleasing to note that the government will soon begin the coining of half-cent pieces. The new coin will be a great convenience to some of the liberal gentlemen who wish to grant their wives regular allowances each week.

Mr. Amos Proudfoot, the eminent financier, of Hickeyville, has bought a mousetrap factory at Tombstone, Ariz., for $5,000, has given the plant a new coat of paint and capitalized it at $5,000,000, and the stock is now on sale. Mr. Proudfoo, who has acquired several other mousetrap factories in like manner, expects to establish a mousetrap trust with a capitalization of five billions.

EXPLOSION SAID TO BE THE WORK OF INCENDIARY

Elizabeth, Feb. 11.—Following two explosions and fire which destroyed the plant of the Midvale Chemical Company, in Bayway, the police have arrested and are holding for investigation a man who said he was Michael Wallace, and that he lived formerly at 156 Randolph street, Chicago. He is about forty-five years old and appears to be a foreigner. The police arrested him near the chemical company's plant about an hour after the storehouse and outer buildings had been destroyed.

Wallace, as he calls himself, was bareheaded and clad in jumper and overalls. He told the police he had been employed as a brakeman in Chicago and had been in Elizabeth only a few days. Learning from him that he had a room at 645 Elizabeth avenue, the police went there and found several suitcases. They did not contain, so far as divulged, anything to throw light on the suspect's mission in Elizabeth. The police do not place much faith in Wallace's statement that he is a brakeman by occupation.

Dr. Stephen S. Kreyer, manager of the chemical plant, yesterday said that the explosions and fire were a mystery to him. He is loth to suspect that the origin was anything but accidental. He said there were several things, however, that would stand investigation on the part of the company. About a month ago it was reported that the chemical plant was manufacturing gas bombs, but this was denied

AND THE WORST IS YET TO COME--

A LIGHT SLEEPER

- Proctor's Theatre -

The entertainment offered by the Proctor management today is an exceptionally fine one. As an added feature the latest episode of the great serial, "The Red Circle," is presented today only, and the work of Ruth Roland and Frank Mayo deserves special commendation in this chapter, for their acting will elicit the praise of every patron. A feature that is alone well worth the price of admission is that extraordinary Keystone production entitled "Fatty and Mabel Adrift," in which Roscoe Arbuckle and Mabel Normand are co-stars. A popular dramatic production is presented today and tomorrow entitled "The Corner," in which Willard Mack, the versatile Triangle star, and George Fawcett, the renowned character actor, assume the leading roles. The picture deals with the absorbing theme of capital and labor. Tomorrow afternoon the kiddies will be given a big treat by the management, and in addition to many large and handsome toys given away from the stage to the lucky ones, all the children on leaving the theatre will receive a handsome token. The vaudeville offerings include Romanoff, Frank & Co., a big musical comed extravaganza; The Great Johnson, magician of note; Dorothy Kenton, who scored a hit yesterday with her clever work on the banjo, and Grannon & Stone, in a medley of song hits. "The Strange Case of Mary Page," the big new serial, with Henry Walthall and Edna Mayo, will soon appear at Proctor's. On Monday and Tuesday, Norma Talmadge, of "The Little Cry of Love," will be seen in an extremely interesting production entitled "The Missing Links," as lead by Robert Harrson, one of Triangle's most distinguished emotional stars.

∴ Plainfield Theatre ∴

The "Winter Garden Girls," direct from New York, are the big feature of the bill for the last half of the week at the Plainfield Theatre. Hoey and Mozar are at the head of the company, which includes twelve people, ten of whom are pretty girls, arrayed in beautiful new costumes and framed by special scenery. The act is replete with catchy music, comedy that sparkles and all this is presented by pleasing young women.

In addition to this big act, there is another which deserves to be heralded as a feature. It is called "The Great Idea." It is a comedy sketch that has been called a scream where offered before. Other acts on the bill are Bud Lorraine Co., a scenic novelty with funny dummies; Stanley and Gold, comedians, and King and Rodale, "for laughing purposes." There will also be the customary offering of comedy photoplays, split into one and two reel offerings.

Friday night the ever-popular country store will be presented. Prizes are of the customary value and will be awarded to holders of lucky seats. It is advertised that all should attend and "see William, the famous West Third street goat."

An attraction that never fails to attract capacity audiences in this city, is Beef Trust Billy Watson and his Big Girlie Show, who make their appearance at the Plainfield Theatre Monday (matinee and night). Everybody knows the reputation of Beef Trust Billy Watson has as mirth-provoker, and this season he is even better than ever. By special request of the circuit he will, on his farewell tour, play his best and most laughable burlesque, "Krausmeyer's Alley" and "The Bashful Venus." Besides Watson, the cast is one of the principal assistants being Frank Bombard, Lew Reynolds, Billy Swan, Jean Leighton, Margaret Newell, Kathryn Pearl and many other well-known artists. Mention must also be made oft he chorus, which Mr. Watson has gathered to display the gorgeous and elaborate costumes which he has provided for them.

Billy Watson and His "Beef Trust" at the Plainfield Theatre, Monday, Matinee and Night, Feb. 14.

Without exaggeration, it may be stated that such a bunch of stately blondes and brunettes have never before been seen with any show; not only can they sing well, but there are several prospective prima donnas in their ranks.

Dressing to Please.

"It's just 'clothes, clothes, clothes' all the time," growled Mr. Cobbles. "Don't you women ever think of anything but clothes?"

"Why, yes," answered Mrs. Cobbles. "Occasionally we think of you men, and then we go and buy more clothes."

PLAN OBSERVANCE OF "BABY WEEK" HERE

Representatives of Local Organizations Meet and Discuss Details.

The committee interested in the campaign for celebrating "Baby Week" met at the office of the Visiting Nurse Association yesterday afternoon. Those present represented the Mothers' Association, the Parent-Teacher Associations of the public schools of Plainfield, North Plainfield, Dunellen, and the St. Mary's Visiting Nurse Association, the Board of Health, the College club.

The week set aside all over the country for bringing this important work of saving the babies, is from March 4 to 11. Plains have been made to give this a good deal of publicity in Plainfield and the vicinity and it is hoped that the entire population of the city will help to make this a great success. All the plans will be made public in a very short time. Everyone is urged to watch the papers and see what part they can take to join in this work.

EDISON OBSERVES HIS SIXTY-NINTH BIRTHDAY

Orange, Feb. 11.—Thomas A. Edison is sixty-nine years old today. He is working as hard as he ever worked in his life, and is too busy to see visitors. Mr. Edison, according to William Meadowcraft, his secretary, has been engaged for twenty-one hours a day lately on something that will prove to be of great importance. What it is no one will tell. Some think he is still investigating the storage battery problem.

Mr. Edison is still as alert as men many years his junior.

IMPORTANT DECISION FIXING BANK STOCK TAX

Trenton, Feb. 11.—An interesting point in the fixing of the bank stock tax was decided today by the State Board of Taxes and Assessment when that body held that, owing to the incomplete assessments on May 20 of the year for which a bank files its statement under the law, the assessments for the previous year shall be used in the calculations provided by law for the levying of the tax.

The decision was made in the case of the Watsessing Bank's appeal from the action of the Essex County Board of Taxation in ascertaining the value of the appellant's shares for taxation for the year 1914 by deducing the assessed valuation placed on the bank's real property for the year 1913. The bank contended that the assessed value for 1914 should have been deducted.

Daedalus Taught His Son How to Use Them.

Daddy's Bedtime Story—

How a Little Boy Flew Through the Air Just Like a Bird.

WHEN Jack and Evelyn wanted to hear a story about a little Greek boy whose father made him a pair of wings to fly daddy told them: "Soon as Daedalus finished the small wings he called his little son to him and said: 'You must keep close to me and try not to be reckless, dear. If you fly too low the damp sea air will clog your wings. If you try to go too high the heat from the sun will melt the wax on them. So keep close to me, my son. That's safest.' And while the boy, Icarus, played with a bit of wax on downy feathers, paying little heed to his father's words, the father himself fitted the wings to small shoulders with trembling hands, while tears wet his cheeks. It was for life or death, you see, that they were going to fly."

"Why, daddy?" Jack wanted to be told.

"Because neither wanted to endure being the king's prisoners in a tower any longer. They loved freedom and were working for it. So when the small wings were firmly strapped Daedalus taught his son how to use them, just as a seagull might teach its young to fly. And Icarus learned to mount the air, poise and dart almost as well as his father could. Then Daedalus kissed Icarus, not knowing whether it was for the last time or not, and, mounting the air like a strong eagle, he flew off, always looking back to encourage his son and see how he managed his wings. Often he called back, 'Remember my words, Icarus, and keep close to me.'

"And as they flew over that part of the island of Crete toward the sea and safety plowmen looked up from their work and shepherds leaned on their crooks to watch the wonderful pair, thinking them gods to be able to sail the air like birds. Once some children stopped playing Greek games to watch a little boy-bird and then ran in to tell their mamma. But she only laughed at them, and none of all these dull people on the land realized that the pair flying were the very ones that the king of Crete was trying to punish in his prison tower."

"Why did a king put a little boy in prison, daddy? He had done nothing wrong," said Evelyn.

"Icarus went to prison to keep his father company, you see. The only favor the king granted poor Daedalus was that Icarus might stay with him. So, sailing along rather near the earth so that if they fell all their bones might not be broken, this brave Greek father steered his course to freedom."

"All Greeks seem to me very brave," Jack offered.

"They were a beautiful race, my son," and daddy kissed him.

Marrying for Money

BY MRS. EVA LEONARD

Spoiling Jacob's Breakfast Is Only a Diversion for Ortrude.

Jacob Townsend was eating his breakfast with his paper propped up in front of him. Ortrude sat opposite him, a frown on her handsome face. She toyed with her spoon, tapped with her foot on the carpet, all to no purpose. Jacob was utterly oblivious of her presence. Finally Jacob emerged from cover enough to ask for another cup of coffee. Ortrude was slow in taking the cup from the extended hand. She was determined to get his attention.

"Oh, did you speak?" she asked absently as he looked up to see why she had not taken the proffered cup.

"Would you mind giving me another cup of coffee?" repeated Jacob, looking over the top of his breastworks.

"Do you intend to take it behind your fortifications? Because if you do ——"

Jacob removed his glasses and looked inquiringly at her.

"If you knew how distressing it is to look out on that wall of paper and know that there is a human being behind it who is so muffled in news that no human tone can reach him, why you must lay siege to the fortification as to a walled city," continued Ortrude as she poured the coffee.

"Well, as you control the food and water supply it will be easy to starve the place into surrender," laughed Jacob, taking the cup. "The fact is, I have found it so hard to find a minute to read the paper that I have formed very bad habits."

"The rustle of paper is more edifying than some conversation I have heard," drawled Marian, helping herself to another muffin.

"I suppose that is why you never objected to my reading the paper at the table." Jacob was trying to keep the conversation in pleasant channels.

"No, but I really felt that you were able to tell what you wanted to do better than I was able to tell you, and I believe in people being allowed to live their lives." Marian looked smilingly into her father's face.

Now this was a tenet of Ortrude's creed, but the way her creed worked out in practice was that she allowed people to live their lives according to her program.

Jacob looked uneasily at Ortrude. This teasing tone of Marian's was particularly annoying to Ortrude. The poor man took little comfort when the two were together. Marian's temper was like a powder magazine and all his energies were spent putting out sparks.

"Yes, I think most everything should be allowed to live its life; everything but nettles. They should be rooted out." She looked at Marian as she spoke.

The girl's face flushed and she was seized with a violent fit of coughing. Pressing her handkerchief to her mouth she left the room. Dudley sprang up so suddenly to go to her assistance that his chair fell over backward with a resounding crash. He righted it and with hurried excuses left the room.

"Positively, I think Marian is the rudest girl I ever saw." Ortrude had two bright red spots burning in her cheeks.

"You misconstrue everything she does, Ortrude. I saw nothing impudent. Don't imagine things. There is enough real trouble to combat."

"There surely is," said Ortrude, rising and leaving Jacob to finish his breakfast alone.

EDUCATION NOTES

Pittsburg, Pa.—Pittsburg is trying out a new school idea, founded somewhat on the Gary plan, but with modifications and extensions. The new William Mokelvy school, in the heart of a congested district, is the scene of the experiment. The school authorities are proceeding slowly, and will modify the plan as conditions necessitate. Briefly, the experiment will endeavor to do these things: apply the departmental plan of colleges and universities, by groups instead of by subjects; to grade schools for the first time so that pupils will move on hour periods from bookwork to play or recreation; to teach all special subjects, such as drawing and music, with special teachers; make wider use of the auditorium for general assembling; alternate the use of classrooms so that different classes use them in turn; no attempt to introduce the so-called religious features. The pupils' time is divided as follows: 50 per cent. to academic work, 25 per cent. to special subject work, and 25 per cent. to recreation supervised.

Lansing, Mich.—The State Department of Public Instruction has prepared five lessons on tuberculosis to be taught in the schools and colleges of the State during the week beginning March 6. Statistics compiled show a great prevalence of tuberculosis among city school children than the rural school pupils. The death rate per 100,000 from tuberculosis was 61.2 among city children in 1912, and among rural school children it was 30.5 in 100,000. Following the text of each of the five lessons, there are questions and answers on the subject for the day, and it is the intention of Supt. Keeler that the teachers in all the public and private schools shall drill the pupils thoroughly during the week of the school campaign. Hereafter, knowledge of preventive measures against tuberculosis will be a qualification for teachers in Michigan.

Springfield, Mass.—Evening classes for plasterers and printers have been established at the vocational school in Springfield. The printers of the city were so anxious to establish the class in their trade that they are providing their own fund by paying $3.50 each, thus avoiding the wait for a city appropriation.

Helena, Mont.—Montana is not behind her sister states in providing vocational training for her school children. In Helena over 400 children are availing themselves of the practical courses in woodwork, forge work and electrical work. In the wood work, which starts in the fifth grade, the girls, as well as the boys, are enrolled, and they make equal headway. Aside from the twenty hours each semeste given to manual training, many of the boys attend on Saturday afternoons of their own free will. Sixty-five high school pupils are receiving daily instruction in vocational work in various trades, and 320 grade pupils report each week.

Washington.—A prize for the best code of morals for teachers and parents in the character education of children in the school and the home has been offered by the National Instatution for Moral Instruction. By invitation of the institution, educators from various states are preparing codes, and they will all be printed in pamphlet form.

New York.—The progress of education during the year 1816, one hundred years ago, was accelerated by the establishment of the University of Ghent and the University of Liege in America one of the most notable contributions to education a century ago was the establishment of the Pennsylvania State Public Library at Harrisburg. It was during the same year that the French Academy was reorganized, to compose forty members for life, each of whom should be a high authority on questions of language, grammar, rhetoric and poetry.

RECIPE TO CLEAR A PIMPLY SKIN

Pimples Are Impurities Seeking an Outlet Through Skin Pores.

Pimples, sores and boils usually result from toxins, poisons and impurities which are generated in the bowels and then absorbed into the blood through the very ducts which should absorb only nourishment to sustain the body.

It is the function of the kidneys to filter impurities from the blood and cast them out in the form of urine, but in many instances the bowels create more toxins and impurities than the kidneys can eliminate, then the blood uses the skin pores as the next best means of getting rid of these impurities, which often break out all over the skin in the form of pimples.

The surest way to clear the skin of these eruptions, says a noted authority, it to get from any pharmacy about four ounces of Jad Salts and take a tablespoonful in a glass of hot water each morning before breakfast for one week. This will prevent the formation of toxins in the bowels. It also stimulates the kidneys to normal activity, thus coaxing them to filter the blood of impurities and clearing the skin of pimples.

Jad Salts is inexpensive, harmless and is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia. Here you have a pleasant, effervescent drink which usually makes pimples disappear; cleanses the blood and is excellent for the kidneys as well.
